

MASTER SANSKRIT EASILY

(Sa, skÅta Sarala Prabodha)

By

Prof. (Dr.) N. M. Kansara
Retd. Director, Maharshi Academy of Vedic Sciences, Ahmedabad; Director, Akshardham Centre for Applied Research in Social Harmony (AARSH), Akshardham, Gandhinagar - 382 020,(Gujarat, India); Awardee of Certificate of Honour (2001) by The President of India, New Delhi.

Master Sanskrit Easily

(c) Author: Prof. (Dr.) N.M.Kansara, 17/176, Vidyanagar Flats, Near Himmatal Park-2, Ambawadi Vistar,
 AHMEDABAD - 380 015.
 (Gujarat, INDIA)
 Tel. 91-79-6740587
 E'mail: <kansaraad1@sancharnet.in> <nmkansara2k@hotmail.com>

Publisher: Rakesh Kansara
 18011 Cottage Garden Drive, # 301
 Germantown, MD 20874
 USA
 Tel: 240-353-6002
 Email: <rakeshkansara@hotmail.com>

Price: Rs. 100/-

Typesetting: Dr. N. M. Kansara, Ahmedabad
 & page setting

Published: English text in November, 2003
 Gujarati text in October, 1986

PREFACE

About more than a decade and a half back, when I was heading the Maharshi Veda Vijñ̄na Academy, Ahmedabad, as its Director, I wrote a book in Gujarati with the title 'Sa, sk̄̄ta Sarāṇa Prabodha' at the instance of Shri Ishwarbhai Patel, the former Vice Chancellor of the Sardar Patel University, Vallabhvidyanagar, of the Gujarat University, Ahmedabad and of the Gujarat Agricultural University, Dantiwada, and the then Chairman of the Trust managing the institution.

Shri Ishwarbhai wanted me to prepare a postal course for laymen to learn Sanskrit. I planned a course of twenty-eight lessons for the purpose, and later on the lessons were published in the form of the book with the title mentioned above.

Since it was meant for laymen, the only equipment expected of those among them really interested in learning Sanskrit was a bare acquaintance with the Hindi script, and a sound knowledge of the mother tongue, Guj̄̄ti.

At the same time, I had planned the course in such a way that while providing the essentials of the structure of the Sanskrit language in a practical manner, rather than adopting a grammatical approach, all the necessary terminological background of the informal grammar, as also of the formal P̄inian, was provided in a simple way so that after completing the course successfully, if the reader wished to dive deep into the literature and the formal grammar, he will feel quite at ease and joyfully enthusiastic, rather getting bored. And, I was informed by a friend of mine working as a professor in a Teachers' Training College somewhere in Gujarat that he was using my book as a source work for teaching the content part to the students studying for a B.Ed. degree with Sanskrit Method as their special subject. He further added that while the choice of the Sanskrit Method as a special subject helped the graduates, irrespective of their belonging to Arts, Science or Commerce faculty, they knew Sanskrit to the extent of a compulsory, and hence a boring though good scoring, subject through their study during their schooling in the eighth and the ninth standards, and generally lacked the sound knowledge of the Sanskrit. To bridge this knowledge gap between the expectation and actuality on the part of the students choosing the Sanskrit Method, he had found my book more useful, in the place of the then prevalent one by some Akruwala. He also requested me to render it in English to enable the schoolteachers of English medium schools to help them get a sound footing in the language as also the content part of their syllabus they were expected to teach.

Now, after about a decade and a half, when I am free from most of my other academic commitments, I have taken up the happy task of revising the course in an endeavor to prepare a fresh book in English in view of my added experience during the intervening period of time, since then, although the basic outlook of the keeping a practical approach and also acquainting the readers with the essential formal Pāṇinian terminological background has been carefully retained, so as to help the more interested and serious students for further studies.

Since the book is addressed to the English speaking reader, the Sanskrit is given in transliteration in the Roman script with the help of the standard current diacritical marks prevalent among the Sanskrit scholars in India and abroad, while the bare acquaintance of the Devanagari script of original Sanskrit language has been given in the Introduction to the book.

It is hoped that the book will satisfy the academic needs of the Sanskrit teachers and students in India and abroad.

Germantown
Maryland, USA
25/10/2003

Dr. N. M. KANSARA

CONTENTS

Introduction	vii
Lesson 1 : Sounds and Pronunciation; Nouns; Verbs; Sentence; First, Second and Third Persons ... ...	1
Lesson 2 : Singular, Dual, Plural Numbers; Pronouns; Analysis of Verbal Forms; Ten Classes and their Adjuncts; Parasmai-pada, tmane-pada , Ubhaya-pada ; Verbal Roots; Cases – Nominative, Vocative, Accusative, Instrumental, Dative, Ablative, Genitive, Locative; aj-anta , hal-anta , Gender ... ... . . . . .	9
Lesson 3 : A-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine noun R<sup>1</sup>ma , explanation of the verses R<sup>1</sup>mo r<sup>1</sup>ja-ma<sup>a</sup>iā , etc.; Coalescences – internal and External; Case Terminations; Present Tense; Terminations of Parasmai-pada and tmane- -pada . . . . .	18
Lesson 4 : Oral Places of Utterance, Efforts; Classification of the Sounds; Internal and External Efforts; Modifi- cation of Sounds; Coalescence and Compound . . .	27
Lesson 5 : Declension of hal-anta Noun - ñarad and diññ ; Declension of Neuter Nouns; Gu<sup>a</sup>a , VĀddhi . . . . .	37
Lesson 6 : Declension of asmad and yu-mad ; Ya<sup>a</sup>-sandhi , Ay<sup>1</sup>di- Sandhi , Pōrva-rØpa-sandhi , PragĀhya-sandhi , Three Tenses and their Sub-types; Conjugation of the Verbal Roots bhØ and bh<sup>1</sup> in Imperfect Tense ..	48
Lesson 7 : Prefixes; Participles – satA and ñ<sup>1</sup>nac Terminations; Declension of marut and bhavat . . . . .	57
Lesson 8 : <sup>1</sup> - k<sup>1</sup>ranta noun Ram<sup>1</sup> ; Conjugation of as , Conjugation of bhØ in Imperative Lesson 8 : Future Tense and Future Participle; Declension of Mood; Conjugation of nĀt and yudh in Imperfect Past Tense .....	72
Lesson 9 : Active and Passive Voice; Verb Usage in Passive Voice; Past Passive Participle . . . . .	82

Lesson 10: Present Active Participle, Its declension, Use of Various Cases in Sentence .. . . . .	93
Lesson 11: Declension of i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>tana Masculine Nouns muni, pati ; Declension of i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>tana Neuter Nouns v<sup>1</sup>ri, dadhi ; Declension of u-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>tana Neuter Nouns guru, madhu ; Comparison; Potential Participle .. . . . .	103
Lesson 12: Potential Participle (contd.); Concordance of Noun and Adjective; Gender of Nouns; Feminine Nouns, Declension of u-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta and Ø-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta Nouns; Declension of A-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta Masculine and Feminine Nouns .. . . . .	113
Lesson 13: Infinitive Participle; Indeclinable; Gerund .. . . . .	123
Lesson 14: Taddhita Terminations, its Varieties; Sentences for Gentlemanly Conversation; Conjugation of verbal roots in Conditional Mood; Numerical Adjectives .. . . . .	134
Lesson 15: Declension of Numerical Adjectives; Ordinal Numerals; Coalescence of visarga .. . . . .	143
Lesson 16: Verbal Roots of 1 st Class; List of its Chief Forms; Declension of Pronouns idam (M. and F.), adas (M. and F.), idam and adas (N.); vik<sup>1</sup>r and aivik<sup>1</sup>r Classes of Verbal Roots .. . . . .	154
Lesson 17: Terminations of vik<sup>1</sup>r and aivik<sup>1</sup>r Classes; List of Verbal Roots.. . . . .	164
Lesson 18: Specimen Conjugation of All the Ten Classes of Verbal Roots in Parasmai-pada and tmane-pada in the Present Tense; Causal Form of Verbal Roots, Verbal Roots Governing Two Objects .. . . . .	174
Lesson 19: Rules of Consonantal Coalescence; Question-Answers, Past Perfect Tense, Rules of Reduplication ..	184
Lesson 20: Past Perfect forms with the -1m Termination, Past Passive Perfect Tense; Conjugation of Verbal Roots of 3 rd and 7 th Classes, Declension of Nouns ending in -sa, candranmas, payas, manas, tejas, vidvas , and other consonants; Past Perfect Participle .. . . . .	193
Lesson 21: Common Future Tense; Taddhita terminations – apaty<sup>1</sup>rtha, matvarth<sup>1</sup>ya, bh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>rtha, karm<sup>1</sup>rha, samØ-h<sup>1</sup>rtha, sambandh<sup>1</sup>rthaka and vik<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>rthaka .. . . . .	202

Lesson 22: Conjugation of Verbal Roots in Desiderative; Types of Compound – dvandva-sam<sup>1</sup>sa .. . . . .	212
Lesson 23: Syntax and Usage of Cases – Nominative, Accusative, Instrumental, Dative; avyayabh<sup>1</sup>va-sam<sup>1</sup>sa ; Dative .. . . . .	222
Lesson 24: Bahuvr<sup>1</sup>hi-sam<sup>1</sup>sa ; Genitive Case; Conjugation of Verbs derived from Nouns .. . . . .	234
Lesson 25: Tatpuru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa ; Karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya-sam<sup>1</sup>sa ; Dvigu-sam<sup>1</sup>sa ; other sub-types of Tatpuru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa .. . . . .	242
Lesson 26: Other sub-types of Tatpuru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa (contd.); Other Types of Compounds .. . . . .	254
Lesson 27: First Four Varieties Aorist Past Tense; Taddhita Terminations – parim<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>rthaka and saj khy<sup>1</sup>rthaka, kriy<sup>1</sup>vi-e-a<sup>1</sup>rthaka .. . . . .	265
Lesson 28: Taddhita Terminations – prakr<sup>1</sup>aka ; Aorist Past Tense Fifth, sixth and Seventh Varieties: Use of Aorist in Passive Voice; Benedictive Mood; Reduplicative or Intensive Mood; U<sup>1</sup>di Terminations .. . . . .	275
Supplementary Study-----	288
Epilogue .. . . . .	301

INTRODUCTION

Sanskrit and Culture

Sanskrit language is an important link binding together the varieties of Indian culture into a variegated fabric. The Sanskrit works have preserved since times immemorial our treasure of knowledge. Scholars of India and all other countries the world over wishing to know thoroughly about the Indian culture take recourse to Sanskrit as the original source. Due to the naturally scientific and fixed unitary system of sounds and their utterance as vocables, this language has been recognized to be most suitable in this computer age. All the Indian scholars and others have almost universally accepted that even for the sound knowledge of all other Indian languages, both medieval and modern, the equipment of Sanskrit proves to be most helpful. This being the situation, it will be highly conducive to our cultural welfare if we take interest and learn, understand, read, write and if possible speak Sanskrit. It will surely afford us a vital key to the Indian cultural treasure for our family, and us too through us. And, on becoming well versed in Sanskrit we may also feel a sense of fulfillment in our life.

Language and Grammar

Language is but a speech. Human beings express their thoughts and feelings through their speech, which is a system of the sounds uttered through the throat. These sounds combine into words and sentences. Initially, since right from its infancy a child learns to utter sounds and to speak by imitating its mother, and then its father and other relatives, the speech it learns is its mother tongue and it does not need grammar for it. Although ever since the last so many milleniums to this day the Sanskrit language has been an invariable medium of instruction in the traditional P<sup>1</sup>-ha<sup>2</sup>I<sup>1</sup>'s all over India, and although there is in Karnataka State a town, named Chikmaglore, where all its residents speak Sanskrit and carry on their day-to-day communications with one another in Sanskrit, currently the language is not in common popular parlance all over in any Indian state. One has, therefore, to resort to its grammar, which is but a short cut to master its linguistic structure, much in the same way as a medical student learns about the human anatomy by resorting to dissection of a dead body, and thus familiarizing himself with the internal structure of different limbs, and their mutual relationships.

The Cultural Treasure In Sanskrit

A glimpse of the vast richness of Sanskrit literature, in the form of dramas, prose romances, stories, fables, epics, poems, lyrics, dramas, scholastic works on various philosophical systems, as also the expository commentary works on all these forms of literature can be obtained from the histories of Sanskrit literature written by celebrated scholars like M. Krishnamachariar, M. Winternitz, De and Dasgupta, Krishna Chaitanya, Kunhan Raja, and many others in English. An access to Sanskrit is thus a window to the vast panorama of Indian life, philosophy, literature and culture. Anybody who aspires to become a well educated and a considerably cultured person would miss a great deal in life if this treasure were totally unavailable for him.

The present endeavour of introducing a reader to the basics of the structure of the Sanskrit language is practice-oriented and not just grammatical. The objective is to gradually help the reader gain a considerable mastery over the language structure proper, so that he can have considerable confidence in reading, understanding, writing and possibly speaking Sanskrit, so as to enter into the vast literature gradually and almost unaided by a teacher. It is necessary to follow meticulously the instructions given in the book for its study to obtain expected proficiency, comparable to a Sanskrit graduate. of any Indian university.

Method of Study

It is recommended hereby that one should study just two lessons a week, say the first on Thursday and the second on the next Monday, and so on further for the lessons that follow. The lesson started on the Thursday should be read twice on that day, both in the morning and evening, and in the same way on the next two days; consequently the same lesson would be repeatedly six times, thus precluding the necessity of cramming it, and it would enable the reader to inculcate it thoroughly. In this way the whole book consisting of twenty-eight lessons would be covered and fully learnt in about fourteen weeks, i.e., about three and a half months or so.

(2) While repeating the lesson on the same day and the following ones, one should try to recollect it so that it gets installed in his subconscious.

(3) As to the portion of the lesson under the instruction of speaking out loudly, one should try to read it aloud rhythmically incase of prose portion, and sing it melodiously in the case of the metrical one. This is meant to help the reader realize the auditory beauty of the language, as also to facilitate correct pronunciation and inculcate a habit of speaking the language on his part.

(4) The purpose behind the advice of singing rhythmically the metrical verses in the lessons is that they can be memorized easily. These verses are selected in such a way that while illustrating the relevant grammatical forms of the Sanskrit words, like nouns, verbs, participles, and etc., they incorporate the cultural values and wise sayings very useful in day-to-day life. If they get ingrained in the memory, they would occur immediately to the reader at appropriate relevant occasion, and would add to his oratorical personality.

(5) The rest of the portion of a lesson is meant to be understood, mentally grasped, thoroughly mastered, and visualized mentally.

(6) The reader who observes these instructions and carries them out carefully will surely gain the proficiency in Sanskrit language comparable to the graduation level, within time duration of just one collegiate term of the Indian universities.

Sanskrit Devan<sup>1</sup>gar" Alphabet and its Transliteration

Since this book is meant for the English readers, we have used the Roman script with appropriate diacritical marks to indicate the equivalent Sanskrit sounds. But normally Sanskrit language is presented through the devan<sup>1</sup>gar" symbols. A comparative list of the symbols is given below to facilitate the interested readers, who may like to read the original Sanskrit works in future.

Vowels: a = , ̄ = , i = , ̄ = , u = , ̄ = , Å = , ̄ = , e = , ai = , o = , au = , a, = , aå = .

Consonants:

Guttural: ka = , kha = , ga = , gha = , ja = , ha = ;

Palatal: ca = , cha = , ja = , jha = , ña = ;

Retroflex: -a = , -ha = , ̄ = , ̄ha = , ̄a = ;

Dental: ta = , tha = , da = , dha = , na = ;

Labial: pa = , pha = , ba = , bha = , ma = .

Semivowels: (Palata) ya = , (Retroflex) ra = , (Dental) la = , (Labial) va = .

Sibilants: (Palatal) ʃa = , (Retroflex) ̄a = , (Dental) sa = , (Rolled) ̄a = .

Anusv<sup>1</sup>ra : A single dot on the Devan<sup>1</sup>gar» letter, like a dot in the Roman letter i.

Visarga: like a colon sign after a Devan<sup>1</sup>gar» letter.

Syllabic Style of Devan<sup>1</sup>gar» Characters:

Ka = , k̄ = , ki = , k̄i = , ku = , k̄u = , kÅ = , k̄Å = , k̄o = , ke = , kai = , Ko = , kau = , ka, = , kaå = . End of a word or a sentence is indicated by a single vertical stroke (/), and that of a verse by such double strokes (//). I n the ligature of one or more consonants followed by a vowel, also called the conjunct consonant, the Devan<sup>1</sup>gari signs for the consonants are combined together, as for instance, in kta = , k̄-a = , dbha = , dma = , mna = , tsna = .

With this much introductory information about the Devan<sup>1</sup>gar» script and its roman equivalents, the reader can proceed further with simple Sanskrit sentences, and progress easily.

Now, note the following Sanskrit verb-roots, and keep their meaning in mind so that you can use their forms in the sentences of the present tense:

Kath (P.)=to tell; kathayati .	Kamp (.)= to tremble; kampate .
K's (.)= to cough; k'sate .	Kup (P.)= to be angry; kupayti .
Kōrd (.)=to jump; kurdate .	KÅ (U)= to do; karoti/kurute .
Khan (U)=to dig; khanati/khanate .	Gam (P.)=to go; gacchati .
Ga <sup>a</sup> = (p.) to count; ga<sup>a</sup>ayati ,	Garj (P.)= to roar; garjati .
Gai (P.) = to sing; g<sup>i</sup>yati .	GhÅ (P.)=to rub; ghÅ-ati .
Car (P.)=to walk; carati .	Chal (P.)=to deceive; chalayati .
Ci(.,) = to collect; cinute	Cyu (.)= to drop down; cyavate .
Jan (.) = to be born; j<sup>i</sup>yate .	Jalp (P.)=to prattle; jalpati .
Jv (P.)= to live; j<sup>v</sup>vati .	» (.)= to fly; ayate .
Tan(U)=to spread; tanoti/tanute .	D <sup>1</sup> (P.)=to give; dad<sup>1</sup>ti .
Tak - (P.)=to cut; tak-ati .	Day (.) to take pity; datyate .
D <sup>v</sup> p (.)= shines; dipyate .	Du - (P.)=to be impure; du-yati .
DÅh (P.)=to hate; druhyati .	Dh <sup>1</sup> (.)= to wear; dhatte .
Nam (P.)= to bend; namati .	P <sup>1</sup> (P.)=to drink; pibati .
P <sup>1</sup> (P.) = to protect; p<sup>1</sup>ti .	Pracch (P.) = to ask; påcchati .
Badh (P.) =to bind; badhn<sup>1</sup>ti .	Phal (P.)=to bear fruit; phalati .
B <sup>1</sup> dh (.,)=to hinder; b<sup>1</sup>dhate .	Bukk (P.) = to bark; bukkati .
Budh (.,)=to know; budhyate .	Bhak - (P.)= to eat; bhak-ayati .
Bh <sup>1</sup> - (.,)= to speak; bh<sup>1</sup>-ate .	Bhrasj (P.) = to bake; bhÅjjati .
Bhra, ¶ (.,)= to slip; bhra, ¶ate .	Man (.)=to think; manyate .
Manth (P.)= to churn; mathn<sup>1</sup>ti .	Masj (P.)= to sink; majjati .
Murch (P.)= to faint; mØrcchat .	MÅ (.)= to die; mriyate .
Yam (P.)= to check; yacchati .	Y <sup>1</sup> c (.) = to beg; y<sup>1</sup>cate .
Rac (P.) = to make; racayati .	Ram (.,)=to rejoice; ramate .
R <sup>1</sup> j (.,)= to shine; r<sup>1</sup>jate .	Labh (.)= to get; labhate .
Laj gh (.,)= to cross; laj ghate .	Vad (P.) = to say; vadati .
Vid (P.)= to know; vetti .	VÅ (U.)=to choose; vÅ<sup>a</sup>oti/vÅnute .
~ak (P.) = to be able; flaknoti .	~aj k (.,)=to doubt; flaj kate .
~ik (.,)= to learn; ~ik-ate .	~ (.) = to sleep; ~ete .
Sv (P.) = to sew; s<sup>v</sup>vyati .	Sev (.,)=to serve; sevate .
Han (P.)= to kill; hanti .	H <sup>1</sup> (P.)= to abandon; jah<sup>1</sup>ti .
HÅ (U.) = to take away; harati/harate .

LESSON 1

Speech Sounds and Utterance

Sanskrit is pronounced accordingly as it is written, and no sound is dropped while uttering its written word, as is common practice on the contrary in the spoken modern Indian languages like the Gujar<sup>1</sup>t», and others. It is very important that while speaking Sanskrit all the syllables should be pronounced correctly, since normally the consonants when not marked with a slanting stroke under it which indicates the absence of the vowel 'a' normally included in it, and which has to be uttered clearly with it. The long vowels should be uttered as long, and the short ones as short very carefully. The vowel 'Å' and 'V' being peculiar to Sanskrit, should be uttered properly. Similarly, one should learn the correct utterance of the three sibilants in view of their being dental, palatal or retroflex. The final 'm', of a word, whether changed as the Anusv<sup>ra</sup>ra or not, should be clearly uttered as a sort of the vibrations following the ringing of a bell. The Visarga, written like a colon (:), after a Sanskrit syllable is to be uttered as a sort of a hissing sound, in the process of leaving off the breath, almost like 'h', coloured by the preceding vowel . One may fruitfully and successfully learn the correct method of Sanskrit pronunciation from a Sanskrit scholar, preferably a South Indian, or a Maharashtrian.

Read the following words loudly:

annam=food; imraå = mango; ik-uå = sugarcane; »laå = God;
u-rraå= camel; Ør<sup>a</sup>1 = wool; Åk-aå = bear; kÅptaå = prepared;
ekaå= one; aikyam =unity; o-haå = lip; au-<sup>a</sup>ym = heat a, fluå=ray; karaå =hand; kharaå = ass; gajaå = elephant;
gha-aå = pitcher; udaj = north; camØå = army; chadiå = roof;
jalam = water; jha-aå = fish; cañcuå = beak; -i--ibhaå = sand-piper;
fla-haå = rogue; gu<sup>a</sup>aå = jaggery; dÅ<sup>ha</sup>aå = firm; pha<sup>a</sup>1 = hood; taruå = tree; rathaå = chariot; dadhiå = yoghurt, curds;
dhanuå =bow; naraå = man; pafluå = beast; phalam =fruit;
bakaå = crane; bha-aå= soldier; manaå = mind; yavaå = bar-

In the vocabulary listed above, we find the Sanskrit vowel sounds, such as a, <sup>1</sup>i, <sup>2</sup>i, u,  $\emptyset$ ,  $\text{A}$ ,  $\text{\textcircled{i}}$ , e, ai, o, au, consonants like k, kh, g, ga, c, ch, j, jh,  $-$ ,  $-h$ ,  $\text{\textcircled{h}}$ , t, th, d, dh, n, p, ph, b, bh, m, y, r, l, v,  $\text{\textcircled{l}}$ ,  $\text{\textcircled{r}}$ , s, h, respectively, by way of a specimen of each one of them occurring either initially or in the middle position. Over and above these, there are in Sanskrit in all the five nasal sounds j,  $\text{\textcircled{n}}$ ,  $\text{\textcircled{a}}$ , n and m, and two more sounds  $\text{\textcircled{r}}$  (known as anusv<sup>1</sup>ra) and  $\text{\textcircled{a}}$  (known as visarga).

It is not possible to utter a consonant (e.g. k) without the help of some vowel or other (e.g. ka, k<sup>1</sup>, ki, k<sup>2</sup>, ku, K $\emptyset$ , K $\text{A}$ , K $\text{\textcircled{i}}$ , ke, kai, ko, kau, ka,  $\text{\textcircled{r}}$ , ka $\text{\textcircled{a}}$ ). In view of this fact the Devan<sup>1</sup>gar, like other Indian scripts, is syllabary. In it a symbol stands for a syllable rather than a phoneme (e.g. k, g, c, ch) as in European alphabets. The consonants without the vowels are shown in it in such a way as to incorporate the vowel 'a' in the character itself. The unmodified sign for consonants, i.e., for stops, semivowels, sibilants, and h, signifies the consonant followed by the final a. The signs for the vowels and diphthongs are used independently only when the vowel or diphthong is initial. If the vowel or diphthong follows a consonant, the sign for the consonant is modified, much in the same way as the mouth organs of pronunciation in the mouth are modified for uttering them.

Adding a slanting stroke under its character indicates a single consonant not followed by any vowel. More than one consonant occurring one after another continuously can combine with the help of a vowel, resulting in a conjunct consonant. For instance, kta, ktva, kya, kra, kla, kva, k-a, gga, gda, gdha, gna, gma, and etc. When two or more consonants come together, their signs coalesce into one unit by ligature in the Devan<sup>1</sup>gar script invariably written with a horizontal frame over the first single sign, and the other single vowel, making them a single syllable. In a ligature the previous members of the conjunct consonants are written under the last one, and all of them are followed by a memorizing a particular root and its meaning, one should also in (bhavati) its present tense third person singular form, as for example bh $\emptyset$  = to become; ad (atti) = to eat; div (divyati) = to gamble; bh<sup>1</sup>- (bh<sup>1</sup>-ate) = to speak; kamp (kampate) = trembles;  $\text{\textcircled{e}}\text{(}\text{\textcircled{y}}\text{ate)}$  = flies. r<sup>1</sup>j (r<sup>1</sup>jate) = shines.

When the subject of an action is one, or two, or more than two, the verb is used in singular, dual and plural, respectively. Similarly, when the subject of an action is in the first, second or the third person, the verb too is used in those respective persons. Traditionally, the manner of reciting the tables of the verb forms is in the order of the third, second and the first persons, with singular, dual and plural of each person. Thus in every tense or mood, each root has nine forms, according to the persons and numbers concerned.

Recite aloud the following tabulated verb forms, keeping in mind the corresponding modification in their meanings:

The root bh<math>\emptyset</math> (1. p.)= to become. Present Tense
Person	Singular	Dual
3 rd	bhavati	bhavataā
	= (He) becomes.	= (They both) become.
2 nd	bhavasi	bhavathaā
	= (Thou) becomest.	= (You two) become.
1 st	bhav<sup>1</sup>mi	bhav<sup>1</sup>vaā
	= (I) become.	= (We both) become.
		= (We all) become.

The root bh<sup>1</sup>- (1. 1.)= to speak.
Present Tense
3 rd	bh<sup>1</sup>-ate	bh<sup>1</sup>-ete
	= (He) speaks.	= (They Both) speak.
2 nd	bh<sup>1</sup>-ase	bh<sup>1</sup>-ethe
	= (Thou) speakest.	= (You both) speak,
1 st	bh<sup>1</sup>-e	bh<sup>1</sup>-vahe
	= (I) speak.	= (We both) speak.
		= (We all) speak.

In the sixth root-class Tud<sup>1</sup>di the vikarana affix -a- is added after the root and no modification takes place before the application of the terminations, as, for example in tud+a+ti = tudati.

In the seventh root-class Rudh<sup>1</sup>di the vikarana affix -na- is added after the initial vowel of the root, before the application of the terminations, as for instance, in ru+na+dh+ti=ru+<sup>a</sup>a+d +dhi = ru<sup>a</sup>addhi, wherein the rules of consonantal coalescence have also operated.

In the eighth root-class Tan<sup>1</sup>di the vikarana affix -u- is added and is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a in strong forms, as for example in tan+u+ti = tan+o+ti = tanoti.

In the ninth root-class Kry<sup>1</sup>di the vikarana affix -n<sup>1</sup>- is added after the initial vowel of the root, before the application of the terminations, as for instance in kr+<sup>a</sup>n<sup>1</sup>+ti=kri+<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>+ti =kri<sup>a</sup>ti, as per the rules of consonantal coalescence.

In the tenth root-class Cur<sup>1</sup>di the vikarana affix aya- is added and is final or penultimate vowel replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a, as for example in cur+aya+ti = cor+aya+ti=corayati.

Now, as regards the classification of the roots of all the root-classes as Parasmai-pada, i.e., transitive, or tmane-pada, i.e., intransitive, or Ubhaya-pada, i.e., both transitive as well as intransitive. This has been recorded by P<sup>1<sup>a</sup></sup>ini in his Dh<sup>1</sup>tu-p<sup>1</sup>-ha in the case of every root or a group of them in classwise list of the roots, as per the current linguistic usage during his days, and it has been generally held to be the standard classical norm. The termination applied to a root in the parasmai-pada and the tmane-pada modes are slightly different, while in the case of the ubhaya-pada mode both types of terminations are found to be applied to the concerned root alternatively.

In order to guess as to what root-class and which mode

Read the following words aloud:

kÅ-atí = pulls; khanati = digs; galati = drips; ghu-atí = resists; calati = walks; spÅlatí = touches; japati = mutters; jayati = wins; jvalati = burns; tapati = gets hot; diflati = shows; dharati = holds; nayati = leads; pacati = cooks; patati = falls; phalati = bears fruit; badhn<sup>1</sup>ti = binds; bhavati = becomes; milati = meets; yajati = worships; ra-atí = crams; likhati = writes; lagati = adheres; lu-hati = wallows; vadati = speaks; vasati = resides; vahati = carries; viññati = enters; ॥a, sati=tells; sarati = crowls; smarati =remembers; sljati = creates; harati =takes away; hasati = laughs.

In these words, too, the sounds of the Sanskrit alphabet are illustrated serially. And, it should be noted that the last syllable in all these words is '-ti'. Now repeat these words loudly at least five times each along with their meanings, so that with each utterance the meaning thereof immediately dawns in the mind.

Each of the words, like karaå, kharaå, etc., in the first list connote some thing, bird, beast, tree, direction, limb, and etc. Such words are the known as nouns, and are called N<sup>1</sup>ma or Sa, jñ<sup>1</sup> by P<sup>1<sup>a</sup></sup>ini.

Each of the words in the second list, like kÅ-atí, khanati, etc., connotes some action, like pulling, digging, and etc. and are known as verbs. Such words are called khy<sup>1</sup>ta or Kriy<sup>1</sup>pada in the P<sup>1<sup>a</sup></sup>inian system.

Each of the words in the second list, like kÅ-atí, khanati, etc., connotes some action, like pulling, digging, and etc. and are known as verbs. Such words are called khy<sup>1</sup>ta or Kriy<sup>1</sup>pada in the P<sup>1<sup>a</sup></sup>inian system.

When a noun is used as a subject along with a verb, denoting the performance of any action, it becomes a sentence, and is called V<sup>1</sup>kya by P<sup>1<sup>a</sup></sup>ini. Since in Sanskrit the terminations applied to the verbs convey the person and the number too, the subject of a sentence may be just implied, and not actually used as such, as for instance calati and others in the list mentioned above. Even then it is considered to be a sentence with the subject understood.

Read the following sentences aloud
along with their meanings:

Gantr̥ gacchati = A vehicle goes. Agre gacchati = It goes ahead. pĀ-he gacchati = It goes at the back. Uccaiā gacchati = It goes up. Nicaiā gacchati = It goes down. Manda, gacchati = It goes slowly. Ughra, gacchati = It goes fast. Vakra, gacchati = It goes zigzag. Sarala, gacchati = It goes straight.

The words agre, pĀ-he, uccaiā, nicaiā, mandam, Ughram, vakram and saralam used in the above sentences are such as are utilized in the Sanskrit language without any modification. Being indeclinable, they are known as Avyaya, i.e. non-modifying.

Read the following sentences aloud
along with their meanings,
and write them down in your notebook:

Karaā dharati = Hand holds. Gajaā calati = Elephant walks. Chadiā patati = Roof falls. Jha-aā tarati = Fish swims. Pa-aā spālati = Cloth touches. Naraā pacati = Man cooks. Pañuā carati = Animal grazes (or, moves about). Vāk-aā phalati = Tree bears fruits. Kharaā lu-hati = Ass wallows. Sakh1 smarati = Friend remembers. Halaā kA-atī = Plough tills.

The words like Aham (= I), Tvam (= Thou), Saā or E-aā (= he). S<sup>1</sup> or E-<sup>1</sup> (= She), Tat or Etat (= It) and others are used in the same manner to speak about one's own self, about the second person, i.e., the one present directly before us, and about a man, woman or a thing belonging to other than both of the above category, respectively. In English we call them the first person, the second person and the third person, respectively, with reference to the use of different forms of verb with them. Such words are called pronouns in English. In Sanskrit they are called Sarva-n<sup>1</sup>ma, because they can be used in lieu of all the nouns.

- (8) Tan<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the eighth root-class beginning with the root tan.
- (9) Kry<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the ninth root-class beginning with the root kry.
- (10) Cur<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the tenth root-class beginning with the root cur.

Each of these ten root-classes has its own independent conjugational affix (vikara<sup>a</sup>a-pratyaya) which is attached to it prior to the termination of the tense, mood, person and number while conjugating its different forms in accordance with the meaning of the root sought to be expressed.

The vikara<sup>a</sup>a affix of the first root-class Bhv<sup>1</sup>di is -a-, which when applied replaces the final or penultimate vowel by its gu<sup>a</sup>a substitute. The gu<sup>a</sup>a substitute of the vowel i or » is e, of u or Ø is o, of Å is ar and of ି is al. Thus, when the vikara<sup>a</sup>a affix -a- of the first root-class applied to the root bhØ, the final Ø is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a modification -o, thus changing bhu into bho. Thus, e.g., bho+a+ti = bhav+a+ti = bhavati.

The second root-class Ad<sup>1</sup>di has no vikara<sup>a</sup>a affix, and the terminations of tense, mood, person and number are affixed directly to the root, as for instance in ad+ti = at+ti = atti.

In the third root-class Juhoty<sup>1</sup>di, the vikarana affix -a- is added after the root, the initial consonant of the root is reduplicated and replaced, as for instance hØ+a+ti = hu+hu+a+ti = ju+hu+a+ti = ju+ho+ti +juhoti.

In the fourth root-class Div<sup>1</sup>di the vikarana affix -ya- is added to the root before the terminations, as for instance in div+ya+ti = divyati.

In the fifth root-class Sv<sup>1</sup>di the vikara<sup>a</sup>a affix -nu- is added to the root before terminations, and the final vowel of the affix is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a in strong forms, as for instance in su+nu+ti = su+no+ti = sunoti.

jug) jala, pibati. Manu-yaā kiyat-paryanta, (= how long) kr̥̄ati ? Ȳvat (=as long as) b̄laā t̄vat (= so long). Vāddhaā janaā k̄d̄laā (= what sort of / what kind of) bhavati ? Saā cint̄-magnaā (= engrossed in anxiety) bhavati. Yuva-janaā katha, (= how / what sort of) bhavati ? Yuva-janaā uts̄ha-yuktaā (=full of enthusiasm) bhavati. So far we have learnt stray Sanskrit sentences that may be useful in casual conversation.

Now, let us try to get deeper understanding about the Sanskrit verbs.

Ancient Sanskrit grammarians like P<sup>1</sup>aṇi have analyzed the Sanskrit verbs and separated their two or more components, as for instance: bhavati = bh∅ (bho) + a + ti; divyati = div (dv) + ya + ti; tudati = tud + a + ti; corayati = cur (cor) + aya + ti.

In this analysis the component bh∅-, div-, tud- or cur- is the dh<sup>1</sup>tu, i.e., root. The medial -a-, -ya-, -a- or -aya- are the ga<sup>a</sup>a-vikara<sup>a</sup>a, i.e., conjugational affix of the root class. And, the component -ti is the pratyaya, i.e., conjugational termination (here that of the third person singular). As a result of such an analysis P<sup>1</sup>aṇi has divided all the Sanskrit verbal roots into ten classes; and each class (= ga<sup>a</sup>a) is given the name of the on the basis of the starting root of the respective class. These ten classes are, thus, known by the following names:

- (1) Bhv<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = bh∅+<sup>1</sup>di+ga<sup>a</sup>a = the first root-class beginning with the root bh∅. Similarly,
- (2) Ad<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = ad+<sup>1</sup>di+ga<sup>a</sup>a = the second root-class beginning with the root ad.
- (3) Juhoty<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the third root-class beginning with the root juhoti (i.e. h∅ with reduplication).
- (4) Div<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the fourth root-class beginning with the root div.
- (5) Sv<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the fifth root-class beginning with the root su.
- (6) Tud<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the sixth root-class beginning with the root tud.
- (7) Rudh<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a = the seventh root-class beginning

Formulate new sentences mentally, by using the pronouns Saā/E-aā, S<sup>1</sup>/E-<sup>1</sup>, and Tat along with all the verbs, like Kā-ati, and others having the ti-ending mentioned in the foregoing sentences, e.g. Saā khanati (= He digs); E-aā calati (= He walks); S<sup>1</sup> pacati (=She cooks); E-<sup>1</sup> spAṣati (=She touches), Tat phalati =(It bears fruit), and utter them loudly keeping in mind their respective meaning. Note that since the pronouns mentioned at the beginning of this paragraph belong to the third person, only the verbs with ti-ending can be used with them. This is the convention for their correct usage in Sanskrit.

Pronounce the following verbs loudly along with their respective meaning:

Kā-asi = (You) are tilling; khanasi = (You) are digging; galasi = (You) are dripping; ghu-asi = (You) are resisting; calasi = (You) are walking; spAṣasi = (You) are touching; japasi = (You) are muttering; jayasi = (You) are winning; jvalasi = (You) are burning; tapasi = (You) are getting hot; diñasi = (You) are showing; dharasi = (You) are holding; nayasi - (You) are leading; pacasi = (You) are cooking; patasi = (You) are falling; badhn<sup>1</sup>si = (You) are binding; bhavasi = (You) are becoming; milasi = (You) are meeting; yajasi = (You) are sacrificing; ra-asi = (You) are cramming; likhasi = (You) are writing; lagasi = (You) are adhering; lu-hasi = (You) are wallowing; vadasi = (You) are speaking; vahasi = (You) are carrying; vasasi = (You) are residing; viñasi = (You) are entering; la, sasi = (You) are telling; sarasi = (You) are creeping; smarasi = (You) are remembering; śājasi = (You) are creating; hasasi = (You) are laughing; harasi = (You) are stealing or taking away.

The verbs in the above list have the si-endings, and they are used with "(You) are" denoting the second person, i.e., for speaking to the one other than our own self and present in front of us. This is the linguistic convention in Sanskrit.

Formulate new sentences with the Sanskrit pronoun Tvam (singular), by joining it with the verb forms in the above list, utter them aloud with their meanings, and write them down in your notebook e.g., Tva, Kā-asi = You are tilling.

Pronounce the following verbs loudly along with their respective meaning:

kÅ̄-1mi = (I) am tilling; khan<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am digging;
gal<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am dripping; cal<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am walking; spÅ̄-1mi = (I) am touching; jap<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am muttering; jay<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am winning; jval<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am burning; tap<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am getting hot; dif<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am showing; dhar<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am holding; nay<sup>1</sup>mi = I am leading; rac<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am creating; pat<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am falling; phal<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am bearing fruit; badhn<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am binding; bhav<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am becoming; mil<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am meeting; yaj<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am sacrificing; ra-1mi = (I) am cramming; lag<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am adhering; likh<sup>1</sup>mi= (I) am writing; lu-h<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am wallowing; vad<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am speaking; vas<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am residing; viñ<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am entering; ta, s<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am telling; sar<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am creeping; smar<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am remembering; sah<sup>1</sup>mi = (I) am tolerating; har<sup>1</sup>mi=(I) am stealing or taking away.

In the above list only the verbs are mentioned and the subjects in the first person, i.e., aham, are implied or understood and not mentioned. Even then, in Sanskrit, they are practically the sentences. To make the subject specifically mentioned, one may use the pronoun aham and formulate the sentences by combining it with all the verbs in the above list, and utter them aloud recollecting their respective meanings. Thus, this pronoun is used with the verb having the 1mi-ending in Sanskrit when one speaks about one's own self, i.e., in the first person.

Thus, so far, we have come to know the singular forms of Sanskrit personal pronounces used with the third, second and the first persons, as also those of the Sanskrit verbs in the corresponding third, second and the first persons, respectively. It should be noted that for correct Sanskrit usage this linguistic convention that the subject and the verb in a Sanskrit sentence has to agree with one another in person and number, should always be duly observed.

In the P<sup>1</sup>aianian system, the basic form of a word without any termination is called PrakÅ̄ti in general, and that of a

In Sanskrit the pronouns kaå (m.) = who/which (man), k<sup>1</sup> = who/ which (woman) and Kim (n.) what/ which being, and the indeclinable words kiyat = how much, kva = where, kutra = in which place, kutaå = from where/ why, kati = how many, kad<sup>1</sup> = when, convey the sense of inquiry or interroga-tion.

Read the following Sanskrit sentences aloud, keeping their meanings in mind:

Kaå tvam = Who are you? Ki, vadasi = What do you speak? K<sup>1</sup> tvam = Who (women) are you? Kva gacchasi = Where are you going? S<sup>1</sup> kutaå 1gacchati = Where does she come from? Kati v<sup>1</sup>dit<sup>1</sup>å = How many strokes did (the clock) sound?/What time is it? Tva, kad<sup>1</sup> kr<sup>o</sup>asi = At what time do you play? Kiyat m0lyam = What is the price?

Keep in mind the following Sanskrit indeclinable words:

yaå (m)= which (man); y<sup>1</sup> = which (women/female); yad = which (thing/being); yatra = where/ in which place; tatra = there/in that place; y<sup>1</sup>vat = as much; t<sup>1</sup>vat = so much; yath<sup>1</sup> = just as/ in which manner; tath<sup>1</sup>= like that/in that manner; y<sup>1</sup>dÅ̄ = like which; t<sup>1</sup>dÅ̄ = like that/in that manner.

The following indeclinable Sanskrit words are used very often:

api = also; atha =now, to start with; iti = that is all/ finished/ completed; iva = like/ similar to; eva = only/ emphatic sense; ca = and; tu = but/however.

Read aloud, mentally trying to grasp their meanings, the following sentences, in which the above pronouns and indeclinable words are utilized:

Kamal<sup>1</sup>ni kutra vikasanti (=bloom) ? Yatra jala, tatra sarovare (=in a lake). Gaj<sup>1</sup>å katha, (=how/ in what manner) calanti ? Gaj<sup>1</sup>å manda, (=slowly) calanti. Tva, kad<sup>1</sup> (=when/ at what time) kh<sup>1</sup>dasi ? Yad<sup>1</sup> (=when) bubhuk<sup>1</sup> (=hunger) b<sup>1</sup>dhate (=troubles) tad<sup>1</sup> (= at that time/then). S<sup>1</sup> kiyat (= how much) jala, pibati ? S<sup>1</sup> kalaña-pØr<sup>2</sup>a, (= jug-full / as would fill up a

-*ni in nominative plural. The pronoun Tat in masculine has the form of Saā in nominative singular, and Te in nominative plural; in feminine it has the form of S<sup>1</sup> in nominative singular, and of T<sup>1</sup>ā in nominative plural; and in neuter it has the form Tat in nominative singular, and T<sup>1</sup>ni in nominative plural.

Here, it should also be marked that in the non-declined base form (pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika), the masculine nouns Gaja, Ratha, Vā-abha, and the neuter nouns Kamala, and Jala end in -a; they are known as Ak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta. With the masculine nouns the case ending is -aā in nominative singular, while it is -<sup>1</sup>ā in nominative plural. With the neuter nouns the case ending is -am in nominative singular, and -<sup>1</sup>ni in nominative plural. The pronoun Tat in masculine has the form of Saā in nominative singular, and Te in nominative plural; in feminine it has the form of S<sup>1</sup> in nominative singular, and of T<sup>1</sup>ā in nominative plural; and in neuter it has the form Tat in nominative singular, and T<sup>1</sup>ni in nominative plural.

Note the change in the forms of verb in singular and plural in the above sentences:

Vikasati, calati, dh<sup>1</sup>vati, <sup>1</sup>ra-atī, pa-hati, likhati and patati are verbs in the above sentences, and are in third person singular forms having the -ti ending; while the forms in the third person plural have the -nti ending. gacchasi is in the second person singular having the -si ending; while the plural has the -tha ending. And gacch<sup>1</sup>mi is in first person singular having the -mi ending; while the plural has the -maā ending in the above sentences. The basic form of a verb shorn off is conjugational terminations is called Dh<sup>1</sup>tu, by P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>ni, as for instance vi-kas, cal, vā-, dh<sup>1</sup>v, <sup>1</sup>-ra-, gam (=gacch), <sup>1</sup>-gacchgh, pa-h, likh, pat are the roots (dh<sup>1</sup>tus); and the syllables vi- and <sup>1</sup>- prefixed in the case of some of them are the prepositions. The -ti and other endings are the parasmai-pada terminations of the respective persons and numbers in the present tense. This type of usage and modification of the roots in accordance with the relevant tense, person and number is called conjugation.

bereft of any termination is called verb Pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika, and that of a verb as such is called Dh<sup>1</sup>tu (=root). The third, the second and the first persons are called the Prathama Puru-a, the Madyama Puru-a, and the Uttama Puru-a, respectively, and the tables of the verbal forms are mentioned in the same order, as for instance, calati, calasi, cal<sup>1</sup>mi in singular number.

For one thing, for two things and for three and more things, the nouns and verbs in the corresponding singular, dual and plural number (vacana) are to be used in a Sanskrit sentence. These numbers are called Eka-vacana, Dvi-vacana, Bahu-vacana, respectively.

Read the following nouns with their meanings aloud, and note the ligatures of conjunct consonants in them:

cikka<sup>a</sup>aā (k+k)= greasy; ॥u-kaā (ṅ+k) = dry; taskaraā (s+k) = thief; udgamaā (d+g) = birth; valg<sup>1</sup> (l+g) = rein; uccāā (c+c) = high; ni॥cayaā (॥+c) = determination; tuccham (c+ch) = insignificant; kajjalam (j+j) = collyrium; abjam (b+j) = lotus; ujjhitam (j=jh) = given up; y<sup>1</sup>ñc<sup>1</sup> (ñ+c) = supplication; jñ<sup>1</sup>nam (j+ñ) = knowledge; rukmmam (k+m) = gold; v<sup>1</sup>gm» (g+m) = orator; v<sup>1</sup>i mayam (i+m) = literature; ku<sup>o</sup>malam (o+m) = bud; ra<sup>a</sup>mukhaā (a+m) = K<sup>1</sup>rtikeya; <sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup> (t+m) = Self; padmam (d+m) = lotus; ॥ma॥ruā (॥+m / ॥+r) = beard-mustache; nakraā (k+r) = crocodile; ॥ghram (gh+r) = quickly; vajram (j+r) = thunderbolt; sravaā (s+r) = dripping; nairātyaā (r+A / t+y) = south-west direction; arkaā (r+k) = sun; durg<sup>1</sup> (r+g) = Goddess Durg<sup>1</sup>; ॥ulkam (k+l) = white; ॥ulkam (l+k) = price; ai kaā (j+k) = number; v<sup>1</sup>ñch<sup>1</sup> (ñ+ch) = yearning; da<sup>a</sup>caā = stick / punishment; ~ambhuā (m+bh) = ~iva; Lak-m»ā (k+ñ+m) = Goddess of Prosperity; Ørdhvam (r+dh+v) = upwards; par<sup>1</sup>rdhyam (r+dh+y) = 1,00,000 million; k<sup>1</sup>rtsnyam (r+t+s+n+y) = fullness, completeness, entirety.

Recapitulation: In this lesson the readers are sought to be acquainted to the necessity of correct pronunciation of Sanskrit sounds, the formation of words by using them, the ligatures of one or more consonants for a syllable, some Sanskrit

verb forms

of third person singular along with some common nouns and pronouns that can be used with each other to form simple common sentences, and a few words for gradually building up the Sanskrit vocabulary.

Lesson 2

LESSON 2
(Dvit̄yaā P̄-haā)

While English language, like most of modern European and Indian languages, have singular and plural numbers, Sanskrit has one more, viz., dual. The singular is used when one thing is the subject of the verb; the dual, when two things are its subject; and the plural, when three or more things are its subject.

Read the following Sanskrit sentences aloud:

Kamala, vikasati = A lotus blooms. Kamal'ni vikasanti = Lotuses bloom. Gajaā calati = An elephant walks. Gaj'ā calanti = Elephants walk. Jala, var-ati = Water rains. Jal'ni var-anti = Waters rain. Rathaā dh'vati = A chariot rushes. Rath'ā dh'vanti = Chariots rush. Vā-abhaā 1ra-ati = A bull bellows. Vā-abh'ā 1ra-anti = Bulls bellow. Aha, gacchami = I go. Vaya, gacch'māā = We go. Tvam 1gacchasi = Thou comest. Yōyam 1gacchatha = You (all) come. Sāā pa-hati = He reads. Te pa-hanti = They read. S1 likhati = She writes. T1ā likhanti = Those (ladies) write. Tat patati = It falls. T1ni patanti = Those (things) fall.

Note the change in the forms of sunject in singular and plural in the above sentences:

Gajaā (m.)= (One) elephant. Gaj'ā (m.)= (Many) elephants. Rathaā (m.)= (One) chariot. Rath'ā (m.)= (Many) chariots. Sāā (m.)= He. Te (m.)= They. S1 (f.)= She. T1ā (f.) = They/ Those (women). Kamalam (n.)= (One) lotus. Kamal'ni (n.)= (Many) lotuses. Jalam (n.)= (one) water. Jal'ni (n.)= (Many) waters. Tat (mfn.)= It. T1ni (.n)= Those.

Here, it should also be marked that in the the non-declined base form (pr̄tipadika), the masculine nouns Gaja, Ratha, Vā-abha, and the neuter nouns Kamala, and Jala end in -a; they are known as Ak'ri'nta. With the masculine nouns the $\theta+u$ ,  $\theta+\theta$ , as for instance in ka-u+ uktiā=ka-Øktiā; vadhθ+utsavaā=vad hØtsavaā; pitA+A<sup>a</sup>am=pitA<sup>a</sup>am. Although  $\bar{A}$  and  $\bar{\theta}$  are not homogeneous with each other, they are practically regarded as such in Sanskrit parlance, and thus when they come together they are matA+dk<sup>1</sup>raā=m<sup>1</sup>tAk<sup>1</sup>raā. This type of the coalescence replaced by a long form of  $\bar{A}$ , as for instance in of homogeneous vowels is called Svar<sup>a</sup>a-sandhi.

In contrast, even when a consonant, like k, kh and a vowel like a come together, they are not regarded as homogeneous in spite of the fact that they are both guttural. This is the peculiar grammatical fact of the Sanskrit language.

Now, read aloud the following two Sanskrit sentences in which the words are kept mutually uncoalesced:

A-krodhaā a-har-aā a-ro-aā a-lobhaā a-drohaā a-dambhaā satya-vacanam an-aty<sup>1</sup>saā a-paiʃunam an-asØy<sup>1</sup>sa, vibh<sup>1</sup>gaā ty<sup>1</sup>gaā m<sup>1</sup>rdavam ñamaā damaā sarva-bhØte-u a-virodhaā yogaā <sup>1</sup>ryam anñña, sat<sup>1</sup> tu-<sup>1</sup>iā iti sarva-dharm<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m samaya-pad<sup>1</sup>ni / T<sup>1</sup>ni anuti-<sup>1</sup>hati yaā vidhin<sup>1</sup>t saā sarva-g<sup>1</sup>m» bhavati /

Let us understand the linguistic form of the words in these sentences:

Krodha, har-a, ro-a lobha droha dambha, aty<sup>1</sup>sa, sa, vibh<sup>1</sup>ga, ty<sup>1</sup>ga, ñama, dama, virodha, and yoga are the masculine a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns; the intitial a or an prefixed to them is a negative particle.

Samaya and vidhi are used both as masculine and neuter nouns.

AsØy<sup>1</sup>, nñña, sat<sup>1</sup> and tu-<sup>1</sup>i are feminine nouns.

Satya, sarva, are the adjectival nouns.

T<sup>1</sup>ni, yaā and saā are the pronouns.

Iti is an indeclinable word.

Anu-ti-<sup>1</sup>hati and bhavati are the verbs.

Most of the nouns in these sentences are in the Nominative case.

These are the forms of the roots BhØ (1 P.) and B<sup>1</sup>ñ (1 .) in the Present Tense in the three Persons and three Numbers, and we can recognize the forms and grasp their corresponding meanings in accordance with the terminations affixed to them.

Now, with the help of the structural data provided in these two lessons, of course limited by the forms of the verbs and those of the nouns and pronouns, it will be a very interesting entertainment if you apply your mind in making a number of new sentences in accordance with your own imagination pertaining to your personal and social life.

When we learn about the verbal roots, along with their meanings and their Third Person singular form, or when we see them used in any Sanskrit sentence we can easily recognize their forms and in view of the context, and understand the meaning of the sentences.

The grammarians have adopted the method of analyzing the verbal and nominal forms of the words used in the sentences, by showing the components in them in the form of the original root, the changes that take place in it due to affixing the termination, such as, the replacement ('deñña) of any part of it, addition ('gama) of any syllable in between as the medial element, as also the formations of the noun, pronoun, addition ('gama) of any syllable in between as the medial element, as also the formations of the noun, pronoun, adjective, adverb, verbal derivatives, gerunds, participles, and etc.

LESSON 3 (Tātyaā P̄-haā)

Now, utter the following Sanskrit nouns aloud, keeping in mind their respective meanings.

R̄maā = R̄ma (agent of an action). Puru-1ā = (many) men; to	men
Balar̄mam = to Balar̄ma .	R̄k-as̄n = to the demons.
Arjunena = by Arjuna.	Karau { = (two) hands.
Bh̄m̄ya = towards Bh̄ma .	{ = O (two) hands!
Lak-ma<sup>a</sup>t = from Lak-ma<sup>a</sup>a .	{ = to (two) hands.
Daññararathasya =of Daññararatha . Nar̄bh̄ȳm { =by (two) per-	sons.
S̄kete = in (the city of) Ayodhy <sup>1</sup>	.
.	{ = towards (two) persons.
(Bhoā/He) R̄ma! = O R̄ma!	{ = from (two) persons.
Vane-u = in the forests.	Kauravebhyaā { = to Kauravas.
B<sup>1</sup>layoā { = of (two) children.	{=from Kauracas.
Puri-aiā = by men.	V̄nar̄<sup>a</sup>m = of monkeys.

For further practice, take every other word and imagine their other forms similar to the other words, and pronounce them aloud, as for instance; balar̄maā, balar̄mam, balar̄me<sup>a</sup>a, balar̄m̄ya, balar̄m̄t, balar̄masya, balar̄me, balar̄mau. Balar̄bh̄yam, balar̄mayoh, balar̄m̄tā, balar̄m̄n, balar̄maīā, balar̄mehhyaā, balar̄m̄<sup>a</sup>m̄, balar̄me-u, and try to grasp the respective change in their meanings in accordance with the change of the forms.

P̄<sup>a</sup>ini knows the original form of a noun, pronoun or an adjective by the term pr̄tipadika. And, it is the basic tenet of Sanskrit grammar that every noun or adjective is ultimately derived from some verbal root that denotes some action. Its various functional relations with the verb in the sentence are called the vibhakti, i.e. the Case. In practical life, every action is done by some agent, has some object, is done through some instrument or limb, has some purpose and effect on somebody, called u-man. There are two more sounds, viz., anusv̄ra which resembles the ringing sound, and visarga resembling the letting of the breath with a sort of a hiss.

The first two sounds of each of the first five classes, viz., guttural and others are called 'hard' (gho-a), and the third, fourth and the fifth ones are called 'soft' (gho-a). In the case of the nasals the sound originating from the throat comes out through the nose. Although there is a slight difference from the point of view of oral effort in the utterance of the vowels 'a' (which is sa, v̄ta, i.e., contracted) and 'ī' (which is viv̄ta, i.e. open), they are considered to be homogeneous for the purpose of coalescence. In view of various internal oral effort involved the sounds are classified as unaspirate (alpa-pr̄<sup>a</sup>a), aspirate (mah̄<sup>1</sup>-pr̄<sup>1</sup>a), accented (u<sup>1</sup>tta), unaccented (anud̄<sup>1</sup>tta) and circumflexed (svarita). Each of the vowel sound can be uttered with the above-mentioned types of internal efforts, and can be short (hrasva), long (d̄rgha) or protracted (pluta).

For the purpose of coalescence, the sounds of the same class and involving the similar type of internal effort are called homogeneous (śavar<sup>a</sup>a), and they affect each other when they come together consecutively.

Now let us see some of the important rules of vowel coalescence in Sanskrit:

(1) When two short homogeneous vowels (e.g., a+a), or one of them short and another a long one e.g., a<sup>1</sup>/<sup>1</sup>+a, or two long vowels (e.g., ī+ī) occur consecutively they combine together in a word or a sentence they are replaced by their single long form (e.g., ī). Thus, mura+ari = mur̄ri; deva+īlayaā = dev̄layaā; vidy<sup>1</sup>+abhȳsaā = vidȳbh̄ȳsaā; vidȳī+īlayaā = vidȳlayaā; gatv<sup>1</sup>+aham = gatv̄ham; ca+īgataā=cīgataā.

(2) Similar is the case the other vowels like i, u, Ā and ō. Thus, i+i, i+o, o+i, o+o; as for instance in ravi+indraā = rav̄ndraā; kavi+īvaraā = kav̄īvaraā; mah̄+īndraā = mah̄ndraā; gaur̄+īvaraā = gaur̄īvaraā; with u+u, u+ō, various oral limbs, such as the front, middle and inner portions of tongue, lips, teeth, throat channel, etc., undergo some modifications like contracting and expanding, while letting out the air as it vibrates in the form of sounds due to the vibrating vocal chords. Ancient Vedic seers had closely studied this process scientifically and developed, as one of the six auxiliary Vedic disciplines (ved<sup>1</sup>, ga), called Pr<sup>1</sup>ti<sup>1</sup>khyā, pertaining to the utterance of various sounds of the Sanskrit alphabet.

To explain all these P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>ni</sup> has composed a subsidiary text called ~ik<sup>1</sup>, and has classified the sounds of the Sanskrit alphabet into various groups and named them in accordance with their place (sth<sup>1</sup>na) of utterance, and the oral effort (prayatna) involved, in the mouth, while uttering them.

Now, from the point of view of the place (sth<sup>1</sup>na) of utterance the original Sanskrit sounds are classified as follows:

Guttural ( ka<sup>a</sup>-hya )	: k, kh, g, gh, j, h, a, ^
Palatal ( t<sup>1</sup>lavya )	: c, ch, j, jh, ñ, y, ¶, i, »
Lingual ( mØrdhanya )	: -, -h, ©, ©h, ^, r, -Å (short and long)
Dental ( dantya )	: t, th, d, dh, n, l, s, Ø
Labial ( au-nya )	: p, ph, b, bh, m, y, u, Ø
Guttural-palatal ( ka<sup>a</sup>-ha-t<sup>1</sup>lavya )	: e, ai
Guttural-Labial ( ka<sup>a</sup>-hau-nya )	: o, au
Dental-labial ( dantau-nya )	: v
Nasal ( n<sup>1</sup>sikya or anun<sup>1</sup>sika )	: i, ñ, ^, n, m
Simple vowels : a	<sup>1</sup> i/» u/Ø Å Ø
Gu <sup>a</sup> a vowels : a	<sup>1</sup> e, o, ar al
V <sup>ä</sup> ddhi vowels : ai	<sup>1</sup> au <sup>1</sup> r <sup>1</sup> l

While uttering the vowel sounds (a, ^, etc.) the oral passage remains more or less open. But, since the oral passage is completely closed for a moment because the internal organs touch one another before letting out the sound of the consonants (k, kh, etc.), they are called 'stops' or spÅ-a. In the case of the utterance of the semi-vowels (y, r, l, v) since the internal organs touch but very slightly, they are called »-at-spÅ-a or antaÅastha. And, since there emanates from the mouth a sort of a warm hiss while uttering the sibilants (¶, ~, s, h), they are has some time and place; and the agent has some relation with somebody else, and may address somebody else. Similarly, in spoken language, too, the verb in a sentence has various functions and relations with the noun and they are expressed through various vibhaktis, i.e., the Cases.

Sanskrit language has seven Cases, viz.: (1) Nominative is called kart<sup>1</sup> or pratham<sup>1</sup>. It is used for the subjects of verbs, and for predicate adjectives and nouns. (2) Accusative is called karma or dvity<sup>1</sup>. It is used for the direct objects of verbs, and also to express motion to a place. (3) Instrumental is called kara<sup>a</sup>a or tÅty<sup>1</sup>. It is used to express instrumentality by which the action of the verb is accomplished (4) Dative is called samprad<sup>1</sup>na or caturth<sup>1</sup>. It is used for the indirect object, expressed by "to" or "for the sake of." (5) Ablative is called ap<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>na or pañcam<sup>1</sup>. It is used for expressing the sense of place from which the action takes place. (6) Genitive is called sabmandha or -a-~h-. It is used for the sense of possession or intimacy relation expressed by "of". And, (7) Locative is called adhikara<sup>a</sup>a or saptam<sup>1</sup>. It is used for expressing the sense of a place in which a thing happens to be, or in which an action occurs. Out of these seven, the sixth, i.e. Genitive, is concerned with the relation between two or more nouns and not between a noun and verb. And, the first one, i.e. Nominative, with slight modification, serves as a means of addressing somebody and is called sambuddhi or sambodhana. This last function is expressed by means of its special style of pronunciation marked with particular accent on the a syllable of the nominal form concerned, or by the use of special Sanskrit words like bhoå or O.

In a sentence the relation of the noun and the verb may be concerned about one, two or more individuals or things. Consequently, every Case has its forms in singular, dual or plural.

Thus, in all, every noun has  $7 \times 3 = 21$  forms. And, adding the three more forms of the sambodhana function of the Nominative, it comes to  $21 + 3 = 24$  forms of every noun or adjective. If we just mark the termination affixed at the end of the noun, we can easily recognize these forms, as belonging to a particular Case, like Nominative or others, and to a Number (vacana) whether singular or others, and immediately the concerned meaning dawns in the mind.

The terminations in the declension differ in the case of the noun in accordance with its final vowel or consonant, or its being masculine, feminine or neuter, and also in accordance with its being a pronoun. The Sanskrit grammarians have, therefore, classified the nouns in accordance with their final vowel or consonant, and called them accordingly, as for instance, **Aj-anta* (=ending in a vowel) and **Hal-anta* (=ending in a consonant). Among the Aj-antas, in accordance with the particular vowel occurring in its final position, the noun is called A-k'ṛ̥nta, -k'ṛ̥nta, I-k'ṛ̥nta, U-k'ṛ̥nta, etc., while those ending in a particular consonant are called, Ka-k'ṛ̥nta, Ga-k'ṛ̥nta, Ca-k'ṛ̥nta, V-a-k'ṛ̥nta, Ta-k'ṛ̥nta, Pa-k'ṛ̥nta, Ha-k'ṛ̥nta, etc. Thus, the noun R'ma is A-k'ṛ̥nta because it ends with the vowel sound 'a', the noun V'c is Ca-k'ṛ̥nta because it ends with the consonant sound 'c' and so on.

As regards the gender of any noun, normally it follows the natural one pertaining to a living being, but there is no fixed rule about the inanimate things. Even then P<sup>1</sup>āni has composed a special work called the Li;g'nuññasanam for it, which is rather too technical. But, to know the specific gender of a specific noun, the general traditional practice is to memorize the Amara-kōṭī, a highly classified metrical Sanskrit dictionary, composed

---

* It is interesting to know that P<sup>1</sup>āni has arranged the Sanskrit alphabet in a technical formation of fourteen īva-sōtras as follows: (1) a i u a / (2) Ā ī k / (3) e o j / (4) ai au c / (5) ha ya va ra - / (6) la a / (7) ñā ma ja a na m / (8) jh bha ñ / (9) gha ḡha dha - / (10) ja ba ga ḡa da / (11) kha pha cha -ha tha ca -ta v / (12) ka pa y / (13) ña -a sa r / (14) ha l // In these aphorisms the last letter in each of them is a fake letter (called 'it') just for the sake of a technical facility, and not to be considered as a part of the basic sounds of the alphabet. These last letters, viz., <sup>a</sup>, k, j, c, and others upto l, combine with any one of their preceding syllables included in the fourteen aphorisms, and form brief new aphorisms, such as 'ac' with the preceding initial 'a' of the 1st and the final 'c' of the 4th, to make a new aphorism 'ac' which includes all the Sanskrit vowels. Similarly, with initial 'ha' of the 5th combines with the final 'l' of the 14th to form a new brief aphorism 'hal' which includes all the Sanskrit consonants.

Here, in the la- forms of the root bhθ, before the applying the terminations ti and others, the adjunct (vikara-a) a is added just after the root, and as per the rules of the coalescence, the final vowel θ in the root bhθ, being immediately followed by the vowel a, replaces the θ by its gu<sup>a</sup>a vowel o, thus bhθ + a changes to bho + a, and then further, since as per the rules of the coalescence o + a becomes av + a, bho + a = bhav + a = bhava. Then the terminations are suffixed to this base bhava. In the first person (uttama puru-a) the adjunct a of the first root-group (ga<sup>a</sup>a) is replaced by its homogeneous long vowel <sup>1</sup> as its <sup>1</sup>de॥a. Thus, bhθ + a = bho + a = bhav + a = bhav + <sup>1</sup> = bhav<sup>1</sup>, then by suffixing the terminations mi or vas or mas, we get the forms bhav<sup>1</sup>mi, bhav<sup>1</sup>vaā and bhav<sup>1</sup>maā, since the final consonant s of the termination changes to ā. The root forms involve various grammatical operations like the changes called replacement (<sup>1</sup>de॥a) by the previous homogeneous vowel (pōrva-savar<sup>a</sup>a), that by the subsequent homogeneous vowel (para-savar<sup>a</sup>a), that by the homogenous long vowel (dṛ̥rgh<sup>1</sup>de॥a), that by a homogeneous diphthong sound forming a part of the coalescence connected with the case-terminations (sv<sup>1</sup>di-sandhi). Such an analysis of these root forms in the P<sup>1</sup>ānian fashion helps us to understand the underlying grammatical processes.

An understanding of the process of grammatical analysis is helpful for grasping the internal structure of the language and mastering it thoroughly, so as to avoid linguistic aberrations. However, for day to day use as a medium of oral communication, the language is learnt from its daily usage by its regular speakers, and by copying them. It is a common experience that a child learns the mother tongue, and masters the skill of using it to various purposes like expressing different emotions, directly in this manner and never bothers about its grammar. One should, therefore take grammar as an additional intellectual tool, as a psychological entertainment, rather than a burden.

While uttering the sounds of any human language the

We can now have some idea as to the changes, such as assimilation of two vowels, replacement of k by g, combining of k+~, and etc., that occur when the rules of coalescence operate, resulting in various forms of the word concerned in various cases (vibhakti) and numbers (vacana).

Let us now analyze the verb forms and see how the terminations and other modifications operate in the case of a root of the first Bhv<sup>1</sup>di class both in the parasmaipada and the tmanepada, and in all the three persons (puru-a) and numbers (vacana).

Root BhØ (P.) Vartam<sup>1</sup>na-k<sup>1</sup>la ( la- <sup>1</sup> )/ Present Tense
Puru-a/Person	Eka-vacana	Dvi-vacana	Bahu-vacana
Prathama	tip (=ti)	tas (=taå)	jhi (=anti)
Third	{ bhØ+a+ti { =bho+a+ti { =bhav+a+ti { =bhavati	bhØ+a+tas =bho+a+tas =bhav+a+tas =bhavataå	=bhØ+a+anti =bho+a+anti =bhav+a+anti =bhavanti
Madhyama	sip (=si)	thas (=thaå)	tha
Second	{ bhØ+a+si { =bho+a+si { =bhav+a+si { =bhavasi	bhØ+a+thas =bho+a+thas =bhav+a+thas =bhavathaå	bhØ+a+tha =bho+a+tha =bhav+a+tha =bhavatha
Uttama	mi (= <sup>1</sup> mi)	vas (= <sup>1</sup> vas)	mas (= <sup>1</sup> mas)
First	{ bhØ+a+ <sup>1</sup> mi { =bho+a+ <sup>1</sup> mi { =Bhav+a+ <sup>1</sup> m { =bhav <sup>1</sup> mi	bhØ+a+ <sup>1</sup> vas =bho+a+ <sup>1</sup> vas =bhav+a+ <sup>1</sup> vas =bhav <sup>1</sup> vaå	bhØ+a+ <sup>1</sup> mas =bho+a+ <sup>1</sup> mas =bhav+a+ <sup>1</sup> mas =Bhav <sup>1</sup> maå

<sup>1</sup> P<sup>1a</sup>ini has sandwiched the first six vowels of his technically arranged alphabet between the letters 'I' and 'I' or 'i' to formulate the technical signs to indicate the various Sanskrit tenses and moods, thus: la- (Present Tense), li- (=Past Perfect Tense), lu- (First Future Tense), lA- (Second Future Tense), le- (Vedic Subjunctive), lo- (Imperative Mood), la<sub>i</sub> (Aorist Tense), li<sub>i</sub> (Potential and Benidictive Moods), lu<sub>i</sub> (Imperfect Tense) and lA<sub>i</sub> (Conditional Mood).

La-var tam<sup>1</sup>e let vede bhøte lu<sub>i</sub>-la<sub>i</sub>-li-as tath<sup>1</sup>/

Vidhy<sup>1</sup>li-os tu li<sub>i</sub>-lotau lu- lA- lA<sub>i</sub> ca bhavi-yati //

more than fifteen centuries ago by Amarasi, ha. Of course, the modern Sanskrit-English Dictionaries by V. S. Apte and Monier-Williams, too, are most helpful.

Now, note that in the list of the original nouns, such as R<sup>1</sup>ma, Balar<sup>1</sup>ma, Arjuna, Kara, R<sup>1</sup>k-asa, Nara, etc., given at the beginning of this lessons were all Aj-anta and A-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta. And, in their different forms in different vibhaktis and vacanas, the termination at the end differed accordingly as per the intended meaning of the particular vibhakti and vacana.

For remembering the different forms of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta word R<sup>1</sup>ma, let us put all of them in a proper order, as follows:

Vibhakti	Eka-vacana	Dvi-vacana	Bahu-vacana
Pratham <sup>1</sup> = Kart <sup>1</sup> / Nom.	R<sup>1</sup>maå = R <sup>1</sup> ma (Agent)	R<sup>1</sup>mau = (two) R <sup>1</sup> mas	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>å = (many) R <sup>1</sup> mas
Sambodhana = Voc.	(Bhoå) R<sup>1</sup>ma = O R <sup>1</sup> ma	(Bhoå) R<sup>1</sup>mau = O (two) Ramas	(Bhoå) R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>å = O (many) Ramas
Dvity <sup>1</sup> = Karma/Acc.	R<sup>1</sup>mam = to R <sup>1</sup> ma	Ramau = to (two) Ramas	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>n = to (many) R <sup>1</sup> mas
TÅty <sup>1</sup> = Kara <sup>a</sup> a/Instr.	R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>2</sup>a = by R <sup>1</sup> ma	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m = by (two) R <sup>1</sup> mas	R<sup>1</sup>maiå = by (many) R <sup>1</sup> mas
Carurth » = Samprad <sup>1</sup> na/Dat.	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya = to R <sup>1</sup> ma	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m = to (two) Ramas	R<sup>1</sup>mebhyaå = to (many) R <sup>1</sup> mas
Pañcam » = Ap <sup>1</sup> d <sup>1</sup> na/Abl.	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t = from R <sup>1</sup> ma	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m = From (two) R <sup>1</sup> mas	R<sup>1</sup>mebhyaå = from (many) R <sup>1</sup> mas
'a- <h>»</h>	R<sup>1</sup>masya = Sambandha/Gen.	R<sup>1</sup>mayoå = of (two) R <sup>1</sup> mas	R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m = of (many) R <sup>1</sup> mas
Saptam » = Adhikara <sup>a</sup> a/Loc.	R<sup>1</sup>me = in R <sup>1</sup> ma	R<sup>1</sup>mayoå = in (two) R <sup>1</sup> mas	R<sup>1</sup>me-u = in (manR <sup>1</sup> mas

Here, it should be noted that the terminations suffixed at the end of each of the forms of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta word R<sup>1</sup>ma are serially as follows: (Pra.) s (=ā), au, as (=āā); (Sa, .) -, au, as (=āā); (Dvi.) am, au, <sup>1</sup>n; (Tā.) ena, <sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m, aiā; (Catu.) <sup>1</sup>ya, <sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m, ebhyaā; (Pa, .) <sup>1</sup>t, <sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m, ebhyaā; (Añ.) sya, yoā, <sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m, (Sap.) i, yoā, e-u.

For the sake of memorizing, the singular forms of the word R<sup>1</sup>ma, the following Sanskrit verse, embodying them serially, is most helpful, entertaining and convenient:

*R<sup>1</sup>mo r<sup>1</sup>ja-ma<sup>a</sup>iā sad<sup>1</sup> vijayate r<sup>1</sup>ma, rameśa, bhaje
*R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup> bhihat<sup>1</sup> ni<sup>1</sup>cara-cam<sup>0</sup> r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya tasmai namaā /
*R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>n n<sup>1</sup>sti par<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>a</sup>a, paratara, r<sup>1</sup>masya d<sup>1</sup>so'smy aham
R<sup>1</sup>me citta-layaā sad<sup>1</sup> bhavatu me bho r<sup>1</sup>ma m<sup>1</sup>m uddhara //

Let us analyze this verse and understand the grammatical, literary and philosophical significance beautifully embodied in it. There are eight sentences in it: (1) R<sup>1</sup>ja-ma<sup>a</sup>iā r<sup>1</sup>maā vijayate / = R<sup>1</sup>ma, the gem (i.e. best) among the kings, is victorious; (2) R<sup>1</sup>ma, rameśa, bhaje / = I worship R<sup>1</sup>ma, the master of Ram<sup>1</sup> (i.e., the Goddess of Wealth); (3) R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup>a ni<sup>1</sup>cara-camuā abhihat<sup>1</sup> / = The army of the demons was annihilated by R<sup>1</sup>ma; (5) R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t paratara, par<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>a</sup>am n<sup>1</sup>sti / = There is no other resort beyond R<sup>1</sup>ma; (6) Aha, r<sup>1</sup>masya d<sup>1</sup>saā asmi / = I am a servant of R<sup>1</sup>ma; (7) Sad<sup>1</sup> me cittalayaā r<sup>1</sup>me bhavatu / = May my mind get engrossed in R<sup>1</sup>ma; (8) Bhoā R<sup>1</sup>ma, m<sup>1</sup>m uddhara / = O R<sup>1</sup>ma! Please emancipate me.

From the viewpoint of presentation, in this verse, composed in the poetic meter called ~rdōla-vikrīita having nineteen (19) syllables in each of its four quarters, the author expresses the greatness of Lord R<sup>1</sup>ma, his own devotion to R<sup>1</sup>ma, the exploit of R<sup>1</sup>ma in annihilating the army of demons, his salutation to R<sup>1</sup>ma, the declaration of the excellence of taking resort to R<sup>1</sup>ma, his being a servant of R<sup>1</sup>ma, his wish of getting his mind engrossed in R<sup>1</sup>ma, and his appeal to R<sup>1</sup>ma to emancipate him.

LESSON 4 (Caturthaā P<sup>1</sup>-haā )

In the last lesson we saw the ready-made forms of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine noun R<sup>1</sup>ma. Now let us look into the components in them, by analyzing the pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika, gama, the defla and the termination elements therein.

The terminations applicable to nouns in general as mentioned by P<sup>1</sup>ini<sup>1</sup> are given below in bold type, and the modified ones as applied to the nouns, a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta in particular, for their declension in various cases and numbers are as shown in the brackets:

Vibhakti	Eka-vacana	Dvi-vacana	Bahu-vacana
Pra. su (= s = :) R<sup>1</sup>ma+aā	au (=au) R<sup>1</sup>ma+au	jas (=as = aā) R<sup>1</sup>ma+aā
Sam. - R<sup>1</sup>ma	au (=au) R<sup>1</sup>ma+au	jas (=as = aā) R<sup>1</sup>ma+aā
Dvi. am R<sup>1</sup>ma+am	au- (=au) R<sup>1</sup>mau	jas (=as = aā) R<sup>1</sup>ma+aā
Tāt. - <sup>1</sup> (=ena) R<sup>1</sup>ma+e<sup>a</sup>a	bhy<sup>1</sup>m R<sup>1</sup>ma+<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	bhis (=ais=aā) R<sup>1</sup>maiā
Cat. i e (= <sup>1</sup> ya ) R<sup>1</sup>ma+<sup>1</sup>ya	bhy<sup>1</sup>m R<sup>1</sup>ma+<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	bhyas (=ebhyaā) R<sup>1</sup>mebhyaā
Pañ. i as (= <sup>1</sup> t ) R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t	bhy<sup>1</sup>m R<sup>1</sup>ma+<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	bhyas (=ebhyaā) R<sup>1</sup>mebhyaā
Añ. i as (=sya) R<sup>1</sup>ma+sya	os (=yos) R<sup>1</sup>ma+yoā	im (=n <sup>1</sup> m) R<sup>1</sup>ma+<sup>a</sup>im
Sap. i i (= i) R<sup>1</sup>ma+i	os (=yos) R<sup>1</sup>ma+yoā	sup (=isu) R<sup>1</sup>ma+i-u R<sup>1</sup>me-u

In the case of the nouns ending in consonant (hal-anta), these primary terminations apply as they are given. Thus, for instance, the noun V<sup>1</sup>c (=speech) is declined as follows:

Case	Singular	Dual	Plural
Nominative	V<sup>1</sup>c+s=V<sup>1</sup>k	V<sup>1</sup>c+au=V<sup>1</sup>cau	V<sup>1</sup>c+as+V<sup>1</sup>caā
Vocative	V<sup>1</sup>c+-=V<sup>1</sup>k	V<sup>1</sup>c+au=V<sup>1</sup>cau	V<sup>1</sup>c+as+V<sup>1</sup>caā
Accusative	V<sup>1</sup>c+am=V<sup>1</sup>cam	V<sup>1</sup>c+au=V<sup>1</sup>cau	V<sup>1</sup>c+as+V<sup>1</sup>caā
Instrumental	V<sup>1</sup>c+=V<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>	V<sup>1</sup>c+bhy<sup>1</sup>m=V<sup>1</sup>gbhy<sup>1</sup>m	V<sup>1</sup>c+bhis=V<sup>1</sup>gbhiā
Dative	V<sup>1</sup>c+e=V<sup>1</sup>ce	V<sup>1</sup>c+bhy<sup>1</sup>m=V<sup>1</sup>gbhy<sup>1</sup>m	V<sup>1</sup>c+bhyas=V<sup>1</sup>gbhyāā
Ablative	V<sup>1</sup>c+as=V<sup>1</sup>caā	V<sup>1</sup>c+bhy<sup>1</sup>m=V<sup>1</sup>gbhy<sup>1</sup>m	V<sup>1</sup>c+bhyas=V<sup>1</sup>gbhyāā
Genitive	V<sup>1</sup>c+as=V<sup>1</sup>caā	V<sup>1</sup>c+os=V<sup>1</sup>coā	V<sup>1</sup>c+im=V<sup>1</sup>c'm
Locative	V<sup>1</sup>c+i=V<sup>1</sup>ci	V<sup>1</sup>c+os=V<sup>1</sup>coā	V<sup>1</sup>c+su=V<sup>1</sup>k-u

sounds occurring at the end of a word coalesce with those occurring at the beginning of the immediately following next word during the process of continuous utterance, and consequently the both these final and initial sounds undergo changes due to the position of the oral organs of utterance, and in accordance with the consequent rules of coalescence of the Sanskrit language, as seen in the above instances. This type of the coalescence of individual words of a sentence is called external (b'hya). The b'hya-sandhi is voluntary.

It will be much beneficial to utter aloud, and learn by heart, the following verse which gives in nut-shell the general rule regarding the internal and the external coalescence in Sanskrit;

*Sa, hitaikapade nity<sup>1</sup>, nity<sup>1</sup> dh<sup>1</sup>tōpasargayoā /
Nity<sup>1</sup> sam<sup>1</sup>se, v<sup>1</sup>kye tu s<sup>1</sup> vivak<sup>-1</sup>m apek-ate //*

It means: Internal coalescence (sa, hit<sup>1</sup>) is compulsory (nity<sup>1</sup>) in the case of the grammatical components like 'gama, 'deśa, pratyaya, and etc., combining for the formation an individual word form (tōpa-siddhi), in that of the preposition (upasaga) prefixed to root (dh<sup>1</sup>tu) or a noun, etc. derived from it, and in that of the components of a compound word (sam<sup>1</sup>sa). But in the case of the uttering a sentence (v<sup>1</sup>kyā), the coalescence of the final and initial syllables of its individual words is voluntary, depending on the sweet will (vivak<sup>-1</sup>) of the speaker.

It was a general rule in the case of the Sanskrit language that it was written in accordance with its actual pronunciation. And in the hand-written Sanskrit and Prakrit manuscripts, the writing was continuous irrespective of the breakdown of the individual words thereof; and the rules of actual utterance prevailed in the case of the written language, too. Hence the importance of the Sandhi of both the types. Moreover, in metrical compositions, too, since the Sandhi formed an integral part, it was essential to be conversant with all the important rules of coalescence, so as to be able to separate the words of a sentence and grasp the syntactical order of the words of a Sanskrit verse, and construe them to get the meaning.

This verse thus embodies, and expresses, all these thoughts and feelings.

From the linguistic point of view, this verse incorporates serially all the singular forms of the Sanskrit noun R<sup>1</sup>ma in all the cases, such as, r<sup>1</sup>maā, r<sup>1</sup>mam, r<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup>a, r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya, r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t, r<sup>1</sup>masya, r<sup>1</sup>me, (bhoā) r<sup>1</sup>ma. Here the form of address is put last, although in the table of forms we put it between the Nominative and Accusative cases for convenience.

From the grammatical point of view, almost all the types of the Sanskrit syllabic coalescence are illustrated in this verse. P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini calls the coalescence of more than one vowels or consonants by the name Sandhi, i.e., joint or juncture. While speaking in Sanskrit, when some sounds are to be uttered consecutively, they automatically get altered into their homogenous sounds due to the peculiar condition of the tongue and other oral organ of pronunciation in our mouth.

Now, let us see how different sounds have combined by sandhi process in the above verse:

(1) R<sup>1</sup>maā + r<sup>1</sup>ja-ma<sup>a</sup>iā / = R<sup>1</sup>mo r<sup>1</sup>ja-ma<sup>a</sup>iā / Here, the final visarga (ā, written like English colon (:) in the Devan<sup>1</sup>garī script) in the syllable maā is followed by 'r' of the following syllable r<sup>1</sup>. The Sanskrit sound 'r', being a soft consonant, the immediately preceding sound 'ā' is changed to, or rather replaced by, the vowel sound u, which further combines with the immediately preceding sound 'a' in the syllable 'ma'. Thus, (through the process of a+ā + r = a+u+r = o+r) maā changes to mo. Similarly, further in the sixth sentence the 'saā' in the D<sup>1</sup>saā + asmi has changed to so in D<sup>1</sup>so 'smi'.

(2) R<sup>1</sup>jama<sup>a</sup>iā sad<sup>1</sup> / Here, even though the final visarga (:) in the final syllable <sup>a</sup>iā of the previous word r<sup>1</sup>jama<sup>a</sup>iā, is followed by the initial sibilant 's' in the immediately following word sad<sup>1</sup>, there is no change, because when a visarga is followed by a sibilant consonant (as in visarga+s = :+s), both have remained intact. Similarly, it has remained remained intact. Similarly it has remained unchanged in Citta-layaā sad<sup>1</sup>. So also in the word namaā, it is in tact because the visarga has occurred at the end of the quarter of the verse.

(3) R<sup>1</sup>mam + rame॥am + bhaje / = R<sup>1</sup>ma, rame॥a, bhaje / Here, the final m in both the first and the second words is changed to anusv<sup>1</sup>ra () placed on the previous syllables ma and ॥a, making them ma, and ॥a, respectively. Similarly, the final sounds m of the words par<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>a</sup>am and parataram have the changed to , in both of them. The rule is that when any initial consonant of a next word follows the final m of a previous word, the m sound is changed to an anusv<sup>1</sup>ra which is put as a dot on the top of the previous Devan<sup>1</sup>gar syllable.

(4) R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup>a+abhihat<sup>1</sup> = R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>ihat<sup>1</sup> / Here, the final vowel a in the final syllable <sup>a</sup>a of the previous word R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup>a is immediately followed by the intial vowel a of the word abhihat<sup>1</sup>. They are, therefore, coalesced into, and replaced by, the homogeneous single long vowel <sup>1</sup>, which combines with the sound <sup>a</sup> and becomes <sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>. Similarly, in Na + asti = N<sup>1</sup>sti, the short a+a has coalesced, and are replaced by the single long vowel <sup>1</sup>.

(5) Ni॥<sup>1</sup>cara-camØā+r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya=Ni॥<sup>1</sup>carachamØr<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya / Here, the final visarga (ā) has been immediately followed by the initial consonant r of the syllable r<sup>1</sup> of the next word r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya. In the resulting coalescence, the previous sound ā has been elided, and hence it has ceased to be uttered, while the previous short vowel u has been replaced by its homogeneous long one, viz., Ø, in camØ.

(6) R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t + n<sup>1</sup>sti = R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>nn<sup>1</sup>sti / Here, the final sound t of the previous word r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t is immediately followed by the initial sound n of the syllable na of the next coalesced words n<sup>1</sup>sti, thus affecting the previous sound t and changing it into a homogeneous sound, and replacing it by a similar sound n. consequently t+n= n+n, thus replacing -tn<sup>1</sup> - by nn<sup>1</sup>.

(7) D<sup>1</sup>saā + asmi = Daso 'mi / Here, the final visarga (ā) sound in the final syllable saā of the previous word d<sup>1</sup>saā has been immediately followed by the initial vowel sound a of the next word asmi. Consequently the visarga (ā) has changed, and is replaced by, the vowel sound u, which combines with the previous vowel sound a of the syllable sa, and coalesces as, and is replaced by, the vowel sound o, making it d<sup>1</sup>so. Then, since the vowel sound o is followed by the vowel sound a, this a gets elided, and in order to remember this elision, a sign of an avagraha (S), much like the English letter 'S', is put in its place.

(8) Smi + aham = Smyaham / Here, the final vowel sound i of the syllable smi is immediately followed by the initial vowel sound a of the next word aham. Consequently, the sound i is coalesced, and replaced by, the homogeneous semi-vowel sound y, thus i+a= ya, and smi+a=smya.

(9) M<sup>1</sup>m + uddhara = M<sup>1</sup>muddhara / Here, the final consonant sound m of the previous word m<sup>1</sup>m is immediately followed by the initial vowel sound u of the next word uddhara. Consequently, both the consonant m and the vowel u combine into a single syllable, thus m+u= mu.

It is to be noted that in the above nine instances of coalescence, we get the illustrations of almost all the chief types of coalescence, viz., the visarga-sandhi, the svara-sandhi, the vyañjana-sandhi.

The coalescence (sandhi) in Sanskrit is of two main types, viz., internal ('ntara) and external (b<sup>1</sup>hya). When we analyze a word grammatically we find that it is made up of the an original pratipadika or a dh<sup>1</sup>tu, and an 'gama is added to it, or an adesha replaces a part or whole of it, and a termination is affixed to it at the end for forming its desired form. In this process, some sounds occur together consecutively in such a way that while pronouncing them in a continuous utterance some changes automatically occur in them due to the position of the oral organs of utterance, and in accordance with the consequent rules of coalescence of the Sanskrit language, as seen in the above instances, before making them a single declined noun or adjective, or a conjugated verb. This type of coalescence is internal ('ntara-sandhi).

Similarly, when we utter a Sanskrit sentence, some

LESSON 6

(a-n̄-haā p̄-haā)

Now, read aloud the following sentences, trying to understand their meanings.

Aha, r̄maā / Tva, lak-maā / S̄ s̄t̄ / R̄maā s̄t̄ ca iti ́v̄, dampat̄ / Vaya, vana, gacch̄maā / Asm̄ka, n̄agar̄ ayodhȳ / , vayoā pit̄ daññarathaā / Mayi, iti r̄me, s̄t̄ snihyati / Tvayi, iti lak-maāe, Ørmil̄ snihyati / R̄me lak-maāe ca, iti ́vayoā, kauññalȳ m̄t̄sneha, dh̄rayati. Asm̄su kauññalȳ, sumitr̄, kaikeȳ ca mat̄sneha, darññayanti / Mama, iti s̄t̄ȳā, daññarathaā ॥vasuraā / Urmil̄, maāav̄ ca mama, iti s̄t̄ȳā, svasrvau nan̄nd̄raā ca / Kauññalȳ asm̄ka, tis̄aām̄ ॥vaññr̄o / Vaya, dugdha, pib̄maā, ॥str̄a i ca pa-h̄maā //

Tva, r̄vaāaā / Tava bh̄rȳ mandodar̄ / Kumbha-kar̄aa vibh̄aā ca te bhr̄tarau / Yōya, trayaaā bhr̄taraaā / Yu-m̄ka, pit̄ pulastyāā / Tvayi r̄k̄asa-kulasya net̄tvā, vartate / Tva, dak-iā-pathasya sarva-satt̄dh̄॥laā vartase //

Aham = I (am). , v̄m = we (both). Vayam = we (all). , vayoā = of us both. Mama = my, of me, mine. Asm̄kam = of us all. Mayi = in (i.e., towards) me. Asm̄su = in (i.e., towards) all of us. Tvam = thou, you. S̄ = she. Tava = your, of you. Yu-m̄kam = of you all. Pit̄ = father. Mat̄ = mother. Svas̄ = sister. , vaññā = mother-in-law. , vasura = fathe-in-law. Bh̄rȳ = wife. Bh̄t̄ = brother. Nan̄nd̄ = husband's sister. Net̄ = leader. Dak-iā-patha = South India. Satt̄ = power. ॥la = master, king. Adh̄॥la = king of kings, emperor.

Now, let us compare the different forms of the pronouns asmad and yu-mad given below. It should be noted that, as in English language, in the Sanskrit language too, there is no form of Vocative ever used in the case of these two pronouns.

The meaning of these words are as follows: A-krodhaā = na krodhaā = absence of anger. A-har-aā = na har-aā = no rejoicing. A-ro-aā = na ro-aā = lack of fury. A-lobhaā = na lobhaā = non-greediness. A-drohaā = na drohaā = non-betrayal. A-dambhaā = na dambhaā = absence of hypocrisy. An-atȳsaā - na atȳsaā = non-surpassing. A-paiññunam = na paiññunam = non-wickedness. An-as̄ȳ = na as̄ȳ = absence of jealousy. Sa, -vibh̄gaā = samyak vibh̄gaā = proper distribution. , rjavam = Ajut̄ = simplicity. Tȳgaā = d̄nam = charity. M̄rdavam = m̄dut̄ = softness, ~amaā = ॥ntiā = peace. Damaā = indriȳa, sa, yamaā = Control of senses. Sarvabhoote-u a-virodhaā = sarva-pr̄a inaā prati virodhaya abh̄vaā = lack of hostility towards all beings. Yogaā = samatvam = equanimity. , ryam = sad̄c̄ra-p̄lanam = good conduct. AnA॥a, sat̄ = nA॥a, sat̄ȳā abh̄vaā = lack of hard-heartedness. Tu-ññā = santo-aā = satisfaction. Iti = et̄ni = these/ thus. Sarva-dharm̄aām̄ = of all the religions. Samaya-pad̄ni = p̄lan̄ȳā niyam̄ā = rules to be observed. T̄ni = them. Anu-ti-ññati = p̄layati = ॥carati = observes. Yaā = (he) who. Vidhin̄t = vidhi-p̄rvakam = in accordance with the procedure. Saā = he. Sarva-ḡm̄ = sarvatra vijaȳ = successful everywhere. Bhavati = becomes / is. Now, utter aloud, over again, the above two sentences, keeping in mind their meanings.

We have seen in the above explanations that in the words like a-krodhaā, an-as̄ȳ, etc. the words na+krodhaā and na+as̄ȳ have combined and the initial na has been replaced by a- with a word beginning with a consonant, or an- with the word beginning with a vowel, and after the due coalescence a single word has been formed. Such a single formation resulting from a combination of two or more words is called a sam̄sa (compound) or a s̄m̄sika-॥abda (compounded word) in Sanskrit.

Now, read aloud the following sentences,
trying to understand their meanings: Tapaā krodhena vinaññyati / Sneho virahēa vinaññyati / Vyavah̄ro 'viññv̄sena

*vinañyati / Gu<sup>a</sup>av<sup>1</sup>n garve<sup>a</sup> a vinañyati / Kula-str» a-rak-a<sup>a</sup>na
vinañyati / Dh<sup>1</sup>nyam a-var-e<sup>a</sup> a vinañyati / Røpa, durbh<sup>1</sup>gyena vinañyati / Bhojana, tailena vinañyati / ~arra, a-yatnena vinañyati / That<sup>1</sup> dharmaā pram<sup>1</sup>dena vinañyati /*

Try to understand the forms of the words used in these sentences:

Krodha (anger), sneha (affection), viraha (separation), vyavah<sup>1</sup>ra (mutual relationship), a-visv<sup>1</sup>sa (lack of trust), garva (pride), a-yatna (lack of effort), dharma (religion, sense of duty), and pram<sup>1</sup>da (negligence) are the masculine a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns.

Kula-str» (virtuous woman) is a feminine noun.

Tapas (penance), a-rak-a<sup>a</sup>a (lack of protection), a-var-a (lack of rains), røpa (beauty), dur-bh<sup>1</sup>gya (ill luck), bhojana (food), taila (edible oil) and ~arra (body) are the neuter nouns.

Vinañyati (is spoiled) is a third person singular verb-form derived from the Sanskrit root vi+nañ (4 Par.).

It must be noted that the cases more used in these sentences are the nominative indicating the subject and the instrumental denoting the cause, expressed by the usages like 'due to', 'because of', 'through', and etc.

Further, it must be noted that the word in these sentences have coalesced as follows:

Snehaā+virahe<sup>a</sup>a=sneho virahena(ā+v=o+v). Vyavah<sup>1</sup>raā+aviñv<sup>1</sup>sena = vyavah<sup>1</sup>rao 'viñv<sup>1</sup>sena (ā+ a = ' + a). Here, since the visarga (ā) is followed by the consecutive v (which a soft semi-vowel), the ā has been changed to, or replaced by o. And when the ā is followed by the vowel a it is elided, and the elision has been indicated by a sign of avagraha (looking like a Roman S) in Sanskrit, and represented by an apostrophe (' ) in Roman transliteration.

Now, read aloud over again the above Sanskrit sentences, trying to understand their correct meanings.

they are generally the same as are applied to the nouns in general, with a few exceptions. Thus, the termination affixed to the masculine and neuter pronouns is -smai in the Dative singular, -sm<sup>1</sup>t in Ablative singular, -smin in the Locative singular, while those affixed to the feminine pronouns is syai in the Dative singular, sy<sup>1</sup>ā in the Ablative singular, and sy<sup>1</sup>m in Genitive singular. For instance, tasmai (= to that), tasmat (=from that), tasmin (=in that) are the Dat. Sing., Abl. Sing., and Loc. Sing forms of the pronoun tad (Mas. and Neu.), respectively. In the same way tasyai (=to her), tasy<sup>1</sup>ā (=from her), and tasy<sup>1</sup>m (=in her) are the Dat. Sing., Sing., Abl. Sing., and Loc. Sing forms of the pronoun tad (Fem.), respectively. All other forms have just the same terminations as are affixed to the other nouns in their respective genders.

sant<sup>1</sup>nam = child, offspring. Daivm = luck. Param= suprior to.

*Gai g<sup>1</sup> p<sup>1</sup>pa, ~a<sup>1</sup> t<sup>1</sup>pa, dainya, kalpa-tarus tath<sup>1</sup> /
P<sup>1</sup>pa, t<sup>1</sup>pa, ca dainya, ca hanti s<sup>1</sup>dhu-sam<sup>1</sup>gamaā //*

In this verse there are four sentences: Gai g<sup>1</sup> p<sup>1</sup>pa, hanti / ~a<sup>1</sup> t<sup>1</sup>pa, / Tath<sup>1</sup> kalpa-tarus dainya, (hanti) YS<sup>1</sup>dhu-sam<sup>1</sup>gamaā p<sup>1</sup>pa, t<sup>1</sup>pa, ca dainya, ca (hanti) /

P<sup>1</sup>pam = p<sup>1</sup>takam = sin. ~a<sup>1</sup> = candraā = Moon. Dainya, = d<sup>1</sup>nasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaā =misery. Kalpa-taruā= v<sup>1</sup>ñch<sup>1</sup>-p<sup>1</sup>raka, divya, v<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>-am = wish-fulfilling tree. S<sup>1</sup>dhu-sam<sup>1</sup>gamaā = sajjan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, melanam = meeting with, or company of good persons. Hanti = n<sup>1</sup>ayati = destroys. Kalpa-taruā+tath<sup>1</sup> = kalpa-tarus tath<sup>1</sup> (å+t=s+t= -st).

*Gu<sup>2</sup>o bh<sup>1</sup>-ayate r<sup>1</sup>opa, ~pla, bh<sup>1</sup>-ayate kulam /
Siddhir bh<sup>1</sup>-ayate vidy<sup>1</sup>, bhogo bh<sup>1</sup>-ayate dhanam //*

Bh<sup>1</sup>-yate = lobhayate = adorns, embellishes. Siddhir bh<sup>1</sup>-ayate = siddhiā+bh<sup>1</sup>-ayate (å+bh=r+bh = -rbhu- ).

In English, when we use one noun, and want to use it again, we would be bored and look silly to use it again and again. In order to avoid it, we use different forms of different cases and numbers of the words like 'he' , 'she', ;it', 'this', 'that' 'which', 'what', 'I', 'you', as the representatives of the concerned nouns. Similar is the practice in Sanskrit, too, and we use the words, like tad, etad, yad, yu-mad, asmad, adas, sarva, and such others. that are known as Sarva-n<sup>1</sup>ma, i.e. pronoun. P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ni has listed all such words in a single group, which begins with the word sarva. Hence, it is called Sarv<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>1</sup>a. And, since these words can be used by all, they are called sarva-n<sup>1</sup>ma. The Sanskrit language utilizes the following pronouns: Tad = that; etad = this; yad = which; yu-mad = you; asmad = I; adas = that; kim = what; sarva = all; anya = other; itara = another; sva = self; para = highest, supreme.

Looking to the different forms of the pronouns in different cases and persons, we find that the terminations affixed to

Now, read aloud the following Sanskrit sentences, trying to guess their approximate meanings:

V<sup>1</sup>-ir jap<sup>1</sup>-sum<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / Candrodaya<sup>1</sup>-cakrav<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / Subhik<sup>1</sup>a, dh<sup>1</sup>nya-sai gr<sup>1</sup>hak<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / Garjitam ~arabh<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / Candana, virahi<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / Var<sup>1</sup> prav<sup>1</sup>sik<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / M<sup>1</sup>da<sup>1</sup>ga-~abdo 'k-irogia<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / Induā svairi<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / Udyota<sup>1</sup>-caur<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / D<sup>1</sup>paā pataj<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate / S<sup>1</sup>ryaā kau<sup>1</sup>lik<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, na sukh<sup>1</sup>yate //

Now let us understand the forms of the words used in these sentences:

Masculine words: Candra/ Udaya/ cakrav<sup>1</sup>ka/ ~arabha/ Virahin/ Prav<sup>1</sup>sika/ Rogin/ Indu/ Udyota/ Caura/ D<sup>1</sup>pa / Pataj<sup>1</sup>ga / S<sup>1</sup>rya /

Feminine words : Jap<sup>1</sup>/ V<sup>1</sup>-i / Var<sup>1</sup>/ Svairi<sup>1</sup>a /

Neuter words: Suma/ Subhik<sup>1</sup>a/ Dh<sup>1</sup>nya/ Garjita/ Candana/ Ak<sup>1</sup>i/

Indeclinable: Na/

Verbs: Sukh<sup>1</sup>yate (Atm. 3rd Per, Sing. of a nominal verb from the noun sukha).

Now, let us understand the individual words used in the above sentences:

V<sup>1</sup>-iā = var<sup>1</sup> = rains. Jap<sup>1</sup>-sum<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, = jap<sup>1</sup>-pu-p<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m = to the Jap<sup>1</sup> flowers. It should be noted here that in all these sentences the genitive case is used in the sense of the objective case. Na = not. Sukh<sup>1</sup>yate = sukha, dad<sup>1</sup>ti = renders happy; makes feel comfortable Candrodayaā = candrasya udayaā = rise of the Moon; Moon-rise. Cakrav<sup>1</sup>kan<sup>1</sup>, = Subhik<sup>1</sup>a, = sutar<sup>1</sup>, bhik<sup>1</sup>-pr<sup>1</sup>pyate (is obtained) yad<sup>1</sup> t<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>laā k<sup>1</sup>laā dh<sup>1</sup>nya-sam<sup>1</sup>ddhi-k<sup>1</sup>laā = time when food is profusely available. Dh<sup>1</sup>nya-sai gr<sup>1</sup>hak<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, = ye dh<sup>1</sup>nyasya saj graha, kurvanti, te<sup>1</sup>m = to those who store grains. Garjitam = garjan<sup>1</sup>m = roaring. ~arabh<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, = gaja-~<sup>1</sup>on<sup>1</sup>m = of the young ones of elephants. Candana, = sandal. Virahi<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m = priya-jana-saj ga-rahit<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m – to those who are separated from their beloved persons. Var<sup>-1</sup> = vĀ̄-iā = rains. Prav<sup>1</sup>sik<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, = prav<sup>1</sup>se pravartam<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = those ho are travelling; travelers. MĀdāj ga-॥abdaā = mĀdanga-v<sup>1</sup>dyasya ravaā =The sound of drum-playing. Ak<sup>-1</sup>irogī<sup>a</sup>1, = cak-u-roga-yukt<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = Those having eye disease. Induā = Candraā = Moon Svairī<sup>a</sup>1n<sup>1</sup>, = *y<sup>1</sup> str» svacchanda-c<sup>1</sup>ri<sup>a</sup>» bhavati s<sup>1</sup> svairī<sup>a</sup>», t<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>m = to the wanton women. Udyota॥ = prak<sup>1</sup>॥aā = light, lustre, Caur<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, = taskar<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m = to the thieves. D»paā = d»pakaā = lamp. Pataj g<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, = To the butterflies. Sōryaā = dinakaraā = Sun. Kau॥ik<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, = ulōk<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = to the owls.*

Now, read the above Sanskrit sentences aloud,
keeing in mind their meanings.

to form one sound, or from technical viewpoint both are replaced by a single sound. These sounds are e, o, ar and al. P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>ini and other Sanskrit grammarians have called these sounds by the name Gu<sup>a</sup>a, and the coalescence in which these sounds replace the two combining sounds, as shown above, is called the Gu<sup>a</sup>a-sandhi. In it the replacing sound is technically an 'deffa, and hence it is called Gu<sup>a</sup>1deffa. In the P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>inian terminology, this procedure is called pōrvaparayoā ekaā gu<sup>a</sup>1deffa /, i.e., replacement of the two consecutive combining sounds by a single Gu<sup>a</sup>a sound.

P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>ini calls the sounds 'i, ai, au, 'r and 'I by the term VĀddhi. When a or ' is followed consecutively by a Gu<sup>a</sup>a or a VĀddhi sound, both are replaced by a single homogenous VĀddhi sound. Thus, a+e / '1+e / a+ai / '1+ai = ai. For instance: tava+eva = tavaiva; tava+ai॥varyam= tavaai॥varyam. Similarly, a+ o / '1 + o / a + au / '1 + au = au. For instance: jala+ oghaā = jalaughaā; Mah<sup>1</sup>+o-adhiā=Mahau-adhiā; vara+autsukyam = Varautsukyam; vidy<sup>1</sup>+autsukyam= vidyautsukyam.

The coalescence in which these sounds replace the two combining sounds, as shown above is called the VĀddhi-sandhi. In it the replacing sound is technically an 'deffa, and hence it is called VĀdhy1deffa. In the P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>inian terminology, this procedure is called pōrvaparayoā ekaā vĀdhy1deffa /, i.e., replacement of the two consecutive combining sounds by a single VĀddhi sound.

Now, recite the following verses aloud rhythmically Keeping in mind their meanings:

*Na hi vidy<sup>1</sup>-samo bandhur na ca vy<sup>1</sup>dhi-samo ripuā /
Na c<sup>1</sup>patya-samā sneho na ca daiv<sup>1</sup>t para, balam //*

This verse incoroprates four sentences: Vidy<sup>1</sup>-samo bandhur na hi (asti) / Vy<sup>1</sup>dhi-samo ripuā ca na (asti) / Apatya-samā snehaā ca na (asti) / Daiv<sup>1</sup>t para, balam ca na (asti) /

Bandhuā = sambandh» = relative. Samaā = tulyaā = comparable to. Vy<sup>1</sup>dhiā= disease. Ripuā = enemy. Apatyam =

~ir»-a flower endure the (weight of the) foot of a bee? He saptapad»-pad<sup>1</sup>ni ! yøya, viv<sup>1</sup>hasya pr<sup>1</sup>a-bhøt<sup>1</sup>ni bhavatha / (Voc. Plu.) = O the steps of the Seven-step ceremony! You are the life-breath of marriage.

Here in the first sentence the word padam means sth<sup>1</sup>nam = niv<sup>1</sup>saå = place, residence; in the second one padam means cara<sup>2</sup>am = p<sup>1</sup>daå = foot; in the third one pad<sup>1</sup>ni = steps.

Now, in order to commit to memory, sing five times aloud rhythmically the Nominative, Vocative and Accusative forms of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun r<sup>1</sup>ma (m.) in all the three numbers each, then sing rhythmically five times the forms of the Instrumental, Dative and Ablative cases. Then, do so the forms of the Genitive and Locative cases. And, finally, sing five times rhythmically all the twenty-four forms of r<sup>1</sup>ma in all the cases and numbers from the Nominative to the Locative.

From the view point of the changes due to the coalescence, it should be noted that if a or <sup>1</sup> is followed consecutively by i or », both combine to form, or are replaced by, the latter's homogeneous diphthon e. Thus, a+i / a+» / <sup>1</sup>+i / <sup>1</sup>+» = e. For instance: deva+indraå = devendraå; deva+»laå = deve॥laå; mah<sup>1</sup>+indraå = mahendraå; mah<sup>1</sup>+»laå = mahe॥laå.

If a or <sup>1</sup> are followed by u or Ø, both combine to form, or are replaced by, the latter's homogeneous diphthon o. Thus, a+u / a+Ø / <sup>1</sup>+u / <sup>1</sup>+Ø = o. For instance: para+upak<sup>1</sup>raå = paropa-k<sup>1</sup>raå; para+Øruå = paroruå; mah<sup>1</sup>+upak<sup>1</sup>raå = mahopak<sup>1</sup>raå.

If a or <sup>1</sup> are followed by long or short Å, both combine to form, or are replaced by, the ar. Thus, a+Å / <sup>1</sup>+Å = ar. For instance, deva+Å-l = devar-i; mah<sup>1</sup>+Å-i = mahar-i.

If a or <sup>1</sup> are followed by ð, both combine to form, or are replaced by, the al. Thus, a+ð / <sup>1</sup>+ð = al. For instance: tava+ðk<sup>1</sup>raå = tavalk<sup>1</sup>raå.

In these types of the coalescence, two sounds combine

LESSON 5 (Pañcamaå P<sup>1</sup>-haå)

In the last lesson we familiarized ourselves with the Sup, i.e., Case terminations, as affixed to the nouns ending in a consonant, , e.g. v<sup>1</sup>c, and also those slightly modified when affixed to the ak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine nouns, e.g., r<sup>1</sup>ma. Now, let us see them side by side in the cases of the nouns dik and jana for ready comparison:

Case	Sing.	Dual	Plural	Case	Sing.	Dual	Plural
Pra.	dik	díflau	díflaå	Nom.	janaå	janau	jan<sup>1</sup>å
Sa. .	dik	díflau	díflaå	Voc.	Jana	janau	jan<sup>1</sup>å
Dvi.	díflam	díflau	díflaå	Accu.	janam	janau	jan<sup>1</sup>n
Tati.	dífl<sup>1</sup>	digbhy<sup>1</sup>m	digbhiå	Instr.	janena	jan<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	janaiå
Catu.	dífl<sup>2</sup>e	digbhy<sup>1</sup>m	digbhyaå	Dat.	jan<sup>1</sup>ya	jan<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	janebhyå
Paj. .	díflaå	digbhy<sup>1</sup>m	digbhyaå	Abl.	jan<sup>1</sup>t	jan<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	janebhyå
Ja-	díflaå	díflöå	dífl<sup>1</sup>m	Gen.	janasya	janayoå	jan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m
Sapt.	dífl<sup>3</sup>	díflöå	dik-u	Loc.	jane	janayoå	jane-u

Now, note these forms from the point of grammatical analysis. In the case terminations applied to the word dífl, the one affixed both in the Nominative and Vocative singular forms is elided. But in the case of the word jana, the termination s of the Nominative singular is changed into a visarga (:), as for instance, in the case of the noun jana. The modified forms in some of the cases are shown in bold types.

From the point of view of grammatical analysis, we should remember here that since the noun jana is a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, its final vowel a naturally combines with the initial vowel of the termination affixed to it, and sometimes it is elided, as in jana+au = jan+au = janau (Nom., Voc. and Acc. du.); sometimes it is lengthened, as in jana+bhy<sup>1</sup>am = jan<sup>1</sup>+bhy<sup>1</sup>m = jan<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m (Intr., Dat. and Abl. du.); sometimes it is coalesced with it, as in jana+i = jane (Loc. sing.). Sometimes, the termination is replaced by its <sup>1</sup>defla and then coalesced with it, as in jana+<sup>1</sup>ina = janena (Instr. sing.), jana+bhis = jana+ais = janaiå (Instr. Pl.); jana+e = jana+<sup>1</sup>ya = Jan<sup>1</sup>ya (Dat. Sing.); jana+as = jana+<sup>1</sup>t = jan<sup>1</sup>t (Abl. sing.) jana+as = jana+sya = janasya (Gen. sing.); jana+os = jana+yoå =

Janayoā (Gen. and Loc. sing.); jana + m = Jan<sup>1</sup> + n<sup>1</sup>m = jan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m (Gen. pl.); and jana + su = jane + su = jane + ~u = jane~u (Loc. pl.).

Moreover, in the nouns, having the letters ā, r, or ~ in them, e.g. r<sup>1</sup>ma, the sound n in the terminations ina (Instr. Sing.) and n<sup>1</sup>m (Gen. pl.) changes into, or is replaced by, its homogeneous retroflex sound ^a, making them e<sup>2</sup>a and ^a<sup>1</sup>m, respectively; and the sound s in the termination su (Loc. pl.) is changed into, or replaced by, its homogeneous retroflex sound ~, making it ~u, as in jane~u.

Excepting these changes in the terminations applied to the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns, the rest of the terminations remain in tact and are applied as such. In accordance with the intention of the speaker to express different senses, he utilizes the different forms of the concerned noun in different cases and numbers, and goes on expressing through them the corresponding sense by the use of those forms. It should be kept in mind that the meaning of the words in a sentence has to be understood with reference to their forms, the context, and the linguistic custom.

Now, sing the following verses aloud and rhythmically:

*Tvam eva m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> ca pit<sup>1</sup> tvam eva Tvam eva bandu॥ ca sakha<sup>1</sup> tvam eva /
Tvam eva vidy<sup>1</sup> dravi<sup>2</sup>a, tvam eva Tvam eva sarva, mama deva-deva //*

In this verse there are the following two instances of coalescence: tvam+eva = tvameva; bandhuā+ca = bandhu॥ca.

Deva-devaā = dev<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, devaā = dev<sup>1</sup>dhidevaā = the God among (all) the gods, the supreme deity. Here the form Devadeva (= O God!). is in the Vocative case, since God is addressed by it. Tvam = you. Eva = only. Mama = my, mine. M<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> = mother. Pit<sup>1</sup> = father. Bandhuā = relative, Sakha<sup>1</sup> = friend, companion. Vidy<sup>1</sup> = learning, knowledge. Dravi<sup>2</sup>am = dravyam = money, wealth. Sarvam = all in all, everything.

Kulam = kulnat<sup>1</sup> = being born in a good family. ~lam = c<sup>1</sup>ritryam = character. Tekaā = tejasvit<sup>1</sup> = being bright, brilliance. Balam = flaktimattvam = strength, being strong. Gauram = gurut<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā bh<sup>1</sup>vaā = greatness, sense of importance. Pratyayaā = su-paricitatvam = being well-known, firm conviction, trust. Snehaā = prema = priyat<sup>1</sup> = affection, love. D<sup>1</sup>ridrye<sup>2</sup>a = nirdhanatvena = due to poverty. Vinal<sup>1</sup>yati = gets destroyed, gets lost.

In the paragraphs and verses given in the lessons so far, we have seen numerous a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine and neuter nouns, such as vacana, rjava, pratyaya, ॥la, rōpa, bhojana, taila, d<sup>1</sup>na, d<sup>1</sup>ridrya, etc. In the various forms of the masculine and the neuter nouns the terminations differ from one only in the Nominative, Vocative and Accusative cases in singular, dual and plural numbers. In the rest of the cases and numbers, the forms of both the masculine and neuter nouns have the same terminations.

The forms that differ in terminations in Mas, and Neu. are as follows:

	Deva (Mas.)			Pada (Neu.)
Pra.	devaā	devau	dev<sup>1</sup>ā	Nom.	padam	pade
Sam.	deva	devau	dev<sup>1</sup>ā	Voc.	pada	pad<sup>1</sup>ni
Dvi.	devam	devau	dev<sup>1</sup>n	Acc.	padam	pad<sup>1</sup>ni

Looking to the case terminations of the Nominative, Vocative and Accusative applied to the neuter nouns, instead of s, o and as in masculine, there is am, » and <sup>1</sup>ni in neuter; respectively, while in Vocative Singular the termination in both is elided.

Since the forms are similar in both the Nominative and Accusative, we have to guess on basis of the context whether a particular form is used in which of the two cases. For instance, Vi-<sup>2</sup>oā pada, vaiku<sup>2</sup>-ham asti / (Nom. Sing.) = The place of Vi-<sup>2</sup>u is Vaiku<sup>2</sup>-ha. Pelava, flir<sup>2</sup>-a-pu-pa, bhramarasya pada, katha, sahate ? (Acc. Sing.) = How does the tender gentlemanly behaviour.  $\sim$ rutam = jñ<sup>1</sup>nam = knowledge. A-bahu-bh<sup>1</sup>-it<sup>1</sup> = na ati<sup>1</sup>ya, vaktu, svabh<sup>1</sup>vaā = lack of too much talkativeness.; not being given to much talking. Yath<sup>1</sup>॥akti = ॥aktim anus<sup>1</sup>tya = in accordance with one's capacity. Kātajñat<sup>1</sup> = upak<sup>1</sup>ra-sc<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>raā = gratefulness. A<sup>1</sup>-au = a<sup>1</sup>-a-sa, khy<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>ā = eight. Gu<sup>a</sup>ā = sadgu<sup>a</sup>ā = (good) qualities. D<sup>1</sup>payanti = prak<sup>1</sup>॥ayanti = reveal, make illustrious.

Par<sup>1</sup>krama॥ c<sup>1</sup> = Par<sup>1</sup>kramaā + c<sup>1</sup> (ā + c = ॥ = c = ॥c).

C<sup>1</sup>bahubh<sup>1</sup>-it<sup>1</sup> = ca + a-bahubh<sup>1</sup>-it<sup>1</sup> (a + a = 1).

A<sup>1</sup>-au is Nom. Sing. of the Cardinal number a<sup>1</sup>-an.

Par<sup>1</sup>kramaā is Nom. Sing. of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta mas. noun.

Gu<sup>a</sup>ā is Nom. Plu. of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta mas. noun.

Puru<sup>a</sup>am is Acc. Sing. of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta mas. noun.

Prajñ<sup>1</sup>, a-bahu-bh<sup>1</sup>-it<sup>1</sup>, Kātajñat<sup>1</sup> are Nom. Sing. of the 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta fem. nouns.

Kaulyam, ॥rutam, D<sup>1</sup>nam are Nom. Sing. of the neu. nouns.

Yath<sup>1</sup>-॥akti = ॥aktim an-atikramya = in accordance with one's (financial) capacity. It is an indeclinable compound formed by combining the words yath<sup>1</sup> and ॥akti.

D<sup>1</sup>payanti is Causal 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Plu. of the root d<sup>1</sup>p (4 P.).

Kula, ॥la, ca satyañ ca prajñ<sup>1</sup> tejo dh<sup>1</sup>ti<sup>1</sup> balam / Gaurava, pratyayaā sneho d<sup>1</sup>ridrye<sup>a</sup> a vina<sup>1</sup>lyati //5//

Yad<sup>1</sup> manu<sup>a</sup>yaā nirdhanaā bhavati tad<sup>1</sup> tasya kulam ity<sup>1</sup>di gu<sup>a</sup>ā vin<sup>1</sup>॥a, gacchanti (iti asya ॥lokasya arthaā) /

Pratyayaā, snehaā are Nom. Sing. of a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta mas. nouns.

Kulam, ॥lam, satyam, balam are Nom. Sing. of a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta neu. nouns.

Tejaā is Nom. Sing. of the sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta neu. noun tejas.

D<sup>1</sup>ridrye<sup>a</sup> is Instr. Sing. of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta neu. abstract noun (d<sup>1</sup>ridrya = daridrasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaā) from the noun daridra (=poor, pauper, a destitute person).

Vina<sup>1</sup>lyati is 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing of the root vi+na॥ (4 P.)

D<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>tiā + balam (ā+ b = r+b = rb).

Now let us recognize the various grammatical forms of the words in the above verse:

In a metrical composition like this, the poet has to adjust the words skillfully in accordance with the exigencies of the meter concerned. But to grasp its sense and significance we have to construe the verse by rearranging the words of the verse in proper order of its sentences. This process is called anvaya, i.e., the prose order. Thus, we have in this verse the following sentences: Bhoā devadeva! Tvat eva mama m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> (asi) / Tvat eva mama pit<sup>1</sup> (asi) / Tvat eva mama bandhuā (asi) / Tvat eva mama sakh<sup>1</sup> (asi) / Tvat eva mama vidy<sup>1</sup> (asi) / Tvat eva mama dravi<sup>a</sup>am (asi) Tvat eva mama sarvam (asi) //

Now let us recognize the various grammatical forms of the words in the above verse:

Tvat = Nom. Sing. of the pronoun yu-mat, related with the verb in the Second Person.

Mama = Gen. Sing. of the pronoun asmat related with the verb in the First Person.

M<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> = Nom. Sing. of the Ā-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine noun m<sup>1</sup>tā.

Bandhuā = Nom. Sing. of the u-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine noun bandhu.

Sakh<sup>1</sup> = Nom. Sing. of the masculine unusual i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun sakhi.

Vidy<sup>1</sup> = Nom. Sing. of the 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine noun vidy<sup>1</sup>.

Dravi<sup>a</sup>am = Nom. Sing. of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta neuter noun dravi<sup>a</sup>.

Sarvam = Nom. Sing. of the neuter pronoun sarva.

There is no verb in this verse. Hence, with reference to the vocative deva-deva and the subject tvam related with the Second Person, a verb like bhavasi, asi, vartase, is implied.

Udyamaā s<sup>1</sup>hasa, dhairyā, buddhiā ॥aktiā par<sup>1</sup>kramaā / !a<sup>o</sup> ete yatra vidyante tatra devaā sah<sup>1</sup>yak<sup>1</sup> //2//

The anvaya of this verse is: Yatra udyamaā s<sup>1</sup>hasa, dhairyā, buddhiā ॥aktiā par<sup>1</sup>kramaā (iti) ete -a<sup>o</sup> (gu<sup>a</sup>ā) vidyante tatra devaā sah<sup>1</sup>yak<sup>1</sup> (bhavati) /

Yatra = where. Udyamaā = effort, endeavour. S<sup>1</sup>hasam = rashness, daring. Dhairyam = fortitude. Buddhiā = intellect, wisdom. ~aktiā = energy, power. Par<sup>1</sup>kramaā = prowess, valour. ~a<sup>o</sup> = six. Ete = these. Vidyante = exist, are present. Tatra = there. Devaā = God. Sah<sup>1</sup>ya-kĀt (bhavati) = (becomes) helpful. This is similar to the English proverb: 'God helps those who help themselves'.

Udyamaā, Par<sup>1</sup>kramaā, and devaā are the ak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta Mas. Nouns in Nom. Sing.

Buddhiā and ~aktiā are the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta Feminine Nouns in Nom. Sing.

Sah<sup>1</sup>ya-kĀt = Sah<sup>1</sup>ya, karoti yaā sa / Karoti iti kĀt / This is Nom. Sing. of the compound word formed from two nouns sah<sup>1</sup>ya and kĀt.

Ete is Nom. Pl. of the pronoun etat.

~a- is Nom. Pl. of a cardinal numeral noun ~a-.

Yatra and tatra are the indeclinable words.

There is only one instance of coalescence in this verse, viz., -at + ete = -a<sup>o</sup> + ete = -a<sup>o</sup>ete. Here, since the retroflex hard consonant - is followed by the diphthong vowel e, the consonant changes, or is replaced by, its homogeneous soft consonant <sup>o</sup>. The rule involved here is that before any voiced sound (i.e., vowel, diphthong, or voiced consonant h), final - of a word becomes <sup>o</sup>. That means the first consonant of a class is replaced by the third consonant of its class in such a situation.

DhĀtiā k-am<sup>1</sup> damo'steya, ¶aucam indriya-nigrahaā /
Dhārvidy<sup>1</sup> satyam a-krodhō dañjaka, dharmalak-a<sup>a</sup>am //

DhĀtiā dhairyā, k-am<sup>1</sup> k-<sup>1</sup>ntiā, damaā d<sup>1</sup>ntiā, *a-*steyam cauryasya abh<sup>1</sup>vaā, ¶aucam ~ucit<sup>1</sup>, indriya-nigrahaā indriy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, niyamana, , dhār buddhiā,, vidy<sup>1</sup> jñ<sup>1</sup>na, , satyam satya-v<sup>1</sup>ditva, , a-krodhā krodhasya abh<sup>1</sup>vaā, iti etad dañjaga<sup>a</sup>1n<sup>1</sup>m samōhaā ekatra-rōpe<sup>a</sup>a millitv<sup>1</sup> dharmasya lak-a<sup>a</sup>am bhavati /

This style of composition explaining a Sanskrit verse in Sanskrit by giving its synonyms in a prose order is called a ~k<sup>1</sup> (=commentary). But if only the synonyms are given in the order in which they occur in the verse, but it is called ~ippa<sup>a</sup>a. In ancient and medieval handwritten manuscripts, such ~ippa<sup>a</sup>a is found to be written in the form of notes in the margins.

DhĀtiā = dhairyam = fortitude. K-am<sup>1</sup> = k-<sup>1</sup>ntiā = forgiveness, forbearance. Damaā d<sup>1</sup>ntiā = self-control. A-steyam = cauryasya abh<sup>1</sup>vaā = non-stealing. ~aucam = ¶ucit<sup>1</sup> = piety. Indriya-nigrahaā = indriy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, niyamanam = control over the senses. Dhār = buddhiā, = Intellect. Vidy<sup>1</sup> = jñ<sup>1</sup>na, = knowledge, learning. Satyam = satya-v<sup>1</sup>ditva, = truthfulness. A-krodhā = krodhasya abh<sup>1</sup>vaā = absence of anger. Iti etat = thus this (group of above-enumerated good qualities). Dharma-lak-a<sup>a</sup>am = dharmasya lak-a<sup>a</sup>am = characteristics of dutiful conduct. The verb bhavati is implied.

Damaā, indriya-nigrahaā, a-krodhā are the Nom. Sing. forms of the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine nouns.

DhĀtiā is the Nom. Sing. of the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine noun.

Dhār is the Nom. Sing. of the »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine noun.

K-am<sup>1</sup> and vidy<sup>1</sup> are the Nom. Sing. of the 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine noun.

A-steyam, ¶aucam, satyam, dañjakam, dharma-lak-a<sup>a</sup>am are the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta neuter nouns.

Dharma-lak-a<sup>a</sup>am is a compound word (śam<sup>1</sup>sa) of the ~a-~h-»-tatpuru-~a type formed by combining the two words dharma and lak-a<sup>a</sup>a making them one word.

The following instances of coalescence occurs in this verse: visarga (:) + k- = visarga (:) + k- (i.e., no change). Mo + a = -mo - (avagraha). -M + i- = -mi-. -ā + v- = -rv-. -M + a- = -ma-. -āā + d- = -o d-. -m + dh- = - dh-.

A-~au gu<sup>a</sup>1ā puru-~a, d<sup>1</sup>payanti
Prajñ<sup>1</sup> ca kaulya, ca damaā ¶ruta, ca /
Par<sup>1</sup>krama¶ c<sup>1</sup>bahubh<sup>1</sup>-it<sup>1</sup> ca
D<sup>1</sup>na, yath<sup>1</sup>-¶akti kĀtajñat<sup>1</sup> ca //

Prajñ<sup>1</sup> ca, kaulya, ca, damaā (ca), ¶ruta, ca, par<sup>1</sup>krama¶ ca, a-bahubh<sup>1</sup>-it<sup>1</sup> ca, yath<sup>1</sup>-¶akti d<sup>1</sup>na, (ca), kĀtajñat<sup>1</sup> ca (ity ete) a-~au gu<sup>a</sup>1ā pru-~a, d<sup>1</sup>payanti.

Prajñ<sup>1</sup> = prakĀ-~a, jñ<sup>1</sup>nanam = wisdom. Kaulyam = kula-¶plat<sup>1</sup> = Character in keeping with birth in a good family;

Kurv<sup>1</sup>aā – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. kurv<sup>1</sup>a of the root kA (8 U.), ‘to do’. ~ay<sup>1</sup>naā - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. ~ay<sup>1</sup>na of the root ~ (2 .), ‘to sleep’. Bhuñj<sup>1</sup>naā - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. bhuñj<sup>1</sup>na of the root bhuj (bhuñj) (7 .), to eat, to consume, to enjoy. Dad<sup>1</sup>naā - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. dad<sup>1</sup>na of the root d<sup>1</sup> (3 U.), ‘to give’. J<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>naā - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>na of the root jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 U.), ‘to know’. Bruv<sup>1</sup>aā - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. bruv<sup>1</sup>a of the root brØ (2 U.), ‘to speak’. Vardham<sup>1</sup>naā - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. vardham<sup>1</sup>na of the root vÅdh (7 .), ‘to grow’. Bahu-vi-ay<sup>1</sup>n = bahavaā vi-ay<sup>1</sup>ā, t<sup>1</sup>n; this is a compound word formed by the combination of the two words bahu (adj.) and vi-aya.

In the above verses and their explanations, we find the forms of the Nominative Singular of the Present Participle (vartam<sup>1</sup>na-kÅdanta) spÅflat, jighrat, hasat, m<sup>1</sup>nayat, pa-hat, jayat, j<sup>1</sup>grat, pa~lyat, a~nat, gacchat, svapat, ~vasat, pralapat, visÅyat, gÅh<sup>2</sup>at, unmi~at, nimi~at, dh<sup>1</sup>rayat, etc., and adh<sup>2</sup>y<sup>1</sup>na, sevam<sup>1</sup>na, lokam<sup>1</sup>na, kurv<sup>1</sup>aā, ~ay<sup>1</sup>na, bhñj<sup>1</sup>na, dad<sup>1</sup>na, j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>na, bruv<sup>1</sup>aā, vardham<sup>1</sup>na, etc., of the respective concerned Sanskrit verbal roots, shown above. Among them, the roots of the first group of them are of the parasmai-pada type, while those of the second one are of the 1tmane-pada type. Although these words are used to denote the sense of continuous action, they are not verbs. They are but the adjectives of some nouns or pronouns or adverbial nouns. In such a situation, we sometimes utilize such constructions as, ‘while touching’, ‘while smelling’, ‘while laughing’, and etc. This facility is available in Sanskrit, too. In order to express the sense of a complete action, we can use the verbal forms, and to express the sense of a continuous action, we can use the Present Participles of the concerned verbal roots. Such present participles are also known as the Verbal Derivative Adjective (dh<sup>1</sup>tu-s<sup>1</sup>dhita-vi~le-a<sup>2</sup>a).

KÅdanta is a nominal word (pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika) in which a kÅt termination (pratyaya) has been suffixed to a Sanskrit verbal root, thus kÅt + anta = kÅd+anta / kÅt ante yasya tat ~abda-rØpa, kÅdantam / The kÅt terminations are suffixed to formu-

Asmad = I

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.	aham	1v<sup>1</sup>m	vayam
Nom.	= I	= we (two)	= we (all)
Sa,	-	-	-
Voc.	-	-	-
Dvi.	m<sup>1</sup>m / m<sup>1</sup>	1v<sup>1</sup>m / nau	asm<sup>1</sup>n / naā
Acc.	= (to) me	= (to) us (two)	= (to) us
TÄt.	may<sup>1</sup>	1v<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	as<sup>1</sup>bhiā
Instr.	= by me	= by us (two)	= by us (all)
Cat.	mahyam / me	1v<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m / nau	asmabhyam / naā
Dat.	= to me	= to us (two)	= to us (all)
Pañ.	mat	1v<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	asmat
Abl.	= from me	= from us (two)	= from us (all) a~.	mama/me	1vayoā/nau	asm<sup>1</sup>kam / naā
Gen.	= of me/my/mine	= of us (two)	= of us (all)
Sap.	mayi	1vayoā	asm<sup>1</sup>su
Loc.	= in/about me	= in / about us (two)	= in / about us (all)

Here, in the declension of the pronoun asmad the forms m<sup>1</sup>, m<sup>1</sup> and me in the Sing., nau, nau and nau in the Dual, and naā, naā and naā, in the Plural of the Accusative, Dative and Genitive cases, respectively, are used optionally in lieu of the regular forms, though not in the beginning of a sentence or a verse.

Yu-mad (= You)

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom.	tvam = thou	yuv<sup>1</sup>m = you (both)	yØyam = you (all)
Voc.	-	-	-
Acc.	tv<sup>1</sup>m (tv<sup>1</sup>) = to/towards you	yuv<sup>1</sup>m (nau) = to/towards you (two)	yu-m<sup>1</sup>/naā = to/towards you (all)
Instr.	tvay<sup>1</sup> = by you	yuv<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m = by you (two)	yu-m<sup>1</sup>bhiā = by you (all)
Dat.	tubhyam/te = to you	yuv<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m/v<sup>1</sup>m = to you (two)	yu-mabhyam / vaā = to you (all)
Abl.	tvat = from you	yuv<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m = from you (two)	yu-mat = from you (all)
Gen.	tava/te = of you/ your/yours	yuvayoā/v<sup>1</sup>m = of you (two)	yu-m<sup>1</sup>kam/vaā = of you (all)
Loc.	tvayi = in/about you	yuvayoā = in/about you (two)	yu-m<sup>1</sup>su = in/about you (all)

Here, in the declension of the pronoun yu-mad the forms tv<sup>1</sup>, te and te in the Sing., v<sup>1</sup>m, v<sup>1</sup>m and v<sup>1</sup>m in the Dual, and vaå, vaå and vaå, in the Plural of the Accusative, Dative and Genitive cases, respectively, are used optionally in lieu of the regular forms, though not in the beginning of a sentence or a verse.

In the previous lessons we have familiarized ourselves with the lengthening of homogeneous vowels (śavar<sup>a</sup>-a-dṛgha), of diphthonging, of heterogeneous vowels (gu<sup>a</sup>-a-sandhi), and of long-diphthonging of heterogeneous (yāddhi-sandhi) in the coalescence. Now, we shall do so about a few more types of coalescence.

In Sanskrit, when a heterogeneous vowel comes immediately after short or long i, u, Å or Ø, they are seen to have been changed to, or replaced by, y, v, r, or l, respectively. This type of coalescence is known by the name Ya<sup>a</sup>-sandhi.* The examples of the ya<sup>a</sup>-sandhi are as follows:

Yadi+api = yadyapi (i+a+ya) / iti+'di = ity<sup>1</sup>di (i+<sup>1</sup>=y<sup>1</sup>) / prati+ uttaraå = pratyuttaraå (i+u=yu) / prati+ekaå= pratyekaå /

Hetu+arthaå = hetvarthaå (u+a=va) / guru+ 'deßlaå = gurv<sup>1</sup>deßlaå (u+<sup>1</sup>=v<sup>1</sup>) / s<sup>1</sup>dhu+idam = s<sup>1</sup>dhvidam (u+i=vi) / ॥i॥u+aikyam = ॥i॥vaikyam (u+ai=vai) / s<sup>1</sup>dhu+odanam = s<sup>1</sup>dhvordanam (u+o=vo) / madhu+autsukyam= madhvau-tsukyam (u+au=vau) /

PitÅ+a; kaå=pitra; kaå (Å+a; =ra; ) /m<sup>1</sup>tÅ+<sup>1</sup>jñ<sup>1</sup>= matr<sup>1</sup>- jñ<sup>1</sup> (Å+<sup>1</sup>=r<sup>1</sup>) / bhartÅ+icch<sup>1</sup>=bhartricch<sup>1</sup> (Å+i=rj) / nan<sup>1</sup>dÅ+udy<sup>1</sup>nam=nan<sup>1</sup>ndrudy<sup>1</sup>nam (Å+u=ru) / bhr<sup>1</sup>tÅ+ odanam = bhr<sup>1</sup>trodanam (Å+o=ro) / savsÅ+aud<sup>1</sup>ryam =svasraud<sup>1</sup>ryam (Å+au=rav) /

^+ kÅtiå = l<sup>1</sup>kÅtiå / ^+ idam = lidam / ^+ »dÅ॥aå = l»dÅ॥å / ^+ upari = lupari.

Adhøy<sup>1</sup>no bahØn granth<sup>1</sup>n sevam<sup>1</sup>no bahØn gurun / Lokam<sup>1</sup>no bahØn deß<sup>1</sup>n bahujño j<sup>1</sup>yate naraå //

BahØn = many, numerous; granth<sup>1</sup>n = books; adhøy<sup>1</sup>naå = one who studies; gurØn = teachers, preceptors; sevam<sup>1</sup>aå = one who serves; deß<sup>1</sup>n = countries; lokam<sup>1</sup>naå = observing; naraå = man, person; bahujñaå = one who knows many things, versatile; j<sup>1</sup>yate = becomes.

Adhøy<sup>1</sup>naå – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Participle adhøy<sup>1</sup>na, derived from the root adhi+i (2 .), 'to study'. Bahun, granth<sup>1</sup>n, gurØn, and deß<sup>1</sup>n – Acc. Pl. of the nouns bahu (adj.), grantha, guru and deßa, respectively. Sevam<sup>1</sup>naå = Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Participle sevam<sup>1</sup>na, derived from the root sev (1 .), 'to serve, to pursue, to enjoy. Lokam<sup>1</sup>naå = Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Participle lokam<sup>1</sup>na, derived from the root luk (1 .), 'to look, observe. Bahujñaå = bahØn<sup>1</sup>, pu-kal<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, (= of many) vi-ay<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, (= of the subjects) jñ<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> vett<sup>1</sup> (=knows, one who knows). J<sup>1</sup>yate – La- (=Pre.) Pra. Pu. (=3rd Per.) Sing. of the root jan (4 .), 'to be, to become, to be born.

*Kurv<sup>1</sup>aå kÅtim amit<sup>1</sup>, mita, ॥ay<sup>1</sup>naå
Bhuñj<sup>1</sup>no mitam amit<sup>1</sup>, para, dad<sup>1</sup>naå /
J<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>no bahu-vi-ay<sup>1</sup>n mita, bruv<sup>1</sup>aå
Utkar-a, bhuvi labhate sa vardham<sup>1</sup>naå //*

*Amit<sup>1</sup>, = na mit<sup>1</sup>m = unmeasured, unlimited, many, numerous; kÅtim = karma = action; kurv<sup>1</sup>aå = yaå karoti saå = one who does; mitam = measured, limited, less; ॥ay<sup>1</sup>naå = yaå ॥ete = yaå ॥ayana, karoti saå = one who sleeps; bhuñj<sup>1</sup>naå = bhoga, kurv<sup>1</sup>aå= yaå bhuñj<sup>1</sup>te saå = one who eats, enjoys; param = anyam = to others; dad<sup>1</sup>naå = yaå dad<sup>1</sup>ti saå = one who gives, donates; j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>naå = yaå j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti saå = one who knows; vi-ay<sup>1</sup>n = subjects, topics; bruv<sup>1</sup>aå = yaå brav<sup>1</sup>ti saå = one who speaks; vardham<sup>1</sup>naå = yaå vardhate saå = one who grows, develops, matures. Saå = he, that one. (Naraå = man, person); Bhuvi = pÅthivy<sup>1</sup>m = on the earth, in the world; utkar-am = ati॥ayam = high status, exalted position.; labhate = pr<sup>1</sup>pnoti = gets, obtains, achieves.*

Pralapan Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. pralapat derived from the root pra+lap (1 P.), 'totalk in general, to wail, to whisper, to lament'. Visājan Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. visājat derived from the root vi+sāj (6 P.), 'to create, to let loose, to shed'. Gāhāan - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. gāhāat derived from the root gāh (9 P.), 'to take hold of, to seize'. Unmi-an - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. unmi-at derived from the root ut+mi- (6 P.), 'to open eyes, to look at'. Nimi-an - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. nimi-at derived from the root ni+mi- (1 P.), 'to shut the eyelids, to wink, to fall asleep'. Indriy<sup>1a</sup>i - Nom. pl. of the noun indriya (neu.), 'sense, sense organ'. Indriy<sup>1</sup>the-u - Loc. Pl. of the noun indriy<sup>1</sup>rtha (mas.), 'sense object'. Vartante - Pra. Pu. (=3rd Per.) Sing. of the root vāt (1 .), 'to exist, to happen, to live on, to occupy'. Dh<sup>1</sup>rayan - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. dh<sup>1</sup>rayat derived from the root dhā (10 U.), 'to hold, to bear, to support'. Yog - Nom. sing. of the noun yogin. Karoti - Pra. Pu. (=3rd Per.) Sing. of the root (8 U), 'to do'. Karm<sup>1a</sup>i - Acc. Plu. of the noun karma (neu.), 'work'. Saj gam - Acc. Sing. of the noun saj ga (mas.), 'attachment, company'. Tyaktv<sup>1</sup> - the ktv<sup>1</sup>nta, i.e., the gerund, or past indeclinable participle, of the root tyaj (1 p.), 'to abandon'. tma-॥uddhaye - Dat. Sing. of the compound noun tma+॥uddhi, 'purity of the Self, purity of oneself'.

Pa॥yan + ॥āvan = Pa॥yañ॥āvan (n+॥= ḫ॥). Similarly, Svapan + ॥vasan = svapañ॥vasan (n+॥= ḫ॥). Sp॥an + jighran = sp॥añjighran (n+j= ḫj), instances of para-savar<sup>a</sup>a coalescence; Jighran + a॥nan = Jighranna॥nan (n+a= nna). Gāhāan + unmi-an (n+u=nnu). Unmi-an + nimi-an= unmi-annimi-an (n+n=nn). Nimi-an + api = Nimi-annapi (n+a= nna), instances of reduplication, i.e., the addition of a nu<sup>1</sup>gamma in between, according to P<sup>1a</sup>ini. Indriy<sup>1a</sup>i + indriy<sup>1</sup>the-u = indriy<sup>1a</sup>ndriy<sup>1</sup>the-u (i+i=॥), instance of lengthening of two short i vowels, i.e. savar<sup>a</sup>-d<sup>1</sup>rgha coalescence. Vartante + iti = Vartanta iti (e+=a i), replacement of e by a, and then no further coalescence. Tyaktv<sup>1</sup> + tma-॥uddhaye = tyaktv<sup>1</sup>tma-॥uddhaye (1+1= 1). Lengthening of two short a vowels, i.e. savar<sup>a</sup>-d<sup>1</sup>rgha coalescence.

If, however, a heterogeneous vowel comes immediately after e or ai, the former changes to ay and the latter to iy. Similarly, if a heterogeneous vowel comes immediately after o or au, the former changes to av and the latter to iv. These ay, iy, av and iv have been briefly called ay<sup>1</sup>di, i.e. ay and etc., by P<sup>1a</sup>ini, and the coalescence resulting in them is called Ay<sup>1</sup>di-sandhi. The instances of this type of coalescence are as follows:

Ne+anam= nayanam (e+a=ay) / nai+akaå = n<sup>1</sup>yakaå (ai+a=iy) / hare+ iha =harayiha (e+i=ayi) / ॥riyai+udyataå = ॥riy<sup>1</sup>yudyataå (ai+u=iyu) /

Bho+anam = Bhavanam (o+a=ava) / vibho+ihå = vibhaviha (o+i=avi) / vi-<sup>2</sup>o+e=vi-<sup>2</sup>ave (o+e=ave) / pau+akaå=p<sup>1</sup>vakaå (au+a=va) / nau+ikaå=n<sup>1</sup>vikaå (au+i=vi) /

But, if after the final e or o is immediately followed by the short vowel a, then the a merges into the preceding vowel e or o. In other words, it adopts the form (Øpa) of the previous (pØrva) vowel, and in order to indicate that the a has disappeared here, a sign of avagraha, looking like the Roman 's' in the Devan<sup>1</sup>gar<sup>1</sup> script, is put in its place. In Roman transliteration it is shown by an apostrophe. This type of the coalescence is called the PØrva-rØpa-sandhi. The instances of this type are as follows:

Hare+atra=hare'tra (e+a=e') / prabho+atra= prabho'tra (o+a=o') loko+ ayam =loko'yam / gop<sup>1</sup>lo+ aham= go<sup>1</sup>lo'ham /

Similarly, when the vowel a is immediately followed by e or o, the a being previous, adopts the form (Øpa) of, i.e., practically merges into, the following (para) e or o, but its disappearance is not indicated by any sign like the avagraha. This type of coalescence is called the Para-rØpa-sandhi. The instances of this type of coalescence are as follows:

nam (a+o=o) / upa + o-ati= upo-ati (a+o=o)/ ¶uddha + odanaå=¶uddho danaå (a+o=o) /

Sometimes it so happens that at the end of the former word the long vowels », Ø or e occur due to the suffixing of the termination of the dual, and it is followed immediately by some other word beginning with some vowel. In such a situation there is of course the scope for the ya<sup>a</sup>di-sandhi. But if it is operated, it becomes very difficult to guess as to which were the original forms of the words that coalesced. In order to guard against this undesirable contingency it is customary not to operate the rule, and leave the words uncoalesced or as they are. This process is technically called Pragñhya, i.e. the word to be kept as it is, unchanged. Even if there occurs a word immediately after a pragñhya word, the rules of coalescence are not to be operated, even if there is apparently a clear scope for it. This type of non-coalescence is practically known as pragñhya-sandhi ! The examples of it are as follows:

har»+<sup>1</sup>gatau = har» <sup>1</sup>gatau / dhenØ+<sup>1</sup>gacchataå = dhenØ <sup>1</sup>gacchataå / Am»+agnayaå = am» agnayaå / amØ+ aßvau = amØ aßvau / late+asiñcat = late asiñcat /

Just as in English verb-form can convey the sense of the past, present and future times, so also do the verb-forms in Sanskrit. But in Sanskrit, the past can be indicated minutely in its three different stages, viz., the past of today (adyatana-bhøta), that of yesterday (an-adyatana-bhøta or hyastana-bhøta) and that of remote times (parok-a-bhøta). Similarly, the future can be indicated in its two different varieties: viz., First or Periphrastic Future denoting a remote future time not of to-day, i.e., or of the tomorrow and distant times (an-adyatana-bhavi-yat or ¶vastana-bhavi-yat); and the Second or the Simple Future, denoting to a future time generally or indefinitely, as also to a recent future continuous time of action (adyatana-bhavi-yat).

This adduces to the richness of the Sanskrit language. This richness was gradually lost in the Prakrits, Apabhra, ¶a

*Paßyañ¶A<sup>a</sup>vanspA¶añjighranna¶nan gacchan svapañ¶vasan /
Pralapan visAjan gAßann unmi-an nimi-ann api //
Indriy<sup>1a</sup>ndriy<sup>1</sup>rthe-u vartanta iti dh<sup>1</sup>rayan /
Yog<sup>1</sup> karoti karm<sup>1a</sup>i sa;ga, tyaktv<sup>1</sup> "tma-¶uddhaye //*

Yog<sup>1</sup> karm<sup>1a</sup>i karoti = A yogin performs actions. Saå paßyan dar¶na, kurvan api = even while looking; ~A<sup>a</sup>van ¶rava<sup>a</sup>a, kurvan api = even when hearing; SpA-an spar¶am kurvan api = even while touching; jighran gandha-graha<sup>a</sup>a, kurvan api = even while smelling; aßnan kh<sup>1</sup>dana, kurvan api = even while eating; gacchan gamana, kurvan api = even while going, walking; svapan nidr<sup>1</sup>, kurvan api = even while sleeping; svasan ¶v<sup>1</sup>socchv<sup>1</sup>sa, kurvan api = even while breathing; pralapan <sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>-a<sup>a</sup>a, kurvan api = even while talking, or speaking; visAjan visarjana, kurvan api = even while letting off, leaving, giving up; gAßan graha<sup>a</sup>a, kurvan api = even while taking, catching hold, accepting; unmi-an netr<sup>1a</sup>i unmøyayan api = even while opening the eyes; nimi-an netr<sup>1a</sup>I nimøyayan api = even while closing the eyes; indriy<sup>1a</sup>i = the senses, the sense organs; idriy<sup>1</sup>rthe-u idriy<sup>1a</sup>m arthe-u = in the objects of the senses; vartante pravAtti, kurvanti = remain, operate; iti eva, prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>a = thus, in such a manner; dh<sup>1</sup>rayan vic<sup>1</sup>ra, kurvan = taking to be, thinking; sa, ga, <sup>1</sup>sakti, tyaktv<sup>1</sup> vih<sup>1</sup>ya = having given up the attachment; <sup>1</sup>tma-¶uddhaye <sup>1</sup>tmanaå svasya ¶uddhiå sy<sup>1</sup>t iti hetun<sup>1</sup> = with a view to purify, or for purifying, his own Self.

Paßyan - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. paßyat derived from the root dA¶ (paßy, 1 P.), 'to see'. ~A<sup>a</sup>van - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. ~A<sup>a</sup>vat derived from the root ¶ru ( 5 P.) ' to hear, to study'. SpA-an - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. spA-at derived from the root spA- (6 P.), 'to touch'. Jighran - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. jighrat derived from the root ghr<sup>1</sup> (3 P.), 'to smell'. Aßnan Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. aßnat derived from the root aß (9 P.), 'to eat'. Gacchan - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. gacchat derived from the root gam (gacch, 1 P.), 'to go'. Svapan - Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. svapat derived from the root svap (2 P.), 'to sleep, to repose'. ¶vasan Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. ¶vasat derived from the root ¶vas (2 P.), 'to breathe, to sigh, to hiss'.

Spājan – Nom. Sing. of the Present Participle spāyat derived from the root spā (6. P.)=to touch. Jighran - Nom. Sing. of the Present Participle jighrat derived from the root ghr<sup>1</sup> (3 P.)= to smell. Hasan - Nom. Sing. of the Present Participle hasat derived from the root has (1 P.) =to smile, to laugh. M<sup>1</sup>nayan - Nom. Sing. of the Present Participle m<sup>1</sup>nayat derived from the root m<sup>1</sup>n (1, 10 P.) = to honour, to respect.

Spājan + api = spājannapi (t + n = n + n = nn) / Jighran + api = jighrannapi / Hasan + api = hasannapi / M<sup>1</sup>nayan + api = m<sup>1</sup>nayannapi / Here, since a follows the final n, the latter is duplicated, thus resulting in n+a=nna. From the P<sup>1</sup>ainian point of view, the adjunct nu-, known as nud<sup>1</sup>gama, is added in between the n and a.

Pa-hato n<sup>1</sup>sti mōrkhatva, japato n<sup>1</sup>sti p<sup>1</sup>takam / Mauninaā kalaho n<sup>1</sup>sti na bhaya, c<sup>1</sup>sti j<sup>1</sup>grataā //
Pa-hataā = yaā pa-hati tasya = of the one who reads, i.e., studies. Na = not. Asti = has, exists. Mōrkhatvam = buddhi-hnasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaā = foolishness, stupidity. Japataā = yaā japa, karoti tasya = of the one who mutters (holy mantras). P<sup>1</sup>takam = p<sup>1</sup>pam = sin. Mauninaā = muneā bh<sup>1</sup>vaā maunam = mōkat<sup>1</sup> = the state of a holy sage, keeping silent / yaā mōkat<sup>1</sup>, p<sup>1</sup>layati tasya= of the one who observes silence, keeps silent. Kalahaā = vigrahaā = quarrel, brawl, fight. Bhayam = bhetiā = fear, fright. J<sup>1</sup>grataā = yaā j<sup>1</sup>garti tasya = to one who keeps awake, of one who is vigilant.

Pa-hataā – Gen. Sing. of the Pre. Part. Pa-hat derived from the root Pa-h 'to read, to study'. J<sup>1</sup>grataā - Gen. Sing. of the Pre. Part. j<sup>1</sup>grat derived from the root j<sup>1</sup>gĀ, 'to awake. Japataā - Gen. Sing. of the Pre. Part. Japat derived from the root Jap 'to mutter'. Mauninaā - Gen. Sing. of the possessive noun maunin derived from the abstract noun mauna 'silence, absence of speaking', derived from the root man 'to meditate'. Mōrkhatvam – Abstract noun derived from the adjectival noun mōrkhā 'stupid, foolish' Na – Indeclinable. Asti = La- (Pre. Ten.) Pra. Pu. (3rd Per.) Sing. of the root as, 'to be, to become, to have.

and modern Indian languages that evolved from Sanskrit in course of time.

By way of specimen of the verb-forms of the an-adyatana-bhavi-yat tense in Sanskrit, the following ones of the roots bhØ (1 P.) bh<sup>1</sup>- (1 A.) may be noted:

bhØ (1 P.)=to be/become
Per.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra. Pu.	bhavi-yati	bhavi-yataā	bhavi-yanti
3 rd	= (He) will become.	= (They two) will become.	= (They all) will become.
Madh. Pu.	bhavi-yasi	bhavi-yathaā	bhavi-yatha
2 nd	= (you) will become.	= You two) will become.	= (You all) will become.
Utta. Pu.	bhavi-y<sup>1</sup>mi	bhavi-y<sup>1</sup>vaā	bhavi-y<sup>1</sup>maā
1 st Per.	= (I) shall become.	= (We two) will become.	= (We all) will become.

bh<sup>1</sup>- (1 )=to speak
Per.	bh<sup>1</sup>-i-yate	bh<sup>1</sup>-i-yete	bh<sup>1</sup>-I-yante
3 rd	= (He) will speak.	= (They two) will speak.	= (They all) will speak.
Madh. Pu.	bh<sup>1</sup>-i-yase	bh<sup>1</sup>-yethē	bh<sup>1</sup>-i-yadhve
2 nd	= you (will speak).	= (You two) will speak.	= (You all) will speak.
Utta. Pu.	bh<sup>1</sup>-i-ye	bh<sup>1</sup>-I-y-vahe	bh<sup>1</sup>-i-y-mahe
1 st	= (I) shall speak.	= (We two) will speak.	= (We all) will speak.

We have learnt in the Lesson 4 above (p.28, fnnt.) about the ten Lak<sup>1</sup>ras of P<sup>1</sup>aini denoting various tenses and moods of the Sanskrit verb-forms. In the Sanskrit commentaries on the classical literary works like epics and poems, the explanation of the verb-forms have been given by mentioning the concerned Lak<sup>1</sup>ra, as for instance the verb-form bhavati would be grammatically explained thus: Bhavati iti bhv<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>2</sup>ya-bhØ-dh<sup>1</sup>toā la-i parasmaipade prathama-puru-e eka-vacan<sup>1</sup>nta, rØpam / Bhavi-yante iti bhv<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>2</sup>ya-bh<sup>1</sup>-dh<sup>1</sup>toā la-I 1tmane-pade prathama-puru-e bahu-vacan<sup>1</sup>nta, rØpam /

From the point of view of grammatical analysis, the terminations suffixed in the above-mentioned two sets of verb-forms are as follows:

	Parasmaipada			tmanepada
3 rd Per.	syati	syartaā	syanti	syate	syete	syante
2 nd Per.	syasi	syathaā	syatha	syase	syethe	syadhve
1 st Per.	sy<sup>1</sup>mi	sy<sup>1</sup>vaā	sy<sup>1</sup>maā	sye	sy<sup>1</sup>vahe	sy<sup>1</sup>mahe

When we analyze the above-mentioned forms of the roots bh<sup>0</sup> (1 P.) and bh<sup>1</sup>- (1 ,) in the ‘A-, i.e., an-adyatana-bhavi-yat (=Second Future Tense), we find that in the parasmaipada the form bhavi-yati breaks up into the following components: bh<sup>0</sup>+i+sy+a+ti=(after the gu<sup>a</sup>a of the root vowel) bho+i+y+a+ti / =(after the sandhi of o+i=av and conversion of s into ्) bhav+ i+y+a+ti / Similarly, in the case of bh<sup>1</sup>-i-yate, the analysis is: bh<sup>1</sup>-+i+sy+a+te=bh<sup>1</sup>-+i+y+a+te /

Just as in the La- (=Present Tense) Parasmai-pada form of the root bh<sup>0</sup> in the Prathama Puru-a (Third Person) Singular, the adjunct (vikara<sup>a</sup>a) a is added before the concerned termination ti, similarly, in the case of tmane-pada form of the root bh<sup>1</sup>-, too, it is added before the concerned termination te. But the particularly noteworthy point is the medial addition of i and sy sounds; they too are the ‘gama or adjuncts. Of these two, the i is added to a set of particular Sanskrit roots that have been identified by P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini as Set (=sa+i-),* i.e., taking an additional i immediately after the root. The Sanskrit roots that do not take this i are called Ani- (=an+i-), i.e., not taking the

§ In future, if we want to go deeper in the Sanskrit Grammar, the following details would be very much useful. In his Dh<sup>1</sup>tu-p<sup>1</sup>-ha, i.e., the traditional list of the classified Sanskrit roots, P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini has mentioned the roots along with their respective meaning, and in the beginning of the sub-divisions in the list he has given many details about peculiarities of the roots. For instance, bh<sup>0</sup> satt<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>m ud<sup>1</sup>ttāā parasmai-bh<sup>1</sup>-aā /, i.e., the root bh<sup>0</sup> meaning 'to be/become' has the accented vowel and takes the parasmai-pada terminations. Then, athaidh<sup>1</sup>dayaā kathyant<sup>1</sup>ā -a-tri, ḥad<sup>1</sup>tmane-bh<sup>1</sup>-ā / i.e., now, the thirty-six roots beginning with edh and ending with kath, take the tmane-pada terminations. Ityud<sup>1</sup>tt<sup>1</sup>ā anud<sup>1</sup>ttetaā / Up to this, (each of these roots) has the accented vowel, and their anubandha, i.e. the signatory consonantal element, is unaccented. In the Siddh<sup>1</sup>ta-kaumud of Bha--oj Dik-ita and in the Higher Sanskrit Grammar of M. R. Kale (pp.295-297) a few k<sup>1</sup>rik<sup>1</sup> verses beginning with 'Od-dā-antair-yautir,uk-<sup>3</sup>u..' etc are given in which the list of Se-, Ani- and Ve- is given.

- Dur* = bad, difficult, e.g. durjanaā / durjayaā / duryodhanaā /
Vi = opposite, different, special, e.g. vijayati, vin<sup>1</sup>layati / vidharmaā / videḥāā /
 , = from all over, up to, a bit, e.g. īcch<sup>1</sup>dayati / īsamant<sup>1</sup>t / o<sup>1</sup>am
Ni = in, under, e.g., nipatati / niv<sup>1</sup>saā / nilayaā / nigamaā /
Adhi = over, above, e.g. advasati / adhipatiā / adhī-āā / adhi-h<sup>1</sup>nam
Api = near, only, e.g. apidadh<sup>1</sup>ti / apidh<sup>1</sup>nam / (at times the initial a is elided, as in, pidadh<sup>1</sup>ti / pidh<sup>1</sup>nam /
Ati = over, above, too much, e.g. atisājati / ativā-īā / aty<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>raā /
Su = good, fully, e.g. sucaritam / susa, skātam / subodhaā /
Ut = up, on, upwards, e.g., udgacchati / udbhavaā / uts<sup>1</sup>haā /
Abhi = towards, near, e.g. abhicacchati / abhis<sup>1</sup>raā / abhimanyuā /
Prati = opposite from, contrary to, in the opposite way, e.g., pratigacchati / Pratyuttaraā / pratikōlam /
Pari = from all sides, fully, e.g., pari pōrayati / par<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup> / parinirv<sup>1</sup>am /
Upa = near, towards, beside, e.g., up<sup>1</sup>harati / upani<sup>1</sup>ad / upakramaā / upasa, h<sup>1</sup>raā /

Sing aloud the following verses, and read aloud their explanatory sentences:

Spā<sup>1</sup>nn api gajo hanti jighrannai bhuja, gamaā /
Hasann api nāpo hanti m<sup>1</sup>nayann api durjanaā //

Gajaā (=an elephant) spā<sup>1</sup>an (= by touching) api (=only) hanti (= kills). Bhuja, gamaā (= a serpent) jighran (=by smelling) api hanti / Nāpaā = a king hasan (with a smile, smilingly) api hanti / Durjanaā (a wicked person) m<sup>1</sup>nayan (being respected, honoured) api hanti /

dh<sup>1</sup>toā, pari-purvak<sup>1</sup>t hĀ-dh<sup>1</sup>toā, anukrame<sup>a</sup> prah<sup>1</sup>raā, h<sup>1</sup>raā, sa, h<sup>1</sup>raā vih<sup>1</sup>raā pari<sup>1</sup>raā iti n<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ni sañj<sup>1</sup>yante, i.e., when the prefixes pra, <sup>1</sup>, sam, vi and pari are prefixed, respectively, to the verbal-root hĀ, the words formed are: prah<sup>1</sup>ra = a blow; h<sup>1</sup>ra = food, eatable; sa, h<sup>1</sup>ra=killing; vih<sup>1</sup>raā=moving about; pari<sup>1</sup>ra = avoidance.

The Sanskrit grammarians have listed the following 22 upasargas, viz., Pra, Par<sup>1</sup>, Apa, Sam, Anu, Ava, Nis, Nir, Dus, Dur, Vi, „, Ni, Adhi, Api, Ati, Su, Ut, Abhi, Prati, Pari, Upa / Upa = gau<sup>a</sup>-a-rupe<sup>a</sup>a, sAjjyante iti upasarg<sup>1</sup>ā /, i.e., since these prefixes are attached (arga) as subordinate (upa) elements to the words, they are called the upasarga, i.e., prefixes. By keeping in the mind their meanings, we can easily grasp, and trace, the changes in the meanings due to them in the original words. The list of the above upasargas, with their meanings is as follows:

- Pra* = excellently, in very good way, e.g. pray<sup>1</sup>ti / prahar-aā / prakĀ-<sup>1</sup>am /
- Par<sup>1</sup>* = in the reverse direction, e.g., par<sup>1</sup>gacchati / par<sup>1</sup>jayaā / par<sup>1</sup>bhavaā /
- Apa* = down, lower than, e.g., apay<sup>1</sup>ti, apak<sup>1</sup>raā / apam<sup>1</sup>naā /
- Sam* = together, in good manner, fully, e.g., sambhavati / sa, v<sup>1</sup>daā / sa, gamaā / sa, fuddhiā /
- Anu* = following, behind, together with, e.g., anugacchati / anut<sup>1</sup>paā / anukara<sup>a</sup>am / anuta-am /
- Ava* = downwards, separate from, e.g., avatarati/ ava-gacchati / avat<sup>1</sup>raā / avadh<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>am /
- Nis* = from within, without, e.g., nissarati / nist<sup>1</sup>raā / ni-k<sup>1</sup>maā /
- Nir* = out of, without, e.g. nirgacchati / nir<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā / nirañjanaā /
- Dus* = bad, difficult, e.g., dustarati / dussmarati / du-k<sup>1</sup>laā / additional i, and those roots that take it optionally are called Vet (=v<sup>1</sup>+i-), i.e., either taking it or not taking it.

Now, sing aloud the following verse,
trying to grasp its meaning:

*R<sup>1</sup>trir gami-yati bhavi-yati suprabh-tam
Bh<sup>1</sup>sv<sup>1</sup>n ude-yati hasi-yati cakrav<sup>1</sup>lam /
Ittha, vic<sup>1</sup>rayati ko<sup>1</sup>la-gate direphe
H<sup>1</sup> hanta hanta nalini, gaja ujjah<sup>1</sup>ra //*

Now, read aloud the following explanation of the above verse, trying to grasp its meaning:
R<sup>1</sup>triā (the night) gami-yati (will pass off) / Suprabh<sup>1</sup>tam = suryodayasya pōrva, su-<sup>1</sup>-hu prak<sup>1</sup>laā (the morning light), bhavi-yati / Bh<sup>1</sup>sv<sup>1</sup>n = tejasv = bh<sup>1</sup>nuā = sōryaā (=the Sun), ude-yati = udaya, gami-yati (=will rise) / Cakrav<sup>1</sup>la, (=the circle of mountains), hasi-yati prasanna, bhavi-yati (=will laugh, will be glad) / Ittha, =eva, prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>a (=in this manner) / ko<sup>1</sup>la-gate = padma-ko<sup>1</sup>le band<sup>1</sup>bhōte (=when stationed in the closedpetals of a lotus) / dvirephaā = dvau rephau yasyan<sup>1</sup>mni saā t<sup>1</sup>dĀlaā = bhramaraā = the one in whose name bhramara there are two r vowels, i.e., the honey-bee. Vic<sup>1</sup>rayati = yad<sup>1</sup> vic<sup>1</sup>ra, karoti tad<sup>1</sup>= when (it) was thinking, then. H<sup>1</sup> = Oh! / Hanta hanta = alas! alas! / Gajaā =hast<sup>1</sup> = elephant / Nalinim =n<sup>1</sup>la-kamalam = the blue lotus / Ujjah<sup>1</sup>ra = uddhĀtya aharat = udak-ipat = having uprooted took away /

Narrated in this verse is a simple tragic incident about a honey-bee that was busy drinking honey in a pericarp of a blue lotus, and forgot about the setting sun in the late evening when the petals of the lotus automatically close down. Consequently it was imprisoned in it. Then, it went on thinking in a hope that next morning with the sun arising the day will brighten up the circle of the mountains, and he will be freed. But, unfortunately, there came an elephant in the lotus pond, uprooted the lotus and took it away, thus ultimately killing the honey-bee imprisoned in it. But, herein the poet has tried to pack a very serious philosophical message about the general worldly life-style of common human beings who are busy enjoying the worldly sensual pleasures, unmindful of the ultimate fate of dying, and remaining caught up in the cycle of births and deaths as infinite variety of living beings. Remaining engrossed in worldly sensual pleasures is but nescience, and there is no hope of ever getting liberated from it, until the Ultimate Reality is realized through the realization of the Self. The poet has chosen the mode of a parody to deliver his philosophical message effectively.

If you will sing aloud repeatedly the verses given by way of illustrations in this book, and consequently memorize them permanently, you will simultaneously enjoy the melodious linguistic nature of the Sanskrit language, the profound truths and the deep knowledge ingrained in them.

Now, let us look in the verse from the point of view of some grammatical peculiarities, viz., Ujjah<sup>1</sup>ra = Ud+hÅ (3 P.), 'to uproot', Li- (= Pluperfect), 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. H<sup>1</sup> and Hanta are the indeclinables. In r<sup>1</sup>triå+gami-yati and bh<sup>1</sup>nuå ude-yati, the final å (i.e., the visarga) has been changed to r by coalescence. But in Gajaå+ujjah<sup>1</sup>ra, the å has been elided.

From the syntactic viewpoint, the usage 'ko-a-gate dvirephe vic<sup>1</sup>rayati' is an instance of Vocative Absolute (sati sapatam) in which all the nouns are put in the vocative case, and they denote the sense of yad<sup>1</sup> ... tad<sup>1</sup> (=when .., then). Vicintanyati is the Voc. Sing. of the Present Participle vicintayat formulated from the root vi+cint (10 P.).

LESSON 7 (Saptamaå P<sup>1</sup>-haå)

Now, sing again aloud, the verses in the last lesson, keeping in view their meaning.

It happens sometimes in the words that we find some letters prefixed to them, as for instance in, anu-bhava, ud-bhava, par<sup>1</sup>-bhava, vi-bhava, and etc. Such usages are found in English also, as for instance, in the words like, un-able, dis-appear, mis-print, in which the prefixed elements un, dis and mis convey the sense opposite to that of the words able, appear and print. In Sanskrit such prefixed word-elements are called upasarga. These upasargas are prefixed not only to the verbs, but also to nouns, adjectives, adverbs, verbal derivatives, nominal verbs, and etc., as for instance in pra-bh<sup>1</sup>tam, su-lobhanam, Anu-bhavati, prati-bodhayati, anu-dinam, etc. The Sanskrit grammarians firmly believe that all nouns are originally derived from verbal roots, and, therefore, the upasargas are originally prefixed to the verbal-roots, and they modify their meanings. The following verse is popular in this context:

Upasarge<sup>a</sup>a dh<sup>1</sup>tvartho bal<sup>1</sup>d anyatra nyate /
Prah<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>rasa, h<sup>1</sup>ravih<sup>1</sup>raparih<sup>1</sup>ravat //

Read aloud this verse, its following explanation, and try to grasp its meaning:

Upasarge<sup>a</sup>a = by the prefix. Dh<sup>1</sup>tvarthaå = dh<sup>1</sup>toå arthaå = the meaning of the verbal-root. Bal<sup>1</sup>t = bala-pØrvakam = forcibly. Anyatra = mØl<sup>1</sup>rth<sup>1</sup>t anye arthe = to the meaning other than the original. Nyate = pr<sup>1</sup>pyate = is taken away, is conveyed, is denoted. Prah<sup>1</sup>ra-<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ra-sa, h<sup>1</sup>ra-vih<sup>1</sup>ra-parih<sup>1</sup>ra-vat = yath<sup>1</sup> prah<sup>1</sup>raå, <sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raå, sa, h<sup>1</sup>raå vih<sup>1</sup>raå parih<sup>1</sup>raå iti labde-u = as for instance, in the words pra-h<sup>1</sup>raå, <sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup>raå, sa, -h<sup>1</sup>raå vi-h<sup>1</sup>raå pari-h<sup>1</sup>raå / The verbal root hÅ means 'to take away, to carry, to bear'. Now, pra-purvak<sup>1</sup>t hÅ-dh<sup>1</sup>toå, <sup>1</sup>-purvak<sup>1</sup>t hÅ-dh<sup>1</sup>toå, sa, -purvak<sup>1</sup>t hÅ-dh<sup>1</sup>toå, vi-purvak<sup>1</sup>t hÅ-

Let us look into them from the viewpoint of grammatical analysis:

*Bh*०(1 P.) 'to be' - a+bho+a=bhav+a+t= abhavat / Y<sup>1</sup> (2 P.) 'to go' - a+y<sup>1</sup>+ - + t = ay<sup>1</sup>t / Similarly, anu+y<sup>1</sup> 'to follow' - anu+a+y<sup>1</sup>+ - + t = anv+a+y<sup>1</sup>+t= anvay<sup>1</sup>t / Vāt (1 U.) 'to remain, to stay as' - a+vāt+a+ta =a+vart+a+ta= avartata / Cint (10 U.)'to think' - a+cint+aya+t = acintayat / Vi+sāj 'to send' - vi+a+sāj-a+t= vy+a+sāj-a+t= vyasājat / Ud+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 P.) 'to get up' - ud+a+sth<sup>1</sup>+a+t= ud+a+ti-h+a+t=Udati-hat / Similarly, Pra+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 P.) 'to set out, start' - pra+a+sth<sup>1</sup>+a+t= pra+a+ti-h+a+t=prati-hat / Prach (6 P.) 'to ask' - a+pracch+a+t= a+pācch+a+t=apācchat / Kā (8 U.) 'to do' - a+kā+u+t= a+kar+o+t=akarot /

In some of these verbal forms, there is a prefix before the root, while others do not have any prefix. And, in all of these forms, an adjunct a is added before the root or between the prefix and the root. Then the adjunct of the root-class has been added just after the root, and due changes of gu<sup>a</sup>a etc., have taken place. After that the termination of the past tense, denoting the sense of the past, has been suffixed.

This type of the Past Tense is called Laj, i.e., Hyastana (=belonging to yesterday) or Anadyatana (=not belonging to today), i.e. Imperfect.

Let us see the forms of the roots nāt and yudha
in this Imperfect, by way of specimen:

Nāt (4 P.) 'to dance'

Pu.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.	anĀtyat	anĀtyat<sup>1</sup>m	anĀtyan
3 rd . Per. danced	= (He) danced	= (They two) danced	= (they all)
Madh.	anĀtyaā	anĀtyatam	anĀtyata
2 nd . Per.	= (You) danced	= (You two) danced	= (You all) danced
Utta.	anĀtyam	anĀty<sup>1</sup>va	anĀty<sup>1</sup>ma
1 st . Per.	= (I) danced	= (We two) danced	= (we all) danced late the subjective, verbal or abstract nouns, and they denote the continuous action in the Present Tense. Similarly, the participles that denote the continuous action of the Past Tense are known as the *Bh*०*ta-kādanta*, and those denoting the action of the Future Tense are known as the Bhavi-yat-kādanta.

In the Present Participle forms, spālat, jighrat, hasat, and etc., we find the termination at suffixed in them. This is because the roots, spāl, ghr<sup>1</sup>, has, etc., underlying in them are of the parasmai-pada type, while in the Present Participle forms, adh<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>na, sevam<sup>1</sup>na, lokam<sup>1</sup>na, etc., we find the termination 1na or m<sup>1</sup>na suffixed in them. This is because the roots, adhi+, sev, luk, etc., underlying in them are of 1tmane-pada type. Since the first group of the Present Participle forms are ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta (=ending in the consonant t), their declension is found to be in accordance with that of the nouns ending in the consonant t. And, since the second group of the Present Participle forms are a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta (=ending in the vowel a), their declension is found to be in accordance with that of the nouns ending in the vowel a.

In the P<sup>1</sup>āinian system, termination at of the Present Participle is mentioned as 'ṇātā' and the termination '1na' is mentioned as 'ṇīnac', and hence in the P<sup>1</sup>āinian parlance the Present Participle is called the 'ṇātranta' (=ṇātā+anta, i.e., ending the termination ṇātā) or 'ṇīnajanta' (=ṇīnac+anta, i.e., ending the termination ṇīnac).

Now, sing aloud the following verse,
trying to grasp its meaning:

Kurv<sup>1a</sup>aā – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. kurv<sup>1a</sup>a of the root kā (8 U.), ‘to do’. ~ay<sup>1naā</sup> – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. ~ay<sup>1na</sup> of the root ~y (2 U.), ‘to sleep’. Bhuñj<sup>1naā</sup> – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. bhuñj<sup>1na</sup> of the root bhuj (bhuñj) (7 U.), to eat, to consume, to enjoy. Dad<sup>1naā</sup> – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. dad<sup>1na</sup> of the root d<sup>1</sup> (3 U.), ‘to give’. J<sup>1n<sup>1naā</sup></sup> – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. j<sup>1n<sup>1na</sup></sup> of the root jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 U.), ‘to know’. Bruv<sup>1aā</sup> – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. bruv<sup>1a</sup> of the root brØ (2 U.), ‘to speak’. Vardham<sup>1naā</sup> – Nom. Sing. of the Pre. Part. vardham<sup>1na</sup> of the root vAdh (7 U.), ‘to grow’. Bahu-vi-ay<sup>1n</sup> = bahavaā vi-ay<sup>1ā</sup>, t<sup>1n</sup>; this is a compound word formed by the combination of the two words bahu (adj.) and vi-aya.

In the above verses and their explanations, we find the forms of the Nominative Singular of the Present Participle (vartam<sup>1na</sup>-kādanta) spAñyat, jighrat, hasat, m<sup>1</sup>nayat, pa-hat, jayat, j<sup>1</sup>grat, pañyat, añnat, gacchat, svapat, ñvasat, pralapat, visñjat, gĀh<sup>2</sup>at, unmi-at, nimi-at, dh<sup>1</sup>rayat, etc., and adh<sup>2</sup>y<sup>1na</sup>, sevam<sup>1na</sup>, lokam<sup>1na</sup>, kurv<sup>1a</sup>, ñay<sup>1na</sup>, bhñj<sup>1na</sup>, dad<sup>1na</sup>, j<sup>1n<sup>1na</sup></sup>, bruv<sup>1a</sup>, vardham<sup>1na</sup>, etc., of the respective concerned Sanskrit verbal roots, shown above. Among them, the roots of the first group of them are of the parasmai-pada type, while those of the second one are of the 1tmane-pada type. Although these words are used to denote the sense of continuous action, they are not verbs. They are but the adjectives of some nouns or pronouns or adverbial nouns. In such a situation, we sometimes utilize such constructions as, ‘while touching’, ‘while smelling’, ‘while laughing’, and etc. This facility is available in Sanskrit, too. In order to express the sense of a complete action, we can use the verbal forms, and to express the sense of a continuous action, we can use the Present Participles of the concerned verbal roots. Such present participles are also known as the Verbal Derivative Adjective (dh<sup>1</sup>tu-s<sup>1</sup>dhita-viññe-a<sup>2</sup>a).

Gu<sup>2a</sup>-vi-aye prañna, kuru, kintu rØpa-vi-aye prañna, m<sup>1</sup> kuru / ~la-vi-ye ... / Siddhi-vi-aye ..../ Bhoga-vi-aye ..../

*A-vinayam apanaya vi-<sup>2</sup>o damaya manaā
ñamaya vi-aya-mĀga-tĀ-<sup>2</sup>am / Bhōta-day<sup>1</sup>, vist<sup>1</sup>raya
t<sup>1</sup>raya sa, s<sup>1</sup>ra-s<sup>1</sup>garataā //
He! Vi-<sup>2</sup>o! mama a-vinayam apanaya / He! Vi-<sup>2</sup>o! me
manaā damaya/ He! Vi-<sup>2</sup>o! ... /*

*TĀ-<sup>2</sup>1, chindhi bhaja k-<sup>2</sup>am<sup>1</sup>, jahī mada, p<sup>1</sup>pe rati, m<sup>1</sup> kĀth<sup>1ā</sup> Satya, bĀhy anuy<sup>1hi</sup> s<sup>1</sup>dhu-padav», sevasva vidvaj-jan<sup>1n</sup> /
M<sup>1</sup>ny<sup>1n</sup> m<sup>1</sup>naya vidvi-<sup>2</sup>o 'pyanunaya
hy<sup>1</sup>cch<sup>1</sup>daya sv<sup>1</sup>n gu<sup>2</sup>1n korti, p<sup>1</sup>laya duākhite kuru daya, etat sat<sup>1</sup>, lak-<sup>2</sup>am //*

Herein, there are the following instances of coalescence: bĀhi+ anuy<sup>1hi</sup> / Vidvi-aā+api / Hi+<sup>1</sup>cch<sup>1</sup>daya / Day<sup>1m+etat</sup> /

The grammatical verbal forms used in the above verses are of Lo-, i.e., the Imperative Mood. Tyaja = Lo-. Madh. Pu., i.e., Imp. 2nd Per. Sing., of the root chid (7 U., chinatti/chinte), ‘to cut asunder. Bhaja = Lo-. Madh. Pu., i.e., Imp. 2nd Per. Sing., of the root bhaj (1 U., bhajati/bhajate), ‘to act, to adopt’. Kuru = Lo-. Madh. Pu., i.e., Imp. 2nd Per. Sing., of the root kā (8 U., karoti/kurute), ‘to do’. Smara = Lo-. Madh. Pu., i.e., Imp. 2nd Per. Sing., of the root smĀ (1 P., smarati), ‘to remember, to think upon, to long for. PĀcchasva = Lo-. Madh. Pu., i.e., Imp. 2nd Per. Sing., of the root prach (6 P., pĀchhati), ‘to ask, to seek for’. Similarly, apanaya (apa+n<sup>1</sup> 1 U., apanayati/apanayate, ‘to lead away,, rob, steal, take or drag away, remove), damaya (dam 4 P., d<sup>1</sup>myati, ‘to tame, control), ñamaya (4 P., ñ<sup>1</sup>myati, to calm down, put an end to, stop), vist<sup>1</sup>raya, (vi+stĀ 5 U., vistĀ<sup>2</sup>oti/vistĀ<sup>2</sup>ute, ‘to expand, extend, spread abroad, diffuse, t<sup>1</sup>raya (st<sup>1</sup> 5 U. stĀ<sup>2</sup>oti/stĀ<sup>2</sup>ute, ‘to strew, scatter), jahī (3 P. jah<sup>1ti</sup>, ‘to abandon, resign, let fall, omit), brØhi (brØ 2 U., tain’) are the Lo-. Madh. Pu., i.e., Imp. 2nd Per. Sing. forms of the pra-vi-calanti / pra = prakar-e<sup>a</sup>a, vi = viruddha, yath<sup>1</sup>sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup>, calanti = calana, kurvanti = <sup>1</sup>cara<sup>a</sup>a, kurvanti / Arth<sup>1</sup>, tatha na kurvanti / Ida, t<sup>1</sup>tparya, (= essence) / Dhairyavantaā jan<sup>1</sup>ā nind<sup>1</sup>, v<sup>1</sup>, stuti, v<sup>1</sup>, lak-m»-pr<sup>1</sup>pti, v<sup>1</sup>, lak-m»-h<sup>1</sup>ni, v<sup>1</sup>, mara<sup>a</sup>asya nika-at<sup>1</sup>, v<sup>1</sup>, mara<sup>a</sup>asya dōrat<sup>1</sup>, v<sup>1</sup>, dĀ-v<sup>1</sup> (= having seen, in view of), ny<sup>1</sup>ya-yukt<sup>1</sup>t m<sup>1</sup>rg<sup>1</sup>t calit<sup>1</sup>ā naiva bhavanti (= do not at all swerve from). Yataā (=because), te<sup>1</sup>, ny<sup>1</sup>ya-ni<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup> ninda-stuti-nirapek<sup>1</sup>, lak-m»-pr<sup>1</sup>pty-apr<sup>1</sup>pti-nirapek<sup>1</sup>, mara<sup>a</sup>a-sam<sup>1</sup>pat<sup>1</sup>-dōrat<sup>1</sup>-nirapek<sup>1</sup>, bhavati /

This verse reveals the nature of the persons steadfast in their justice-based way of life, which is not affected by the fear of the loss of fame, wealth, or even life itself.

Now, sing aloud the following verse,
and read aloud its explanation:

*Tyaja durjana-sa, sarga, bhaja s<sup>1</sup>dhu-sam<sup>1</sup>gamam /
Kuru pu<sup>a</sup>yam ao-r<sup>1</sup>tra, smara nityam a-nityat<sup>1</sup>m //*

Idam (=this is) asya ¶ lokasya vivara<sup>a</sup>am (=elaboration, explanation). Durjanena saha, sa, sargaā sa, parkaaā, iti durjana-sa, sargaā, ta, tyaja, tasya ty<sup>1</sup>ga, kuru / S<sup>1</sup>dhun<sup>1</sup> sajanena saha, sam<sup>1</sup>gamaā samyak melana, , iti s<sup>1</sup>dhu-sa<sup>1</sup>gamaā, ta, bhaja kuru / Ahor<sup>1</sup>tra, divase r<sup>1</sup>trau ca, pu<sup>a</sup>ya, paropak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>rtha, karma, kuru sam<sup>1</sup>cara / Nitya, pratidinm, anityat<sup>1</sup>, svasya dehasya <sup>1</sup>yu-yasya, dhanasya b<sup>1</sup>ndhav<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, , sukhasya, iti etat-sarvasya asth<sup>1</sup>yitva, na¶varat<sup>1</sup>, v<sup>1</sup>, smara smara<sup>a</sup>a, kuru //

Now sing aloud the following verses,
formulate new sentences as shown below on the basis of this verse, write them in your notebook,
and read them aloud:

*Gu<sup>a</sup>a, pĀcchasva m<sup>1</sup> rØpa, ¶la, pĀcchasva m<sup>1</sup> kulam /
Siddhi, pĀcchasva m<sup>1</sup> vidy<sup>1</sup>,
bhoga, pĀcchasva m<sup>1</sup> dhanam //*

KĀdanta is a nominal word (pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika) in which a kĀt termination (pratyaya) has been suffixed to a Sanskrit verbal root, thus kĀt + anta = kĀd+anta / kĀt ante yasya tat ¶abda-rØpa, kĀdantam / The kĀt terminations are suffixed to formulate the subjective, verbal or abstract nouns, and they denote the continuous action in the Present Tense. Similarly, the participles that denote the continuous action of the Past Tense are known as the BhØta-kĀdanta, and those denoting the action of the Future Tense are known as the Bhavi-yat-kĀdanta.

In the Present Participle forms, sp¶lat, jighrat, hasat, and etc., we find the termination at suffixed in them. This is because the roots, sp¶l, ghr<sup>1</sup>, has, etc., underlying in them are of the parasmai-pada type, while in the Present Participle forms, adh<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>na, sevam<sup>1</sup>na, lokam<sup>1</sup>na, etc., we find the termination 1na or m<sup>1</sup>na suffixed in them. This is because the roots, adhi+, sev, luk, etc., underlying in them are of 1tmane-pada type. Since the first group of the Present Participle forms are ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta (=ending in the consonant t), their declension is found to be in accordance with that of the nouns ending in the consonant t. And, since the second group of the Present Participle forms are a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta (=ending in the vowel a), their declension is found to be in accordance with that of the nouns ending in the vowel a.

In the P<sup>1</sup>aianian system, termination at of the Present Participle is mentioned as '¶atA' and the termination '1na' is mentioned as '¶1nac', and hence in the P<sup>1</sup>aianian parlance the Present Participle is called the '¶atrantā' (=¶atA+anta, i.e., ending the termination ¶atA) or '¶1najanta' (=¶1nac+anta, i.e., ending the termination ¶1nac).

Now, in the case of the roots belonging to the parasmai-pada type the termination ¶atA is suffixed to the aj ga• of the root. For instance, spā̄+at= spā̄at, ghr<sup>1</sup>+at = jighra+at = jighrat, man+at=m<sup>1</sup>n+ay+at = m<sup>1</sup>nayat. And, in the case of the roots belonging to the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada type, the termination ¶<sup>1</sup>nac is suffixed to the aj ga. In the case of the roots belonging to the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada type, the termination ¶<sup>1</sup>nac is suffixed to the aj ga. In the case of the roots belonging to the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada type that have the hal-anta aj ga, i.e., ending in a consonant, the termination ¹na is suffixed to them. For instance, adhi->+¹na= adhi->y+¹na=adh>y+¹na=adh>y¹na. But, in the case of the roots belonging to the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada type that have the ad-anta-aj ga, i.e., ending in the vowel a, an additional muk adjunct (muk-¹gama= mug<sup>1</sup>gama, i.e., m) is prefixed to the termination ¹na, thus making it m+¹na=m¹na). For instance, sev+m¹na= sev-a+m¹na sevam¹na. Thus, in the Pre. Parti. Forms, like adh>y¹na, kurv¹a, ¶lay¹na, etc., the termination is ¹na, while in those, like sevam¹na, lokam¹na, etc., the termination is m¹na.

---

• The term Aj ga denotes the intermediate condition of the verbal root after the addition of the sign of the root-class (ga<sup>a</sup>a-pratyaya), but prior to the suffixing of the termination of a tense or a mood, for instance, bhØ+a=bho+a=bhava.

The sentences in which such Present Participles are used, the construction is kartari, i.e. direct, with predomination of the subject, and the verb expressing the basic action construes with the subject in points of person and number in such cases, as for instance in, Amit<sup>1</sup>, kāti, kurv<sup>1a</sup>a naraā utkar-a, labhate /

From the analytical viewpoint, some changes occur in the verbal root due to the addition of the adjuncts, before the terminations of the tenses and moods are suffixed to them. Thus, the root gam becomes gacch, the root bhØ becomes bho ( $\emptyset > o$ ), and ¶ becomes ¶e ( $\gg e$ ), due to the gu<sup>2</sup>ade¶a before the addition of the adjunct a. The resulting form of the root after the modifications due to the changes before, and after, the addition of the adjunct is technically called Aj ga. Thus, gaccha-, bhava-, adh>ya-, kurva-, seva, etc., are technically in the aj ga stage of the word formation. During this stage the grammatical changes due to the rules of the concerned coalescence, such a lopa, purva-savar<sup>2</sup>a, para-savar<sup>2</sup>a, etc., take place. And, then,

Ma.	kampasva	kampeth<sup>1</sup>m	kampadhvam
2 nd	= let thou / may (you) quiver / tremble	=let/ may you (two) quiver / tremble	=let/ may you (all) quiver / tremble
U.	kampai	kamp<sup>1</sup>vahai	kamp<sup>1</sup>mahai
1 st	= let me/ may (I) quiver / tremble	=let us / may we (two) quiver / tremble	=let us/ may we (all) quiver / tremble

The root dhÅ (1 U.) dharati/dharate (=to hold) can be conjugated in the parasmai-pada by suffixing the terminations tu, t<sup>1</sup>m, antu (in 3rd.Per.), -, tam, ta (in 2nd. Per.), and ¹ni, ¹va, ¹ma (in 1st. Per.), respectively, to its base dhara-. It can be conjugated in the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada by suffixing the terminations t<sup>1</sup>m, it<sup>1</sup>m, ant<sup>1</sup>m (in 3rd. Per.), sva, ith<sup>1</sup>m, dhvam (in 2nd. Per.), and ai, ¹vahai, ¹mahai (in 1st. Per.), respectively. Now, imagine these forms accordingly and recite them aloud, like dharatu, dharat<sup>1</sup>m dharantu, etc.

Now, recite aloud the following verse, and read aloud its explanation trying to grasp the sense:

Nindantu n<sup>2</sup>ti-nipu<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup> yadi v<sup>1</sup> stuvantu Lak-m<sup>2</sup>å sam<sup>1</sup>vi¶latu gacchatu v<sup>1</sup> yathē-<sup>2</sup>am /
Adyaiva v<sup>1</sup> mara<sup>a<sup>2</sup> am astu Yug<sup>1</sup>ntare v<sup>1</sup>
Ny<sup>1</sup>yy<sup>1</sup>t pathaå pravicalanti pada, na dh<sup>2</sup>r<sup>1</sup>å //
Asya ¶lokasya ayam arthaå / N<sup>2</sup>ti-nipu<sup>a<sup>1</sup> å = loka-
vyawah<sup>1</sup>re ku¶al<sup>1</sup>å jan<sup>1</sup>å / Nindantu = nind<sup>1</sup>, kurvantu / Yadi
v<sup>1</sup> = atha v<sup>1</sup> (=or else) / Tebhyaå = N<sup>2</sup>ti-nipu<sup>a<sup>2</sup> ebhyaå, yadi rocate = ¹nanda-d<sup>1</sup>yaka, pratibh<sup>1</sup>ti, tad<sup>1</sup> stuvantu = stuti, kurvantu / Athav<sup>1</sup>, lak-m<sup>2</sup>å = ram<sup>1</sup> = samÅddhiå = ai¶varya, tasyai yathē-<sup>2</sup>a, = yena prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup> icchitam bhavati tath<sup>1</sup>,
sam<sup>1</sup>vi¶latu / sa, = samyak = su-<sup>2</sup>hu-prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>, ¹vi¶latu=
pravi¶latu / Arth<sup>1</sup>t (=that means), samÅddhiå yadi tasyai rocate
tad<sup>1</sup> mama gÅhe prave¶a, karotu / V<sup>1</sup> = athav<sup>1</sup> (= or), yadi
tasyai na rocate tad<sup>1</sup> mama gÅh<sup>1</sup>t bahiå gacchatu (= may get out). Mama, mara<sup>a<sup>2</sup>, = pr<sup>1<sup>a</sup>-ty<sup>1</sup>gaå</sup></sup> (=death), adya eva = asmin eva divase (= today itself, even today), bhavatu (=may occur, take place), athav<sup>1</sup>, Yug<sup>1</sup>ntare = dvit<sup>2</sup>ye kasmin cit trying
aparasmin yuge (= in another age cycle), bhavatu / Eva, vic<sup>1</sup>ra,
kurvantaå, dh<sup>2</sup>r<sup>1</sup>å, = dhairyavantaå puru-<sup>1</sup>å, ny<sup>1</sup>yy<sup>1</sup>t = ny<sup>1</sup>ya-
yukt<sup>1</sup>t, pathaå = m<sup>1</sup>rg<sup>1</sup>t, pada, = ekam api pad<sup>1</sup>rpa<sup>a<sup>2</sup>, , na,</sup></sup></sup></sup>

Gurjaratra = belonging to Gujarat. Apara= another, different one. Kutaā = from where? Bhāgukaccha= Broach (name of a city in South Gujarat). Kayoā = from which. Niv̄sa= residence. Sōrata= Surat (name of a city in South Gujarat). Va-odara = Va-odar<sup>1</sup> or Baroda (name of a city in South Gujarat). Nanu= surely, no doubt, pray, please, but then, well. Deva=god. Yak-a=spirit. Gandharva = heavenly singer. R̄k-a= demon. Br̄hma= brahmin. K-atriya= belonging to the warrior class. Vaijya= belonging to the merchant class. Ødra= belonging to the servant class. B̄la= boy. Yuvan = young man. Vāddha = old man. Deha= body. Manas = mind, Indriya= sense organ. Pram̄rthataā= in reality, ultimately. Ak-a=imperishable. Brahman = universal soul. Uktam = (it) has been said. Bhagavat = God, respectable. J̄va= soul, a living being.

In English, we have the usages like 'come', 'go', 'stand up', 'sit down', 'attention', 'stand at ease', 'double up', 'stop', 'bless you', etc., to express the feelings like order, command, expectation, desire or blessing, or even anger and curse. In Sanskrit, the roots in the verbal forms of the Lo-, i.e., Imperative Mood, are used to express such feelings. Let us see the forms of the root BhØ (1.P) and Kamp (1.), by way of specimen:

BhØ (1.P)= to be/ become

	Per.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.		bhavatu	bhavat<sup>1m</sup>	bhavantu
3 rd .	= let/ may (it) be/ become	=let/ may they (two) be/ become	=let/ may they (all) be/ become
Ma.		bhava	bhavatam	bhavata
2 nd .	= let thou / may (you) be/ become	=let/ may you (two) be/ become	=let/ may you (all) be/ become
U.		bhav<sup>1ni</sup>	bhav<sup>1va</sup>	bhav<sup>1ma</sup>
1 st .	= let me/ may (I) be/ become	=let us / may we (two) be/ become	=let us/ may we (all) be/ become

Kamp (1.)= to quiver. tremble

	Per.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.		kampat<sup>1m</sup>	kampet<sup>1m</sup>	kampant<sup>1m</sup>
3 rd .	= let/ may (it) quiver / tremble	=let/ may they (two) quiver / tremble	=let/ may they (all) quiver / tremble

if the desired Present Participle is masculine, the applicable termination of concerned declension are suffixed to the resulting basic form of the participle. And if the desired Present Participle is feminine, the additional adjunct ' or » of the feminine gender is added to it, before suffixing the terminations of the cases and numbers, as for instance, kurv<sup>1a</sup>a + 1 = kurv<sup>1a</sup>1, bhavat+» = bhavat.

Now, read aloud the following verse, understand its meaning and the special syntactical usages in it:

Gacchan pip̄liko y<sup>1</sup>ti yojan<sup>1n</sup>1, ¶at<sup>1ny</sup> api /

A-gacchan vainateyo pi padam eka, na gacchati //

Pip̄lika = an ant This word is masculine in Sanskrit, while it may be feminine or even neuter in English. ¶atam = hundred. Yojan<sup>1n</sup>1, ¶atam = (up to) a hundred yojanas (i.e., about four or five hundred miles); this an idiomatic construction. Vainateya = an eagle, lit. the son of Vinat<sup>1</sup>, a female eagle. This verse reveals one of the laws of success in life, and here, the moving ant represents an endeavoring active person, and the unmoving eagle represents an inactive idle one.

In Sanskrit conversation, it is customary to address a person respectfully by using the Sanskrit pronoun Bhavat, and the verb used with it is customarily put in the Pra. Pur. (i.e. 3rd Per.). For instance, Bhav<sup>1n</sup> (= your good self) gacchanti (=is going). Bhavantaā (=your good selves) sam<sup>1</sup>gacchanti (=are coming together) adya (=today). y<sup>1ntam</sup> (=to the visitor) vadati (=they tell) gacchantu (= please come), upavिन्तु (= please take your seat), sv<sup>1</sup>gatam (=welcome) iti (=thus, that)/ Now, sing aloud all the Sanskrit verses given in this lesson, keeping in mind their meanings.

In this lesson we have seen the usage of the ta-k<sup>1t<sup>1</sup>na</sup> words, i.e., those ending in t, such as, gacchat, bhavat, kurvat, and etc. Their declension is mostly similar to that of the other ta-k<sup>1r<sup>1nta</sup></sup> Sanskrit nouns, except in a few cases of particular words of that type. This dissimilarity should be carefully noted, as in the following two words:

Mahat (m.) = big, great

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.	mah<sup>1</sup>n	mah<sup>1</sup>ntau	mah<sup>1</sup>ntaaः
Nom.	a great one	(two) great ones	(all) great ones
Sa, .	mahan	mah<sup>1</sup>ntau	mah<sup>1</sup>ntaaः
Voc.	O great one!	O (two) great ones!	O (all) great ones!
Dvi.
Acc.	mah<sup>1</sup>ntam	mah<sup>1</sup>ntau	mahaataः
TÅ.	towards	towards	towards
Instr.	a great one	(two) great ones	(all) great ones
Catu.	mahat<sup>1</sup>	mahaadby<sup>1</sup>m	mahaadbhiः
Dat.	by a great one	by (two) great ones	by (all) great ones
Pañ.	mahate	mahaadby<sup>1</sup>m	mahaadbhyaaः
Abl.	to a great one	to (two) great ones	to (all) great ones
a-	mahaataः	mahaadby<sup>1</sup>m	mahaadbhyaaः
Gen.	from a great one	from (two) great ones	from (all) great ones
Sap.	mahaataः	mahaatoः	mahat<sup>1</sup>m
Loc.	of a great one	of (two) great ones	of (all) great ones
	mahati	mahaatoः	mahatsu in/about	in/about	in/about a great one	(two) great ones	(all) great one

Bhavat (m. Adj. Pro.) = your good self

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.	bhav<sup>1</sup>n	bhavantau	bhavantaः
Nom.	your good self	your good selves (two)	your good selves (all)
Sa, .	bhavant	bhavantau	bhavantaः
Voc.	O your good self	O your good selves (two)	O your good selves (all)
Dvi.
Acc.	bhavantam	bhavantau	bhavataः
TÅ.	to/towards	to/towards	to/towards
Instr.	your good self	your good selves (two)	your good selves (all)
Catu.	bhavat<sup>1</sup>	bhavadbh<sup>1</sup>m	bhavadbhiaः
Dat.	by your good selves	by your good selves (two)	your good selves (all)
Pañ.	bhavate	bhavadbh<sup>1</sup>m	bhavadbhyaः
Abl.	to your good self	to your good selves (two)	to your good selves (all)
a-	bhavataः	bhavadbh<sup>1</sup>m	bhavadbhyaः
Gen.	from your good self	from your good selves (two)	your good selves (all)
	bhavataः	bhavatoः	bhavat<sup>1</sup>m
	. of your good self	of your good selves (two)	of your good selves (all)

Like the sense of the verb forms of the English root 'to be' in the Present Tense, the same sense is expressed in Sanskrit through the verbal roots bhØ (1 P.), våt (1 S.) and as (2 P.). It should be noted that from among these, the initial a- of the verb-forms of the root as, is sometimes elided in the Present Tense, as shown below:

As (2 O) = bhØ (1 P.) 'to be, become'

Person	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.:	asti	staः	santi
3 rd .	= bhavati = vartate = (He) is/exists/	= bhavataः = vartete = (They two) are/ exist/	bhavanti = vartante = (They all) are/ exist/
	become	become	become
Madh.	asi	sthaः	stha
2 nd .	= bhavasi = vartase = (you) are/exist/	= bhavathaः = vartethe = (You two) are/ exist/	bhavatha = varthadhve = (You all) are/ exist/
	become	become	become
Utt.	asmi	svaः	smaः
1 st .	= bhav<sup>1</sup>mi = varte = (I) am/exist/	= bhav<sup>1</sup>vaः = vart<sup>1</sup>vahe = (We two) are/ exist/	bhav<sup>1</sup>mi = vart<sup>1</sup>mahe = (We all) are/ exist/
	become	become	become

Now, read aloud the following sentences
understanding their meaning:

Ko'ham asmi / Aha, manu-yo 'smi / Ki, n<sup>1</sup>ma tava ?
Daññaratha iti mama n<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>sti / Kutrattyo 'si ? Gurjaratro 'smi /
Ayam aparaां ko 'sti ? Sa na-avaraां / Kuta 1gacchatha yuv<sup>1</sup>m ?
BhAgukacchata 1gacch<sup>1</sup>va 1v<sup>1</sup>m / Kayor nagarayor yuvayor
vartam<sup>1</sup>na-k<sup>1</sup>le niv<sup>1</sup>sau staः ? , vayoः s<sup>0</sup>rata-va-odarayor g<sup>1</sup>hau staः / Nanu param<sup>1</sup>rthataः ko 'si ? Param<sup>1</sup>rthatas tu n<sup>1</sup>ha, manu-yo, na ca devo, n<sup>1</sup>pi yak<sup>1</sup>-o, gandharvo, naiva r<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>-aso, na
br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>2</sup>o, n<sup>1</sup>pi k<sup>1</sup>-atriyo, no vaif<sup>1</sup>yo, na ca ऽdro, na b<sup>1</sup>lo, na
yuv<sup>1</sup>, n<sup>1</sup>pi ऽddho, no deho, na mano, nendriy<sup>1</sup>i / Tad adhun<sup>1</sup>
kathaya ko 'si param<sup>1</sup>rthataः / Param<sup>1</sup>rthatas tu so 'ham /
Nanu sa iti kim ? ऽ<sup>2</sup>u / Sa ity para, brahma, param<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup> /
Aham iti c<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>-ara, brahma, औuddha 1tmeti t<sup>1</sup>vat / Aha, brahm<sup>1</sup>
'smi // Tad ukta, bhagavat<sup>1</sup> ला; kar<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>rye<sup>2</sup>a yat - j्वो bramaiva, n<sup>1</sup>paraां /

Kaः = who? Aham = I. Manu-ya = a human being. Kim = what? N<sup>1</sup>ma= name. Kutraty<sup>1</sup>a = belonging to which place?

= vidyay<sup>1</sup> yuktaå = endowed with learning, having knowledge.
Bhaya; karaå = bhåtik<sup>1</sup>rakaå = dangerous, frightening. Paranind<sup>1</sup>yai = Parasya = itarasya, nind<sup>1</sup>yai = nind<sup>1</sup>rtham = for censuring, slandering. P<sup>o</sup><sup>2</sup>yai p<sup>o</sup><sup>2</sup>rtham = for tormenting.
Sajjanasya = sat-puru-asya = of gentalman, good person. Sev<sup>1</sup>yai = sev<sup>1</sup>rtham = for serving.

Now let us see the declension of the word Ram<sup>1</sup>
 to learn systematically the various case forms of the 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ta feminine nouns:

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.	ram<sup>1</sup>	rame	ram<sup>1</sup>å
Nom.	= the Goddess of wealth	= (two) Goddesses of wealth	= (many) Goddesses of wealth
Sa, .	rame	rame	ram<sup>1</sup>å
Voc. =	O the Goddess of wealth !	= O (two) Goddesses of wealth !	= O (many) Goddesses of wealth !
Dvi.	ram<sup>1</sup>m	rame	ram<sup>1</sup>å
Acc.	=to/towards the Goddess of wealth	=to/towards (two) Goddesses of wealth	=to/towards (many) Goddesses of wealth
TÅ.	ramay<sup>1</sup>	ram<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	ram<sup>1</sup>bhiå
Instr.	=by the Goddess of wealth	=by (two) Goddesses of wealth	=by (many) Goddesses of wealth
Catu.	ram<sup>1</sup>yai	ram<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	ram<sup>1</sup>bhyaå
Dat.	=to the Goddess of wealth	=to (two) Goddesses of wealth	=to (many) Goddesses of wealth
Pañ.	ram<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>å	ram<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m	ram<sup>1</sup> bhyaa
Abl.	=from the Goddess of wealth	=from (two) Goddesses of wealth	=from (many) Goddesses of wealth
a-	ram<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>å	ramayoå	ram<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m
Gen.	=of the Goddess of wealth	=of (two) Goddesses of wealth	=of (many) Goddesses of wealth
Sap.	ram<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>m	ramayoå	ram<sup>1</sup>su
Loc.	=in/about the Goddess of wealth	=in/about (two) Goddesses of wealth	=in/about (many) Goddesses of wealth

Now, recite aloud one by one the forms of the other nouns 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns like bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup>, vidya, kriy<sup>1</sup>, nind<sup>1</sup>, p<sup>o</sup><sup>2</sup><sup>1</sup>, sev<sup>1</sup>, etc., that are declined in the same manner as those of the above forms of ram<sup>1</sup>.

Sap.           bhavati           bhavatoå           bhavatsu
 Loc.           in your good self   in your good selves (two)   in your good selves (all)

On comparing these forms, we should note that while in the singular, dual and plural of the Nominative, the dual and plural of the Vocative, and the singular and dual of the Accusative cases, the forms of the word mahat take the d<sup>o</sup>rdh<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la, i.e., the lengthening of the final vowel, and addition of the nu<sup>2</sup>yama, i.e., the adjunct n, after it, making it mah<sup>1</sup>n. This does not happen in the forms of the word bhavat in similar cases and numbers, except in the case of the Nominative singular; but the elision of its termination s is common to both. In all other cases and numbers, the forms of both these words are declined similarly.

LESSON 8

(A-amaā P1-haā)

Now, read aloud the following sentences, trying to understand their meaning:

*Bhav1n gacchati / Bhavantau 1gacchataā / Bhavantaā Māvanti / Bhavanta, jan1ā pācchanti / Bhavadbhiā b1ndhav1ā tu-yanti / Bhavati sajan1ā snihyanti / Bhavat<sup>1</sup>, yaʃlaā jagati
prasarati /*

Now, read aloud the following sentences:

Bhav1n gami-yati (=will go) / Bhavantau 1gami-yataā (=will come) / Bhavantaā ʃro-yanti (=will hear) / Bhavanta, jan1ā prak-yanti (= will ask) / Bhavadbhiā b1ndhav1ā tarpi-yanti (=will become satisfied) / Bhavat<sup>1</sup>, yaʃlaā jagati prasari-yati (=will spread) / Bhavati sajan1ā snihi-yanti (=will love, will feel affectionate) / The forms of Second Future (LĀ)- have been used in the above sentences.

Keeping this in view, read aloud over again these sentences in the above paragraph.

Just as a Present Participle is formed by suffixing the adjunct at, 1na or m1na to the base (aj ga) of a Sanskrit verbal-root in the 3rd Per. Sing. form in the Present Tense, similarly, a Future Participle is formed by suffixing the same adjuncts to the base (aj ga) of a Sanskrit verbal-root in the 3rd Per. Sing. form in the Second Future Tense. As for instance:

Gam (1 P.) gami-yati (base gami-ya-); Fut. Par. gami-yat (m.) =
(He) will be going; gami-yant (f.) = (She) will be going;
gami-yat (n.) = (It) will be going.

Bhø (1 P.) bhavi-yati (base bhavi-ya-); Fut. Par. bhavi-yat (m.) =
(He) will be becoming; bhavi-yant (f.) = (She) will be becoming; bhavi-yat (n.) = (It) will be becoming.

+y<sup>1</sup> (2 P.) 1y<sup>1</sup>sya (base 1y<sup>1</sup>sya-); Fut. Par. 1y<sup>1</sup>syat (m.) =
(He) will be coming; 1y<sup>1</sup>sant (f.) = (She) will be coming;
1y<sup>1</sup>syat (n.) = (It) will be coming.

Prati+k- (1 . .) pratik-i-yate (base pratik-i-ya-); Fut. Par. pratik-i-yam<sup>1a</sup>a (m.) = (He) will be waiting; pratik-i-yam<sup>1a</sup>1 ( f.) = (She) will be waiting; pratik-i-yam<sup>1a</sup>a (n.) = (It) will be waiting.

The various case forms of the Future Participles which are ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, i.e., ending in t, are declined in the same manner as those of the word bhavat, and of those which are a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, i.e., ending in a, are declined in the same manner as those of the word r<sup>1</sup>ma.

Generally, the nouns that are 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, i.e., ending in -1, for instance, niʃ1, m1l1, ram1, ʃ1l1, are of feminine gender, with a few exceptions, like d<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup> (m.) = wife. Such feminine nouns like niʃ1 are declined differently, and the difference should be carefully noted.

Now, read aloud the following sentences:

*Bh<sup>1</sup>rate vividh<sup>1</sup>ni r<sup>1</sup>jy<sup>1a</sup>i santi / R<sup>1</sup>jye r<sup>1</sup>jye jan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>,
m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup> bhinn<sup>1</sup> asti / Sa, kÅta-bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup> sakal<sup>1</sup>su bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup>su
atitar<sup>1</sup>, pr<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup> / Aha, gØrjara-bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup>, vad<sup>1</sup>mi / Tvam 1j gla-
bh<sup>1</sup>-ay<sup>1</sup> vyavaharasi / GØrjara-bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup> mama m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup> /
Sa, kÅta-bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup> mama m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>å m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>mah» / Tasy<sup>1</sup>,
likhit<sup>1</sup>å granth<sup>1</sup>å asa, khy<sup>1</sup>å / S<sup>1</sup> sakal<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, vidy<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, nidh<sup>1</sup>nam / Vidy<sup>1</sup> n<sup>1</sup>ma narasya gupta, dhanam / Vidyay<sup>1</sup> vin<sup>1</sup>
jvita, vyartham / Kriyay<sup>1</sup> vin<sup>1</sup> jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nirarthakam / Vidy<sup>1</sup>- sahitaå api durjanaå bhaya; karaå / Durjanasya jvita, paranind<sup>1</sup>yai paraip»<sup>1</sup>yai ca bhavati / Sajjanasya jvana, para-
sev<sup>1</sup>yai vartate /*

Note the new words and usages in the above sentences:

Bh<sup>1</sup>rate = in India. Vividh<sup>1</sup>ni = various. R<sup>1</sup>jy<sup>1</sup>ni = States. R<sup>1</sup>jye r<sup>1</sup>jye = in every State. Jan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = of the people. M<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup> = mother tongue. Bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup>su = among the languages. Atitar<sup>1</sup>m = very much. Pr<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup> = old, ancient. GØrjara-bh<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup> = Gujarati language. Likhit<sup>1</sup>å = written, composed. Granth<sup>1</sup>å = books, works. Asa; khy<sup>1</sup>å = uncountable, numerous. Vidy<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = of the sciences, among the sciences. Nidh<sup>1</sup>nam = treasure. Guptam = Secret, hidden. Kriyay<sup>1</sup> vin<sup>1</sup> = without action. Nirarthakam = = vyartham = useless. Durjanaå = wicked person. Vidy<sup>1</sup>-sahitaå

(Active Voice:) Saā (=He)  $\text{ʃ}^1\text{str}^1\text{a}\text{i}$  (=scriptures) apa-hat (=studied).
 (Passive Voice:) Tena (=By him)  $\text{ʃ}^1\text{str}^1\text{a}\text{i}$  (=scriptures) apa-hyanta (=were studied). (Past Active Participle:) Saā (=He is)  $\text{ʃ}^1\text{str}^1\text{a}\text{i}$ (scriptures) pa-hitav<sup>1</sup>n (=the one who has studied). A.V.:) Saā granth<sup>1</sup>n (=books) alikhat (=wrote, composed). (P.V.:) Tena (=By him)
 granth<sup>1</sup>ā (=books) alikhyaanta (=were written). Saā (=He is) granth<sup>1</sup>n (=books) likhitav<sup>1</sup>n (=the one who has written). Similarly, Saā vāttam
 arak-at / Tena vātta, rak-itam / Saā vātta, rak-itav<sup>1</sup>n /

Here we clearly find that in the Active Voice of a Sanskrit sentence the verb denoting the Past Tense agrees with the subject in Person and Number. Similarly, the Past Active Participle, too, agrees with the subject in Person and Number. And, as in the Passive Voice, the verb denoting the Past Tense agrees with the object in Person and Number. Similarly, the Past Active Participle, too, agrees with the object in Person and Number.

Now, let us analyze these Past Passive Participle forms:

Bhuktav<sup>1</sup>n = bhuj+tavat+s = bhuj+tav<sup>1</sup>t (by d̄rgh<sup>1</sup>deffa, i.e. lengthening, of the medial vowel a) + n (i.e. num-<sup>1</sup>gama) and elision of both the final t and the case termination s. Similarly, p̄tav<sup>1</sup>n=pib
 $>p$  + tavat+s. N̄tav<sup>1</sup>n=n+ + tavat+s. labdhav<sup>1</sup>n=labh+tavat+s= lab+dhavat (bh+t=bh by coalescence) + s. DĀ-av<sup>1</sup>n=dĀ॥+ tavat+s = dĀ-+ -avat (by retroflexive coalescence of Ā+॥+t=Ā-). SpĀ-av<sup>1</sup>n = spĀ॥+ tavat+s=spĀ-+ -avat (by retroflexive of Ā+॥+t=Ā-)+s. BhĀtav<sup>1</sup>n=bhĀ+ + tavat+s. HĀtav<sup>1</sup>n=hĀ+ + tavat+s. AnusĀtav<sup>1</sup>n=anu-sĀ + tavat+s. P<sup>1</sup>itav<sup>1</sup>n=p<sup>1</sup>>p<sup>1</sup>i+ + tavat+s. Bhθ-av<sup>1</sup>n=bhθ->bhθ-+l+ tavat+s. Pa-hitav<sup>1</sup>n=pa-h>pa-hi+ + tavat+s. Likhitav<sup>1</sup>n=likh>likhi + tavat+s. Rak-itav<sup>1</sup>n=rak->rak-i+ + tavat+s. Dθ-av<sup>1</sup>n= dθ->dθ-i+ + tavat+s. In the last six cases we find an additional vowel i inserted after the final consonant of the original root, before the termination tavat, changing p<sup>1</sup>>p<sup>1</sup>i, etc., because all these verbal roots are of the se-type. We have seen previously in the sixth lesson that in the Sanskrit se-verbal roots, the i is added in the forms, like p<sup>1</sup>ayi-yati, bhθ-i-yati, pa-hi-yati, and etc., of the Future Tense. Thus by suffixing of the termination tavat of the Past Active Participle, the nominal (pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika) bases, like bhuktavat, p̄tavat, N̄tavat, labdhacat, kĀtavat, dĀ-avat, p<sup>1</sup>itavat, spĀ-avat, bhθ-avat, hĀtavat, Yudh (4 ..)'to fight'

Pu.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra.	ayudhyata	ayudhyet<sup>1</sup>m	ayudhyanta
3 rd . Per.	= (He) fought	= (They two) fought	= (They all) fought
Madh.	ayudhyeth<sup>1</sup>ā	ayudhyeth<sup>1</sup>m	ayudhyadhvam
2 nd . Per.	= (You) fought	= (You two) fought	= (You all) fought
Utta.	ayudhye	ayudhy<sup>1</sup>vahi	ayudhy<sup>1</sup>mahi
1 st . Per.	= (I) fought	= (We two) fought	= (We all) fought

Now, note the following instances of the coalescence that have occurred in the above paragraph:

Vikramasi, haā+n<sup>1</sup>ma and Dhrendraā+ n<sup>1</sup>ma (aā+n= o+n) R<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>+abhat (¹+a = ¹+') / K<sup>1</sup>rtim+ kar<sup>1</sup>ya (m+¹=m¹ / R<sup>1</sup>japutraā+¹y¹t (aā+a)) / Sevakaā+avartata and Nāpaā+ acintyat (aā+a=o+') /

Generally, in practical life every activity generates some result. Consequently, there are two aspects of a verb in a language: (1) action; and (2) result. For instance, in the action of 'going' the action is of putting steps one after another, and the result is reaching a place from one to another. Now, in the kriy<sup>1</sup>-pada, i.e., the verb, denoting an action that accrues the result to the doer itself, is called a-karmaka, i.e. intransitive, while the verb denoting an action of a doer the result of which accrues to somebody else is called sa-karmaka, i.e. transitive. Thus, for instance, in the sentence Rame॥ā calati (=Mr. Ramesh is walking), the action of 'walking' accrues to the doer Ramesh who performs that action. But in the sentence Sure॥ā rame॥a, t<sup>1</sup>ayati (=Mr. Suresh beats Ramesh), while the action of beating belongs to Suresh, the resulting pain of being bitten accrues to Ramesh. Hence, while the verb calati is intransitive, the verb t<sup>1</sup>ayati is transitive. Sanskrit grammarians have thus divided the verbs into two types, called a-karmaka, i.e., the one having no object, and sa-karmaka, i.e., the one having an object.

LESSON 9

(Navamaā P<sup>1</sup>-haā)

Generally, in practical life every activity generates some result. Consequently, there are two aspects of a verb in a language: (1) action; and (2) result. For instance, in the action of 'going' the action is of putting steps one after another, and the result is reaching a place from one to another. Now, in the kriy<sup>1</sup>-pada, i.e., the verb, denoting an action that accrues the result to the doer itself, is called a-karmaka, i.e. intransitive, while the verb denoting an action of a doer the result of which accrues to somebody else is called sa-karmaka, i.e. transitive. Thus, for instance, in the sentence Rameśā calati (=Mr. Ramesh is walking), the action of 'walking' accrues to the doer Ramesh who performs that action. But in the sentence Sureśā rameśā, t<sup>1</sup>ayati (=Mr. Suresh beats Ramesh), while the action of beating belongs to Suresh, the resulting pain of being bitten accrues to Ramesh. Hence, while the verb calati is intransitive, the verb t<sup>1</sup>ayati is transitive. Sanskrit grammarians have thus divided the verbs into two types, called a-karmaka, i.e., the one having no object, and sa-karmaka, i.e., the one having an object.

Now, we must have noted that, while speaking in English, we often utilize such transitive usages like: 'An airplane strikes the tower', and 'The tower was struck by an airplane'. In essence, the action of striking occurred, but in the first usage the 'airplane' was the subject, while in the second one, it is the object. In the first usage the action has a direct relation with the verb, and hence it is called the 'direct sentence construction', while in the second one, the action has an indirect relation with the verb, and hence it is called the 'indirect sentence construction'. Similarly, in Sanskrit, too we have two types of sentence construction: the first type is called the kartā-v<sup>1</sup>cya, i.e., expressing the subject directly, or, kartari, i.e., the direct speech; and the second type is the karma-v<sup>1</sup>cya, i.e., expressing the object directly, or the karma<sup>1</sup>i, i.e., the indirect speech. In both these constructions, the verb is always of the sa-karmaka type.

/ Yaā subha-m<sup>1</sup>rga, = jobhana, m<sup>1</sup>rga, (= good, felicitous, auspicious, path or way of life), anusātav<sup>1</sup>n = anusara<sup>2</sup>a, kātav<sup>1</sup>n (= followed, took to), saā, nija-janma = svasya j<sup>2</sup>vitam, dhanya, = sukātam = pu<sup>2</sup>yavantam, kātav<sup>1</sup>n / saā, nija-janma = svasya j<sup>2</sup>vitam, dhanya, = sukātam = pu<sup>2</sup>yavantam, kātav<sup>1</sup>n /

*Yaā ¶<sup>1</sup>str<sup>1</sup>a i pa-hitav<sup>1</sup>n
tath<sup>1</sup> likhitav<sup>1</sup>n bahōn granth<sup>1</sup>n /
Na ca rak-itav<sup>1</sup>n vātta,
vibudha-sam<sup>1</sup>ja, sa dō-itav<sup>1</sup>n //*

Yaā ¶<sup>1</sup>str<sup>1</sup>a i = ¶<sup>1</sup>stra-granth<sup>1</sup>n (= scriptures, holy books), pa-hitav<sup>1</sup>n = abhyastav<sup>1</sup>n (=studied), tath<sup>1</sup>pi = tath<sup>1</sup>+api (=in spite of, even then), ca (=and), vātta, = c<sup>1</sup>ritrya, (=character, pure conduct), na rak-itav<sup>1</sup>n = rak-a<sup>2</sup>a, na kātav<sup>1</sup>n (=did not preserve, protect), saā, vibudha-sam<sup>1</sup>ja, = vidvajjan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m sam<sup>1</sup>jam (=the society of the learned persons, enlightened ones), dō-itav<sup>1</sup>n= do-a-yukta, kātav<sup>1</sup>n (= spoiled, stigmatized). Tath<sup>1</sup> (=similarly, in the same way), ca (=and moreover), yaā, bahōn = bahu-sa<sup>2</sup>j khyak<sup>1</sup>n (=many, numerous) granth<sup>1</sup>n (=books, treatises) likhitav<sup>1</sup>n (=wrote, composed), tath<sup>1</sup>pi = tath<sup>1</sup>+api (=in spite of, even then), ca (=and), vātta, = c<sup>1</sup>ritrya, (=character, pure conduct), na rak-itav<sup>1</sup>n = rak-a<sup>2</sup>a, na kātav<sup>1</sup>n (=did not preserve, protect), saā, vibudha-sam<sup>1</sup>ja, = vidvajjan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m sam<sup>1</sup>jam dō-itav<sup>1</sup>n= do-a-yukta, kātav<sup>1</sup>n /

In the above verses the words bhuktav<sup>1</sup>n, p<sup>1</sup>tav<sup>1</sup>n, n<sup>2</sup>tav<sup>1</sup>n, labdhav<sup>1</sup>n, kātav<sup>1</sup>n, dāt-av<sup>1</sup>n, p<sup>2</sup>ayitav<sup>1</sup>n, bhōtav<sup>1</sup>n, hātav<sup>1</sup>n, bhātav<sup>1</sup>n, anusātav<sup>1</sup>n, pa-hitav<sup>1</sup>n, likhitav<sup>1</sup>n, rak-itav<sup>1</sup>n, dō-itav<sup>1</sup>n, etc., express the sense of the Past Tense, and the parts like bhukta-, p<sup>1</sup>ta-, n<sup>2</sup>ta-, labdha-, kāta-, dāt-a-, p<sup>2</sup>ayita-, bhōtita-, hāta-, bhātita-, anusāta-, pa-hita-, likhita-, rak-ita-, dō-ita-, etc., are like the Past Passive Participles. These words, bhuktav<sup>1</sup>n, etc., are the Past Active Participles. They act as nouns and agree with the subject of the sentence in which they are used, because in them the subject predominates and hence the Participle denoting the action follows the subject. These subtle semantic aspects will be clear on observing the following sentences:

But, what happens when the verb is of a-karmaka type? Since there is no transitive verb, it is the action that is denoted predominantly, and the verb expressing it is always used in the 3<sup>d</sup> Person Singular. As for instance in the sentences like, 'It is being walked by me', 'It is being laughed at by me', and 'It is being sung by me'. In these sentence constructions, the verb has no relation with anybody else, but only with the word 'it' used in the 3<sup>d</sup> person Singular. Similarly, in Sanskrit, too, we have such a construction in the sentences like, 'May<sup>1</sup> gamyate', 'May<sup>1</sup> hasyate', 'May<sup>1</sup> ḡyate', since, the action (bh<sup>1</sup>va) of 'going' or 'laughing' or 'singing' predominates in such constructions, it is called bh<sup>1</sup>va-v<sup>1</sup>cya, i.e., expressing the action directly, or bh<sup>1</sup>ve, i.e., impersonal.

Now, read aloud the following sentences, comparing them with one another,
in view of their meanings:

*Aha, gacch<sup>1</sup>mi/ May<sup>1</sup> gamyate/ ,v<sup>1</sup>m <sup>1</sup>gacch<sup>1</sup>vaå /
¹v<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m <sup>1</sup>gamyate / Vaya, ti-h<sup>1</sup>maå / Asm<sup>1</sup>bhiå sthyate /
Tva, bh<sup>1</sup>-ase / Tway<sup>1</sup> bh<sup>1</sup>-yate / Yuv<sup>1</sup>, hasatha / Yuv<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>,
hasyate / YØya, caratha / Yu-m<sup>1</sup>bhiå caryate / Saå gacchati /
S<sup>1</sup> gacchati/ Tat gacchati / Tena gamyate / Tay<sup>1</sup> gamyate /
Tena gamyate / Tau <sup>1</sup>gacchathaå / Te <sup>1</sup>gacchathaå / Te
<sup>1</sup>gacchathaå / T<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, <sup>1</sup>gamyate / T<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, <sup>1</sup>gamyate /
T<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, <sup>1</sup>gamyate /*

Now note: Since all these sentences are in the Bh<sup>1</sup>va-v<sup>1</sup>cya or Bh<sup>1</sup>ve, i.e., intransitive indirect, type of construction, the verb (bh<sup>1</sup>va) predominates in them. And, the subject of the original sentence in the direct construction is here put in the Instrumental Case, with its number remaining the same as in the original. But, the relation between the subject and the verb being lost in new construction, it ceases to agree with it, and it is put in the it is always put in the Prathama Puru-a, (=3rd Per.) Eka-vacana (=singular).

Now, read aloud the following sentences,
while mentally comparing them and grasping their meanings:

Aha, tv<sup>1</sup>, pañy<sup>1</sup>mi /=I am seeing you. May<sup>1</sup> tva, dñyase /

=You are being seen by me. v<sup>1</sup>, tv<sup>1</sup>, smar<sup>1</sup>vaā / = We (two) are remembering you. v<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, tva, smaryase / = You are being remembered by (both of) us. Vaya, v<sup>1</sup>rt<sup>1</sup>ā ḥāv<sup>1</sup>maā / = We (all) are listening to the stories. Asm<sup>1</sup>bhiā v<sup>1</sup>rt<sup>1</sup> ḥr̥yate / = The story is being listened to by us (all). Tva, patram alikhaā / You wrote a letter. Tvay<sup>1</sup> patram alikhya / =A letter was written by you. Yuv<sup>1</sup>, jalām apibathaā / = You (two) drank the water. Yuv<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, jalām apyata / =Water was drunk by (both of) you. Yōya, granthau v<sup>1</sup>ci-yatha / = You (all) will read the (two) books. Yu-m<sup>1</sup>bhiā granthau v<sup>1</sup>ci-yete / =The (two) books will be read by you (all). Sā, s<sup>1</sup>, tat v<sup>1</sup> ca<sup>a</sup>ak<sup>1</sup>n kh<sup>1</sup>dati / =He, she, or it eats the gram grains. *Tena, tay<sup>1</sup>, tena v<sup>1</sup> ca<sup>a</sup>ak<sup>1</sup>ā kh<sup>1</sup>dyante /*The gram grains are being eaten by him, her, or it. Tau, te, te v<sup>1</sup> vidy<sup>1</sup>laya, gacchataā / = They (two boys/ two girls/ or two children) are going to school. T<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, t<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, t<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, v<sup>1</sup> vidy<sup>1</sup>layaā gamyate / = The school is being gone to by both (the boys, girls, or children). Te, t<sup>1</sup>ā t<sup>1</sup>ni v<sup>1</sup> g<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>m apa-han / = They (all boys, girls, or children) studied the G<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>. Taiā, t<sup>1</sup>bhiā, taiā v<sup>1</sup> g<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> apa-hyata / = The G<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> was being studied by them (all the boys, girls, or children).

Now, note: In all these sentences the first one is in the Kartā-v<sup>1</sup>cya, or Kartari, i.e., direct sentence construction. In the next sentence it is converted into the Karma-v<sup>1</sup>cya or Karma<sup>a</sup>i, i.e., the indirect sentence construction. In both these constructions, the sense intended to be conveyed is the same, but the difference is in the style of the sentence construction utilized for conveying it. In the Kartā-v<sup>1</sup>cya, or Kartari, since the subject predominates, it is put in the Nominative Case, and the verb agrees with it in Person and Number. But, in the Karma-v<sup>1</sup>cya or Karma<sup>a</sup>i, since it is the object that predominates, the object is put in the Nominative Case, and the verb agrees with the object in Person and Number. Thus, with aham as the subject the verb is always in the Uttama Puru-a Eka-vacana, i.e.. 1st. Per. Singular, as in aha, pañy<sup>1</sup>mi; with v<sup>1</sup>m it is in dual, as in v<sup>1</sup>m pañy<sup>1</sup>vaā, and with vayam it is in plural, as in vaya, pañy<sup>1</sup>maā / And, the object is always in the Accusative Case. But, when the same sentence is converted into the indirect construction, the object becomes prominent and is put in the Nominative Case, the subject of the original direct construction is put in usages. And, the intelligent listener or reader immediately grasps the sense. We should also develop such understanding. Such usages of the Past Passive Participles in lieu of the verbs, being easier, is more popular in Sanskrit.

Easy technique of memorizing Sanskrit verses:

If the Sanskrit verse is set to heart, it serves to enrich the treasure of understanding life, and provides a ready access to the treasure at the nick of time. For memorizing verses, ancient seers have developed a simple technique which enables the reciter to memorize such long works, like the Vedic Sa, hit's of the gveda, the Yajurveda, the S'maveda, the Athervaveda, and various religious hymns like the iva-mahimna-stotra, the Sapta-flati-ca<sup>a</sup>◎, the Vi-a-u-sahasra-n<sup>1</sup>ma, and numerous Subh<sup>1</sup>-itas.

In this process, one has to sing rhythmically the first quarter of the verse five times, then the second one in the same manner five times, then the first two quarters continuously five times. Similar technique is employed with the third and the fourth quarters. And, finally, all the four quarters of the verse are to be sung serially and rhythmically five times. This helps one to memorize the verse to such an extent that it sometimes occurs automatically to the mind even during sleep.

the Instrumental Case, and the Numbers of the Subject and Object of the original construction remain the same. In the direct construction the verb agrees with the Subject in Person and Number, since it is the Subject that predominates. But in the indirect construction, since it is the Object that predominates, the verb is converted into a Karma-v<sup>1</sup>cyā or Karma<sup>a</sup>i form, and it agrees with the Object in Person and Number. Thus, with tvam as the Subject in the place of aham, the verb pātīy<sup>1</sup>mi becomes dĀtīyase; with v<sup>1</sup>rt<sup>1</sup>ā in the place of vayam it becomes ṛītīyate in the place of ṛītīv<sup>1</sup>maā; and with G<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> in the place of t<sup>1</sup>ni, it becomes apa-hyata in the place of apa-han; even then their Tense has remained the same, as for instance, the Present Tense in the above first two sentences and the Past Tense in the third one with their meanings in view.

Now, read aloud over again the above sentences,

The verbs in the above sentences of indirect construction are: dĀtīyase, smaryas, ṛītīyate, alikhyata, apīyata, v<sup>1</sup>cī-yete, kh<sup>1</sup>dyante, gamyate, apa-hyata. From the viewpoint of the grammatical analysis, their components are as follows:

DĀtī+ya+se / smā (=smar)+ya+se / ṛīru (=ṛīrō)+ya+te / a+likh+ya+ta / a+pib (=pī)+ya=ta / v<sup>1</sup>c+i+sya(=ya)+ite / kh<sup>1</sup>d+ya+nte / a+pa-h+y+ta /

In the above analysis we should carefully note that the Sanskrit verbal root is used in its original form, without any class adjunct added to it. Then, the termination ya of the karma<sup>a</sup>i construction is added to it, and it is followed by the termination of the tamane-pada in the concerned Person and Number. And, in the internal coalescence the original Tense termination ante of the Pra. Pu. (3rd Per.) is merged in the final a of the ya indicatory of the indirect construction, providing us an instance of the purva-rōpasandhi.

When the kartari verb in Sanskrit is converted into a karma<sup>a</sup>i one, the following grammatical rules operate:
uf

(1) Irrespective of the root belonging to the parasmai-pada or otherwise type, only the termination of the tmane-pada are fixed to the roots, and only the sa-karmaka, i.e., the transitive, roots can be converted from the kartari into a karma<sup>a</sup>i one, e.g., ¶v<sup>a</sup>v<sup>1</sup>maā > ¶rōyate

(2) The karma<sup>a</sup>i adjunct ya comes up between the root and the termination of the Tense or Mood, and that of the root-class (ga<sup>a</sup>a) is applied to the root, e.g., likhati (Dir.) > likhyate.

(3) Due to the absence of the root-class adjunct, the root does not undergo any medial vowel modification.

(4) The final Ā of the root is changed to ri, e.g., kĀ+ya+te > kri+ya+te = kriyate.

(5) If there be a conjunct consonant in the root before the final vowel Ā it is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a, e.g., smĀ+ya+te > smar+ya+te = smaryate.

(6) The final short vowel i or u is lengthened as » or Ø, and the final long vowel ı is replaced by short i, e.g., ji+ya+te > j»+ya+te + jyate; ¶ru+ya+te > ¶rō+ya+te = ¶rōyate; d<sup>1</sup>+ya+te > d»+ya+te = djyate.

Now, read aloud the following verses,

along with the sentences of their paraphrase:

Abhy<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>d dh<sup>1</sup>ryate vidy<sup>1</sup> kula, ¶lena dh<sup>1</sup>ryate /

Gu<sup>a</sup>ena jñ<sup>1</sup>yate 1ryaa kopo netre<sup>a</sup>a gamyate //

Vidy<sup>1</sup> abhy<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>d dh<sup>1</sup>ryate / Kula, ¶lena dh<sup>1</sup>ryate / , rya<sup>a</sup> ¶lena jñ<sup>1</sup>yate / Kopa<sup>a</sup> netre<sup>a</sup>a gamyate /

*Dh<sup>1</sup>ryate – dhĀ (1 U.) Causal karma<sup>a</sup>i Present Tense Pra.
Pu. (=3rd Per.) Sing.*

*Jñ<sup>1</sup>yate – jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 U.) karma<sup>a</sup>i Present Tense Pra. Pu. (=3rd Per.) Sing.*

*Gamyate – gam (1 P.) karma<sup>a</sup>i Present Tense Pra.
Pu. (=3rd Per.) Sing.*

*Viveko janyate yena sa, yamo yena p<sup>1</sup>lyate /
Dharma<sup>a</sup> prak<sup>1</sup>lyate yena moho yena nihanyate //
Mano niyamylate yena rogo yena nikÅtyate /
Tad deya, bhavya-jv<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, ¶stra, nirdhÅta-kalma-am //*

*Dhane yena jito garvo yauvane manmatho jitaā /
Tena m<sup>1</sup>nu-a-si, hena jita, ki, na mah»-tale //*

Yena (= by the one who, he by whom), dhane (=in wealth, money matters), garvaā (=pride), jitaā (=conquered); yena yauvane (=in youthful age) manmathaā (= that which agitates the mind, i.e., the sexual urge), jitaā (=is overcome, suppressed); tena (=by that), m<sup>1</sup>nu-a-si, hena = si, ha-sadÅlena manu-ye<sup>a</sup>a (= lion-like, i.e., brave, human being); mah»-tale (=on the surface of the earth, i.e., the world) ki, na jitam ? Sarvam eva jitam ity-arthaā /

In the above verses, the usages like bhukt<sup>1</sup>ā (mas.), taptam (neu.) tapt<sup>1</sup>ā (mas.), y<sup>1</sup>taā (mas.), y<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>ā (mas.), j<sup>1</sup>r<sup>a</sup>1 (fem.), j<sup>1</sup>r<sup>a</sup>1ā (mas.), adht<sup>1</sup> (fem.), kĀtam (neu.), dattam (neu.), gatam (neu.), jit<sup>1</sup> (fem.), jitaā (mas.), jitam (neu.) are used. They are all the Past Passive Participles, derived from the verbal roots like bhuj (7 U.), tap (4 ), y<sup>1</sup> (2 P.), j<sup>1</sup>l (4 P.), adhi+i (2 ), d<sup>1</sup> (3 U.), gam (1 P.), and ji (1 P.), respectively. All these usages denote the sense of Past Tense, and yet their forms are declined like the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns. The subjects of the sentences contained in these verses are implied, and not actually used in them, and the words denoting the objects of the actions expressed by the verbal roots, are in the respective genders, and numbers. The Past Passive Participles agree with the objects in genders, cases and numbers.

In order to grasp this process, note the changes that have taken place in the following sentences:

Aha, bhog<sup>1</sup>n abhunajam /= I enjoyed the enjoyments. May<sup>1</sup> bhog<sup>1</sup>ā bhukt<sup>1</sup>ā / = The enjoyments were enjoyed by me. Asm<sup>1</sup>n bhog<sup>1</sup>ā_abhuñjan / = The enjoyments consumed us. Vayam bhogaiā abhujyanta / = We were consumed by the enjoyments.

Now, note: In the first quarter of the first verse, there are two sentences, viz., Bhogaā na bhukt<sup>1</sup>ā / Vayam eva bhukt<sup>1</sup>ā / Of these two, the word may<sup>1</sup> in the first sentence, and bhogaiā in the second one, are implied, but not expressed. In this way, there is the facility in Sanskrit for keeping implied sometimes the subject, sometimes the object, and sometimes the verb in such linguistic meaning of the Past. The sense denoted in it is merely that the action has been completed by the doer.

When such Past Passive Participles are utilized, the sentence is always in the Passive construction, because the object, rather than the subject, of the action predominates in it, and the participle agrees with the object in the case and Number.

Now, sing aloud the following verses,
and read aloud their paraphrases:

Bhog<sup>1</sup> na bhukt<sup>1</sup> vayam eva bhukt<sup>1</sup>
Tapo na tapta, vayam eva tapt<sup>1</sup>ā /
K<sup>1</sup>lo na y<sup>1</sup>to vayam eva y<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>ā
TĀ-<sup>a</sup>1 na jṛ<sup>a</sup>1 vayam eva jṛ<sup>a</sup>1ā //

Bhogaā (=enjoyments) na bhukt<sup>1</sup>ā (=were enjoyed), vayam eva (=we ourselves only) bhukt<sup>1</sup>ā (=are consumed, victimized)/ Tapaā (=austerity) na taptam (= was being painfully practiced), vayam eva tapt<sup>1</sup>ā (=have suffered). K<sup>1</sup>laā (=time) na y<sup>1</sup>taā (=passed), vayam eva y<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>ā (=have passed away)/ TĀ-<sup>a</sup>1 (=yearning, intense desire, thirst) na jṛ<sup>a</sup>1 (=have become worn out, decayed), vayam eva jṛ<sup>a</sup>1ā (=have perished, withered out).

Adh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> na kal<sup>1</sup> k<sup>1</sup>cin na ca kiñcit kāta, tapaā /
Datta, na kiñcit p<sup>1</sup>trebhyo gata, ca madhura, vayaā //
K<sup>1</sup>cit (=some, any) kal<sup>1</sup> (=fine art) na (=not) adh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> (=learned, mastered) / Kiñcit tapaā na kātam (=performed) / P<sup>1</sup>trebhyāā (=to the deserving ones) kiñcit na dattam (=was given). Madhuram (=sweet) vayaā (=age, lifespan) gatam (=passed off) /

Jit<sup>1</sup> sabh<sup>1</sup> vastravat<sup>1</sup> mi-<sup>1</sup>¶<sup>1</sup> gomat<sup>1</sup> jit<sup>1</sup> /
Adhv<sup>1</sup> jito y<sup>1</sup>navat<sup>1</sup> sarva, ¶lavat<sup>1</sup> jitam //
Vastravat<sup>1</sup> (=by one who was well-dressed) sabh<sup>1</sup> (=assembly, gathering) jit<sup>1</sup> (=was won over, conquered) / Gomat<sup>1</sup> (=by one who possessed cows) mi-<sup>1</sup>¶<sup>1</sup> = mi-<sup>1</sup>am a¶itum<sup>1</sup>¶<sup>1</sup> (=desire of eating sweet food) jit<sup>1</sup> / Y<sup>1</sup>navat<sup>1</sup> (=by one who owned a vehicle) adhv<sup>1</sup> (=road of journey) jitaā / ¶lavat<sup>1</sup> (=by one possessing character, a pious person) sarvam (=everything) jitam /

Lesson 9

Yena vivekaā janyate, yena sa, yamaā p<sup>1</sup>lyate, yena dharmaā prak<sup>1</sup>lyate, yena mohaā nihanyate, yena, manaā niyamyate, yena rogaā nikĀtyate, tad nirdhōta-kalma-a, ¶<sup>1</sup>stra, , bhavya-jiv<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, (=bhavya-jivebhyāā), deyam /

Janyate - jan (4 .., j<sup>1</sup>yate) karma<sup>a</sup>i, Pre. Tense, Pra. Pu. Ek(=3rd Per.) Sing. = is born, generated. P<sup>1</sup>lyate- p<sup>1</sup>l (10 U., p<sup>1</sup>layati/p<sup>1</sup>layate) = karma<sup>a</sup>i, Pre. Tense, Pra. Pu. Ek(=3rd Per.) Sing. is protected , maintained , sustained. observed. Prak<sup>1</sup>lyate - pra+k<sup>1</sup>¶ (1, 4 ..), prak<sup>1</sup>lyate/ prak<sup>1</sup>lyate) karma<sup>a</sup>i, Pre. Tense, Pra. Pu. Ek(=3rd Per.) Sing.= is illuminated, made visible, displayed, manifested, revealed. Nihanyate - ni+han (2 P. ni hanti) karma<sup>a</sup>i, Pre. Tense, Pra. Pu. Ek(=3rd Per.) Sing. = is destroyed, removed, annihilated. Niyamyate - no+yam (1 P.. niyacchati) karma<sup>a</sup>i, Pre. Tense, Pra. Pu. Ek(=3rd Per.) Sing.= is checked, controlled. NikĀtyate - ni+ kāt (6 P., nikĀntati) karma<sup>a</sup>i, Pre. Tense, Pra. Pu. Ek(=3rd Per.) Sing. = is cut, chopped off. Deyam - d<sup>1</sup> (3 U., dad<sup>1</sup>ti, datte) Potential Participle, neu. Nom. Sing.= should be given. Bhavya-jiv<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = bhavy<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, ¶re-h<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, pu<sup>a</sup>ya-¶<sup>1</sup>lin<sup>1</sup>, _ (=of those who are suitable, proper, fit, auspicious righteous, fortunate. Jiv<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, (= of beings).since the Genitive Case is here utilized in the sense of the Dative Case, the sense intended is Bhavya-jivebhyāā (=to the beings that are suitable, proper, fit, auspicious righteous, fortunate. Nirdhōta-kama-am - niå¶e-e<sup>a</sup> (=completely) dhōtam (=has been washed away) kalma-am = p<sup>1</sup>pa, = kala, kam (= sin, blemish)yena saā (=one by whom).

Now, read aloud over again the above verses
keeping in view their meanings.

Just as in the Present Tense we can use the Present Participle (vartm<sup>1</sup>na-kādanta), in the place of a verb in the active (kartari) construction, to express the sense of a continuing action, similarly, it is customary to use the Present Participle, in the place of a verb in the passive (karma<sup>a</sup>i) construction, to express the sense of a continuing action. And there is some facility in it, since in these Present Participles have the termination na or m<sup>1</sup>na, which makes them a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, and they are declined like such other nouns. The only difference here is that the medial adjunct ya- is added after the verbal root for their formation. When such Passive Present Participles are used, the sentence construction is Passive (karma<sup>a</sup>i), because the object predominates in it, and the verb agrees with it, in the Case and Number.

Now, read aloud the following sentences:

Bhāty<sup>1</sup> api ta eva, ye sampatter apek-ay<sup>1</sup> vipattau sa-viʃe-a, sevante, samunnamyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> sutar<sup>1m</sup> avanamanti, lapyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> na sam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>1p<sup>1</sup> j<sup>1</sup>yante, stōyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> na utsicyante, k-ipyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup> n<sup>1</sup>par<sup>1dha</sup>, gĀh<sup>a</sup>anti, ucyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> na prat<sup>1pa</sup>, bh<sup>1</sup>-ante, pĀcchyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> priya-hita, vijñ<sup>1</sup>payanti, an<sup>1</sup>dīyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> kurvanti, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> na jalpanti, par<sup>1kramya</sup> na vikatthante, kathyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> api lajj<sup>1m</sup> udvahanti, mah<sup>1</sup>have-u agrato dhvaja-bhōt<sup>1</sup> lak-yante, d<sup>1</sup>na-k<sup>1</sup>le pal<sup>1yam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> pĀ-hato nil<sup>1</sup>yante, dhan<sup>1t</sup> sneha, bahu manyante, j<sup>1</sup>vit<sup>1t</sup> puro mara<sup>a</sup>am abhiv<sup>1</sup>ñchanti, gĀh<sup>1</sup>d api sv<sup>1</sup>mi-p<sup>1</sup>da-m<sup>0</sup>le sukha, ti<sup>1</sup>-hanti /</sup></sup></sup>

Now read aloud the following explanation,
while trying to grasp the sense thereof:

*Te+eva= only those. Bhāty<sup>1</sup>ā+api=the servants (worthy to be nourished) in fact. Here, Here, after every Passive Present Participle, the indeclinable api (=even though), and at the beginning of the sentence the predicate uttam<sup>1</sup>ा manyante (=are considered to be the best) is implied (adhy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ryam). Sampatteā+apek-aya (=in comparison with the wealth). Sa-viʃe-am =viʃe-a-rōpe<sup>a</sup>a=particularly. Sam-un-namyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup>=samyag ucca-pade-u sth<sup>1</sup>pyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = (properly promoted to higher positions). lapyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup>=l<sup>1</sup>pa, kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā (= being talked to, addressed). Sam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>1p<sup>1</sup>ā = sam<sup>1</sup>naā l<sup>1</sup>paā ye<sup>1</sup>, te (=those conversing on an equal level). Stōyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup>= stuti, kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā (=being praised). Ut-sicyante= utseka-yukt<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti = garva-yukt<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti (=become haughty, proud). K-ipyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā = k-epa, kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā (=being censured, scolded). Ucyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = vacana, kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā (=being spoken to). PĀcchyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = praʃna, kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā = =Being asked). An-<sup>1</sup>dīyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = <sup>1</sup>desa, na kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā (= not ordered). Kathyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = kathana, kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā (=being told, instructed). Pal<sup>1yam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = pal<sup>1</sup>yana, kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā (= running away, going</sup></sup></sup></sup></sup></sup></sup></sup></sup></sup></sup>* away). This sentence gives in a gist the essential qualities expected of an excellent servant.

Now, let us look at these passive Present Participle from the point of view of grammatical analysis:

*Sam-un-namyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root nam (1 P. namati) with the prefixes sam and ud = sam+ud+nam, 'to a good rise, to give a good lift' > sam-un-nam+ya+m<sup>1</sup>na = samun-namyam<sup>1na</sup> (mas.) – Nom. Pl. ,lapyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root lap (1 P. lapati) with the prefix <sup>1</sup> > <sup>1</sup>lap 'to speak to' > <sup>1</sup>-lap+ ya+m<sup>1</sup>na = <sup>1</sup>lapyam<sup>1na</sup> (mas.) - Nom. Pl. K-ipyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root k-ip (4 P. k-ipyati) 'to throw, cast, scold' > k-ip+ya+m<sup>1</sup>a= k-ipyam<sup>1a</sup>a (mas.) - Nom. Pl. Uccyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>h</sup> = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root vac (2 P. vakti), 'to speak, relate' > vac (uc)+ya+m<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>= ucyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup></sup> - Nom. Pl. PĀcchyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root pracch (6 P. pĀchati) 'to ask, inquire' > pĀcch+ya+m<sup>1</sup>na = pĀcchyam<sup>1na</sup> (mas.) – Nom. Pl. An-<sup>1</sup>dīyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root dīy (6 U.dīyati/dīyate) with the prefix <sup>1</sup>+dīy 'to order, instruct' > <sup>1</sup>+dīy+ya+m<sup>1</sup>na - <sup>1</sup>dīyam<sup>1na</sup>; its negative > na <sup>1</sup>dīyam<sup>1na</sup> = an+1dīyam<sup>1na</sup> - Nom. Pl. Kathyam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root kath (10 U. kathayati/kathayate)'to tell' > kath+ya+m<sup>1</sup>na= kathyam<sup>1na</sup> - Nom. Pl. Pal<sup>1yam<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root ay (1 ayate) with the prefix par<sup>1</sup> + ay = (pal<sup>1</sup>+ay) > pal<sup>1</sup>y 'to go away, run off' > pal<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1na</sup> - Nom. Pl. Kriyam<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>ā = Passive Present Participle of the verbal root kā (8 U. karoti/kurute) 'to do' > kā (kri) + ya+m<sup>1</sup>na = kryam<sup>1a</sup>a, Nom. Pl. In some of these cases the roots have undergone slight changes when followed by the adjuncts and tense terminations, and the consonant n in m<sup>1</sup>na has been changed to <sup>a</sup> when it is preceded by either k- or Ā or r, as per the rules of coalescence.</sup></sup></sup>*

Now, read aloud the above Sanskrit sentences,
keeping in view their meanings.

It is customary in Sanskrit to use the Past Passive Participle, rather than the verbal root in the Past Tense, to express the denotes mere action, (bh<sup>1</sup>va-v<sup>1</sup>caka) irrespective of any Person and Number. And, since they are used as adjectives, they have to agree syntactically with the substantive in Gender, Case and Number, as for instance, neyam agrees with cittam, while kartavyāā agrees with sañcayaā. These adjectival forms can be used in different Cases and Numbers, as would be needed so as to agree syntactically with those of the substantive concerned.

In the case of the forms like, hara<sup>a</sup>yam, ucc<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>yam, smara<sup>a</sup>yam, tara<sup>a</sup>yam, etc., the termination -anyā is applied. Thus, hara<sup>a</sup>yam = hÅ (har) + anyā + am / ucc<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>yam = ut + car + anyā + am.

And, in the case of the forms like geyam, dhyeyam, neyam and deyam, the termination -ya is applied. Thus, gai+ya+am = ge+ya+am / N+ya+am = ne+ya+am / D<sup>1</sup>+ya+am = de+ya+am.

P<sup>1a</sup>ini mentions in all four terminations, viz., -tavya -tavyat, -anyār, and -yat to be applied to a root to derive a Potential Participle from it. These derivative forms are thus distinguished as adjectival forms, from the regular verbal forms of the roots in the Potential Mood.

bhÅtavat, anusÅtavat, pa-hitavat, likhitavat, sak-itavat, dØ-itavat, etc., are formed, and their adjectival forms like bhuktav<sup>1</sup>n, bhØktavantau, bhuktavantaā, etc., are declined in various Cases and Numbers. Such a Past Participle, whether Active or Passive serves as an adjective of some noun or pronoun used as the subject of a sentence. Thus, they are the adjectives derived from verbal roots and denote sense of their the Past Tense.

We have noted that the base of the Past Passive Participle ends in -ta, while that of the Past Active Participle ends in -tavat. In the P<sup>1a</sup>inian terminology, these terminations are mentioned as -kta and -ktavatu, respectively, and P<sup>1a</sup>ini calls both these terminations jointly by the name Ni-h<sup>1</sup>, and the words formed by affixing these terminations are known as Kt<sup>1</sup>nta and Ktavanta, or jointly as Ni-h<sup>1</sup>nta.

Since the Past Passive Participles are a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, they are declined like the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns like r<sup>1</sup>ma, and since the Past Active Participles are ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, they are declined as ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns like bhavat.

Now let us see, by way of specimens, the declension of the ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun bhuktavat, both in Masculine and Neuter:

Bhuktavat (M.)

Case	Sing.	Du.	Plu.
Pra./ Nom.	bhuktav<sup>1</sup>n	bhuktavatau	bhuktavantaā
Sa. ./Voc.	bhuktavat	bhuktavatau	bhuktavantaā
Dvi./ Acc	bhuktavantam	bhuktavatau	bhuktavantaā
TÅ./ Instr.	bhuktavat<sup>1</sup>	bhuktavadbh<sup>1</sup>m	bhuktavadbhiā
Catu./ Dat.	bhuktavate	bhuktavadbh<sup>1</sup>m	bhuktavadbhyaā
Pañ./ Abl.	bhuktavataā	bhuktavadbh<sup>1</sup>m	bhuktavadbhyaā
a-/ Gen.	bhuktavataā	bhuktavatoā	bhuktavat<sup>1</sup>m
Sapt./ Loc.	bhuktavati	bhuktavatoh	bhuktavatsu

Bhuktavat (N.)

Case Pra./ Nom.	Sing. bhuktavat	Du. bhuktavat»	Plu. bhuktavanti
Sa. ./Voc.	bhuktavat	bhuktavat»	bhuktavanti
Dvi./ Acc	bhuktavat	bhuktavat»	bhuktavanti
TÄ./ Instr.	bhuktavat<sup>1</sup>	bhuktavadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	bhuktavadbhiå
Catu./ Dat.	bhuktavate	bhuktavadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	bhuktavadbhyaå
Pañ./ Abl.	bhuktavataå	bhuktavadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	bhuktavadbhyaå
Ja-/ Gen.	bhuktavataå	bhuktavatoå	bhuktavat<sup>1</sup>m
Sapt./ Loc.	bhuktavati	bhuktavatoh	bhuktavatsu

Now, note: Among the Neuter forms, only those of the Nominative, Vocative and Accusative Cases differ from those of the Masculine forms, while the rest of them are just similar. We should only remember this fact, so as to preclude the necessity of remembering the forms of the rest of the Cases separately.

Now, read aloud the following Sanskrit paragraphs, trying to grasp the meanings of the sentences therein:

Nidr<sup>1</sup>nte bhagavataå smara<sup>a</sup>a, , pr<sup>1</sup>tar dev<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m arcana, , s<sup>1</sup>dhu-puru-ebhyaå pra<sup>a</sup>maå. pram<sup>1</sup>debhyo vir<sup>1</sup>maå, sarvasyopak<sup>1</sup>raå, flucir vyavah<sup>1</sup>raå, sat-p<sup>1</sup>tra-d<sup>1</sup>ne ratiå, dharma- k<sup>1</sup>rye-u matir ityeva sat-puru-<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, sthitiå /

In the above sentence, the words in the Nominative, Genitive and Locative are used. By joining the phrase ity eva (=thus verily), with other parts of this sentence we can formulate eight separate sentences, e.g., Nidr<sup>1</sup>nte bhagavataå smara<sup>a</sup>am ityeva sat- puru-<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, sthitiå / Pr<sup>1</sup>tar dev<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m arcana ityeva sat-puru-<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, sthitiå /

smara<sup>a</sup>a, kartavyam=should be remembered. Bhava-jalam=water of the (ocean in the form of the cycle of) births. Tara<sup>a</sup>yam= should be crossed over (by swimming).

Geya, g»t<sup>1</sup>-n<sup>1</sup>ma-sahasra, dhyeya, flropati-rØpam ajasram / Neya, sajana-sa; ge citta, deya, d»na-jan<sup>1</sup>ya ca vitta, //

Vocabulary: Geyam= should be sung. G»t<sup>1</sup>-n<sup>1</sup>ma-sahasram = the Bhagavad-g»t<sup>1</sup> and the Vi-<sup>a</sup>u-sahasra-n<sup>1</sup>ma. Dhyeyam= dhy<sup>1</sup> na, kartavyam= should be meditated upon. RØpam= the handsome form. Ajasram= constantly. Neyam = should be led to. Sa; ge= in the vicinity. Cittam= mind. Deyam= d<sup>1</sup>na, kartavyam= should be given, donated. D»na-jana=a poor person. Vittam=dhanam= money.

Coalescence: -rØpam+ajasram (m+a=ma).

In the above verses, the usages, viz., gantavyam, sth<sup>1</sup>- tavyam, vaktavyam, d<sup>1</sup>tavyam, bhuktavyam, kartavyaå, hara<sup>a</sup>yam, uccara-<sup>a</sup>yam, smara<sup>a</sup>yam, tara<sup>a</sup>yam, geyam, dhyeyam, neyam and deyam, are the forms of the Potential Participle. They are derived from the Sanskrit verbal roots, gam, sth<sup>1</sup>, vac, d<sup>1</sup>, bhuj, kÅ, hÅ, ut+car, smÅ, tÅ, gai, dhyai, n», and d<sup>1</sup>, respectively.

It should be noted that these forms denote the sense, like gacchet, ti-het, ucy<sup>1</sup>t, dey<sup>1</sup>t, bhuñjet, kury<sup>1</sup>t, haret, uccaret, smaret, ttry<sup>1</sup>t, gey<sup>1</sup>t, dhy<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t, n»y<sup>1</sup>t, dey<sup>1</sup>t, respectively, in the Potential Mood of the respective verbal roots. Here, in the above verses, since only the sense of the action is intended to be conveyed irrespective of any Person and Number, the form of the Potential Participle of the root are used. But, when the sense of the action denoted by the verbal root is to be conveyed with reference to particular Person and Number, the verbal forms in the Potential Mood, as shown above, are used.

Now. Let us understand the grammatical analysis of these verbal forms: Gantavyam= gam+tavya+am / (m+t=nt). St<sup>1</sup>th<sup>1</sup>yam=st<sup>1</sup>+tavya+am /Here, the termination tavya of the potential Participle is applied to the root.

Since all these forms are supposed to be of Neuter Gender, the Case termination of the Nom. Sing. -am is suffixed to it, because it

Pañcabhiā janaiā militv<sup>1</sup> saha gantavyam / Pañchbhiā puru-aiā ekibhōya saha sth<sup>1</sup>tavyam / Pañchbhiā naraiā ekatrōbhōya saha vaktavyam / Pañchbhiā m<sup>1</sup>nu-aiā yad<sup>1</sup> etat sarva, saha kriyate tad<sup>1</sup> kim api duākha, na bhavati /

Vocabulary: Pañchbhiā=by five. Saha=together. *Ganta-*vym= should go. Janaiā=puru-aiā=naraiā=m<sup>1</sup>nu-aiā= per- sons. St<sup>1</sup>tavyam= should stay. Vaktavyam= should speak.

D<sup>1</sup>tavya, bhoktavya, sati vibhave sañcayo na kartavyaā / Pañyantu madhukar<sup>a</sup>¹, sañcitam artha, haranty anye // Yad<sup>1</sup> vibhavaā samāddhi asti tad<sup>1</sup> d<sup>1</sup>tasvya, d<sup>1</sup>na, kara<sup>a</sup>ya, , bhoktavya, bhogaā kara<sup>a</sup>yaā, kin-tu vāth<sup>1</sup> nirarthaka, sañcayaā saj grahaā na kartavyaā / Pañyantu bhavantaā sarve jan<sup>1</sup>ā / Madhukaryaā madhumak-ik<sup>1</sup>ā madhu-pu-ake vāth<sup>1</sup> madhunaā sañcaya, kurvanti, yataā t<sup>1</sup>ā tan-madhu na tu svaya, bhuñjanti, na ca kasmai-cid api yacchanti / Ata eva te<sup>1</sup>, puru-<sup>1</sup>rthena sañcita, madhu- rōpm artha, dhana, vy<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>ā lubdhak<sup>1</sup>ā haranti /

Vocabulary: D<sup>1</sup>tavyam=should be given away, donated. Bhoktavyam=should be enjoyed. Sati vibhave= when there is property. Sañcayaā= hoard, accumulation. Kartavyaā=should be done. Pa-yantu= (you all) see, mark. Madhukar<sup>a</sup>¹, = of the honey-bees. Haranti= take away. Anye=others.

Coalescence: Sañcayaā+na (ā+na=o na) /Sañcitat+n artham (m+a=ma)/ Haranti+anye(i+a=y).

New forms: Pañyantu= Imperative 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Pl. of the Sanskrit verbal root dā (1 P. 'to see'). Haranti= Pre. 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Pl. of the root hā (1 U. 'to take away, deprive of.').

*Kasyacit kim api no hara<sup>a</sup>ya,
Marma-v<sup>1</sup>kyam api noccarā<sup>a</sup>yam /
~r<sup>o</sup>pateā pada-yuga, smara<sup>a</sup>ya,
L<sup>l</sup>ay<sup>1</sup> bhava-jala, tara<sup>a</sup>yam //*

Kasya-cit= of any body. Kim-api= anything. No= not. Hara<sup>a</sup>yam= should not be taken away, stolen. Marma-v<sup>1</sup>kyam= marm<sup>1</sup>-gh<sup>1</sup>ta-janakam vacanam=statement that hurts vitally. Ucc<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>yam = should be uttered. ~r<sup>o</sup>pateā=Lak-m»-pateā=Vi-<sup>a</sup>oā=of the Lord Vi-<sup>a</sup>u. Pada-yugam=Cara<sup>a</sup>a-yugmam=pair of feet. Smara<sup>a</sup>yam=

New Forms: Bhagavataā= Gen. Sing. of bhagavat (M.).

Coalescence: Pr<sup>1</sup>taā+dev<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m+arcānam (ā+d=rd, m+a= ma) / Pran<sup>1</sup>debhyaā+ vir<sup>1</sup>maā (ā+v=ov) / Sarvasya upak<sup>1</sup>raā (a+u=o / ~uciā+vyavah<sup>1</sup>raā (ā+v=rv) / Matiā+iti_eva / (ā+i=ri, i+e=ye) /

Sōrya, vin<sup>1</sup> dina, na hi / Pu<sup>a</sup>ya, vin<sup>1</sup> sukha, na hi / Suputra, vin<sup>1</sup> kula, na hi / Guru, vin<sup>1</sup> vidy<sup>1</sup> na hi / Dana, vin<sup>1</sup> k<sup>o</sup>rtir na hi / Bhojana, vin<sup>1</sup> tāptir na hi / S<sup>1</sup>hasa, vin<sup>1</sup> siddhir na hi / Udyama, vin<sup>1</sup> dhana, na hi / Kula-str», vina gāha, na hi / VĀ-ō I, vina subhik-a, na hi / Hādaya-suddhi, vin<sup>1</sup> dharmo na hi / Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, vin<sup>1</sup> muktir na hi /

In each of the above sentences, we find that the indeclinable vin<sup>1</sup> has been used with the nouns in the Accusative Case, and there is another noun in the Nominative Case, while the verb, like bhavati, asti, or vartate, though not actually mentioned, is implied or understood.

Vocabulary: Udyama = endeavour, effort. Kula-str»= a woman of good family. VĀ-ō I=rain. Subhik-a = the condition in which the alms are easily obtained, i.e., abundance of food. Hādaya-suddhi = purity of heart. Mukti = liberation.

Suvacanena maitri, indu-darśanena samudraā, ~Āg<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup> a r<sup>1</sup>gaā, vinayena gu<sup>a</sup>ā, d<sup>1</sup>nena k<sup>o</sup>rtiā, udyamena ~r<sup>o</sup>ā, satyena dharmaā, abhy<sup>1</sup>sena vidy<sup>1</sup> ny<sup>1</sup>ena r<sup>1</sup>jyam, auctyena mahattvam, aud<sup>1</sup>rye<sup>a</sup> a prabhutva, , k<sup>o</sup>lamay<sup>1</sup> tapaā, bhojanena ~ar<sup>o</sup>ra, , l<sup>1</sup>bhena lobhaā, durvacanena kalahaā, n<sup>o</sup>ca-saj gena duā<sup>o</sup>lat<sup>1</sup>, upek-ay<sup>1</sup> ripuā, ku-umba-kalahena duākham, a<sup>o</sup>aucena d<sup>1</sup>ridryam, apathyena rogaā, asanto-e<sup>a</sup> a tā-<sup>a</sup>¹, vyasanena vi-ayaā vardhate //

Vocabulary: Indu = the Moon. ~Āg<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>= amorousness. R<sup>1</sup>ga= attachment. Vinaya = modesty. Ny<sup>1</sup>ya= justice. Auctyā= propriety. Aud<sup>1</sup>rya= generosity. K<sup>o</sup>am<sup>1</sup>= forgiveness. Kalaha= quarrel. Duā<sup>o</sup>lat<sup>1</sup>=proneness to evil behaviour. A<sup>o</sup>auca= impurity. Apathyā= unwholesome (food or conduct). Asanto-a= dissatisfaction. Vyasana= addiction.. Vi-aya=sexual urge. Vardhate = Pre. 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. of the root vādh (=to grow, to increase, to augment).

with each of the phrases, we can formulate as many independent sentences, e.g., Suvacanena maitri vardhate/ Indu-darśanena samudraā vardhate /

Satpuru-aā paropak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>vatarati / Suvar<sup>a</sup>a, par<sup>1</sup>la<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ya t<sup>1</sup>pa-t<sup>1</sup>an<sup>1</sup>dika, sahate / Aguruā para-saurabhy<sup>1</sup>ya d<sup>1</sup>ha, sahate / Karpōra, para-saugandhy<sup>1</sup>ya mardana, sahate / Candana, para-t<sup>1</sup>popa॥ntaye ghar-a<sup>a</sup>a, sahate / Kastōrik<sup>1</sup> para-patra-bha<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>-kĀte kartana, sahate / T<sup>1</sup>mbōla, para-raj<sup>1</sup>ya carva<sup>a</sup>a, sahate / Dadhi par<sup>1</sup>rtha, vilo<sup>1</sup>ana, sahate / Mañji-<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup> para-vastra-rañjan<sup>1</sup>ya ku--ana-kha<sup>a</sup>an<sup>1</sup>ni sahate / Soryaā par<sup>1</sup>rtham eva udgacchati, Jaladharaā paropak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>yaiva var-ati / Sarit<sup>1</sup>ā par<sup>1</sup>rtham eva vahanti / VĀk-<sup>1</sup>ā paropak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>rtham eva phalanti /

In the above sentences, the nouns in the Nominative and Dative Cases are used.

Coalescence: paropak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ya+avatarati (a+a=') / par<sup>1</sup>rham+eva (m+e=me) / paropak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ya+eva (a+e=ai) /

Vocabulary: Para= other. Upak<sup>1</sup>ra= doing good, benevolence. Alaj k<sup>1</sup>ra = decoration. T<sup>1</sup>pa= heat, grief. T<sup>1</sup>ana + <sup>1</sup>di= beating, and etc.. Sahate = 3rd Per. Sing of the root sah (1. . 'to suffer'. Saurabhy<sup>1</sup>= saugandhya=making fragrant, scenting. D<sup>1</sup>ha= burning. Upa॥nti = calming. Ghar-a<sup>a</sup>a= rubbing, friction. Mardana = pounding, messaging. Patra-bha<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup> = picture designs (drawn on various limbs for decoration). KĀte (ind.)= for the sake of. Kartana= cutting. Raj<sup>1</sup>ga = colouring. Vastra-rañjana= dying cloth. Carva<sup>a</sup>a = Chewing. Vilo<sup>1</sup>ana= mathana= hurning. Ku--ana = beating, thrashing. Khan<sup>1</sup>ana= breaking, crushing. Udgacchati= 3rd. Per. Sing. of the root ud+gam (gacch, 1 P.) 'to rise'. Var-ti = 3rd Per. Sing. of the root vĀ- (1 P.) 'to rain'.

Tasm<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>tmanaā<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>॥aā sambhōtaā / ,k<sup>1</sup>॥d<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>yuā / V<sup>1</sup>yor agniā / Agner<sup>1</sup>paā / Adbhyaā pĀthiv<sup>1</sup> / Pāthivy<sup>1</sup>ā o-adhayaā / O-adhibhya annam / Ann<sup>1</sup>t puru-aā / Sa v<sup>1</sup> e-a puru-o 'nna-rasamayaā /

Hari (m.) = God Vi-<sup>a</sup>u

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra./Nom.	hariā	har	harayaā
Sa, ./Voc.	hare	har	harayaā
Dvi./Acc.	harim	har	har
TĀ./Instr.	hari <sup>a</sup> 1	haribhy <sup>1</sup> m	haribhiā
Cat./Dat.	haraye	haribhy <sup>1</sup> m	haribhyaā
Pañ./Abl.	hareā	haribhy <sup>1</sup> m	haribhyaā
।a-/Gen.	hareā	haryoā	har <sup>a</sup> 1m
Sap./Loc.	harau	haryoā	hari-u

Sth<sup>1</sup>a u (m.) = God ~iva

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra./Nom.	sth <sup>1</sup> a uā	sth <sup>1</sup> a Ø	sth <sup>1</sup> a avaā
Sa, ./Voc.	sth <sup>1</sup> a o	sth <sup>1</sup> a Ø	sth <sup>1</sup> a avaā
Dvi./Acc.	sth <sup>1</sup> a um	sth <sup>1</sup> a Ø	sth <sup>1</sup> a Øn
TĀ./Instr.	sth <sup>1</sup> a un <sup>1</sup>	sth <sup>1</sup> a ubhy <sup>1</sup> m	sth <sup>1</sup> a ubhiā
Cat./Dat.	sth <sup>1</sup> a ave	sth <sup>1</sup> a ubhy <sup>1</sup> m	sth <sup>1</sup> a ubhyaā
Pañ./Abl.	sth <sup>1</sup> a oā	sth <sup>1</sup> a ubhy <sup>1</sup> m	sth <sup>1</sup> a ubhyaā
।a-/Gen.	sth <sup>1</sup> a oā	sth <sup>1</sup> a voā	sth <sup>1</sup> a Øn <sup>1</sup> m
Sap./Loc.	sth <sup>1</sup> a au	sth <sup>1</sup> a voā	sth <sup>1</sup> a u-u

Here, the apparent difference between the forms of these two nouns is that while in the case of Hari the final vowel i is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent e, and being coalesced with the following vowel they are changed to ay. And, in the Gen. pl. the n changed to <sup>a</sup>. In the case of the noun Sth<sup>1</sup>a u the final vowel u is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent o, and being coalesced with the following vowel they are changed to av.

Now, sing aloud rhythmically the following verses, trying to grasp their meanings:

Pañchbhiā saha gantavya, sth<sup>1</sup>tavya, pañchbhiā saha / Pañchbhiā saha vaktavya, na duākha, pañchbhiā saha //

Herein, the nouns in the Nominative and Instrumental are used, and with every phrase, the verb vardhate is implied. By joining it

Madhu (neu.) = honey.

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra./Nom	madhuā	madhØ	madhavaā
Sa, ./Voc.	madho	madhØ	madhavaā
Dvi./Acc.	madhum	madhØ	madhavaā
TÅ./Instr.	madhn <sup>1</sup>	madhubhy <sup>1m</sup>	madhubhiā
Cat./Dat.	madhne	madhubhy <sup>1m</sup>	madhubhyaā
Pañ./Abl.	madhunaā	madhubhy <sup>1m</sup>	madhubhyaā
।a-/Gen.	madhunaā	madhunoā	madhōn <sup>1m</sup>
Sap./Loc.	madhuni	madhunoā	madhu-u

On comparing these forms, we find that the difference is much more in the forms of the Nominative, Vocative and the Accusative cases. The forms in the Instrumental are similar. The dual and plural forms of the Dative, Ablative, Genitive and the Locative cases, too, are similar. But the singular forms of these four cases are slightly different from each other, as between gurave and madhne, guroā and madhunaā, gurau and madhuni. From the point of view of grammatical analysis, the final u of guru is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a vowel o, before terminations of these cases and it coalesces with them. Thus, guru+e=guro+e(Dat.)=gur-av+e=gurave / guru+as (Abl. & Gen.)=guro+as=guro-s (by elision of a) guroā / guru+i=guro+i=gura (o>a) + i (e>au)=gurau. But in the case the word madhu, the num-<sup>1</sup>gama (i.e., n) is added before these cases terminations. Thus, madh+n+n<sup>1</sup> (Instr.)=madhun<sup>1</sup> / madhu+n+e(Dat.)=madhune / madhu+n+as (Abl.-Gen.) = madhunaā / madhu+n+i=madhni. This Pa<sup>a</sup>inian analysis is for subtle logic of the grammatical understanding.

Now, let us compare and contrast the forms of the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta (mas.) nouns with those of the u-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta (mas.) nouns:

In the above sentences, the nouns in the Ablative and Nominative are used, and the verb sambhōtaā in all them, but the last one is implied; in the last one the verb bhavati, or asti, or vartate is implied.

Vocabulary: , tmanaā= Abl. Sing. of <sup>1</sup>tman (m.) =from the Self. V<sup>1</sup>yoā=Abl, Sing. of v<sup>1</sup>yu (m.)= from the wind. Agneā=Abl. Sing. of agni (m.) = from the fire. Adbhyaā= Abl. Sing. of ap (f.)= from the waters. PÅthivy<sup>1ā</sup>= Abl. Sing. of pÅthiv (f.)= from the earth. O-adhibhyaā= Abl. Sing. of O-adhi (f.)= from the plants. Ann<sup>1t</sup>= Abl. Sing. of anna (n.) = from grains. Rasa (m.)= juice.

Coalescence: *Tasm<sup>1t</sup>+<sup>1</sup>tmanaā (-t+<sup>1</sup>-=-d<sup>1</sup>) / <sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>¶<sup>1</sup>t+v<sup>1</sup>yuā (t+v=dv) / In V<sup>1</sup>yoā+agniā and Agneā+<sup>1</sup>paā (oā+a=ora, ea+<sup>1</sup>=er<sup>1</sup>) / PÅthivy<sup>1ā</sup>+o-adhayaā (<sup>1</sup>ā+o= <sup>1</sup>o) / O-adhayaā+ annam (aā+a=a) / Puru-aā + anna-rasamaya (aā+a=o)/*

Sukhasya mØla, dharmaā / Dharmasya mØlam arthaā / Arthasya mØla, r<sup>1</sup>jyam / R<sup>1</sup>jyasya mØla indriya-jayaā / Indriya-jayasya mØla, vinayaā / Vinayasya mØla, vÅddhopasev<sup>1</sup> / VÅddhopasev<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup> mØla, vijñ<sup>1</sup>nam / Vijñ<sup>1</sup>nena<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup>na, samp<sup>1</sup>dayet /

Coalescence: MØlam+ arthaā (-m+a=-ma-) / - mØlam+ indriya- (-mi-) / -sev<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā+mØlam (-<sup>1</sup>ā+m-=<sup>1</sup> m-) / Vijñ<sup>1</sup>nena+<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup>nam+sam-(a+<sup>1</sup>=<sup>1</sup>, am+sa=a, sa). -sev<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā+mØlam (<sup>1</sup>ā+m<sup>1</sup>=<sup>1</sup> m<sup>0</sup>) /

Vocabulary: MØlam = Root, source, cause. Våddhopasev<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā= Gen. Sing. of the compound noun vÅddhopasev<sup>1</sup> (f.)= Of the service to aged people. , tmanaā =Gen. Sing. of the noun <sup>1</sup>tman (m.)= Of the Self. Samp<sup>1</sup>dayet= Causal Potential 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. of the root sam+pad (4 ,)= One should accomplish.

Compounds: R<sup>1</sup>jya-mØlam =r<sup>1</sup>jyasya+mØlam /Indriya-jayaā = Indriy<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, jayaā / VÅddhopasev<sup>1</sup> = vÅddhasya upasev<sup>1</sup> /

Nakula-sarpayoå, jala-vaiñv'narayoå, deva-daityayoå, s'rameya-m'rij'rayoå, si, ha-gajayoå, vy'ghra-gavoå, k'ka-ghøkayoå, pa-a@ita-mØrkhayoå, pativrat'-svairi-ayoå, sajjana-durjanayoå sahaja, vaira, bhavati /

Divasa-r'tryoå, sØrya-khadyotaylor, ha, sa-bakayor, hasti-gardhabhayoå, si, ha-ñg'layoå, r'ja-raj;kayoå, tath' samyaktva-mithy'tvayor mahad antara, bhavati /

In the sentences of both the above paragraphs, the Genitive Dual forms of the compound nouns are used, and, after every form in the dual in the first paragraph, the verbal phrase sahaja, vaira, bhavati is implied, while after those in the second paragraph, the verbal phrase mahad antara, bhavati is implied. On repeating these verbal phrases, respectively, in the sentences of the respective paragraphs, we can formulate as many independent sentences as there are dual forms, e.g., Nakula-sarpayoå sahaja, vaira, bhavati / Divasa-r'tryoå mahad antara, bhavati / (=There is a great difference between the day and the night.) and so on.

Coalescence: -r'tryoå + mahat (-oå + ma = orma). Mahat + antaram (t+a=da).

Vocabulary: Nakula (m.) = mongoose. Sarpa (m.) = snake. Vaiñv'nara (m.) = fire. Daitya (m.) = demon. S'rameya (m.) = dog. M'rij'ra (m.) = cat. Si, ha (m.) = lion. Gaja (m.) = hastin (m.) = elephant. Vy'ghra (m.) = tiger. Gau (m.) = bull. K'ka (m.) = crow. Ghøka (m.) = owl. Pativrati (f.) = chaste woman. Svairi-a (f.) = wanton, unchaste woman. Sahaja (mf.) = natural. Vaira (n.) = enmity. Khadyota (m.) = glow-worm. Ha, sa (m.) = swan. Baka

Compounds: Nakula-sarpayoå = nakulaå ca sarpaå ca nakula-sarpau, tayoå / Jala-vaiñv'narayoå = Jala, ca vaiñv'naraå ca nakula-vaiñv'naraau, tayoå / Vy'ghra-gavoå = vy'ghraå ca gauå ca vy'ghra-gavau, tayoå / Pativrati'-svairi-ayoå = Pativrati' ca svairi-a ca, tayoå / Divasa-r'tryoå = divasaå ca r'tr' ca, tayoå / Samyaktva-mithy'vayoå = samyaktva, ca mithy'tva, ca, tayoå /, and so on.

in the dual forms of the Nominative, Locative and Accusative cases, the medial one is long in the plural forms of those cases.

Here it should also be remembered that the forms of the popular neuter words like ak-i (=eye), asthi (=bone) and sakthi (=thigh) are also declined in accordance with those of the noun dadhi, e.g., in Instr. Sing. ak-a^1/asthn^1/sakthn^1, in Dat. Sing. ak-a^a/e/asthne/ sakthne, in Abl. and Gen. Du. ak-a^oå/asthnoå/ sakthnoå, in Gen. Pl. ak-a^1m/asthn^1m/sakthn^1m. Since this type of forms were popular in the usage in Sanskrit, P1^a ini justified them grammatically by showing them by way of the exception to the general rule.

The difference between the masculine and the neuter forms of the i-k'ri^nta nouns is limited to those of the Nominative, Vocative and Accusative cases only. The Vocative Singular and those of all other cases are similarly declined, as for instance:

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra./Nom.	hari (m.)/v'ri (n.)	har (m.)/v'ri-a (n.)	harayaå (m.)/v'ri-a (n.)
Sa, ./Voc.	hare (m.)/v're (n.)	har (m.)/v'ri-a (n.)	harayaå (m.)/v'ri-a (n.)
Dvi./Acc.	harim (m.)/v'ri (n.)	har (m.)/v'ri-a (n.)	haran (m.)/v'ri-a (n.)

Now, let us compare and contrast the forms of the u-k'ri^nta nouns guru (mas.) and madhu (neu.):

Guru (mas.) = preceptor/teacher.

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pra./Nom.	guruå	gurØ	guravaå
Sa, ./Voc.	guro	gurØ	guravaå
Dvi./Acc.	gurum	gurØ	gurØn
TÅ./Instr.	guru^1	gurubhy^1m	gurubhiå
Cat./Dat.	gurave	gurubhy^1m	gurubhyaå
Pañ./Abl.	guroå	gurubhy^1m	gurubhyaå
'a-/Gen.	guroå	gurvoå	gurØ^1m
Sap./Loc.	gurau	gurvoå	guru-u

Pañ./Abl.	muneā	munibhy <sup>1m</sup>	munibhiā
।a-/Gen.	muneā	munyoā	mun̄n <sup>1m</sup>
Sap./Loc.	munau	munyoā	muni-u

Pati (mas.)

	Sing.	Dual	Plu.
Pra./Nom.	patiā	pat»	patayaā
Sa. .-/Voc.	pate	pat»	patayaā
Dvi./Acc.	patim	pat»	patayaā
Tā./Instr.	paty <sup>1</sup>	patibhy <sup>1m</sup>	patibhiā
Catu./Dat.	patye	patibhy <sup>1m</sup>	patibhiā
Pañ./Abl.	patyuā	patibhy <sup>1m</sup>	patibhiā
।a-/Gen.	patyuā	patyoā	pat̄n <sup>1m</sup>
Sap./Loc.	patyau	patyoā	pati-u

Note: Among the forms of these two i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns in masculine gender there is no difference in the case of the endings in the dual and plural numbers. And even in the singular, there is only slight difference between the endings of the forms of the cases from the Instrumental to the Locative, as between munin<sup>1</sup> and Paty<sup>1</sup>, munaye and patye, muneā and patyuā, munau and patyau. But when the noun pati occurs as the last member in a compound, its forms are found to be just like those of the noun muni, as for instance in the case of the compound noun bhōpati (=huvaā pati=master of the earth=king). Thus, we have munin<sup>1</sup> and bhōpatin<sup>1</sup>, munaye and bhōpataye, muneā and bhōpateā, munau

LESSON 11
(Ek<sup>1</sup>daflåå P<sup>1</sup>-haå)

Read the following Sanskrit sentences aloud, trying to grasp their meanings:

Kup<sup>1</sup>trasya vidy<sup>1</sup> vĀth<sup>1</sup>, kuʃʃi-ya vrata, vĀth<sup>1</sup>, dhan<sup>1</sup>©hye d<sup>1</sup>na, vĀth<sup>1</sup>, Ø-are upta, vĀth<sup>1</sup>, munaye 1bhara<sup>a</sup>ni vĀth<sup>1</sup>, andhasya prek-a<sup>a</sup>yaka, vĀth<sup>1</sup>, badhirasya g»ta, vĀth<sup>1</sup>, madyape-uo sadupade-o vĀth<sup>1</sup> bhavati /

Par<sup>1</sup>rthe mara<sup>a</sup>a, ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghya, , d<sup>1</sup>ne d<sup>1</sup>ridrya, ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghya, , tapasi kÅf<sup>1</sup>at<sup>1</sup> ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghy<sup>1</sup>, vidy<sup>1</sup>rthe laghutva, ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghya, , pathikopabhoge phal<sup>1</sup>ni ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghy<sup>1</sup>ni, paropabhoge ta©gasya ʃʃo-aā ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghyo bhavati /

In the sentences of the first paragraph, the forms of the respective nouns in the Nominative, Dative, Genitive and Locative are used, and with every phrase the verb bhavati is implied. By repeating it with each phrase, new independent sentences can be formed.

In the sentences of the second paragraph, the forms of the adjective ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghya have been modified in accordance with the gender and the number in which the subject is used. The implied verb bhavati has to be modified in according to the number in which the subject is used.

Vocabulary: VĀth<sup>1</sup> (ind.) = useless. Ø-ara = salty land. Uptam = that which is sowed. Prek-a<sup>a</sup>yakam = drama. Badhira = a deaf person. Madyapa = drunkard. Par<sup>1</sup>rthe = for the sake of others. Mara<sup>a</sup>am = death. ʃʃi<sup>1</sup>ghya = worthy, commendable. D<sup>1</sup>ridryam = poverty. kÅf<sup>1</sup>at<sup>1</sup> = leanness, emaciation, slenderness. Laghutvam = smallness, littleness, levity. Pathikopabhoga = eating by the travelers. ʃʃo-aā = being dried up.

Compounds: Kup<sup>1</sup>tram = kutsitam (= contemptible, censurable, low, dirty) p<sup>1</sup>tram (= fit, worthy, deserving person). Kuʃʃi-yaā =

kutsitaā, tasmai. ¶i-yaā = censurable disciple, student. Dhan<sup>1</sup>hye=dhanena 1<sup>o</sup>hyaā, tasmin= (rich, wealthy). Madyapaā=madya, pibati iti asau. Sadupade॥ā = samyak upade॥ā = good advice. Par<sup>1</sup>rthe = parasya arthe (=for the sake of). Pathikopabhoge = pathikaiā upabhogaā (= for use, enjoyment), tasmin.

New Forms: Uptam= Nom. Sing. of the neu. P.P.P. upta derived from the root Vap (1 U.) 'to sow, scatter, weave, cut, shave'. Munaye= Dat. Sing. of the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun Muni (m.). Tapasi = Loc. Sing. of the sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun Tapas (n.). Sarasaā = Gen. Sing. of the sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun Saras (n.).

Note: In the lessons so far we find that the forms of the 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta and u-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns, in masculine, feminine or neuter gender, such as k-am<sup>1</sup> (fem.), vidy<sup>1</sup> (fem.), kṛti (fem.), duā॥plat<sup>1</sup> (fem.), muni (mas.), siddhi (fem.), ¶uddhi (fem.), tāpti (fem.), upa॥nti (fem.), vā-1 (fem.), mukti (fem.), kulastr<sup>1</sup> (fem.), maitr<sup>1</sup> (fem.), ¶r<sup>1</sup> (fem.), etc., have been used. Out of them we have seen the forms of the 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun Ram<sup>1</sup> (fem.) by way of specimen, in the 8th lesson. Please, recollect them.

Now, let us see and compare the forms the two i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns Muni (mas.) and Pati (mas.), by way of specimen

Muni (mas.)

	Sing.	Dual	Plu.
Pra./Nom.	muniā	mun»	munayaā
Sa, ./Voc.	mune	mun»	munayaā
Dvi./Acc.	munim	mun»	munayaā
Tā./Instr.	munin <sup>1</sup>	munibhy <sup>1</sup> m	munibhiā
Catu./Dat.	munaye	munibhy <sup>1</sup> m	munibhiā

and bhōpatau. Here we find a slight diversion from the general rule. In the Pa<sup>a</sup>inian terminology, the general rule is called the Utsarga and the slight diversion from it, i.e. the option, as the Apav<sup>1</sup>da. Such an apav<sup>1</sup>da is found in the forms from the Tāty<sup>1</sup> to the Saptamī vibhaktis.

Looking from the point of view of grammatical analysis, Muni+<sup>1</sup> (Intr. Sing.) > muni+n+<sup>1</sup>=munin<sup>1</sup> / Here the nu 1gama(i.e. n) is inserted before the case termination <sup>1</sup>. In muni+e (Dat. Sing.) > mune+ e=munay+ e > munaye, the final i vowel of noun muni has been replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>1de॥a (i.e., e), and as per the rules of coalescence e followed by any vowel is replaced by ay. In muni+as (Abl. & Gen. Sing.) > mune+s (by purva-rōpa ek<sup>1</sup>de॥a e+a=e) and then s replaced by visarga (:= å) > muneå / In muni+i (Loc. Sing.) > mune+i (by gu<sup>a</sup>1de॥a) > mune+au (as per sv<sup>1</sup>di-sandhi) > munau. (The gu<sup>a</sup>1de॥a is due to the fact that in the P<sup>a</sup>inian terminology, the terminations of the cases from Dative to Locative Singular, viz., j e, j as, j as, j i, are j it, i.e. having a j as indicatory (it) sound. But in the case of the forms of the noun pati (mas.), pati+<sup>1</sup> > paty+y+<sup>1</sup> (by ya<sup>a</sup>-1de॥a) = paty<sup>1</sup>; pati+as > > paty+us (replacement of a-k<sup>1</sup>ra of the termination) > patyuå (by u-k<sup>1</sup>ra, of s by visarga). In pati+i > paty+i > (by ya<sup>a</sup>1de॥a) > pate+au (as per sv<sup>1</sup>di-sandhi) > paty+au = patyau.

One should remember here that these forms are not formulated and popularized by anybody like a grammarian or so. Language is inherited from the mother and other elders. Grammarian's task is only to offer an analytical outlook on the basis of a general rules and their exceptions, by separating the base, the adjuncts, the termination, and the various types of the internal modifications of vowels and consonants as per the rules of coalescence applicable in the situation. This analytical outlook is based on linguistic logic, and is meant rather for a sort of logical understanding, than for generating a headache. The important point to be noted is to recognize the forms, keep them and their implications mind, use them for expressing particular meaningful ideas, and understand the meanings when such usages are found in literature, and to translate accordingly.

Recite aloud rhythmically the following verses along with their Sanskrit explanation, trying to grasp their meaning:

*~rutv<sup>1</sup> spā̄-v<sup>1</sup> ca dĀ̄-v<sup>1</sup> ca bhuktv<sup>1</sup> ghr<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup> ca yo naraā /
Na hĀ̄-yati gl<sup>1</sup>yati v<sup>1</sup> sa vijñeyo jitendriyaā //*

Yo naraā ~rutv<sup>1</sup> (=having heard), na hĀ̄-yati (=is not delighted), na gl<sup>1</sup>yati (= is not dejected, does not become cast down), v<sup>1</sup> (=or=nor), sa jitendriyaā vijñeyāā (= should be known as one who has conquered the senses, is self-restrained) /

In this same manner formulate new sentences by using the other usages, viz., spā̄-v<sup>1</sup> (=having touched), dĀ̄-v<sup>1</sup> (=having seen), bhuktv<sup>1</sup> (=having eaten, enjoyed), ghr<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup> (=having smelt).

Vocabulary: ~rutv<sup>1</sup> = ¶rava<sup>a</sup>a, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> / Spā̄-tv<sup>1</sup> = spar¶la, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> / DĀ̄-v<sup>1</sup> = dar¶la, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> / Bhuktv<sup>1</sup> = bhoga, kĀtv<sup>1</sup>, bhojana, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> / Ghr<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup> = ghr<sup>1</sup>ana, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> / Vijñeyāā = vijñ<sup>1</sup>yaā, vijñ<sup>1</sup>tavyaā, jñ<sup>1</sup>tavyaā / Jitendriyaā = jit<sup>1</sup>ni indriy<sup>1</sup>a I yena saā / HĀ̄-yati = har-a, pr<sup>1</sup>pnoti / Gl<sup>1</sup>yati = gl<sup>1</sup>ni, pr<sup>1</sup>pnoti /

Grammatical Forms: HĀ̄-yati = Pre. 3rd Per. Sing. of the verbal root hĀ̄- (4 P. 'to be delighted'). Gl<sup>1</sup>yati = Pre. 3rd Per. Sing. of the verbal root glai (1 P. 'to be despondent'). Vijñeyāā = Nom. Sing. of the Pot. Part. vijñeya derived from the verbal root vi+jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 U. 'to know'), formed by suffixing the termination yat, because the root is prefixed by vi.

*M<sup>1</sup>na, hitv<sup>1</sup> priyo nitya, k<sup>1</sup>ma, jitv<sup>1</sup> sukh» bhavet /
Krodha, hitv<sup>1</sup> nir<sup>1</sup>b<sup>1</sup>dhas tĀ̄-a<sup>1</sup>, jitv<sup>1</sup> na tapyate //*

(Manu-yaā) m<sup>1</sup>na, = garva, (= pride), hitv<sup>1</sup> = tyaktv<sup>1</sup> (=having given up) nitya, = sad<sup>1</sup>-k<sup>1</sup>lam (=for all times, for ever), priyaā=vallabhaā (=beloved, lovable), bhavet (would become)/

LESSON 12 (Dv<sup>1</sup>daſlaā p<sup>1</sup>-haā)

Now, when the forms of the Potential Participles ending in the terminations -aniyar and -yat, being denotative of mere action (bh<sup>1</sup>va-v<sup>1</sup>caka), they serve the same purpose as those ending in the termination -tavyat. And when these forms of the potential participles ending in the above two terminations and derived from the verbal roots, are used adjectival objects in the sentences in the passive voice (karma<sup>a</sup>i), they serve the purpose of the forms ending in the -tavya termination.

The difference between the terminations -tavyat and -tavya is based on that of the accentuation in the archaic Vedic Sanskrit usages in ancient Br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup> works. In the classical Sanskrit, however, this difference has almost disappeared.

Ajñ<sup>1</sup>te-u na viñvasan»yam / N<sup>1</sup>r»u mantra na praka-an»yaā / MØl<sup>1</sup>nup<sup>1</sup>lanena dhana, vyayan»yam / Virodhaā pronmØlan»yaā / Mah<sup>1</sup>jano na vañcan»yaā / Guravo na khedan»y<sup>1</sup>ā / , vañyake karma<sup>a</sup>i na pram<sup>1</sup>daā kara<sup>a</sup>»yaā / SØktam ukta, ripor api na dØ-a<sup>a</sup>»yam / Dhana, bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>-putr<sup>1</sup>dh»na, na vidh<sup>1</sup>n»yam / Ka-<sup>1</sup>e-u puru-a-vrata, na tyajan»yam / A-d<sup>1</sup>na-tapaska, dina, n<sup>1</sup>tiv<sup>1</sup>han»yaam /

Ajñ<sup>1</sup>te-u = ye pØrva, na jñ<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>ā te-u = About those who are unknown; Na viñvasan»yam= vi-v<sup>1</sup>saā na kartavyaā = should not be trusted. N<sup>1</sup>r»u = n<sup>1</sup>r»-jana-samak-a, =to a women, in front of the womanfolk. Mantraā= rahasya-yukt<sup>1</sup> kath<sup>1</sup>= a secret matter. Na praka-an»yaā=should not be revealed. MØl<sup>1</sup>nup<sup>1</sup>lanena= mØlasya =of the principal amount. Anup<sup>1</sup>lanena = rak-a<sup>a</sup>a, kĀtv<sup>1</sup>=having preserved. Dhanam=wealth, property, money. Vyayan»yam=vyayaā kartavyaā=should be spent. Virodhaā=¶atrubh<sup>1</sup>vaā=opposition, conflict. PronmØlan»yaā=prakÅ-a, yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> (= in the best way, by all means), unmØlan»yaā=mØl<sup>1</sup>t ucchedan»yaā=should be rooted out). Mah<sup>1</sup>janaā=jan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, samud<sup>1</sup>yaā= people at large. Na vañcan»yaā = vañcana, kartum na yogyaā= should not be deceived. Guravaā=guru-jan<sup>1</sup>ā=elders, preceptors, teachers. Na kheda»y<sup>1</sup>ā=

kheda-yukt<sup>1</sup>ा na kara<sup>a</sup>्य<sup>1</sup>ा=should not be displeased, made sorrowful.
, va॒yake karma<sup>a</sup>I =yat karma ava॒yā, kartum yogyam, tasmin vi-aye
= in actions that are obligatory. Pram<sup>1</sup>daā= ॑lasyam= laziness. Na
kara<sup>a</sup>्yaā=should not be done. Suktam=good saying, fair words.
Uktam=spoken. Ripoा=॥atru-janasya = of the enemy. Api=even, also, too. Na du-a<sup>a</sup>yam=dolla-pōr<sup>a</sup>am na mantavyam= should not be taken as full of faults. Bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>-putr<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>nam= bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ा (= patny<sup>1</sup>ा),
putr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, ca adh<sup>1</sup>na, yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> = so as to be under the possession of the wife and sons. Na vidh<sup>1</sup>n्yam= vidh<sup>1</sup>na-yukta, na kartavyam= should not be legally stipulated. Ka-॒e-॒u=kAcchre-॒u=p्o<sup>1</sup>-d<sup>1</sup>yaka- paristhiti-॒u= in difficulties, adverse situations. Vratam=niyamaā= a vow. Na tyajan्yam=ty<sup>1</sup>gaā na kartavyaā = should not be given up. A- d<sup>1</sup>na-tapaskam= d<sup>1</sup>nena tapasyay<sup>1</sup> ca h<sup>1</sup>nam= without charity and penance. Dinam=divasaā = day. Na ati-v<sup>1</sup>han्yam= na vyatitavyam= should not be passed.

Grammatical Analysis: Vi-vasaniyam= Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root vi+॒vas (2 P. 'to rely on, put faith in'). Praka-an्yam= Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the adjectival root praka-a. Vyayan्yam = Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root vyay (10 U. 'to expend, bestow). Pronm<sup>0</sup>lan्yāā= Nom. Sing. (Mas.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root pra+ut+m<sup>0</sup>I (10 U. 'to root out'). Rañjan्yāā= Nom. Sing. (Mas.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root rañj (4 U. 'to dye, colour, be pleased, be devoted to, be in love with'). Khedan्yā= Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root khid (4 ., 6 P., 7 . 'to strike, afflict, be depressed, suffer pain, be miserable). Kara<sup>a</sup>्yaā= Nom. Sing. (Mas.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root k<sup>ā</sup> (8 U. 'to do'). D<sup>0</sup>-a<sup>a</sup>्yam = Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root du- (4 P. 'to be wrong, impure') in Causal. Vidh<sup>1</sup>n्yam= Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root vi+dh<sup>1</sup> (3 U. 'to make, to stipulate'). Tyajan्yam = Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root tyaj (1 P. 'to abandon, to give up). Ativ<sup>1</sup>han्yam = Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root = Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Caus. Pot. Par. derived from the verbal root ati+vah (1 U. 'to pass').

ancestors), sv<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup> (=may a blessing rest on, hail! hail to!), alam (=enough, sufficient, adequate, equal to, competent, able), va-॒a- / vau-॒a- (= an exclamation uttered by the sacrificial priest at the end of the sacrificial verse), asti (= it is said, it was in ancient times, they say in olden days) up<sup>1</sup>, ॥u (=lightly muttering), m<sup>A</sup>-<sup>1</sup> (=false, untrue), mithy<sup>1</sup> (=false, useless, in vain, fake), mudh<sup>1</sup> (=false, useless, in vain), pur<sup>1</sup> (=formerly, in ancient times, in olden days), mitha / mitho (=together, mutually, reciprocally, alternately, to or from or with each other, privately, in secret), pr<sup>1</sup>yas (= mostly, generally), abh<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>a</sup>am (= often, again and again), s<sup>1</sup>kam / s<sup>1</sup>rdham (= with, along with, simultaneously), namas = (salutation), dhik (=fie! shame! pshaw!), atha (=now, auspicious beginning), ॑m (=yes, alright), m<sup>1</sup> / m<sup>1</sup>i (=no, not, lest). These indeclinable words have been put under the sub-list called , K<sup>ā</sup>ti-ga<sup>a</sup>a under the main list *Svar<sup>1</sup>di-*ga<sup>a</sup>a.

But, the following indeclinable words, viz., ca (=and), v<sup>1</sup> (=or), aha (=Oh!), h<sup>1</sup>(= O!), eva (= only, merely), evam (=thus, in this way, in this manner), n<sup>0</sup>nam (= realy, in fact, but), ॥a॒vat (= often, from time to time), yugapat (=once), bh<sup>0</sup>yas (= often, over again), cet (=in case, if), yatra (=where), tatra (=there), kvacit (=somewhere), hanta (=alas!) m<sup>1</sup>i (= no, not, lest), nañ (not), y<sup>1</sup>vat (=as much), t<sup>1</sup>vat (=that much), ॥rau-॒a-, va-॒a-, vau-॒a-, svadh<sup>1</sup>, sv<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>, tath<sup>1</sup>-hi (=for that reason, hence, to the same effect), khalu (=indeed), kila (=it is said), atha, su-॒hu (=well, good), sma (denoting the past tense) have been listed in the *Svar<sup>1</sup>di-*ga<sup>a</sup>a as corresponding to the prefix, case and vowel (upasarga-vibhakti-svara-prati-rōpaka). In the Third K<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> of the Amarako॥a, such indeclinable words have been listed in the verses 240 onwards, in the sub-class called 'N<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>rtha-varga' under the main class 'Avyaya-varga'.

Now, read aloud over again the verses and the prose passage, along with their Sanskrit explanation, trying to grasp the meaning.

---

* For those interested in the Amarako॥a, the Edition published by the Nirnaya Sagar, Bombay (now Mumbai), with the Commentary by Bh<sup>1</sup>nuj्D<sup>0</sup>-ita will be very useful, as it explains every word grammatically in the P<sup>1</sup>arinian manner.

(=when, at which time), tad<sup>1</sup> (=at that time, then), yadi (=if, in case), cet (=if it be proposed that), tarhi (=in that case, then it follows that), etc., are grammatically known as the Indeclinable (avyaya) usages, because they are used without any declensional changes in the context of Gender, Case, Number. And, it is difficult to analyze them grammatically as to their underlying verbal root, noun, base, termination, etc., although as per the outlook of the P<sup>1a</sup>inian system, every verbal root or the nominal base takes some or other termination before they are used in the sentence, but when these are not found actually applied to it, it is technically taken as elided grammatically. Among such Indeclinable usages the Infinitive (tum-anta) words like gantum, are notable as quite different. Such Indeclinable usages were current since ancient times, although, it is almost impossible to trace their original source.

To draw our attention to, and remind us of, this fact, P<sup>1a</sup>ini has used the term 'Nip<sup>1ta</sup>', explained as Nipatanti iti nip<sup>1ta</sup>aā / It means those words in the Sanskrit language that have been just in popular use since time immemorial, and their origin cannot be traced nor can they be grammatically analyzed. He has listed all such words in the Svar<sup>1di-ga<sup>a</sup>a</sup> of his Ga<sup>a</sup>a-p<sup>1</sup>-ha. Some of them are: svar (=heaven), antar (=in, inside), pr<sup>1tar</sup> (= in the morning), uccaiā (= from above, aloud), n̄craiā (=from under, below, in a low tone), ¶anaiā (=slowly), Āte (=without) yugapat (=simultaneously), r<sup>1t</sup> (= from a distance, near, immediately), pāthak (-=separate, different), hyas (= yesterday), ¶vas (=tomorrow), r<sup>1trau</sup> (=at night), s<sup>1yam</sup> (= in the evening), ciram (=for a long time), »at (=little, slightly, partly), jo-am (=quiet, silent), tō-»m (= silently, quietly), bahis (=outside), svayam (=by one's self, of one's own accord, voluntarily), vāth<sup>1</sup> (=uselessly, in vain, fruitlessly), naktam (=at night). nañ (=negation, a negative particle), hetau = because of, for the reason that, by reason of), -vat (=endowed with, possessing, like), tiras (=hidden, out of sight), antar<sup>1</sup> (=in the middle, in between), antare<sup>a</sup>a = without, in the absence of, in between, about), sahas<sup>1</sup> (=suddenly), vin<sup>1</sup> (=without, in the absence of), n<sup>1n<sup>1</sup></sup> (= various, many), svasti (=well-being, fortune, luck, success, prosperity), svadh<sup>1</sup> (=self-position, self-power, inherent power, be it offered to the spirits of the deceased

Saty<sup>1n</sup> na pramaditavyam / Dhamrm<sup>1n</sup> na pra-madi tavyam / Kuñjal<sup>1n</sup> na pra-maditavyam / Bhōteā na pra-maditavyam / Sv<sup>1dhy<sup>1</sup>ya-pravacan<sup>1bhy<sup>1</sup></sup></sup>, na pra-maditavyam/ Deva-pitĀk<sup>1ry<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, na pra-maditavyam / Y<sup>1ni</sup> y<sup>1ny</sup> anavady<sup>1ni</sup> karm<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>i t<sup>1ni</sup> sevitavy<sup>1ni</sup>, no itar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>i / Y<sup>1ny</sup> asm<sup>1ka</sup>, su-carit<sup>1ni</sup> t<sup>1ni</sup> tvayop<sup>1sy<sup>1</sup>ni</sup>, no itar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>i /</sup></sup></sup></sup>

Saty<sup>1t</sup> = satya-p<sup>1lan<sup>1t</sup></sup> (=from Truth-speaking) Na pra-maditavyam = pram<sup>1daā</sup> na kartavyaā = should not neglect, not be indifferent to, heedless about. Dharm<sup>1t</sup> = dharmaśya p<sup>1lan<sup>1t</sup></sup> = from observing religious duty. Kuñjal<sup>1t</sup> = maj gal<sup>1t</sup>= kaly<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>t</sup>=from the welfare. Bhōteā = aiñvary<sup>1t</sup> = well being, prosperity, fortune. Sv<sup>1dhy<sup>1</sup>ya-pravacan<sup>1bhy<sup>1</sup>m</sup></sup> = svasya dainikaā ¶<sup>1stra-p<sup>1</sup>-haā sv<sup>1dhy<sup>1</sup>yaā, ¶<sup>1stra-vacan<sup>1n<sup>1</sup></sup></sup></sup></sup>, vivara<sup>a<sup>1</sup>rtham upade¶laā</sup> pravacanam, t<sup>1bhy<sup>1</sup>m</sup> = from the daily studies and oral exposition. Deva-pitĀk<sup>1ry<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m</sup> = deva-k<sup>1rya</sup>, homaā, pitĀ-k<sup>1rya</sup>, ¶r<sup>1ddha, pitĀ-tarpa<sup>a<sup>1</sup>a, ca, t<sup>1bhy<sup>1</sup>m</sup></sup></sup> = from the worship pf gods and of the manes. An-avady<sup>1ni</sup> = a-nindy<sup>1ni</sup> = prast<sup>1ni</sup> = irreproachable, faultless. Sevitavy<sup>1ni</sup> = should be pursued. Itar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>I</sup> = any<sup>1ni</sup> = others. Su-carit<sup>1ni</sup> = su-hu<sup>1cara<sup>a<sup>1</sup>ni</sup></sup> = good actions, conduct. Up<sup>1sy<sup>1</sup>ni</sup> = should be worshipped, respectfully followed.

Coalescence: saty<sup>1t</sup>+na, dharm<sup>1</sup>+na, (t+n=nn) / Y<sup>1ni</sup>+anavady<sup>1ni</sup> (i+a=ya) / Y<sup>1ni</sup>+asm<sup>1kam</sup> (i+a=ya)

Verbal Forms: Pramaditavyam = Nom. Sing. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. of the verbal root pra+mad (4 P. 'to neglect, be indifferent to'). Sevitavy<sup>1ni</sup> = Nom. Pl. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. of the verbal root sev (1 . 'to pursue'). Up<sup>1sy<sup>1</sup>ni = Nom. Pl. (Neu.) of the Pot. Par. of the verbal root up+s (2 . 'to worship').</sup>

In the English syntactical construction the Case terminations are not suffixed to the nouns or adjectives, as for instance in ' to the black cat', 'from the black cat', 'of the black cat'. But in Sanskrit sentence construction the Case terminations are suffixed to both the substantives and the adjectives, as for instance, Karm<sup>1a<sup>1</sup>i</sup> up<sup>1sy<sup>1</sup>ni /</sup>

It is useful and convenient to remember the following verse that incorporates the above linguistic usage:

Yal-li<sub>i</sub> ga, yad-vacana, y<sup>1</sup> ca vibhaktir viſle-yasya /

Tal-li<sub>i</sub> ga, tad-vacana, s<sup>1</sup> ca vibhaktir viſle-a<sup>a</sup>asya //

Sanskāta-v<sup>1</sup>kya-racan<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, viſle-ya, (substantive) yasmin (=in which) li<sub>i</sub> ge (=gender) bhavati, tasminn eva (=in that very) li<sub>i</sub> ge viſle-a<sup>a</sup>a, (=adjective) bhavati / yasmin vacane (=number) viſle-ya, bhavati, tasminn eva vacane viſle-a<sup>a</sup>a, (=adjective) bhavati / Yasya, (=in which) vibhaktau (=case) viſle-ya, (substantive) bhavati tasminn eva vibhaktau viſle-a<sup>a</sup>a, (=adjective) bhavati / Eva, -rōpe<sup>a</sup>a (=in this form) viſle-ya, sadaiva (=always) li<sub>i</sub> ga-vi-aye (in the matter of gender) vacana-vi-aye (=in the matter of number) vibhakti-vi-aye (=in the matter of case) ca vi-e-yaṁ anusarati (=follows).

Now, read aloud the following sentences,
trying to grasp their meanings:

Nirdhano yady uccas tad<sup>1</sup> stambhaā / Yadi kharvas tad<sup>1</sup> v<sup>1</sup>manaā / Yadi gauras tad<sup>1</sup> "ma-v<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> / Yadi kĀ-aas tad<sup>1</sup> vanecara-bhillaā / Yady alp<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ras tad<sup>1</sup> mandaā / Yadi bahv-<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ras tad<sup>1</sup> k-<sup>1</sup>ra-kĀt / Yady 1©ambar» tad<sup>1</sup> vi-aā / Yadi vinay» tad<sup>1</sup> bhik-<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>raā / Yadi mita-bh<sup>1</sup>» tad<sup>1</sup> mōko mōrkha॥ ca / Yadi v<sup>1</sup>gm» tad<sup>1</sup> jalp<sup>1</sup>kaā / Yadi ॥am» tad<sup>1</sup> bhvru raj ka॥ ca / Yadi pral<sup>1</sup>p» ॥0ras tad<sup>1</sup> dh<sup>1</sup>-» v<sup>1</sup>hakaā / Ki, bahun<sup>1</sup> ? Nirdhanasya gu<sup>a</sup> api do-<sup>1</sup> ga<sup>a</sup>yante / Evam eva sevakasy<sup>1</sup>pi / Evam eva vadhu-janasy<sup>1</sup>pi /

Coalescence: Yadi +uccaā (i+u=yu). Similarly, in Yadi + alp<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā (i+a=ya), yadi= 1©ambar» / Here, there is ya<sup>a</sup>-sandhi, i.e., the change of i to y when followed by a dissimilar vowel. Uccaā+tad<sup>1</sup> (ā+t=st)/ Similarly, in alp<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā+tad<sup>1</sup>, kharvaā+tad<sup>1</sup>, gauraā+tada, kĀ-aā+tad<sup>1</sup>, alp<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā+tad<sup>1</sup>, bahv-<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā+tad<sup>1</sup>, ॥0raā+tad<sup>1</sup>, (ā+t= st). Here, the visarga (:) is changed to s when followed by t. Tad<sup>1</sup>+<sup>1</sup>ma-v<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> (1+1=1), merger of both, and elision of the sub-sequent 1 shown by avagraha in the Devan<sup>1</sup>gar, and double apostrophe in the Roman scripts). Mōrkhaā+ ca (ā+c=॥c)/ Similarly, in raj kaā+ca / Here, the visarga (:) followed by c is changed to ॥. Gu<sup>a</sup>ā+api (-iā+a=-i a-) / Here, the visarga (:) receded by i and followed by a is elided.

Now, compare the words separated above with the same

+i+tum, and grah+i+tum. DĀ॥ > dra (by change of Ā to its gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent ra)+tum> -um (by change of ॥ to - and t to -). Av+g<sup>1</sup>h > gahi (by addition of the id-<sup>1</sup>gama) +tum. Thus, we should note here that when the infinitive termination tum is applied, the following modifications take place in the verbal root, viz., the final short vowel is replaced by its corresponding gu<sup>a</sup>a vowel, the id-<sup>1</sup>gama (i.e. the vowel -i-) is added after it in case it is a set one, the short vowel is replaced by its corresponding long one, and as per the rules of internal coalescence of the changes of c to k, the of the dental consonants are replaced by its corresponding retroflex ones.

Now, understand: Since the tum-anta (Infinitive) usages are indeclinable, they no not undergo any changes of Tense, Case, Number, in relation with the Person and Number of the verb. And, since this -tum termination is the one included under the KĀd-anta group, they are also known by the term Hetv-artha-kĀdanta, or Dh<sup>1</sup>tu-s<sup>1</sup>dhita hetu-v<sup>1</sup>caka kĀrdant avyaya, i.e an indeclinable derived from a verbal root and denoting the sense of purpose or intention.

In the *P<sup>1</sup>a*iniam system such words as do not undergo the modifications in accordance with the Tense, Person and Number, and are used in the same form, are known by the term 'Avyaya' (=that which does not change.) To remember this the following verse is popular in the tradition of the Sanskrit grammarians:

*SadĀ॥a, tri-i li<sub>i</sub> ge-i sarv<sup>1</sup>su ca vibhakti-i /
Vacane-i ca sarve-i yan na vyeti tad avyayam //*

Tri-i li<sub>i</sub> nge-i yat, sadĀ॥am (=eka-rōpa, =sam<sup>1</sup>na, ), bhavati, sarv<sup>1</sup>su ca vibhakti-i yat sadĀ॥a, bhavati, eva, li<sub>i</sub> ga-bhede 'pi, vibhakti-bhede 'pi, vacana-bhede 'pi yat pada, na vyeti (=vyaya, =pari-vartana, , na pr<sup>1</sup>pnoti) tad pada, tasmat eva k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>1t, avyayam (=avyaya-saṅja, ) kathyate ity-arthāā /

In Sanskrit, the words, ca (=and), iti (=viz., that means), eva (=only, merely, itself), api (=also), ataā (=therefore, hence, for this reason), tataā (=thence, for that reason), yath<sup>1</sup> (=just as, as for example, for instance), tath<sup>1</sup> (=like that, in that way, moreover), yad<sup>1</sup>

V<sup>1</sup>manaā ̄mra-phal<sup>1</sup>ni grah<sup>1</sup>itu, katha, ̄laknoti ? Andhaā r̄pa, dra-̄-u, katha, prabhavati ? Badhiro v<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>-nin<sup>1</sup>da, ̄rotu, katha, p<sup>1</sup>rayati ? Paj guā t̄rth<sup>1</sup>ny avag<sup>1</sup>hitu, katha, ̄laknoti ? P<sup>1</sup>-̄aā saulum<sup>1</sup>rye sth<sup>1</sup>tu, katha, prabhavati ? K<sup>1</sup>kaā ha, saiā sama, sth<sup>1</sup>tu, katha, p<sup>1</sup>rayati ? Mōrkhaā pa<sup>1</sup>̄cīte-̄u sth<sup>1</sup>tu, katha, ̄laknoti ?

Atra sarve-̄O v<sup>1</sup>kye-̄u prān̄ā / Te-̄, na-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>rtha, 'na ̄laknoti', 'na prabhavati', 'na p<sup>1</sup>rayati' iti v<sup>1</sup> pratuyuttara, spa-̄-am eva / V<sup>1</sup>manaā=dwarf. ̄mra-phal<sup>1</sup>ni=mango fruits. Grah<sup>1</sup>tum= in order to catch. Katham = how ? ̄aknoti= prabhavati=p<sup>1</sup>rayati= is able to, is capable of. Andhaā= blind person. R̄pam= a form, beauty. Dra-̄-um = to see, is capable of seeing. Badhiraā = deaf person. V<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>-nin<sup>1</sup>dam= a resonant sound. ̄rotum= to hear, for hearing. Paj guā= lame person. T̄rth<sup>1</sup>ni= holy river banks. Avag<sup>1</sup>hitum= to take bath, for plunging into. P<sup>1</sup>-̄aā= stone. Saukum<sup>1</sup>rye= in tender condition, St̄h<sup>1</sup>tum= to remain, in order to stay. K<sup>1</sup>kaā=crow. Ha, saiā=(with) swans. Samam = in company of, (be) with. Mōrkhaā=Fool, stupid person. Pa<sup>1</sup>̄cīte-̄u = among the learned persons, scholars.

Now note: In the above verse and the sentences of the paragraph, since the termination tum is suffixed in the words upakartum, vaktum, kartum, n<sup>1</sup>-ayitum, pras<sup>1</sup>dhayitum, unnetum, dra-̄-um, ̄rotum, avag<sup>1</sup>hitum, and sth<sup>1</sup>tum, they are called the tum-anta (=the indeclinable words ending in the termination tum) in the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>inian system. They are the Infinitive forms denoting the sense of a cause or purpose, expressed by the expressions, 'in order to', 'for', 'to', in English.

Now, let us look at these infinitives from the view point of grammatical analysis: Upa+k<sup>1</sup>Å (>kar)+tum (here, the final vowel Å of the verbal root k<sup>1</sup>Å has been replaced by its gu<sup>1</sup>a equivalent ar). Vac+tum (the final consonant c of the verbal root vac has been changed to k). N<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ay (causal of the verbal root na<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>+i+tum, the i<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ama has been added after the root before the termination). Ut+ni (>ne, by change of i to its gu<sup>1</sup>a equivalent e)+tum, the coalescence t+n=nn. Similarly, pra+s<sup>1</sup>dhay (causal of the verbal root s<sup>1</sup>dh

coalesced in the above sentences and find out the relevant instances from them.

Vocabulary: Stambhaā= a pillar. Kharvaā= dwarfish. Gauraā= white. ̄ma-v<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>= One suffering from constipation. K<sup>1</sup>-̄aā= black. Vane-cara-bhilla= an aborigine living in the forest. Alp<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup>raā= One eating less. Mandaā= a dullard. Bahv<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā= One eating much. K<sup>1</sup>-̄rak<sup>1</sup>āt= malicious, glutinous. ̄ambar<sup>1</sup>= ostentatious. Vi-aā= a paramour. Bhik<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>raā= One living on alms. Mita-bh<sup>1</sup>-= reserved in speech. Mōkaā= dumb. V<sup>1</sup>gm<sup>1</sup>= loquacious. Pral<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>= One speaking incoherently. ̄am<sup>1</sup>= Tranquil. Bhruā= timid. Dh<sup>1</sup>-v<sup>1</sup>hakaā= robber. Vadh<sup>1</sup>-janaā= the wifefolk.

Now, read aloud over again the Sanskrit sentences in the above paragraph, keeping in mind the meanings of the words given above.

As to the gender of a word in Sanskrit language in general, one has to learn it from usage. In order to give an analytical outlook in the matter, P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini and other Sanskrit grammarians subsequent to him have composed their works, called the Lij g<sup>1</sup>nu<sup>1</sup>sanam. But, Amarsi, ha had composed, at least 1500 years ago, a well-known work, named the N<sup>1</sup>ma-li<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>nu<sup>1</sup>sanam, popularly known as the Amara-koṭṭa, comprising three K<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>as (=sections), which contains a collection of almost all the Sanskrit nouns and indeclinable words. It is in the metrical form containing verses. In the Sanskrit P<sup>1</sup>-ha<sup>1</sup>las this Amarakoṭṭa, in full or a part of it, is prescribed to the beginners, for memorizing even to day, along with the abda-r̄op<sup>1</sup>val, the Sam<sup>1</sup>sa-cakram and the Dh<sup>1</sup>tu-r̄op<sup>1</sup>val. The Amarakoṭṭa starts with the following verse giving details of his arrangement:

Pr<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>1</sup>lo r̄pa-bheda s<sup>1</sup>hacaryac ca kutracit /
Str<sup>1</sup>-pu, -napusaka, jñeya, tad-vile-avidheā kvacit //
Pr<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>1</sup>laā= s<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>nyataā=generally. R̄pa-bheda=vibhakti-r̄op<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, bheda=through the difference of the case forms of the nouns. S<sup>1</sup>hacary<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>=saha-pa-hit<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, ̄abd<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, sambandh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>= through the relation of the words set in the neighborhood. Kutra-cir =kva-cit = somewhere. Tad-vile-avidheā=tasya li<sup>1</sup>gasya vil<sup>1</sup>e-a-vidh<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>= through the special mention of the particular gender. Str<sup>1</sup>-pu, -napu, sakam v<sup>1</sup>

jñeyam = one should know about whether the noun is feminine, masculine or neuter. For instance:

*Svar-avyaya, svarga-n<sup>1</sup>ka-tridiva-trida॥¹lay¹ā /
Suraloko dyau-divau dve striy¹, klibe trivi-ṣ-apam //*

Svar iti avyayam = svar is an indeclinable. Svarga, n<sup>1</sup>ka, tridiva, trida॥¹laya, and sura-loka, these five words are masculine. Dyau and div are feminine, and trivi-ṣ-apam is neuter. All these words are the synonyms meaning 'heaven'.

In Sanskrit, the feminine nouns are generally found to be <sup>1-</sup>k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta or Ø-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, as for instance b<sup>1</sup>/i = girl, nad» = river, vadhi = wife. The Å-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns may be masculine, feminine or neuter, e.g., nÅ = man, pitÅ = father, kartÅ = doer, agent, bhr<sup>1</sup>tÅ = brother, devÅ = husband's younger brother, naptÅ = nephew, etc., are masculine, m<sup>1</sup>tÅ = mother, svasÅ = sister, nan<sup>1</sup>ndÅ = husband's sister, duhitÅ = daughter, etc., are feminine. KartÅ and others when used as adjectives to neuter nouns are to be declined in neuter.

Now, let us understand from the point of view of grammatical analysis: When the base of an a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine noun is converted into <sup>1</sup>-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta or »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, or by adding the termination <sup>1</sup>n» to it, it becomes a feminine noun, as for instance: aja > aj<sup>1</sup>, a॥va > a॥v<sup>1</sup>, <sup>1</sup>rya > <sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>, <sup>1</sup>tmaja > <sup>1</sup>tmaj<sup>1</sup>, k<sup>1</sup>raka > k<sup>1</sup>rak<sup>1</sup>, kurv<sup>1</sup>a > kurv<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, gandharva > gandharv<sup>1</sup>, cinv<sup>1</sup>na > cinv<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, j<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1</sup>na > j<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, tanaya > tanay<sup>1</sup>, d<sup>1</sup>raka > d<sup>1</sup>rik<sup>1</sup>, b<sup>1</sup>la > b<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>, mahattara > mahattar<sup>1</sup>, mahattama > mahattam<sup>1</sup>, vatsa > vats<sup>1</sup>, sevaka > sevik<sup>1</sup> /

kumbhak<sup>1</sup>ra > kumbhak<sup>1</sup>r», gopa > gop», Gaura > gaur», taru<sup>1</sup>a > taru<sup>1</sup>», > deva > dev», dØta > dØt», nartaka > nartak», br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>1</sup>a > br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>1</sup>», yavana > yavan», yuvan > yuvat», r<sup>1</sup>jan > r<sup>1</sup>jñ», indra > indr<sup>1</sup>», bhava > bhav<sup>1</sup>n», m<sup>1</sup>tula > m<sup>1</sup>tul<sup>1</sup>n», rudra > rudr<sup>1</sup>».

Some times there is found a slight difference in the meaning, when two different terminations for the feminine gender are affixed

LESSON 13 (Trayodaśa p<sup>1</sup>-haå)

The forms of the noun KartÅ (Neu.) in the Nominative, Vocative and Accusative are declined as follows:

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom.	KartÅ	kartÅ <sup>1</sup> a	kartÅ <sup>1</sup> a <sup>1</sup> i
Voc.	KartÅ	kartÅ <sup>1</sup> a	kartÅ <sup>1</sup> a <sup>1</sup> i
Acc.	KartÅ	kartÅ <sup>1</sup> a	kartÅ <sup>1</sup> a <sup>1</sup> i

Moreover, the optional Singular forms with the <sup>1</sup>a-k<sup>1</sup>ra in them are found in the Instrumental, Dative, Ablative, Genitive and Locative, as kartr<sup>1</sup> / kartÅ<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> (Instr.), kartre / kartÅ<sup>1</sup>a (Dat.), kartuå, kartÅ<sup>1</sup>aå (Abl. Gen.) / katari / kartÅ<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> (Loc.), and also kartroå / kartÅ<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>oå (Gen. Loc. Du.).

Now read aloud the following verses and the paragraph:

*Upakartu, priya, vaktu, kartu, sneham akÅtrima, /
Sajjan<sup>1</sup>, svabh<sup>1</sup>vo 'ya, kenenduå ॥ifirÅkÅtaå //*

Sajjan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = of good persons. Ayam= this very. Svabh<sup>1</sup>vaå = nature. Upakartum= upak<sup>1</sup>ra, kartu, = of obliging, doing good. Priyam = lovingly, sweetly. Vaktum = of speaking. Sneham = love affection. A-kÅtrima= natural, not artificial. Kena= by whom? Induå= the Moon. ~ifirÅkÅtaå = ॥italaå kÅtaå = has been made cool.

*N<sup>1</sup>॥ayitum eva n<sup>1</sup>caå para-k<sup>1</sup>rya, vetti na pras<sup>1</sup>dhayitum /
P<sup>1</sup>tayitum eva faktir v<sup>1</sup>yor vÅk-a, na connetum //*
N<sup>1</sup>caå=evil person. Para-k<sup>1</sup>ryam= parasya k<sup>1</sup>ryam = works of others. N<sup>1</sup>॥ayitum=n<sup>1</sup>॥a, kartum=of destroying. Eva=only. Vetti=j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti= knows. Pras<sup>1</sup>dhayitum=praka-e<sup>1</sup>a saphala, Kart, = to make fully successful. V<sup>1</sup>yoå=pavanasya= of the wind. ~aktiå=s<sup>1</sup>marthyam = power. VÅk-<sup>1</sup>n =p<sup>1</sup>dap<sup>1</sup>n=tarØn= trees. P<sup>1</sup>tayitum=patana, k<sup>1</sup>rayitum=to fell down, cause to fall. Eva=only, merely. Unnetum= Ørdhv<sup>1</sup>n kartum=to raise up, make erect, lift up.

Coalescence: P<sup>1</sup>tayitum+eva/N<sup>1</sup>॥ayitum+eva / P<sup>1</sup>tayitum+eva (-m+e=-me)/ ~aktiå+v<sup>1</sup>yoå (-å+v=-rv-)/ V<sup>1</sup>yoå+vÅk-am (-å+v=-rv-)/ Ca+unnetum (-a+u=-o-).

pitre	pitĀbhya<sup>1</sup>m	pitĀhyaā	m<sup>1</sup>tre	m<sup>1</sup>tĀbhya<sup>1</sup>m	m<sup>1</sup>tĀhyaā
pituā	pitĀbhya<sup>1</sup>m	pitĀhyaā	m<sup>1</sup>tuā	m<sup>1</sup>tĀbhya<sup>1</sup>m	m<sup>1</sup>tĀhyaā
pituā	pitroā	pitĀ<sup>a</sup>1m	m<sup>1</sup>tuā	m<sup>1</sup>troā	m<sup>1</sup>tĀ<sup>a</sup>1m
pitari	pitroā	pitĀ-u	matari	m<sup>1</sup>troā	m<sup>1</sup>tĀ<sup>a</sup>1m

Now, note that the only difference between the forms of the above two nouns is in Acc. Pl., e.g. pitĀn / m<sup>1</sup>tĀh, while all other forms are just parallel.

But, in the case of most of the Ā-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns in both the Masculine and the Feminine, the medial -a- changes to -i- in the Nom., Voc., and Acc., dual and plural. Thus, of dh<sup>1</sup>tu (=destiny), dh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>rau and dh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>raā, of ṛrotĀ (=listener) ṛrot<sup>1</sup>rau and ṛrot<sup>1</sup>raā, of gantĀ (=the goer) gant<sup>1</sup>rau and gant<sup>1</sup>raā, of p<sup>1</sup>tĀ (=protector) p<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>rau and p<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>raā, of tr<sup>1</sup>tĀ (=saviour) tr<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>rau and tr<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>raā, of k-ātĀ (=charioteer, driver) k-att<sup>1</sup>rau and k-att<sup>1</sup>raā, and so on. All other forms correspond to those of the noun pitĀ (m.) and m<sup>1</sup>tĀ (f.).

to an a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine noun, as for example: Up<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>ya > Up<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>y (=lady teacher), Up<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>n (= wife of upadhy<sup>1</sup>ya), k-ātriya > k-ātriy (=a woman of the k-ātriya class), k-ātriy<sup>1</sup>a (=wife of a k-ātriya), pr<sup>1</sup>jñā > pr<sup>1</sup>jñ (=a learned woman), pr<sup>1</sup>jñ (=wife of a learned man), vai-ya > vaiʃy<sup>1</sup> (=a woman of the vaiʃyā class), vai-ya > vaiʃy<sup>1</sup> (=wife of a vaiʃyā), ṝdra > ṝdr<sup>1</sup> (=a woman of the ṝdra caste), ṝdr (=wife of a ṝdra). Similarly, kartĀ > kartr, ca<sup>a</sup>ca > ca<sup>a</sup>ca<sup>1</sup> / ca<sup>a</sup>ca, d<sup>1</sup>tĀ > d<sup>1</sup>tr, dhanavat > dhanavat, pa-u > pa-v, bahu > bahv, ṝreyas > ṝreyas, sundara > sundar<sup>1</sup> / sundar.

Similarly, the present participles ending in -t are also converted into feminine by suffixing the », with the addition of the penultimate n to the original masculine base. Thus, y<sup>1</sup>t > y<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> / y<sup>1</sup>nt, kathayat > kathayant, kari-yat > kari-yant, kurvat > Kurvat / kurvanti, gacchat > gacchat / gacchant, g<sup>h</sup>aat > g<sup>h</sup>aat / g<sup>h</sup>aant, cinvat > cinvat / cinvant, jagmivas > jagmu-, naʃyat > naʃyat / naʃyant, ni-edivas > ne-edu-, y<sup>1</sup>t > y<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> / y<sup>1</sup>nt, viʃlat > viʃlat / viʃyant, sat > sat.

The feminine forms of the following words are quite different words, and not derived from them: pitĀ – m<sup>1</sup>tĀ, bhr<sup>1</sup>tĀ ‘nara – n<sup>1</sup>n’, svasĀ (=sister), j<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>tĀ (=son-in-law) – snu-<sup>1</sup> (=daughter-in-law), pum<sup>1</sup>n – str, baka – bal<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>, ṝuka – s<sup>1</sup>rik<sup>1</sup>, ṝvaʃĀ (=father-in-law), ṝvaʃn (=mother-in-law), vara (=bridegroom) – vadhØ (=bride).

We have already seen, in the ninth lesson, the declension of the 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine nouns, of »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine and feminine nouns.

Now, let us compare the declension of the forms of the –k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta and Ø-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine nouns:

Nad» (f.) = river

Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
nad»	nadyau	nadyaā	vadhØā	vadhvau	vadhvaā
nadi	nadyau	nadyaā	vadhu	vadhvau	vadhvaā
nadm»	nadyau	nad»ā	vadhØm	vadhvau	vadhØā
nady<sup>1</sup>	nad»bhyam	nad»bhiā	vadhv<sup>1</sup>	vadhØbhy<sup>1</sup>m	vadhØbhiā

nadyai	nad»bhyaam	nad»bhyaā	vadhvai	vadhøbhyy <sup>1</sup>	vadhøbhyaā
nady <sup>1</sup>	nad»bhyaam	nad»bhiaā	vadhv <sup>1</sup>	vadhøbhyy <sup>1</sup> vadhøbhyaā
nady <sup>1</sup> å	nadyoå	nadn <sup>1</sup> m	vadhv <sup>1</sup> å	vadhvoå	vadhøn <sup>1</sup> m
nady <sup>1</sup> m	nadyoå	nad»-u	vadhv <sup>1</sup> m	vadhvoå	vadhø-u

Now, let us understand: On comparison of the forms of these two nouns, we note that while there is a visarga (:) at the end of the form of vadhø in the Nom. Sing., it is not to be found in the corresponding form of the word nadi. Then, whereever in the forms of nad» there is the change of -» by -y, there is a change of -ø by -v- in the corresponding forms of vadhø. In other respects, the forms of both these words are just similar, as for instance, the shortening of the final long vowel in Voc. Sing., viz., nadi/vadhu, similar forms in Nom. Voc. and Acc. Dual, viz., nadyau/vadhvau, a visarga (:) at the end in Acc. Pl., viz., nad»å/vadhøå. In Instr. Dat. Abl., Gen., and Loc. Sing., the respective terminations -<sup>1</sup>, -ai, -<sup>1</sup>å, -<sup>1</sup>å, and -<sup>1</sup>m are suffixed, e.g. nad»+<sup>1</sup>=nady<sup>1</sup>, vadhø+<sup>1</sup>=vadhv<sup>1</sup> / nad»+ai=nadyai, vadhø+ai=vadhvai/ nad»+<sup>1</sup>å=nady<sup>1</sup>å, vadhø+<sup>1</sup>å = vadhv<sup>1</sup>å, again nad»+<sup>1</sup>å=nady<sup>1</sup>å, vadhø+<sup>1</sup>å = vadhv<sup>1</sup>å, nad»+<sup>1</sup>m=nady<sup>1</sup>m, vadhø+<sup>1</sup>m=vadhv<sup>1</sup>m. In Gen. Pl. there as an additionof the num-<sup>1</sup>gama (-n-) before the termination -<sup>1</sup>m, viz., nad»+n-<sup>1</sup>m=nad»n<sup>1</sup>m, vadhø+n-<sup>1</sup>m=vadhøn<sup>1</sup>m. Keeping these similarities in view, P1<sup>a</sup>ini has used in his system the term *Nad»*as a sign for the feminine nouns ending in -» and -ø.

The declension of the »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine nouns, like dev», kaly<sup>1</sup>», brahm<sup>1</sup>», indr<sup>1</sup>», ¶arv<sup>1</sup>», må<sup>1</sup>n», bhav<sup>1</sup>n», sakh», str», being of the Nad» type, follows that of the noun nad» as shown above, e.g.: dev», kaly<sup>1</sup>», bhav<sup>1</sup>n», etc., in Nom. Sing.; devyau, kaly<sup>1</sup>yau, bhav<sup>1</sup>nyau, etc., in Nom. Voc., and Acc. Du.; devyå, kaly<sup>1</sup>å, bhav<sup>1</sup>nå, etc., in Acc. Pl., devy<sup>1</sup>, kaly<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, bhav<sup>1</sup>ny<sup>1</sup>, etc., in Instr. Sing.; devyai, kaly<sup>1</sup>yai, bhav<sup>1</sup>nyai, etc., in Dat. Sing.; devy<sup>1</sup>å, kaly<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>å, bhav<sup>1</sup>ny<sup>1</sup>å, etc., in Abl. and Gen. Sing.; devn<sup>1</sup>m, kaly<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m, bhav<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m, etc., in Gen. Pl.; and devy<sup>1</sup>m, kaly<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>m, bhav<sup>1</sup>ny<sup>1</sup>m, etc., in Loc. Sing.

But, just as in the caseof the Ø-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine noun vadhu, there occurs a visarga (:) at the end in Nom. Sing. form, it also occurs in the case of the similar feminine nouns, like tantr» (=lute), tar» (=boat), lak-m» (=goddess of prosperity), dh» (=intelli- gence), pradh» (=highly intelligent woman), hr» (=bashfulness), ¶r» (=glory, goddess of wealth). Thus, tantr»å, tar»å, Lak-m»å, dh»å, pradh»å, hr»å, ¶r»å, in Nom. Sing., and Acc. Pl. Here, from the P1<sup>a</sup>inian point of view, the final visarga (:) is there since, there is the absence of the elision (lop<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>va) of the termination su (=s) of the Nom. Sing., while it is elided in the Nom.Sing forms in the case of the feminine nouns like nad» and others similar to it.

So far as the forms of others Cases are concerned, those of the »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine nouns shown in the above paragraph, they bear similarity with the corresponding forms of the noun nad». For instance, tantr»å (=to the lutes), tar»å (=to the boats), lak-m»å, hr»å, ¶r»å, etc., in Acc. Pl. But in the case of pradh», the form pradhyaå is popular in usage. In Instr. Sin. While the forms are tantry<sup>1</sup>, tary<sup>1</sup>, lak-my<sup>1</sup>, pradhy<sup>1</sup> are popular, those of others are different, like dhiy<sup>1</sup>, hriy<sup>1</sup>, ¶riy<sup>1</sup>, su-dhiy<sup>1</sup> in Instr. Sing., tantryai, taryai, lak-myai, pradhyai in Dat. Sing. But, the forms of dh», hr» str», the forms dhiyai, hriyai, striyai are popular. Similarly, while in the Abl. and gen. Sing., the forms of the former nouns as tantryai, taryai, lak-myai, pradhyai, are popular, the forms of the latter nouns as dhiy<sup>1</sup>å, ¶riy<sup>1</sup>å, striy<sup>1</sup>å are popular in Abl. and Gen. Sing. While, the forms in the Loc. Sing. of the former nouns, as tantry<sup>1</sup>m, tary<sup>1</sup>m, lak-my<sup>1</sup>m, pradhy<sup>1</sup>m are popular, those of the latter nouns, as dhiy<sup>1</sup>m, or dhiyi, hriy<sup>1</sup>m or hriyi, ¶riy<sup>1</sup>m or ¶riyi, striy<sup>1</sup>m or striyi are popular. These are the exceptions, which should be carefully noted, so as to avoid confusion.

Now, compare and contrast the following forms in the declension of the two Å-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns, pitå (m.) and m<sup>1</sup>tå (f.):

Pitå (m.) = father		M<sup>1</sup>tå (f.)= mother
Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.
pit<sup>1</sup>	pitara	pitaraå	m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>	m<sup>1</sup>tarau
pitaå	pitara	pitaraå	m<sup>1</sup>taå	m<sup>1</sup>tarau
pitaram	pitara	pitràñ	m<sup>1</sup>taram	m<sup>1</sup>tarau
pitr<sup>1</sup>	pitåbhyy<sup>1</sup>m	pitåbhiaå	m<sup>1</sup>tr<sup>1</sup>	m<sup>1</sup>tåbhym

In the declension of the cardinal numbers from pañcan (=five) to nava-dañjan (=nineteen), the forms remain the same in the respective cases in Mas. Fem. and Neu., e.g. in Nom., Voc., Acc., pañca, in Intr. Pañcabhiā, in Dat. Abl., pañcabhyaā, in Gen. pañc<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m, in Loc. pañcasu. Similarly, of -a- (=six) -a<sup>o</sup>bhiā, -a<sup>o</sup>bhyaā, -a<sup>a</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m (<sup>o</sup>+n= <sup>a</sup>a), -a-su/-a-ts (<sup>o</sup>+s=-s/-ts); of saptan (=seven) saptabhiā, saptabyaā, sapt<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m, saptasu; of a-an (=eight) a-abhiā/a-<sup>1</sup>bhiā, a-abhyaā/a-<sup>1</sup>bhyaā / a-<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m/a-<sup>1</sup>su/a-<sup>1</sup>asu; of navan (=nine) navabhiā, navabyaā, nav<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m, navasu.

The Case forms of the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta collective cardinal numbers like vi, -atii (=twenty), -a-a-/(=sixty), sapatati (=seventy), a-<sup>1</sup>tī (=eighty) and navati (=ninety), are declined like the forms of the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta Feminine nouns like mati, e.g., -a-iā -a-im, -a-ty<sup>1</sup>, -a-aye/-a-yaī, -a-y<sup>1</sup>ā, -a-au/-a-y<sup>1</sup>m. And, those of the ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns like tri, -at, catv<sup>1</sup>ri, -at and pañc<sup>1</sup>-at are declined like the ta-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns marut (M.), e.g., pañc<sup>1</sup>flat, pañc<sup>1</sup>lat<sup>1</sup>, pañc<sup>1</sup>late, pañc<sup>1</sup>lataā, pañc<sup>1</sup>lati.

The ordinal number in Sanskrit are: in Mas. and Neu. prathama/agrima/<sup>1</sup>dima (=first), in Fem. pratham<sup>1</sup>/agrim<sup>1</sup>/ <sup>1</sup>dim<sup>1</sup> (=first); in Mas. and Neu. dvit<sup>1</sup>ya (=third), in Fem. dvit<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup> (=third); in Mas. and Neu. caturtha/turya/tur<sup>1</sup>ya (=fourth), in Fem. caturth<sup>1</sup> /tury<sup>1</sup>/tur<sup>1</sup>ya. The ordinal numbers, for the fifth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth, are derived from the cardinals pañcan, saptan, a-an, navan and da-an by suffixing the termination -ma, but the final consonant n in them is deleted. Thus, pañcama (M., N.), pañcam<sup>1</sup> (F.), sapatama (M., N.), saptam<sup>1</sup> (F.), a-ama (M., N.), a-am<sup>1</sup>, navama (M., N.), dañama (M., N. =tenth), dañam<sup>1</sup> (F. =tenth), ek<sup>1</sup>dañla (M., N. =eleventh) ek<sup>1</sup>dañl<sup>1</sup> (F. =eleventh), a-<sup>1</sup>dañla (M., N. =eighteenth), a-<sup>1</sup>dañl<sup>1</sup> (F. =eighteenth). For converting the ordinal numbers, from vi, flat<sup>1</sup>i to navavi, flat<sup>1</sup>i, into the ordinals their final -ti is dropped, or the terminations -tama (M.) /-tami (F.) are suffixed to them, e.g., vi, ा/vi, flatitama (M.= twentieth), vi, ा/vi, flatitam<sup>1</sup> (F.twentieth). For converting the ordinal numbers from tri, flat<sup>1</sup>i to nava-pañc<sup>1</sup>flat<sup>1</sup> into the ordinals, their final -t is dropped and the terminations -tama (M.) /-tami (F.) are suffixed to them, e.g., dv<sup>1</sup>tri, ा/dv<sup>1</sup>tri, flatattama (M., N.=thirty-second), dv<sup>1</sup>tri, ा/dv<sup>1</sup>tri, flatattam<sup>1</sup> (f.=thirty-second).

(Naraā) k<sup>1</sup>ma, = v<sup>1</sup>ñch<sup>1</sup>ā (=desire), jitv<sup>1</sup>=vijaya, pr<sup>1</sup>pya (=having conquered), sukh<sup>1</sup> (=sukha-yuktaā (= happy) bhavet / (Janaā) kroda, = kopa, (=anger) hitv<sup>1</sup> nir<sup>1</sup>b<sup>1</sup>dhaā (= nirgat<sup>1</sup>ā b<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>ā yasya saā (=one devoid of troubles) bhavet / (M<sup>1</sup>navana) tā-<sup>a</sup>1, =lips<sup>1</sup>, (=yearning) jitv<sup>1</sup> na tapyate = dukh<sup>1</sup> na karoti or bhavati= (= does not cause, suffer, pain).

Verbal Form: Tapyate= Pres. 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. of the root tap (4 .. 'to injure, cause pain').

A-kĀtv<sup>1</sup> para-sant<sup>1</sup>pam a-gatv<sup>1</sup> khala-mandiram / An-ulla<sup>1</sup> ghya sat<sup>1</sup>, m<sup>1</sup>rga, yat svalpam api tad bahu //

Para-sant<sup>1</sup>pa, =parasya kĀte duākha, (= unhappiness for others), a-kĀtv<sup>1</sup> = na utp<sup>1</sup>dya (=having not generated, done), yat = yad vastu (=whatever thing), svalpam = sutar<sup>1</sup>m stokam (=very less), pr<sup>1</sup>pyate = labhyate (=is obtained), tat bahu = adhikam (=very much), mantavyam / Khala-mandiram = du-<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, gĀham (= the place of the wicked ones. A-gatv<sup>1</sup> = gamana, na kĀtv<sup>1</sup> (=not having gone to) / Sat<sup>1</sup>m = sajjan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m (of the good people, gentlemen), m<sup>1</sup>rgam = panth<sup>1</sup>nam (=the way, manner), an-ulla<sup>1</sup> ghya = ulla<sup>1</sup> ghana, na kĀrv<sup>1</sup> (=not having transgressed) /

In this verse the idea expressed by the phrase 'yat svalpam api vastu pr<sup>1</sup>pyate tad bahu mantavyam' is implied with all the phrases, viz., 'para-sant<sup>1</sup>pam a-kĀtv<sup>1</sup>', 'khala-mandiram a-gatv<sup>1</sup>', and 'sat<sup>1</sup>, m<sup>1</sup>rgam an-ulla<sup>1</sup> ghya', so that by repeating it with all of them we can formulate three independent sentences. Such a syntactical technique is often utilized in many other Sanskrit verses for verbal economy.

Verbal forms: KĀtv<sup>1</sup> = Gerund derived from the verbal root kĀ (8 U. 'to do, perform, cause, generate'). Gatv<sup>1</sup> = Gerund derived from the verbal root gam (1 P. > gacch, 'to go'). Ulla<sup>1</sup> ghya= Gerund derived from the verbal root ut+laj gh (1 P. 'to transgress').

*Kudeljam<sup>1</sup> s<sup>1</sup>dya kuto rtha-sañjayaā
Kuputram<sup>1</sup> s<sup>1</sup>dya kuto jal<sup>1</sup>ñjaliā /
Kugehin<sup>1</sup>, pr<sup>1</sup>pya gĀhe kutaā sukha, Kuñliyam adhy<sup>1</sup>payataā kuto yañlaā //*

Ku- = A pronominal prefixed to a base implying deterioration, depreciation, deficiency, want, littleness, hindrance, reproach, contempt, guilt. Ku-deflam=du-a, deflam= pratikōla, sth<sup>1</sup>nam = bad country, place. , s<sup>1</sup>dya = pr<sup>1</sup>pya = 'gatya = having arrived at, reached. Kutaā = kena prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>a = wherefrom, how, in what way. Artha-sañcayaā = dhanasya saj grahaā = earning of money, accumulation of wealth. Ku-putram = pratikōla, putram = du-a, tanayam= unworthy son. Jal<sup>1</sup>ñjaliā = jalasya añjaliā = oblation of water (offered to diseased ancestors). Ku-gehin'm = du-, patn'm= pratikōl<sup>1</sup>, bh<sup>1</sup>ryam = bad wife, unworthy house-wife. Sukham = bhadram = kaly<sup>1</sup>am = happiness, well-being. Ku-ñi-yam = unworthy disciple, bad student. Adhy<sup>1</sup>payataā = adhyayana, k<sup>1</sup>rayataā = to one who teaches. Yañlaā= kṛtiā= fame, reputation.

Coalescence: Kutaā+artha-sañcayaā / kutaā+jal<sup>1</sup>ñjali / Kutaā +yañlaā /

Word-forms: *, s<sup>1</sup>dya = Gerund derived from the verbal root 1+sad (10 U. 'to reach, to arrive at'. Pr<sup>1</sup>pya = Gerund derived from the verbal root pra+1p (5 P. 'to pervade, obtain'). Adhy<sup>1</sup>payataā= Gen. Sing. of the Pre. Participle adhy<sup>1</sup>payat, derived from the verbal root adhi+ 1p (5 P. 'to teach').*

Prathama, ñirañ chittv<sup>1</sup> pañc<sup>1</sup>d a; ga-cumbana, , keya, vidagdhat<sup>1</sup>? Prathama, gāha, prajv<sup>1</sup>ya pañc<sup>1</sup>t kuñlat<sup>1</sup>-prañnaā, keya, vidagdhat<sup>1</sup>? PØrva, pr<sup>1</sup>a-hara<sup>a</sup>a, pañc<sup>1</sup>d anuñlocana, keya, vidagdhat<sup>1</sup>? Padbh<sup>1</sup>, mñn<sup>1</sup>n mardayitv<sup>1</sup> mukhe veda-pa-hana, , keya, vidagdhat<sup>1</sup>?

Coalescence: ~iraā+ chittv<sup>1</sup> (ā+ch=ñ+ch, change of ā to ñ). Pañc<sup>1</sup>t+anantaram (t+a= d+a, change of the hard consonant t to its soft equivalent d of its class). K<sup>1</sup>+iyam (1+I=e)/

Vocabulary: Prathamam= <sup>1</sup>dau = at first, first of all. ~iraā = mastakam= head. Chittv<sup>1</sup>= chedana, kñtv<sup>1</sup> = having severed, cut off. Pañc<sup>1</sup>t = anantaram = tataā param = then, afterwards later on. A;ga-cumbanam= a;g<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, cumbanam = kissing the limbs. K<sup>1</sup> = kñdñ<sup>1</sup> = what sort of. iyam= this. Vidagdhat<sup>1</sup>=vidagdhasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaā = cleverness,

LESSON 15

(Pañca-daññaā p<sup>1</sup>-haā)

For very big ten-fold cardinal numbers, like thousand and onwards, in Sanskrit, the famous Indian astronomer Bh<sup>1</sup>skar<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>rya has given, in his mathematical work called L<sup>1</sup>vat, the following numeral names: sahasram (=1,000), dañña-sahasram or ayutam (=10,000), lak<sup>1</sup>am or lak<sup>1</sup> (=1,00,000), prayutam (=10,00,000), ko-i (=1,00,00,000), arbudam (=10,00,00,000), kharva or kharvam (1.00.00.00.000), ñāj ku (10,00,00,00,000), jaladhi (=1,00,00,00,00,000), antyam (=10, 00,00,00,00,000), and par<sup>1</sup>rdham (=1,00,00,00,00,00,000).

The cardinal numeral eka (=one) is normally used in the Singular number. But in some particular senses, it is used in Dual and Plural, too. As for instance, the usage of eke (=some people) is in use, along with the words like anye / apare (=others, other people), as in sentences like, Eke 1huā 1tm<sup>1</sup> n<sup>1</sup>sti, anye to asti iti (=Some people say that there is no Self, while others say that it does exist). In the Dative, Ablative, and Locative, it is declined like a Pronoun in Masculine and Neuter, i.e., by the application of the terminations smai, sm<sup>1</sup>t, sya, smin, as for instance ekasm<sup>1</sup>i, ekasm<sup>1</sup>t, ekasya, ekasmin, and in Feminine by that of the terminations syai, sy<sup>1</sup>ā, sy<sup>1</sup>ā, and sy<sup>1</sup>m, as for instance ekasyai, ekasy<sup>1</sup>ā, ekasy<sup>1</sup>ā, ekasy<sup>1</sup>m.

The cardinal numeral dvi (=two) is declined in the Dual Number only, as for instance, Nom. Du., dvau (M.), dve (F., N.), Instr., Dat., Abl. Du., dv<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m (M., F., N.), Gen. Du., dvayoā (M., F., N.).

The cardinal numbers from tri (=three) to nava-navatiā (=ninety-nine) are declined in Plural only. Thus: of tri (=three), in Nom., Voice., Acc. Pl., trayaā (M.), tisraā (F.), tr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>i (N.); in Instr. Pl. tribhiā (M., N.), tisñbhiā (F.); in Dat., Abl., tribhyaā (M. N.), tisñbhyāā (F.); in Gen. tray<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m (M., N.), tisñ<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m (F.). The declension of the number catur (=four) is declined in Nom., Voc., as catv<sup>1</sup>raā (M.), catasraā (F.) catv<sup>1</sup>ri (N.), in Acc. as caturaā (M.), catasraā (F.), catv<sup>1</sup>ri (N.), in Instr. caturbhiā (M., N.), catasñbhi (F.).

In the case of the numbers involving navan (=nine), like nineteen, twenty-nine, etc., the tenfold numbers like dañña, vi, ṇati, etc., are either prefixed as such, as for instance nana-dañjan (=9+10 = 19), or the word ekona /ek<sup>1</sup>nna is prefixed to the next tenfold to it, as for instance in ekona-vi, sṇati / ek<sup>1</sup>nna-vi, ṇati (=20 – 1 = 19).

shrewdness. Prajv<sup>1</sup>lya = prajv<sup>1</sup>lana, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> = having set to fire, burnt. Kuñala-v<sup>1</sup>rt<sup>1</sup>praññaā = *sv<sup>1</sup>sthya*ya v<sup>1</sup>rt<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā praññaā = inquiry about the news of well-being. Pr<sup>1</sup>a-hara<sup>a</sup>am = pr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, hara<sup>a</sup>am = mara<sup>a</sup>am = ending life, death. Vidh<sup>1</sup>ya=kĀtv<sup>1</sup> = having done, committed. Anuñlocanam = pañc<sup>1</sup>tt<sup>1</sup>paā = repentance. Padbhv<sup>1</sup>m = cara<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>- bhy<sup>1</sup>m = by means of both the feet. Mn<sup>1</sup>n = the fish. Mardayitv<sup>1</sup> = mardana, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> = having pounded down, crushed. Veda-pa-hanam = Ved<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, p<sup>1</sup>-haā = recitation of the Vedas.

Word-forms : Prathamam is an indeclinable. ~iraā = Acc. Sing. of the noun ñiras (Neu.). Chittv<sup>1</sup> = Gerund derived from the verbal root chid (7 U. 'to cut, mow'). Pañc<sup>1</sup>t is an indeclinable. Prajv<sup>1</sup>lya = Gerund derived from the verbal root pra+jval (1 P. 'to burn, glow'). Vidh<sup>1</sup>ya = Gerund derived from the verbal root vi+dh<sup>1</sup> (3 U. 'to do, perform, make'). Mardayitv<sup>1</sup> = Gerund derived from the verbal root mĀd (9 P. 'to press, crush, kill, rub off').

Now, note: In the above verses and the paragraph we find that the usages like , spĀñ-v<sup>1</sup>, dĀñ-v<sup>1</sup>, bhuktv<sup>1</sup>, ghr<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup>, hitv<sup>1</sup>, jitv<sup>1</sup>, kĀtv<sup>1</sup>, gatv<sup>1</sup>, chittv<sup>1</sup>, mardayitv<sup>1</sup> that are used in them end with the termination -tv<sup>1</sup>. Since in the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>nian system this termination is mentioned as -ktv<sup>1</sup>, the word ending with this termination is called a Ktv<sup>1</sup>nta, i.e. a Gerund, which is an indeclinable word, and denotes an action that has preceded some other one that follows it. But, in the case of the verbal roots that have some Preposition attached to them, as in the case of the words like 's<sup>1</sup>dyā, anullā; ghya, pr<sup>1</sup>pya, prajv<sup>1</sup>lya, vidh<sup>1</sup>ya, we find that the termination -ya is suffixed, because the verbal root from which they are derived have the Prepositions like '-, an-, pra-, vi- prefixed to them. In the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>nian system this termination is mentioned as -lyap, and hence the Gerunds ending in this termination are called Lyabanta (lyap+anta; -p+a=-b+a=ba-).

When such Gerunds are used, we find two words denoting action, as for instance in 'yaā ñrutv<sup>1</sup> na gl<sup>1</sup>yati saā jitendriyaā', the word ñrutv<sup>1</sup> (=having heard) and gl<sup>1</sup>yati (=gets dejected) denote two different actions. Of them, since the first one has preceded the second one, the first is expressed through a Gerund ending in  $-tv^1$  or  $-ya$  in accordance with the root used by itself or having a Preposition prefixed to it, instead of through a regular verb carrying terminations of the Person and Number concerned. Thus, since the Gerund shows the order of the two actions concerned, in popular Sanskrit parlance it is called the Sambandhaka-bhōta-kādanta or Pōrva-k<sup>1</sup>la-v<sup>1</sup>caka-dh<sup>1</sup>tu-s<sup>1</sup>dhita-avyaya, i.e. an Indeclinale derived from a verbal root and denoting an action that has occurred in the past.

Let us see from the view-point of grammatical analysis:
 $\sim ru+tv^1 / Sp\ddot{A}+tv^1 = sp\ddot{A}\sim+v^1$  ( $\sim$  >  $\sim$  since preceded by  $r$ , and  $t > \sim$ , because preceded by  $\sim$ ) / Similarly,  $d\ddot{A}+tv^1=d\ddot{A}\sim+v^1$  ( $\sim$  >  $\sim$  and  $t > \sim$ ) /  $Bhuj+tv^1 = bhuk+tv^1$  ( $j > k$ , because  $j$  is followed by  $t$ ) /  $Ghr^1+tv^1 / H^1+tv^1 = hi+tv^1$  ( $\sim^1 > \sim^1$ ) /  $Ji+tv^1 / K\ddot{A}+tv^1 / Gam+tv^1 = ga+tv^1$  (elision of the final  $m$  of the root) / Similarly,  $chid+tv^1 = chit+tv^1$  ( $-d > -t$ ) /  $Mad+tv^1 = mad+i+tv^1$  (insertion of  $id^1gama$  after the root) /

Now, repeat aloud the above verses and the paragraph along with their paraphrases.

Read aloud the following verses and the sentences paraphrasing them:

*Keyōr<sup>1</sup> na vibhō-ayanti puru-a, h<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup> na candrojjval<sup>1</sup>
Na sn<sup>1</sup>na, na vilepana, na kusuma, n<sup>1</sup>la; kāt<sup>1</sup> mōrdhaj<sup>1</sup>ā /
V<sup>1</sup>a y ek<sup>1</sup> samala; karoti puru-a, y<sup>1</sup> sa, skāt<sup>1</sup> dh<sup>1</sup>ryate
K<sup>1</sup>yante khalu bhō-a<sup>1</sup>ni satata, v<sup>1</sup>g-bhō-a<sup>1</sup>a, bhō-a<sup>1</sup>am //*

*Keyōr<sup>1</sup>ā puru-a, na vibhō-ayanti / Candrojjval<sup>1</sup>ā h<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ā puru-a, na vibhō-ayanti / Sn<sup>1</sup>na, puru-a, na vibhō-ayati / (Here, the verb is in singular as it follows the subject in singular.) / Kusuma, na ibhō-ayati / Alaj<sup>1</sup> kāt<sup>1</sup>ā mōrdhaj<sup>1</sup>ā puru-a, na vibhō-ayanti / Y<sup>1</sup> sa, skāt<sup>1</sup> v<sup>1</sup>a;
puru-e<sup>1</sup> dh<sup>1</sup>ryate s<sup>1</sup> ek<sup>1</sup> eva puru-a, samala; karoti / Bhō-a<sup>1</sup>ni khalu
k<sup>1</sup>yante / Kin-tu v<sup>1</sup>g-bhō-a<sup>1</sup>a, satata, bhō-a<sup>1</sup>am bhavati /*

Coalescence: Keyur<sup>1</sup>ā + na. Similarly, in h<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ā + na / alaj<sup>1</sup> kāt<sup>1</sup>ā + mōrdhaj<sup>1</sup>ā / (Here in all cases  $\sim^1 + n = \sim^1 n$ , by elision of  $\sim$ , because  $\sim$  is preceded by  $\sim^1$  and followed by a soft consonant).

of them) duākh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, sapta (=seven) priy<sup>1</sup>āi sapta te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, ṣṭapa (=six) priy<sup>1</sup>āi ṣṭapa te<sup>1</sup>, (= of them) duākh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>,  $\sim^1$ ā- (=six) priy<sup>1</sup>āi \sim^1ā- te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, pañca (=five) priy<sup>1</sup>āi pañca te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, catv<sup>1</sup>ri (=four) priy<sup>1</sup>āi catv<sup>1</sup>ri te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, tr̄<sup>1</sup>āi (=six) priy<sup>1</sup>āi tr̄<sup>1</sup>āi te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, dve (=two) priye dve- te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>e / Ye<sup>1</sup>m eka, (=one) priyam eka, te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>am / Ye<sup>1</sup>m n<sup>1</sup>sti priyam n<sup>1</sup>sti te<sup>1</sup>, duākh<sup>1</sup>am /

In the sentences of the above paragraph, the neuter forms of the numeral adjectives, like ṣṭamatam, navati, aṣṭati, saptati, \sim^1ā-ī, pañc<sup>1</sup>ṣṭati, catv<sup>1</sup>ri, ṣṭat, tri, ṣṭat, vi, ṣṭati, dañjan, navan, a-ā-an, saptan, \sim^1ā-, pañca, catur, tri, dvi, and eka, expressing the numbers one hundred, and other tenfold numbers up to ten and from nine to one, respectively in the reverse order are used.

The base forms of the numbers from eleven to nineteen are as follows, respectively: ek<sup>1</sup>-dañjan, dv<sup>1</sup>-dañjan, trayo-dañjan, catur- dañjan, pañca-dañjan, \sim^1ā-ā-dañjan, sapt-a-dañjan, a-ā-1-dañjan, nava-dañjan / ekona- vi, ṣṭati / el<sup>1</sup>nna-vi, ṣṭati / Here we find that, for formulating the numbers from eleven to nineteen, the above-mentioned tenfold numbers are suffixed to the Sanskrit numerals, viz., dañjan, etc., expressing primary numbers, viz., eka, etc., thus deriving ek<sup>1</sup>-dañjan, etc. It should be noted here that before prefixing the primary numbers to tenfold numbers like vi, ṣṭati, tri, ṣṭat, etc., the numbers dvi changes to dv<sup>1</sup>, tri to trayaā,  $\sim^1ā-$  to  $\sim^1ā-$ , and a-ā-an to a-ā-1, as for instance in dv<sup>1</sup>-vi, ṣṭati (=twenty-two), trayaā-tri, ṣṭati (=thirty-three),  $\sim^1ā-$ -aṣṭati (eighty-six), a-ā-1-ṣṭati (=eighty-eight). In the case of the rest of the numbers, dvi > dv<sup>1</sup>, tri > trayaā, and  $\sim^1ā-$  >  $\sim^1ā-$  (before the numbers, like aṣṭati, vi, ṣṭati, navati, etc., beginning with vowel or soft consonants, like a, v, n, etc.), as for instance in, a-ā-1-ṣṭati (=eighty-eight), trayaā-vi, ṣṭati (=twenty-three), ṣṭa<sup>1</sup>o >  $\sim^1ā-$ -avati (=ninety-six), involving the retroflexion of  $\circ > ^1$ , and n > ^1. And,  $\sim^1ā-$  >  $\sim^1ā-$  (before numbers like catur, pañca, etc., beginning with hard consonants, like c, p, etc.), as for instance in, \sim^1ā--catv<sup>1</sup>ri, ṣṭati (=forty-six), \sim^1ā--pañc<sup>1</sup>ṣṭati (=fifty-six).

after the root invariably, and if the root is Vet optionally, , as in bhθ+i > bhav+i, but añj+i+sya / or añj+sy. Then, the termination sya > -ya, indicating the Future Tense, is applied to the root, e.g., a+bhθ+i > a+bhav+i+sya. Then, the terminations of the Imperfect Past tense are suffixed as per the Person and Number intended to be conveyed. E.g., a+bhav+i+sya+t > abhavi-yat /And, anu+a+bhθ > anv+a+ bhav+i+syat > anvabha- vi-yat / Thus, in the Conditional verb-forms we find an admixture of the Past and Future Tense in it, in view of need of conveying the sense of the imagined past and future actions having the supposedly cause and effect relation. Here, in ay<sup>1</sup>ci-yat= a+y<sup>1</sup>c+ i+sya+ am / the processes involved are the I<sup>0</sup>-gama (i.e., insertion of the augment i ), the Murdhan<sup>1</sup>della (i.e., retroflexion of the sibilant s in sya >-y), and the PØrvarØpa-ek<sup>1</sup>della, i.e., the merging of the subsequent vowel into the preceding one, a+-a= -a- in -y+a+am) / In a+d<sup>1</sup>+sya+at there is no other change. In ak<sup>1</sup>mayi-yata, the changes are a+kam (10 „ >k<sup>1</sup>m) +ay(the sign of the 10th root-class) +i+sya >-y+a+ata (merging)>ta (termination of A. 3rd Per.Sing.). Similarly, ap<sup>1</sup>hari-ytr= apa+a+hA > har+i+sya>-y+a+at >t / Akr<sup>0</sup>i-yat = a+kr<sup>0</sup>+i+syat>-y+a+at>t / , hv<sup>1</sup>syat=a+<sup>1</sup>+hve >hv<sup>1</sup>+syat / Apr<sup>1</sup>psyat = a+pra+<sup>1</sup>p+syat / Ajani-yat=a+jan+i+ syat > -yat / A+pra+ka-+ay+i+syat >-yat / Ap<sup>1</sup>ryi-yat =a+p<sup>1</sup>r+ ay+i+sya >-y+a+at>t /

Now. Read aloud the following sentences,

trying to grasp their meanings:

Ye<sup>1</sup>, (=whose) flata, (=hundred) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> flata, te<sup>1</sup>, (= of them) duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, navatiå (=ninety) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> navatiå te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, aßtiå (=eighty) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> aßtiå te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, sapattiå (=seventy) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> saptatiå te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, (=whose) a-å-iå (=sixty) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> a-å-iå te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, pañc<sup>1</sup>flat (=fifty) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> pañc<sup>1</sup>flat te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, catv<sup>1</sup>ri, flat (=forty) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> catv<sup>1</sup>ri, flat te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, tri, flat (=thirty) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> tri, flat te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, vi, flatiå (=twenty) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> vi, flatiå te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, dafla (=ten) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> dafla te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, (=whose) nava (=nine) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> nava te<sup>1</sup>, duåkh<sup>1</sup>ni / Ye<sup>1</sup>, a-ta (=eight) priy<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup> a-å-aú te<sup>1</sup>, (=

Vocabulary: KeyØraå = b<sup>1</sup>hu-bhØ-a<sup>1</sup>am = armlet, bracelets worn on the upper arm. Candrojjvalaå = Candravat ujjval<sup>1</sup>å prak<sup>1</sup>flam<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>å = glistening like the Moon. Vilepanam = tvac<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>å rak-a<sup>1</sup>a, kartum upayujyam<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>å lepana-pad<sup>1</sup>rth<sup>1</sup>å = ointments, the lotions etc., used for applying to the skin for protection from cold, etc.

Word-forms: *VibhØ-ayanti = Pre. 3rd Per. Plu. of the root vi+bhØ- (10 U. 'to adorn'). Samala<sup>1</sup> karoti = Pre. 3rd Per. Plu. of the root sam+alam+kÅ (8 U. 'to adorn'). Akai kÅt<sup>1</sup>å= Nom. Pl. of the Past Pas. Par. alaj kÅta (Mas.), derived from the root alam+kÅ (8 U.). Dh<sup>1</sup>ryate = Pas. Pres. 3rd Per. Sing. of the root dhÅ (1 U. 'to hold'). K-åyante = Pas. Pres. 3rd Per. Pl. of the root k-i (1 P. 'to decay'). Sa, skÅt<sup>1</sup>= Nom. Sing. of the Past Pas. Par. sa, skÅt<sup>1</sup> (Fem.) derived from the root sam+kÅ (8 U. 'to adorn, polish'). Here, the final m in sam is changed to , because followed by the consonant k, and s is inserted traditionally between the preposition and the root, thus sam + kÅ =sa, +s+kÅ+ta+ 1 (of Fem.).*

LESSON 14
(Caturdaśā p<sup>1</sup>-haå)

*Daridrat<sup>1</sup> dh̄ratay<sup>1</sup> vir<sup>1</sup>jate
Kuvastrat<sup>1</sup> ūubhratay<sup>1</sup> vir<sup>1</sup>jate /
Kadannat<sup>1</sup> u-<sup>a</sup>atay<sup>1</sup> vir<sup>1</sup>jate
Kurōpat<sup>1</sup> ūlatay<sup>1</sup> vir<sup>1</sup>jate //*

Vocabulary: Daridrat<sup>1</sup> = daridrasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå = nirdhanat<sup>1</sup> = poverty / Dh̄ratay<sup>1</sup> = dh̄rasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå, tay<sup>1</sup> = dhairyē<sup>a</sup>a = due to fortitude. Ku-vastrat<sup>1</sup> = kutsita, vastra, ku-vastra, , tasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå= bad dress. Ūubhratay<sup>1</sup> = ūubhrasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå, tay<sup>1</sup> = due to whiteness. Kadannat<sup>1</sup> = kutsitam anna, , tasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå = bad food. U-<sup>a</sup>atay<sup>1</sup> = u-<sup>a</sup>asya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå, tay<sup>1</sup>=due to hotness. Kurōpat<sup>1</sup> = kutsita, rōpa, , tasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå = ugliness. Ūlatay<sup>1</sup> = Ūlasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaå, tay<sup>1</sup> = due to being endowed with (good) character.

Word-forms: Dh̄ratay<sup>1</sup> = Instr. Sing. of the abstract noun dhrat<sup>1</sup> (Fem). Ūubhratay<sup>1</sup> = Instr. Sing. of the abstract noun Ūubhrat<sup>1</sup> (Fem.). U-<sup>a</sup>atay<sup>1</sup> = Instr. Sing. of the abstract noun u-<sup>a</sup>at<sup>1</sup> (Fem.). Ūlatay<sup>1</sup> = Instr. Sing. of the abstract noun Ūlat<sup>1</sup> (Fem).

Note: In this verse we find the use of the Instrumental Singular forms of the feminine 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta abstract nouns.

In such words as daridrat<sup>1</sup>, dhrat<sup>1</sup>, kuvastrat<sup>1</sup>, Ūubhrat<sup>1</sup>, kadannat<sup>1</sup>, u-<sup>a</sup>at<sup>1</sup>, Kurōpat<sup>1</sup> and Ūlat<sup>1</sup> are derived from the adjectival nouns daridra, dhr̄a, kuvastra, Ūubhra, kadanna, u-<sup>a</sup>a, Kurōpa and Ūla, and the termination t<sup>1</sup> is suffixed to them to convert them to the feminine abstract nouns. The above adjectival nouns can be changed to the neuter abstract nouns by suffixing the termination -tvam also, as daridratvam, dhratvam, kuvastrtvam, Ūubhratvam, kadannatvam, u-<sup>a</sup>atvam, Kurōpatvam and Ūlatvam. Both the types of the abstract nouns are to found in the Sanskrit usage. These termination used for deriving the abstract nouns from the simple nouns are included under the type called Taddhita-pratyayaå. Taddhitaå = tebhyaå hit<sup>1</sup>å / They are useful

ad<sup>1</sup>syat (=God would have given me). Yadi s<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> k<sup>1</sup>ñcana-måga, n<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>mayi-yata (=If Sita would not have desired for the golden deer) r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>as t<sup>1</sup>, n<sup>1</sup>hari-yat (R<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>a would not have kidnapped her). Yadi r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>å s<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>, n<sup>1</sup>pahari-yat (=If R<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>a would not have kidnapped S<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>) r<sup>1</sup>mas ta, n<sup>1</sup>hani-yat (=R<sup>1</sup>ma would not have killed him). *Yadi yudhi-hiro dyØta, n<sup>1</sup>kr<sup>1</sup>ø*i*-yat* (=If Yudhi-ira would not have played with dice) tad<sup>1</sup> p<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>av<sup>1</sup>å vana, n<sup>1</sup>gami-yan (=then the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>avas would not have gone to the forest), mah<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>rata-yuddha, ca n<sup>1</sup>bhavi-yat (=and the Mah<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>rata War would not have taken place). Yadi kuntiå durv<sup>1</sup>sasaå varad<sup>1</sup>na, par<sup>1</sup>k-itu, s<sup>1</sup>rya, n<sup>1</sup>hv<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>-yat (=If Kunti had not invoked the Sun-god to test the boon of Durv<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>) tad<sup>1</sup> kaum<sup>1</sup>rye eva kar<sup>a</sup>a, putra-r<sup>1</sup>øe<sup>a</sup>a n<sup>1</sup>jani-yat (=then she would not have given birth to Kar<sup>a</sup>a as the son), p<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>avaiå saha ca kar<sup>a</sup>asya vaira, n<sup>1</sup>jani-yat (=the enmity of Kar<sup>a</sup>a with the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>avas would not have arisen). Yadi bh<sup>1</sup>-maå r<sup>1</sup>ja-sabh<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, kaurav<sup>1</sup>n prati svasya artha-d<sup>1</sup>satva, n<sup>1</sup>praka-ayi-yat (=If Bh<sup>1</sup>-ma would not have declared in the royal assembly his monetary slavery to, i.e., economical dependence on, the Kauravas) tad<sup>1</sup> duå<sup>1</sup>sanaå sabh<sup>1</sup>sad<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, samak-<sup>a</sup>a, draupady<sup>1</sup>Ū cora-hara<sup>a</sup>a, kartum n<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>rayi-yat (=then Duå<sup>1</sup>sana would not have been able to try snatching the garments of Draupad<sup>1</sup> in the assembly in front of the members of the assembly).

In the above sentences the verbal forms, viz., ay<sup>1</sup>ci-yan, ad<sup>1</sup>syat, ak<sup>1</sup>mayi-yat, ahari-yat, ap<sup>1</sup>hari-yat, ahani-yat, akr<sup>1</sup>øi-yat, agami-yan, abhavi-yat, 1hv<sup>1</sup>syat, apr<sup>1</sup>psyat, ajani-yat, apraka-ayi-yat, and ap<sup>1</sup>rayi-yat, are all the Conditional ones, expressing the cause-effect relation between the two imagined actions. In the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>inian system, such verbal forms are known by the name of LÅ -lak<sup>1</sup>ra.

Now, let us see from the point of view of grammatical analysis: In the Conditional verbal forms given above, we find that there an ad<sup>1</sup>gama (i.e. the augment a), indicating the Past Tense, prefixed to the bare root, or between the preposition and the root if there is a preposition prefixed to a root, e.g., bhØ > a+bhØ / But anu+bhØ > anu+a+bhØ / Then, if the root is Set, the id<sup>1</sup>gama (i.e. the augment i) is added necessary). Ti-hatu bhoā (=O! Please, let it stop). Smarati kila (=Oh! Does he remember)? Tath<sup>1</sup> kim-api n<sup>1</sup>sti (= There is nothing of that sort). Katham asti bhav<sup>1</sup>n (=How are you, gentleman)? M<sup>1</sup> vismaratu (=Don't forget). Anyac ca (=And further, moreover). Tad-anantaram (=after that). T<sup>1</sup>vad eva kila (=only that much)? Mah<sup>1</sup>n santo-aā (=Highly satisfied). Na tath<sup>1</sup> (=Not like that, not in that way, not thus). m bhoā (=Oh! Alright, yes please). Evam eva (=like that only, granted). Ki, cirad darñanam (=why seen after a long time, why were you not seen for long)? Bhavanta, kutr<sup>1</sup>pi dĀ-av<sup>1</sup>n (=Have seen you somewhere). Bhav<sup>1</sup>n / bhavat» sammelane/ ¶ibire/ k<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>laye/mah<sup>1</sup>vidy<sup>1</sup>laye/ granth<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>re ¹gatav<sup>1</sup>n, ¹gatavat» v<sup>1</sup> (=Did you come to the conference/camp/office/college/library)? Tarhi kutra m<sup>1</sup>, dĀ-av<sup>1</sup>n/ dĀ-avat» (=Then, where did you see me)? Tarhi tatra eva m<sup>1</sup>, dĀ-av<sup>1</sup>n/ dĀ-avat» (=Then, you saw me there itself)?

From the above sentences of general conversation, we come to know for sure that in day-to-day usage it is not necessary to use the subject, verb, and etc., in them! In many cases, they are taken for granted, or implied. Moreover, as in spoken English, the Sanskrit language too has its own special style, custom, fashion, which enables the speaker to express the special sense by the different tone, accent or emphasis on particular syllables or words in a sentence. And, in such cases, if one wants to translate them in another language, one has to be very careful to its special idiom.

In English we have conditional usages like 'if this had been the case, ... it would have happened thus'. In such cases there is an involvement of the past action and the future one, though they have actually not happened at all. For expressing such a conditional sense, the forms utilized in Sanskrit are known as Hetu-hetumad-bh<sup>1</sup>va (=the relation of cause and effect) or Kriy<sup>1</sup>-tipapaty-artha (=the sense of an action being overtaken, i.e. to imagine an action on the basis of another one before they have actually happened).

Now, read aloud the following sentences:

Yadi hi ay<sup>1</sup>ci-yam (=if indeed I had asked for), m<sup>1</sup>m acyutaā in various types of grammatical functions.

P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini has affixed various other letters, as initial or middle or the final one, to these Taddhita terminations to indicate their various types of changes that occur when these terminations are applied. These letters do not form a part of the terminations, and since they are elided in the grammatical process on indicating the function connected with it. They are, therefore, called 'it' (=those who go away, i.e., they are only indicatory). It is customary in the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>inian system to recognize these terminations on the basis of such it letters. Thus, in the termination -hak is kit (=having a k which is it). The termination a<sup>1</sup>a, is ाit (=having a <sup>1</sup>a which is it). The matup is pit (=having a p which is it). The vuñ is ñit ((=having a ñ which is it).

From the viewpoint of grammatical analysis, while applying these Taddhita terminations, we have to understand that when a termination is ñit or <sup>1</sup>it, the first vowel in the verbal root or the nominal base to which it applies is replaced by its vādhhi equivalent. For instance, in diti + <sup>1</sup>ya, where diti comprises the letters d-i-t-l, since the termination is <sup>1</sup>it, the first vowel after d is replaced by its equivalent vādhhi vowel ai, and the last vowel of the original nominal base diti is elided. Thus, diti + <sup>1</sup>ya = d-ai-t-i+ya = d-ai-t+ya = daitya (=the demons, i.e., the ones who are the sons of diti). Similarly, in r<sup>1</sup>jan+matup, since the termination matup is pit, and it begins with the letter m, the final consonant n of the base r<sup>1</sup>-j-a-n is elided. Thus, r<sup>1</sup>jan+matup=r<sup>1</sup>ja+mat(>vat)= r<sup>1</sup>javat.

Similarly, in the case of tman+ya, since the termination ya, begins with a vowel y, both the final consonant and the final vowel are elided, t-t-m-a-n + y = t<sup>1</sup>m + y = t<sup>1</sup>mya (=that which belongs to the Self). In the case of lava<sup>1</sup>a+ -hañ, since the termination -hañ is both -hit and ñit, it is replaced by ika, and the initial vowel a of the base lava<sup>1</sup>a is replaced by its equivalent vādhhi vowel <sup>1</sup>, thus lava<sup>1</sup>a+ -hañ = lava<sup>1</sup>a>l<sup>1</sup>va<sup>1</sup>a+ -hañ>ika = l<sup>1</sup>va<sup>1</sup>a (by elision of the final vowel) + ika = l<sup>1</sup>va<sup>1</sup>ika (=dealing in salt, or charming).

The -yu in a termination is replaced by -ana, and the vu- in it is replaced by -aka. For instance, nanda+lyu = nand (by elision of the final vowel a) +yu (by elision of the intial indicatory I) = nand + ana= nandana, and vasudeva + vuñ = v<sup>1</sup>sudev (by elision of the final vowel a) + vu (by elision of the final indicatory ñ) = v<sup>1</sup>sudeva+aka= v<sup>1</sup>sudevaka.

The initial ph in the termination is replaced by yan, h by eya, kh by n, gh by y, and ch by iy. Thus, nara+phak = n<sup>1</sup>r + pha= n<sup>1</sup>r+ yan (placed before the final vowel) + a = n<sup>1</sup>r yan<sup>2</sup>a (by changing n to <sup>2</sup>a by coalescence because preceded by r). Vinat<sup>1</sup> + hak = vainat+dha= Vainat+eya= vainateya / Kula+kha=kul+kh+a=kul »n+a=kulna / Garga+cha+g<sup>1</sup>rga+ch+a=g<sup>1</sup>rga+ »y+a=g<sup>1</sup>rgeya / K-katra+cha=k-atr+ch+a=ka-tr+»ya=k-atriya / From the point of view of grammatical analysis this process would seem to be rather difficult. But, in order to facilitate easiness and simplicity, P<sup>1<sup>a</sup></sup>ini has given very short aphorisms (śōtras) which could be esily memorized and would enhance the power of thinking, remembering and analyzing.

The Taddhita terminations have been classified by the grammarians in accordance with the sense to be denoted by them, as Apaty<sup>1</sup>rtha, Matvarth<sup>2</sup>ya, Bh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>rtha and Karm<sup>1</sup>rtha, Samōh<sup>1</sup>rtha, Sambhandh<sup>1</sup>rtha and Vik<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>rthaka, Parim<sup>1<sup>a</sup></sup>rthaka and Sa, khy<sup>1</sup>-nrtha, Hit<sup>1</sup>rtha, Kriy<sup>1</sup>-vi<sup>1</sup>le-a<sup>2</sup>rtha, ~ai-ika, and Prak<sup>2</sup>r<sup>2</sup>aka. We shall go into them later on in lesson 21st and others.

Now, read aloud the following simple sentences
of day-to-day gentlemanly conversation:

Hariā om! (=Hello! How do you do?) / Suprabh<sup>1</sup>tam (=Good morning.) / ~ubhar<sup>1</sup>triā (= Good night.) / Namaste or Namaskarāå (=Salutation!) / K-amyat<sup>1</sup>m (= Beg your pardon.) Cint<sup>1</sup> m<sup>1</sup> 'stu (=Don't worry. Does n't matter). Kāpay<sup>1</sup> (= Please, If you don't mind). ~gamyat<sup>1</sup>m (=Please! Come). Su-sv<sup>1</sup>gatam =welcome!). Punar mil<sup>1</sup>maå (=we shall meet again, see you again). ~roman (=Hello! gentleman!). M<sup>1</sup>nye / ~rye (= Respected / Gentle Lady). Bahu sam<sup>2</sup>c<sup>2</sup>nam (=very well).

Bhavataå (M.) /Bhavaty<sup>1</sup>å (F.) n<sup>1</sup>ma kim -(What is your good name)? Mama (=my) n<sup>1</sup>ma _____ / Aya, mama mitra, (=friend)_____ n<sup>1</sup>ma / E-<sup>1</sup> (=this) mama sakh<sup>2</sup> (girl friend). Ete<sup>1</sup>, vi-aye(=about them) ~rutav<sup>1</sup> aham (=I have heard).

Bhav<sup>1</sup>n (M.) /Bhavat (F.) ki, karoti (=what are you doing)? Aham adhy<sup>1</sup>pakaå / adhy<sup>1</sup>pik<sup>1</sup> (=I am a teacher) adhik<sup>1</sup>r (= officer.) / cikitsakaå (=a physician, doctor) / tanrajñaå (=technician)/ ga<sup>2</sup>akaå (=accountant) / u--a<sub>i</sub> kakaå (=typist) / nide<sub>i</sub>akaå (=director) / pr<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>pakaå (=professor) / v<sup>1</sup>cakiaå (=reader) / vy<sup>1</sup>khy<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> (=lecturer) / sa, ~odhana-sah<sup>1</sup>yakaå (=research assistant) / granthap<sup>1</sup>laå (=librarian) / k<sup>1</sup>ryakaraå (=peon) / asmi (=I am). Aha, (=I) vidy<sup>1</sup>laye (=in a school) / k<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>laye (= in the office) rug<sup>2</sup>1laye (in a hospital) / yantr<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>re (=in a factory) / vitta-ko<sub>i</sub>fe (=in a bank/treasury), ganaka-vibh<sup>1</sup>ge (= in accounts department) / ~a, ~odhana-sa, sth<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>m (=in a research institute) / mah<sup>1</sup>vidy<sup>1</sup>laye (=a college), vi-vavidy<sup>1</sup>laye (=in a university) / k<sup>1</sup>rya, karomi (=am working).

Bhav<sup>1</sup>n / bhavat kasy<sup>1</sup>, (= in which) kak-y<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, (= in the standard) pa-hati (=are studying) ? Aha, navana-kak-y<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, (=in the ninth standard) / vinayana-prathana-var-e (=first year arts) / v<sup>1</sup>ijya-dvit<sup>1</sup>ya-var-e (=in second year commerce)/ vijñ<sup>1</sup>na-tât<sup>1</sup>ya-var-e (=in third year science), anus<sup>1</sup>taka-varge (in post-graduate class) / pa-h<sup>1</sup>mi (=am studying).

Bhavataå / bhavaty<sup>1</sup>å gr<sup>1</sup>maå (=village, town) ki, ? Mama gr<sup>1</sup>maå / nagara, _____ iti n<sup>1</sup>ma / Bhav<sup>1</sup>n / bhavat ku<sub>i</sub>alaå / ku<sub>i</sub>al<sup>1</sup> (=are in good health) Iti 1<sup>1</sup>se (I hope that) ? Bhavataå / bhavaty<sup>1</sup>å g<sup>1</sup>he sarve ku<sub>i</sub>alinaå kim (= Are all in good health in your house) ? Kaå vi<sup>1</sup>le-aå / Kaå sam<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>raå / K<sup>1</sup> v<sup>1</sup>rt<sup>1</sup> (=What news)? Bhav<sup>1</sup>n eva kathayatu (= Please you yourself say). Bhav<sup>1</sup>n / bhavat kutaå 1gacchat (= Where do you come from)? Aha, ~l<sup>1</sup>taå (=From school) / g<sup>1</sup>hataå (=From house) / vipa<sup>2</sup>itaå (=From the market), agacch<sup>1</sup>mi (=Am coming). Bhav<sup>1</sup>n / bhavat kutra gacchat (=Where do you go)? Aha, k<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>laya, gacch<sup>1</sup>mi (=I am going to office). Yad bhavat tad bhavat (= Let whatever happens happen). Yad bhavet tat pafy<sup>1</sup>maå (=We will see what happens). Jñ<sup>1</sup>ta, v<sup>1</sup> (=Did you come to know)? Katham 1s<sup>1</sup>t (=How were the things)? Aj g<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>ta, kila (=they say he has accepted after all). *Kati apek-*it<sup>1</sup>ni (How much is/many are/ expected)? Adya eva (= today only)? Id<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m eva (=right now)? gantavyam eva bhoå (=you have to come without fail). Tadartha, v<sup>1</sup> (=Is it for him/ her)? Tat kim api m<sup>1</sup> 'stu (=Nothing of that sort, please). Na d<sup>1</sup>lyate (= Is not seen). Sam<sup>1</sup>pta, v<sup>1</sup> (=Is it over)? Tath<sup>1</sup> 'pi (=Even then). va-yaka, na 1s<sup>1</sup>t (=It was not uv<sup>1</sup>ca): Ke॥avaā/(Gop» uttarayati): ~irasi jai n<sup>1</sup>ma ki, garv<sup>1</sup>yase ?(KĀ-<sup>a</sup>a uv<sup>1</sup>ca): Bhadre! Aham ॥auriā /(Gop» uttarayati): PitĀ-gataiā gu॥aā n<sup>1</sup>ma ki, garv<sup>1</sup>yase? (KĀ-<sup>a</sup>a uv<sup>1</sup>ca): He candra-mukhi ! Aha, cakr» / (Gop» uttarayati): (yadi tva, cakr», tarhi) nu me ku<sup>a</sup>®, dha-», dohin», ca prayacchasi /

Ittha, = anna prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>a, gop» pra॥na, karoti, KĀ-<sup>a</sup>a॥ ca pratytrara, dad<sup>1</sup>ti / Kintu gop» tat-pratyuttarasya vipartam artha, gĀhitv<sup>1</sup> punaā pra॥na, karoti / KĀ-<sup>a</sup>aā punar api pratyuttara, dad<sup>1</sup>ti / Punar api gop» tat-pratyuttarasya vipartam artha, gĀhitv<sup>1</sup> punaā pra॥na, karoti / Eva, pratyekasmin pratyuttare punar api gopy<sup>1</sup>ā pra॥naā samudbhavati / Kintu KĀ-<sup>a</sup>aā pra॥nasya samucitam antima, pratyuttara, d<sup>1</sup>tu, na ॥aknoti / Ata eva gopy<sup>1</sup> jitāā san sa lajj<sup>1</sup>-yuktaā bhavati / Eva, lajjita-svarōpasya ॥r»-KĀ-<sup>a</sup>asya et<sup>1</sup>dĀ॥aā l<sup>1</sup>॥laā hariā yu-m<sup>1</sup>n p<sup>1</sup>tu iti ॥abdaīā stutiā kĀt<sup>1</sup> ॥loke 'smin //

Coalescence: Kaā+ tvam / Bho+ni॥l / Sariā+ aham/ Gopa- vadhōbhiā+uttaratay<sup>1</sup> / Hr»<sup>a</sup>aā+hariā /

Vocabulary: Ke॥avaā=kĀ-<sup>a</sup>aā, ke॥a-saundarya-yuktaā ca / ~irasi j<sup>1</sup>taiā=ke॥aiā=v<sup>1</sup>laiā/ Garv<sup>1</sup>yase=garva-yuktaā bhavasi=abhim<sup>1</sup>na, karo-li / ~auriā= ॥orasya gotr<sup>1</sup>patya, pum<sup>1</sup>n, ॥orasya gu<sup>a</sup>aiā yuktaā ca / PitĀ-gataiā=pitari gatā=pitari vidyam<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ā, taiā / Cakr»=cakra-yukto vi-<sup>a</sup>uā, cakra-yuktaā kumbhak<sup>1</sup>raā ca / Ku<sup>a</sup>®=ladhuā ku<sup>a</sup>®aā / Gha-»=laghuā gha-aā / Dohin»= dugdha, dogdhum (=to draw milk) upayukta, (=useful) laghu bh<sup>1</sup>a®am (=small vessel). Hr»<sup>a</sup>aā = lajj<sup>1</sup>-yuktaā //

In this verse the following humorous dialogue between a cowherd damsel (gop») and KĀ-<sup>a</sup>a has been depicted:

Gop» - Who are you, at night ?

KĀ-<sup>a</sup>a – I am Ke॥ava.

Gop» - Why do you take pride by calling yourself 'ke॥a-va' (= one having fine hairs) ?

KĀ-<sup>a</sup>a – O Good Lady! I am ~aur».

Gop» - What is the greatness in introducing yourself as ~aur».
(= a worthy descendant of ~ōra). -

KĀ-<sup>a</sup>a - O Moon-faced Beauty! I am Cakr».

Gop» - (If you are really a Cakr», i.e. one who works on the potter's wheel), give me a small trough, a small pitcher and a small milking vessel.

For converting the ordinal numbers from 61 to 69, 71 to 79, 81 to 89, and 91 to 99 into their cardinals, the final -i is elided or -tama/tam» are suffixed. As for instance, *dvi-a-*a or dvi-a--itama (M. = sixty-second), dvi-a--» or dvi-a--itam» (F. = sixty-second), trayonavata or trayonavatitama (M. = ninety-third), trayonavat» or trayonavati- tam» F. =ninety-third). Similarly, the ordinal numbers 60, 70, 80, 90 and 100 can be converted into their cardinals by suffixing -tama/tam», e.g., -a--itama (M. =sixtieth), -a--itam» (F. =sixtieth).

The a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta cardinal numerals like prathama (M.), etc., are declined like the other a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns such as r<sup>1</sup>ma, but in the Nom. Pl. both the forms pratham<sup>1</sup>ā and prathame are used. The 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta cardinal numerals, like pratham<sup>1</sup> (F.) are declined like the other 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns. The cardinal numerals dvit<sup>1</sup>ya (M., N.), t<sup>1</sup>trya (M., N.), etc., are declined like the other a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns, but in the Cases from Dat. to Locative, they are also declined like the adjectival nouns sarva, e.g., dvit<sup>1</sup>ya / dvit<sup>1</sup>yasmai (M., N., in Dat.), dvit<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>1</sup>ā / dvit<sup>1</sup>yas<sup>1</sup>ā (F., in Gen.), dvit<sup>1</sup>yas<sup>1</sup>ya (M., N., Gen.), dvit<sup>1</sup>ye / dvit<sup>1</sup>yas<sup>1</sup>min (M., N., Loc.), dvit<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>1</sup>m / dvit<sup>1</sup>yas<sup>1</sup>m (F., Loc.). The Fem. »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ta cardinal numeral adjectives, such as saptam» and etc., are declined like the Fem. »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ta nouns nad, e.g., saptamy<sup>1</sup> (F. =by the seventieth), a--amy<sup>1</sup>ā (F. = of the eightieth), navaty<sup>1</sup>m (F.= in the ninetieth). The very big ordinal numbers are formulated by juxtaposing the word adhika or uttara between the numbers ॥ata, sahasra, etc. in their orders, e.g., sapt<sup>1</sup>॥ty-adhika-nava॥lat<sup>1</sup>dhika-sahasram or sapt<sup>1</sup>॥ty-adhika, nava॥lat<sup>1</sup>tottara, sahasram (=87+900+1000 =1987), try-adhika-dvi-sahasram or tryottara, dvi-sahasram (=3+ 2000=2003).

Another simple method is that of mentioning the tens and hundreds separately. Thus, the numbers from 111 to 159, 211 to 259, etc., can be expressed as ek<sup>1</sup>da॥a, ॥latam (=111), nava-pañc<sup>1</sup>॥a, dvi-॥latam (=259), vi, ॥a, tri-॥latam (=320).

For expressing very big numbers, there is yet another easy method of just mentioning from right to left the digits of the concerned number, and suffix the word -saj khyak<sup>1</sup>ā, -mit<sup>1</sup>ā, e.g., nava-sapta-a--pañca-dvi-saj khyak<sup>1</sup>ā / nava-sapta-a--pañca-dvi-mit<sup>1</sup>ā (=25,679), which practically means  $9 + 70 + 600 + 5,000 + 20,000$ ). In English this is expressed by speaking out as 'nine plus seventy plus six hundred plus five thousand plus twenty-thousand, ar per the placement of the digits in the number from right to left.

In ancient times, there was a custom of mentioning, particularly to express the years, the number of the very well known things whose collective numbers were popularly understood by all, such as bhōmi, indu (=1) / bhuja, pak-a, netra (=2), pura, loka, agni, gu-a (=3) / veda, samudra, yuga (=4) / i-u, bhōta, v1yu, pr1a (=5) / ajga, rasa, Ātu (=6) / parvata, a1va (=7), vasu, diggaja, sarpa, n1ga (=8) / graha, nidhi, ratna (=9) / abhra, kha, 10nya (=0).

In the ancient works on Mathematics, the various functions like addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, etc., are expressed in the following manner: Pañca-dā॥abhiā sa, yojitesu pañcasu (=when five are added to fifteen) samav1yaā (=the total) vi, ¶atiā sampadyate (= twenty is obtained.) / 1o^a॥abhyāā viyojite-u a-su (=when six are subtracted from sixteen), ava॥e-aā (=the remainder) dā॥a bhavati (= becomes ten.) / Saptabhiā gu^aite-a-su (=when seven is multiplied by eight) gu^a-phala, (=multiple) -a-pañc1¶at bhavati (=becomes fifty-six.) / Navabhiā vibhakte-u tri-saptati-u (=when seventy-three are divided by nine) a-au bh1ga-phala, (=dividend eight) -e-aā ca ekaā pr1pyate (=and the remainder one is obtained).

For expressing the function 'so many times', the following numerical adjectives are used in Sanskrit: sakĀt (=once), dviā (=twice), triā (=thrice), catuā (=four times, quadruple), pañca-kĀtvāā (=five times, fivefold), -a--pañc1¶at-kĀtvāā (=fifty-six times), ¶ata-kĀtvāā (=hundred times, hundred-fold). Here it should be noted that the word 'kĀtvāā' applied here, and not 'kĀtv1'.

When an action is performed repeatedly, the word expressing time is used in the Genitive, as for instance in: Divasasya sakĀt (=once in a day) / Sapt1hasya triā (=thrice in a week) / M1sasya dā॥a-kĀtvāā (=ten times in a month).

The declension of the pronoun adas in Mas. and Fem.:

	Adas (M.) = that			Adas (F.) = that
Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom.	asau	amØ	am»	asau	amØ	amØā
Voc.	-	-	-	-	-	-
Acc.	amum	amØ	amØn	"	"	"
Instr.	amun <sup>1</sup>	amØby <sup>1</sup> m	amØbhiā	amuy <sup>1</sup>	amØbhy <sup>1</sup> m	amØbhiā
Dat.	amu-mai	"	amØbhyaā	amu-yai	"	amØbhyaā
Abl.	amu-m <sup>1</sup> t	"	"	amu-y <sup>1</sup> å	"	"
Gen.	amu-ya	amuyoå	am»- <sup>1</sup> m	"	amuyoå	amØ- <sup>1</sup> m
Loc.	amu-min	"	am»-u	amu-y <sup>1</sup> m	"	amu-u

Looking to the above forms of adas (m.) with those of adas (f.) we find the main differences as follows: in Nom. Pl. am» (m.) – amØ (f.), in Acc. Pl. amØn (m.) – amØā (f.), in Instr. Sing. amun<sup>1</sup> (m.) – amuy<sup>1</sup> (f.), in Dat. Sing. amu-mai (m.) – amu-yai, in Abl. Sing. amu-m<sup>1</sup>t (m.) – amu-y<sup>1</sup>å (f.), Gen. Sing. amu-ya (m.) – amu-y<sup>1</sup>å (f.), in Loc. Sing. amu-min (m.) – amu-y<sup>1</sup>m; in Instr. Pl. amØbhiā (m.) – amØbhiā (f.), in Dat. and Abl. Pl. amØbhyaā (m.) – amØbhyaā (f.), in Gen. Pl. am»-<sup>1</sup>m (m.), Loc. Pl. am»-u (m.) – amØ-u (f.). This difference should be born in mind.

As regards the forms of idam and adas in Neuter, only the forms of Nom. and Acc. are different, while rest of them in all other Cases are similar to those of respective masculine ones:

	Idam (n.) = This (nearby)			Adas (n.) = This (more close by)
	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom.	idam	eme	im <sup>1</sup> ni	adaā	amØ	amØni
Acc.	"	"	"	"	"	"

Now, sing aloud rhythmically the following verses and read aloud their explanations:

*Kastva, bhoā ni¶i ke¶avaā ¶irasijaā ki, n1ma garv1yase
Bhadre ¶aurir aha, gu^aiaā pitÄgataiā putrasya ki, gauravam /
Cakr1 candra-mukhi! prayachhasi nu me ku^a®, gha-», dohiniim Itha, gopa-vadhöbhira uttaratay1 hr»o hariå p1tu vaå //*

Asmin ¶loke gopy1 saha kA-aasya vinoda-pØr^aå pra¶nottararøpaå sa, v1daå nirØpitah / (Gop) pÅchati: Bhoå! Kaå tvam / (KÅ-a

*Idam astuu sannikÅ̄-a, sam»patara-varti caitado rØpam /
Adasas tu viprakÅ̄-a, tad iti parok-e vij¹n»y¹t //*

SannikÅ̄-a, (=nearby, adjacent) vastu idamaå idam-sarvan¹mnaå (=of the pronoun idam) rØpeªa nirdifyate (=is indicated); sam»patara-varti (=located very nearby) adhika-sam»pe vartam¹ne vastuni ca etadaå etad-sarvan¹mnaå rØpa, prayujyate (=is used); viprakÅ̄-a, (a distant) vastu adasaå adas-sarvan¹mnaå rØpeªa n nisdifyate / Parok-e (=beyond the range of the eye-sight) vastuni tatsarvan¹mnaå prayogaå kriyate; et¹ni sarvan¹m¹ni prathama-puru-a-v¹cak¹ni santi //

The declension of the pronoun idam in Mas. and Fem.:

	Idam (M.) = this			Idam (F.) = this
Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom.	ayam	imau	ime	iyam	ime	im¹å
Voc.	-	-	-	-	-	-
Acc.	imam	imau	ime	im¹m	ime	im¹å
Instr.	anena	¹bhy¹m	ebhiå	anay¹	¹bhy¹m	¹bhiå
Dat.	asmai	"	ebhyaå	asyai	"	¹bhyaaå
Abl.	asm¹t	"	"	asy¹å	"	"
Gen.	asya	anayoå	e-¹m	"	anayoå	¹s¹m
Loc.	asmin	"	e-u	asy¹m	"	¹su

On comparing the mas. and fem., forms of the idam pronoun in different cases, we find the following difference: in the nom. and voc. sing. ayam (m.) – iyam (f.), in du. imau (m.)- ime (f.). in pl. ime (m.) – im¹å (f.); in acc. sing. imam (m.) – im¹m (f.), in du. imau (m.) - ime (f.), in pl. im¹n (m.) – im¹å (f.); in the inst. Sing. anena (m.) – anay¹ (f.), in pl. ebhiå (m.) - ¹bhiå (f.); in dat. sing. asmai (m.) – asyai (f.), in pl. ebhyaå (m.) - ¹bhyaaå (f.); in abl. sing. asm¹t (m.) – asy¹å (f.); in gen. sing. asya (m.) – asy¹å (f.), in pl. e-¹m (m.) - ¹s¹m (f.); and in loc. sing. asmin (m.) – asy¹m (f.), and in pl. e-u (m.) - ¹su (f.). The rest of the forms, viz. inst. Dat. and abl. du. and dat. and abl. pl., as also gen. and loc. du. forms are just similar; and there are no prevalent forms in vocative.

To express the sense of 'in so many ways' in Sanskrit, the termination -dh¹ is suffixed, as for instance in: dvidh¹ / dvedh¹ (=in two ways), tridh¹ / tredh¹ (=in three ways), caturdh¹ (=in four ways); similarly in pañcadh¹ (=in five ways), -a°dh¹ / -o°h¹ (=in six ways), saptadh¹, a--adh¹, navadh¹, and etc.

To convey the sense of a serial order, the termination -¶aå is suffixed, as for instance in: eka¶aå (=one by one), dvi¶aå (=two by two at a time), tri¶aå (=three by three at a time), pañca¶aå (=five by five at a time).

In order to express a collective number, the termination -taya or ka is used, as for instance in: dvitayam / dvayam (=pair); trayam / trikam (=group of three); catu-ayam / catu-kam (= group of four); a--akam (=group of eight); navakam (=group of nine); da¶akam / da¶at (=group of ten); ¶atakam (=group of hundred).

Now, read aloud the following verses and their explanation, trying to grasp their meaning:

*Suputro varam eko 'pi ki, kuputra-¶atair api /
Eka¶i candro jad-d»paå nak-atraiå ki, prayojanam //*

Ekaå api suputraå (=¶lobhanaå putraå = sat-putraå) vara, (¶re-‐haå) bhavati / Kuputra-¶ataiå (=¶ata-saj khy¹kaiå kutsita-putraiå) api ki, prayojanam ? (=kim api prayojana, na bhavati ity arthaå /) Ekaå candraå jagad-d»paå (=d»pa-rØpeªa jagat prak¹- ayati/) (Ataå a-saj khy¹kaiå ) nak-atraiå ki, prayojanam ? (=kim api prayojana, na asti ity arthaå /)

*Udyamaå s¹hasa, dhairyå, buddhiå ¶aktiå par¹kramaå /
¹a° et¹ni ca yatra syus tatra devaå sah¹ya-kÅt //*
Udyamå (=udyogaå), s¹hasa, (=s¹hasikat¹), dhairyå, (=dhirat¹), Buddhiå (=biddhimatt¹), ¶aktiå (=¶aktimatt¹), par¹kramaå (=par¹-krama-s»lat¹), ity et¹ni -a° vastøni (=ete -a° guª¹å) yatra syuå (=bhavyeuå \ = would exist), tatra (=tasy¹m avasth¹y¹, ) devaå (=daiv-¶aktiå =bh¹gya, ) sah¹ya-kÅt (=sah¹yak¹r» bhavati= sah¹ya, karoti) /

Bhavanti na hi pØr<sup>a</sup>ni saptait<sup>1</sup>ni kad<sup>1</sup>cana /
KÅpa<sup>a</sup>o 'gnir yamo bhØpaå payodhir udara, gÅham //

KÅpa<sup>a</sup>aå (=a miser), agniå (= fire), yamaå (= god of death), bhØpaå (=a ruler), payodhiå (=a sea), udara, (=belly), gÅha, (=a house, residence), et<sup>1</sup>ni saptat kad<sup>1</sup>cana (=kad<sup>1</sup>cit api= kad<sup>1</sup>pi=kasmin api k<sup>1</sup>le = ever, at any time) pØr<sup>a</sup>ni na hi bhavanti / KÅpa<sup>a</sup>aå kad<sup>1</sup>cana 1tm<sup>1</sup>na, (=himself) pØr<sup>a</sup>a, (=dhanena pØrita, = full of money = possessing sufficient wealth) na manyate (=does not consider) / Agniå kad<sup>1</sup>pi santu~o (= satisfied) na bhavati / Yamaå kad<sup>1</sup>pi svasya k<sup>1</sup>rya, pØr<sup>a</sup>a, kartu, (= to complete, finish), na ~aknoti / BhØpaå (=bhØpatiå = r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>= ruler, king) kad<sup>1</sup>pi svasya r<sup>1</sup>jya, pary<sup>1</sup>pta, (=sufficient, enough) na manyate / Payodhiå kad<sup>1</sup>pi pØr<sup>a</sup>aå (=full) na bhavati /Uddara, v<sup>1</sup>ra, v<sup>1</sup>ram (=again and again) annena pØritam api (=even though filled with food) kad<sup>1</sup>pi pØr<sup>a</sup>a, na bhavati / Gåhe yady api pu-kal<sup>1</sup>ni vastØni bhavaeuyuå tath<sup>1</sup>pi gÅha, kad<sup>1</sup>pi paripØr<sup>a</sup>a, na bhavati /

L<sup>1</sup>layet pañca-var<sup>-1</sup>aI da-a var<sup>-1</sup>aI t<sup>1</sup>©ayet /
Pr<sup>1</sup>pte tu ~o<sup>o</sup>aße var-e putre mitravad 'caret //

Janm<sup>1</sup>d (= janma-divas<sup>1</sup>d = from the birth-day) 1rabhya (=starting, beginning with) pañca-var-a-paryanta, (=upto the age of five years) putra, l<sup>1</sup>layet (= tasya l<sup>1</sup>lana, kury<sup>1</sup>t = should be fondled, caressed) ity arthaå / Tataå ~a--h<sup>1</sup>d var<sup>-1</sup>d 1rabhya, dafla-var<sup>-1</sup>aI = pañca-daflama-var-a-paryanta, =upto the fifteenth year) t<sup>1</sup>©ayet / DÅ<sup>o</sup>ha, manobala, , li~a-sammataflca 1c<sup>1</sup>raå ity eva, -rØpam uttama, ¶ik-a<sup>a</sup>a, d<sup>1</sup>tu, , yadi ava-yaka, (=if necessary) tarhi (= tad<sup>1</sup>, tasy<sup>1</sup>m paristhity<sup>1</sup>m = then, in that case, in such a situation) ¶ik-<sup>1</sup>-rØpa, t<sup>1</sup>©anam (=beating, thrashing, striking) api kury<sup>1</sup>d ity arthaå /Kintu (= but), putre ~o<sup>o</sup>aße var-e pr<sup>1</sup>pte (=yad<sup>1</sup> putraå ~o<sup>o</sup>aße, var-a, pr<sup>1</sup>pnoti (= yad<sup>1</sup> putraå yuv<sup>1</sup>vavasth<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, pravifflati tad<sup>1</sup>) tena saha (=with him) mitravad (=like a friend, in a friendly manner) 'caret (=should behave, shoudt be treated as) / Tad<sup>1</sup> (=at that time) tasya ¶ik-a<sup>a</sup>1rtha, t<sup>1</sup>©ana-rØp<sup>1</sup> da<sup>a</sup>©a-vidh<sup>1</sup>na-paddhatiå (=the method of teaching through punishment, like beating, etc.) yadi prayujyate (=if adopted), tad<sup>1</sup> tasya svam<sup>1</sup>na-bha; ga, kÅtv<sup>1</sup> (=having hurt his self-

khanyat<sup>1</sup>m - kh<sup>1</sup>yat<sup>1</sup>m / khanet - khaneta / khanyeta - kh<sup>1</sup>yeta / khanat - khanam<sup>1</sup>na, khanyam<sup>1</sup>na - kh<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1</sup>na / khanitavya, khanan<sup>1</sup>ya, kheya / kh<sup>1</sup>ta / khanitum / khanitv<sup>1</sup>, kh<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup> / khani-yati - khani-yate / akhani-yat - akhani-yata //

Gam (1 P.) = To go -gacchat, gamyate/agacchat, agamyata / gacchatu, gamyat<sup>1</sup>m /gacchet, gamyeta / gacchat, gamyam<sup>1</sup>na / gantavya, gamanya, gamya / gata / gantum /gatv<sup>1</sup> ('gamya or 'gatya) / gami-yati / agami-yat //

Sam+gam (1 ..) = To meet, to be united with - sa, gacchate, sa, gamyate / samagacchata, samagamyata / sa, gacchat<sup>1</sup>m, sa, gamyat<sup>1</sup>m / sa, gaccheta, sa, gamyeta / sa, gaccham<sup>1</sup>na, sa, gamyam<sup>1</sup>na / sa, gantavya, sa, gamanya, sa, gamya / sa, gata / sa, gantum / sa, gamya, sa, gatya /sa, ga, syate / samaga, syata //

Gal (1 P.) = To drip, trickle, distill; to vanish, perish, pass away - galati, galyate / agalat, agalyata / galatu, galyat<sup>1</sup>m / galet, galyeta / galat, galyam<sup>1</sup>na / galitavya, galan<sup>1</sup>ya, galya / galita / galitum / galitv<sup>1</sup> /gali-yati / agali-yata //

Ava+g<sup>1</sup>h (1 ..) = To plunge into, bathe in; to go deep into, be absorbed in - avag<sup>1</sup>hate, avag<sup>1</sup>hyate / av<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>hata, av<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>hyata / avag<sup>1</sup>hat<sup>1</sup>m, avag<sup>1</sup>hyat<sup>1</sup>m / avag<sup>1</sup>heta, avag<sup>1</sup>hyeta / avag<sup>1</sup>ham<sup>1</sup>na, avag<sup>1</sup>hyam<sup>1</sup>na / avag<sup>1</sup>hitavya, avag<sup>1</sup>©havya, avag<sup>1</sup>hya / avag<sup>1</sup>©ha / avag<sup>1</sup>hitum, avag<sup>1</sup>©hum / avag<sup>1</sup>hya, vag<sup>1</sup>hya / avag<sup>1</sup>hi-yate / av<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>hi-yata //

Car (1 P.) = To move one's self, go walk, move, stir, roam about, wander - carati, caryate / acarat, acaryata / caret, caryeta/ carat, caryam<sup>1</sup>a / caritavya, cara<sup>a</sup>ya, carya, (1c<sup>1</sup>rya) / carita / caritum / caritv<sup>1</sup> / cari-yati / acari-yat //

Cal (1 P.) = To be moved, stir, tremble, quiver, be agitated, palpitate - calati, calyate / acalat, acalyata / calet, calyeta/ calat, calyam<sup>1</sup>a / calitavya, cala<sup>a</sup>ya, calya / calita / calitum / calitv<sup>1</sup> / cali-yati / acali-yat //

In English, the pronouns 'this' nearby and 'that' is used for indicating a thing at a distance. But since Sanskrit was a far advanced language, there is in it the facility of words that denote more subtle aspects of these two concepts. The following verse contains in a nutshell the different pronouns with their meanings:

Pra+k<sup>1</sup>-(1.) = To appear, shine, to become visible, to become evident or manifest – prak<sup>1</sup>ate, prak<sup>1</sup>yata / pr<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>yata, pr<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>yata / prak<sup>1</sup>yat<sup>1</sup>m, prak<sup>1</sup>yat<sup>1</sup>m / prak<sup>1</sup>yeta, prak<sup>1</sup>yeta / prak<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1</sup>na, prak<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1</sup>na / prak<sup>1</sup>itavya, prak<sup>1</sup>an<sup>1</sup>ya, prak<sup>1</sup>ya / prak<sup>1</sup>yita / prak<sup>1</sup>yitum / prak<sup>1</sup>ya / prak<sup>1</sup>yi-yate / pr<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>yi-yata //

Kup (4 P.) = To be angry, excited, agitated, moved – kupyati, kupyate / akupyat, akupyata / kupyat, kupyat<sup>1</sup>m / kupyet, kupyeta / kupyat, kupyam<sup>1</sup>na / kopitavya, kopanya, kupya/ kupa / kopitum/ Kupitv<sup>1</sup> - kopitv<sup>1</sup> / kopi-yati / akopi-yat //

KĀ- (1 P.) = To draw, pull, plough – kar-ati, kĀ-yate / akar-at, akĀ-yata / kar-atu, kĀ-yat<sup>1</sup>m / kar-et, kĀ-yeta / kar-at, kĀ-am<sup>1</sup>a / kar-itavya, kar-a<sup>1</sup>ya, kĀ-ya / kĀ-a / kar-um - kra-um / kĀ-v<sup>1</sup> / kark-yati - krak-yati / akark-yat - akrak-yat //

KĀp – (6.) = To mourn, lament, implore – kĀpate, kĀpyate / akĀpata, akĀpyata / kĀpat<sup>1</sup>m, kĀpyat<sup>1</sup>m / kĀpeta, kĀpyeta / kĀpam<sup>1</sup>na, kĀpyam<sup>1</sup>na / kĀpitavya, kĀpa<sup>1</sup>ya, kĀpya / kĀp-yate / akĀpsyat // akĀpi-yata – akarpsyata //

Kop (1.) = To be able to, fit for – kalpate, kalpyate / akalpata, akalpyata / kalpat<sup>1</sup>m, kalpyat<sup>1</sup>m / kalpeta, kalpyeta / kalpam<sup>1</sup>na, kalpyam<sup>1</sup>na / kalpitavya, kalpan<sup>1</sup>ya / kalpya / kipta / kalpitum – kalptum / kalpitv<sup>1</sup> - kalptv<sup>1</sup>, (sa, kalpya) / kalpi-yate – kalpsyate / akalpi-yata - alalpsyata //

Kr<sup>o</sup> (1 P.) = To play, amuse oneself – kr<sup>o</sup>ati, kr<sup>o</sup>yate / akr<sup>o</sup>at, akr<sup>o</sup>yata / kr<sup>o</sup>atu, kr<sup>o</sup>yat<sup>1</sup>m / kr<sup>o</sup>et, kr<sup>o</sup>yeta / kr<sup>o</sup>itavya, kr<sup>o</sup>an<sup>1</sup>ya, kr<sup>o</sup>ya / kr<sup>o</sup>ita / kr<sup>o</sup>itum / kr<sup>o</sup>itv<sup>1</sup> / kr<sup>o</sup>l-yati / akr<sup>o</sup>l-yat /

K-am (1.) = To be patient or composed, suppress anger, endure, put up with, pardon, forgive anything – k-amate, k-amaye / ak-amata, ak-amaya / k-ameta, k-ameta / k-amam<sup>1</sup>a, k-amayam<sup>1</sup>a / k-amitavya - k-antavya, k-amy<sup>1</sup>a / k-nta / k-amitum - k-antum / k-amitv<sup>1</sup> - k-ntv<sup>1</sup> / k-ami-yate - k-a, syate / ak-ami-yata - ak-a, syata //

K-i (1 P.) = To destroy, corrupt, ruin, make an end of, kill, injure – k-ayati, k-ayate / ak-ayat, ak-ayata / k-ayatu, k-ayat<sup>1</sup>m / k-ayet, k-ayeta / k-ayat, k-ayam<sup>1</sup>a / k-etavya, k-ayya, k-eya / k-ita / k-<sup>1</sup>a / k-itv<sup>1</sup> / k-e-yti / ak-e-yat //

Khan (1 U.) = To dig - khanati- khanate, khanyate - kh<sup>1</sup>yate / Akhanat- akhanata, akh<sup>1</sup>yata / khanatu - khanat<sup>1</sup>m /

respect) ni-phal<sup>1</sup> bhavati (=becomes fruitless, fails) / Kintu yadi tasya buddhau (in his intellect) yatha sv<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>rya, bhavati (=becomes acceptable, convincing) tath<sup>1</sup> mitravad upadīnya (=having advised like a friend), sa, sk<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup> (= good impressions, manners) yadi sa, kr<sup>1</sup>myante (=are transmitted), tad<sup>1</sup> s<sup>1</sup> l<sup>1</sup>-a<sup>1</sup>a-pra<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>/ (=system of teaching, educational system), saphal<sup>1</sup> bhavati (=becomes fruitful, succeeds).

Asmin l<sup>1</sup>loke (=in this verse), vayo'nur<sup>1</sup>pa, (= as per the age) k<sup>1</sup>dā<sup>1</sup>la, parivartanam apek-yate (=what sort of change is expected) tad bhagavat<sup>1</sup> manun<sup>1</sup> praka-kātam (=has been revealed by Lord Manu) sva-racit<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, manu-smātai (=in the Manu-smāti composed by him)/

While speaking Sanskrit, there occurs by the very nature of its continuous pronunciation, certain changes in the final syllables of the preceding word and the initial ones of the immediately following word, due to their contiguous position. Such changes are called Sa, hit<sup>1</sup> (=putting together, juxtaposition) or Sandhi (=coalescence). In the Sixth Lesson above, we have learnt about the Ac-sandhi, i.e., coalescence of vowels. We shall now know more about the Visarga-sandhi, i.e., coalescence of the soft aspirate sound ā (written as : after a devan<sup>1</sup>gar syllable in Sanskrit).

In the verses and the sentences of the prose passages given in the preceding lessons, we have learnt that the Visarga remains in tact if it is immediately preceded by the syllables ka, kha, pa, pha, or it occurs at the end of a sentence, as in: KĀ-akaā KĀ-ati (=A farmer tills)/ Coraā khanati (=A thief digs)/ B<sup>1</sup>laā pa<sup>1</sup>yati (=A boy sees)/ Yatnaā phalati (=An effort succeeds)/

But, in situations other than these, the Visarga undergoes different changes; sometimes it is replaced by -u, sometimes by r, or l or -s, and sometimes it is just elided or dropped. The following rules give details about these situations:

(1) If the Visarga is preceded immediately by the vowel a and then followed immediately by an a, the Visarga becomes u, which coalesces with the preceding -a, thus both are replaced by o. Then, the following a- is elided, and in order to indicate the elision of the

- a*, a sign of Avagraha (looking like the Roman S in the Devan<sup>1</sup>garī characters, is put in its place. In English transliteration, this Avagraha is shown by the sign of an apostrophe: Thus, -a+ā+a- = -a+u+a- = -o+, as for instance in, R<sup>1</sup>ma-ā+a-sti = r<sup>1</sup>ma-u+a-sti = ramo+a-sti = ramo+'sti = r<sup>1</sup>mo'sti / Sa-ā+a-sti = sa-u+a-sti = so+a-sti = so+'sti = so'sti / E-aā+asti = e-a+u+a-sti = e-o+a-sti = e-o+'sti = e'o'sti /
- (2) If Visarga is preceded immediately by an -a, and is followed immediately by a soft consonant, (i.e. by any of the third, fourth or the fifth consonants, such as g, gh, j, jh, ñ and so on, of the five classes, viz., ka-varga, ca-varga, etc., or by the semi-vowels y, r, l, v), the Visarga becomes u, which coalesces with the preceding -a, thus both are replaced by o, as for instance in: R<sup>1</sup>m-a-ā+ g-acchati = r<sup>1</sup>ma-u+ g-acchati = r<sup>1</sup>m-o+ g-acchati = r<sup>1</sup>mo+ gacchati= r<sup>1</sup>mo gacchati /
- (3) If the Visarga is immediately preceded an -a, and is followed immediately by a vowel other than a (i.e. in situations like a+ā+<sup>1</sup>, a+ā+l, a+ā+», a+ā+u, a+ā+Ø, a+ā+Ā, etc.), the Visarga is dropped, as for instance in: R<sup>1</sup>ma-ā+ <sup>1</sup>-gacchati = r<sup>1</sup>ma + <sup>1</sup>-gacchati = r<sup>1</sup>ma <sup>1</sup>gacchati / R<sup>1</sup>maā + icchati = r<sup>1</sup>ma+ icchati = r<sup>1</sup>ma icchati / R<sup>1</sup>ma-ā+u-tti-hati= r<sup>1</sup>ma+utti-hati= r<sup>1</sup>ma utti-hati / r<sup>1</sup>ma-ā+Ā-gvedam = r<sup>1</sup>ma-ā+Ā-gvedam = r<sup>1</sup>ma Āgvedam / In such a new resulting situation, it would seem that there is further scope for coalescence of, say, a+<sup>1</sup>, a+i, a+u, a+Ā, and etc. But, this is prohibited, so as to avoid the confusion about the original words.
- (4) If the Visarga is immediately preceded an -<sup>1</sup>, and is followed immediately by any vowel or a soft consonant, the Visarga is dropped, as for instance in: Jan-<sup>1</sup>-ā + »k-ante = jan<sup>1</sup> »k-ante / Jan-<sup>1</sup>-ā+gaccganti= jan<sup>1</sup> gaccganti / Samavet-<sup>1</sup>-ā+y-uyutsavaā= samavet<sup>1</sup> yuyutsavaā /
- (5) If the Visarga is immediately preceded by any vowel other than an -a, or <sup>1</sup> and is followed immediately by any vowel (i.e., in situations like a+ā+<sup>1</sup>, a+ā+l, a+ā+», a+ā+u, a+ā+Ø, a+ā+Ā, etc.), the Visarga is replaced by a repha (i.e., the semivowel r) and it joins with the subsequent vowel, if any. For instance: Hariā+icchati= harir

Then, sort these forms, and make new lists afresh of the similar forms of all the verbal roots in the list below, say, of all the Present Active forms, Present Passive forms, the Aorist forms, the Potential forms, and so on in the first list, and write down their meanings against each of them in English, e.g., A-ati = (He/She/It) wanders; Arhati = (He/She / It) deserves, In another list all the Present Passive forms, e.g. A-yate = (It is being wandered by him/her/it); Arhyate = = (It is being deserved by him/her/it). -at = (He/She/It) wandered; rhat = (He/She/It) deserved; -yata = (It was being wandered by him/her/it); rhyata = (It was being deserved by him/her/it); and so on.

A- (1 P.) = To wander – a-ati, a-yate / <sup>1</sup>-at, <sup>1</sup>-yata / a-atu. a-yat<sup>1</sup>m / a-et, a-yeta / a-at, a-yam<sup>1</sup>na / a-an»ya, a-itavya, <sup>1</sup>-ya / a-ita / a-itum / a-itv<sup>1</sup> / a-l-yati / <sup>1</sup>-i-yat //

Arh (1 P.) = To deserve – arhati, arhyate / <sup>1</sup>rhat, <sup>1</sup>rhyata / arhatu / <sup>1</sup>rhyat<sup>1</sup>m / arhet, /<sup>1</sup>rhyata / arhat, arhyam<sup>1</sup>na / arhya, arha<sup>2</sup>»ya, arhitavya / arhita / arhitum / arhitv<sup>1</sup> / arhi-yati / <sup>1</sup>rhi-yat //

Av (1 P.) = To protect – avati, avyate / <sup>1</sup>vat, <sup>1</sup>vyata / avatu, avyat<sup>1</sup>m / avet, avyeta / avat, avyam<sup>1</sup>na / avya, avan»ya, avitavya / avita, Ø*ta*, avitum / avitv<sup>1</sup> / avi-yati / <sup>1</sup>vi-yat //

»k- (1 .) = To see - »k-ate, »k-yate / aik-ata, aik-yata / »k-at<sup>1</sup>m, »k-yat<sup>1</sup>m / »k-eta, »k-yeta / »k-am<sup>1</sup>a, »k-yam<sup>1</sup>a / »k-itavya, »k-a<sup>2</sup>»ya, »k-ya / »k-itum / »k-itv<sup>1</sup> / »k-i-yate / aik-i-yata //

Sam+Ādh (1 P.) = To prosper, please – samĀdhyati / samĀdhyate / sam<sup>1</sup>rdhyat / sam<sup>1</sup>rdhyata / samĀdhyatu, samĀdhyat<sup>1</sup>m / samĀdhyeta / samĀdhyet, samĀdhyeta / samĀdhyat, samĀdhyam<sup>1</sup>na / samardhitavya, samardhan»ya, samĀdhyia / samĀddha / samardhitum / samĀdhyia / samardhi-yati / sam<sup>1</sup>rdhi-yat //

Katth (1 .) = To praise, boast – katthate, katthyate / akatthat, akatthyata / katthat<sup>1</sup>m, katthyat<sup>1</sup>m / kattham<sup>1</sup>na, katthyam<sup>1</sup>na / katthitavya, katthan»ya, katthya / katthita / katthitum / katthitv<sup>1</sup> / katthi-yate / akatthi-yata //

Kamp (1 .) = To shake, tremble – kampate, kampyate / akampata, akampyata / kampat<sup>1</sup>m, kampat<sup>1</sup>m / kampeta, kampyeta / Kampam<sup>1</sup>na, kampyam<sup>1</sup>na / kampitavya, kampan»ya, kampya / kampita / kampitum / kampitv<sup>1</sup> / kampi-yate / a kampi-yata //

LESSON 16
('o@a-aå P¹-haå)

*Rephaå svara-para, var²a, dÅ-v¹ "rohati tac-¶iraå /
 Puraå stita, yad¹ pa¶yad adhaå saj kramate svaram //*
 Yad¹ rephaå ra-var²aå svara-paa, vyajana-var²a, pa¶yati tad¹ ta-¶iraå tasya vyajana-var²asya ¶iraå mastakm lekhana-rekh¹y¹å upari rohati / Yath¹ gaur»+atra=gaur-y-atra=gauryatra (this happens in the Devan¹gar», script, as in, + = + + = /, wherein the repha, i.e. the letter r, is converted into an inverted hook placed on the preceding letter; it does not happen in the Roman transliteration!). Atra rep¹t parataå ya-k¹raå / Ataå rephaå yak¹rasya ¶irasi rØ®haå / Kintu yad¹ rephaå puraå sthita, svara, pa¶yati tad¹ adhaå saj kramate / Atra rep¹t parataå u-k¹raå / Ataå rephaå lekhanarekh¹y¹å adhaå sthitaå / Ata eva ukta-

Tumbik¹ tÅ²a-k¹-hañ ca taila, jala-sam¹game / ġrdhva-sth¹na, sam¹y¹nti rep¹t a¹m »dÅ¶ gatiå //

Yath¹ tumb»phala, (=pumpkin) jale pativ¹ jalasy upari ¹gacchati, yath¹ tÅ²a, (-blade of grass) jale pativ¹ jalasy upari ¹gacchati, yath¹ k¹-ha, (=log of wood) jale pativ¹ jalasy upari ¹gacchati, yath¹ taila, (=oil) jale pativ¹ jalasy upari ¹gacchati, tathaiva rephasya gatiå gamana, pØrv¹k-araya upari bhavati deva-n¹gar»-lipy¹m ity arthaå /

*Sai-a d¹¶arath» r¹maå sai-a r¹j¹ yudhi-hiraå /
 Sai-a kar²o mah¹-ty¹g» sai-a bh»mo mah¹-balaå //*

Atra, saå + e-aå = sa + e-a = sai-a / Ubhayatra (=in both the cases) visargasya lopåå / Api ca tad-anantaram api vÅdhya-¹deßaå / E-¹ apav¹da-rØp¹ rØ®h¹ sandhiå / D¹¶arath» = da¶arathasya apatyaa, (=child) pum¹n (=male) / Mah¹-balaå = mah¹-balav¹n /

Now, follows a list of some verbal roots, along with their selected Third Person Singular forms, in both active and passive voice, of Present (Ia-), Aorist (Ia<sub>i</sub>), Imperative (Io-), Potential (II<sub>i</sub>), and of the bases of the Present Participle (¶atr-anta/ ¶¹naj-anta), the Potential Participle (tavy¹nta / anyar-anta / yad-anta), the Past Passive Participle (kt¹nta), the infinitive (tum-anta), the Common Future (IÅ-) and the Conditional (IÅ<sub>i</sub>), by way of specimen.

icchatı / Hariå+jayati = harir + jayati = harir jayati Bahiå+gamanam= bahir+gamanam=bahir gamanam /

- (6) If the Visarga is preceded by any vowel and is followed immediately by any hard consonant (i.e., the first and second consonants of the second, third and fourth groups, viz., c, ch, -, -h, t, th), the Visarga is replaced by the sibilant of the respective group (i.e., ¶ with c or ch, - with - or -h, and s with t or th). For instance: Bhi-maå+ca=bhi-ma¶+ca=bhi-ma¶ ca / Mallin¹thaå+-ikate=mallin¹tha-+ikate=mallin¹tha-ikate / Tataå+tataå=tatas+tataå=tataå / Similarly, when the Visarga is followed immediately by any of the three sibilants, it is replaced by the corresponding sibilant. For instance: Manaå+¶¹ntiå=mana¶+¶¹ntiå=mana¶ ¶¹ntiå / R¹maå+-a-+haå=r¹ma-+a-+haå=r¹ma- a-+haå / dahaå+sukham=dahas+sukham=dahas /
- (7) The sibilant s or r, occurring at the end of an individual word or a sentence, is replaced by a Visarga. For instance: Ya¶as=ya-aå / B¹las=b¹laå / Punar=punaå /
- (8) The Visarga in the pronouns Saå and E-aå is generally elided. For instance: Saå+vÅk-aå=sa vÅk-aå / E-aå+¶i¶uå=E-a ¶i¶uå / Saå+e-aå+gacchati=sai-a gacchati /
- (9) If the Visarga is followed immediately by r, the Visarga is elided, and the short vowel preceding the Visarga is lengthened. For instance: Hariå+r¹jate=har r¹jate / Nis+ravaå=niå+ravaå=n>ravaå / Punaå+ramate=pun¹ ramate /

Now, read aloud the following verses and their explanations, keeping in view the Visarga-sandhi occurring in them:

*K¹kaå kÅ-²aå pikaå kÅ-²aå ko bhedaå pika-k¹kayoå /
 Varanta-k¹le sampr¹pte k¹kaå pikaå k¹kaå pikaå //*

Atra sarve-u pade-u visarg¹t parataå (=after) ka-k¹ro v¹ pa-k¹ro v¹ vartate / Ataå sarvatra visargaå svarØpeªiva yath¹-sthitaå eva vartate / Na ca tasya u-k¹r¶deßo, sa-k¹r¹deßo, rep¹deßo, lopo v¹
 sañj¹taå /

K¹kaå kÅ-²a-var²aå / piko 'pi kÅ-²a-var²aå / Eva, pika-k¹kau ev¹v api kÅ-²a-var²au / Atas taylor madhye bhedo pr¹yo na spa-ao dÅ-yaten / Kintu yad¹ vasanta-k¹laå sam¹y¹ti tad¹ kevalaå pika eva

madhuram kōjana-sabda, karoti, na k<sup>1</sup>kaā / K<sup>1</sup>kas tu k<sup>11</sup>-k<sup>11</sup> iti
karka॥, ravam eva karoti, na madhram / Eva, taylor bhedaā spa~-o
bhavati / Atra k<sup>1</sup>ko durjanasya prat»kam nirdi~aā / Pika॥ tu sajjana-pratinidhi-rØpe<sup>a</sup>a nirdi~aā / Asya ॥lokasy<sup>1</sup>ya, bh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>rthaā / Sad-gu<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, praka-ana, kartu, yad<sup>1</sup> pr<sup>1</sup>pyate 'vasaras tad<sup>1</sup>, t<sup>1</sup>dĀ॥n<sup>1</sup>, gu<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>, svasminn abh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>d durjanasya gu<sup>a</sup>a-h»natva, , sadgu<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m
abhivyakty<sup>1</sup> ca sajjan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, s<sup>1</sup>dhutva, , sarvair jñ<sup>1</sup>yate / Ayam artho
'tra dhvani-rØpe<sup>a</sup>a abhivyajyate (= is revealed in the form of a suggested meaning)/

Eka-m<sup>1</sup>tro bhaved dhrasvo dvi-m<sup>1</sup>tro d»rga ucyate /
Tri-m<sup>1</sup>tras tu pluto jñeyo vyañjana, c<sup>1</sup>rdha-m<sup>1</sup>trakam //

Sandhi-dĀ~y<sup>1</sup> asmin ॥loke visargasya kvacid u-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>de॥lo (as in –
m<sup>1</sup>traā+bhavet, m<sup>1</sup>traā+d»rgaā, plutaā+jñeyaā), kvacit tasya lopaā
(as in d»rgaā + ucyate), kvacic ca tasya sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>de॥laā (as in m<sup>1</sup>traā+tu)
sandhi-rØpe<sup>a</sup>a pari<sup>a</sup>ataā (=transformed) dĀ॥yate / Bhaved dhrasvaā = bhavet+hrasvaā (t+h=d+dha=ddha) / Atra ta-k<sup>1</sup>rasya da-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>de॥laā, ha-k<sup>1</sup>rasya ca dha-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>de॥laā /

Atha ॥lok<sup>1</sup>rthaā / Hrasvaā svaraā eka-m<sup>1</sup>trikaaā (=possessing the time unit of one mora in pronouncing) bhavati / Dvi-m<sup>1</sup>trikaā =possessing the duration of two moras in pronouncing) svaraā d»rdgaā ucyate/ Tri-m<sup>1</sup>trikaā (=possessing the duration of three moras in pronouncing) svaraā tu plutaā jñeyaā /Thus, the short vowel is called Hrasva, the long. i.e., the one with the duration double than the short one, is called D»rga, and the one with the duration treble than the short one, is called Pluta.

In the following verse, the Sanskrit grammarians have sought to illustrate, by giving the examples of the chirping of three different birds, this fact of the time duration being taken in pronouncing a short, long and too long Sanskrit vowels :

C<sup>1</sup>-as tv ek<sup>1</sup>, vaden m<sup>1</sup>tr<sup>1</sup>, dvi-m<sup>1</sup>tra, v<sup>1</sup>yaso vadet /
Tri-m<sup>1</sup>tra, tu ॥ikh<sup>1</sup> brØy<sup>1</sup>n nakula॥ c<sup>1</sup>rdha-m<sup>1</sup>trakam //
C<sup>1</sup>-a-pak-iā (= the Indian roller bird or blue jay) ek<sup>1</sup>-m<sup>1</sup>trika, dhvani, karoti (= makes a sound of one mora), v<sup>1</sup>yasa-pak-iā (= the crow bird) dvi-m<sup>1</sup>trika, dhvani, karoti (= makes a sound of two moras), ॥ikh<sup>1</sup> = ॥ikh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>n = mayØra-pak-iā (=the peacock bird) tri- m<sup>1</sup>trika, dhvani, karoti (= makes a sound of three moras) / Eva, tray<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, pak-»<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>m ud<sup>1</sup>haranaiā hrasva-d»rga-pluta-svar<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m vividha, m<sup>1</sup>tra-pram<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>am asmin ॥loke spa~a-r»ty<sup>1</sup> pradar॥litam /

(

S<sup>1</sup>dh (5 P.) = 'succeed, accomplish.'

Parasmaipada

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	s<sup>1</sup>dhnoti	s<sup>1</sup>dhnuṭāā	s<sup>1</sup>dhnuvanti
M. Pu.	s<sup>1</sup>dhno-i	s<sup>1</sup>dhnuṭhaā	s<sup>1</sup>dhnuṭha
U. Pu.	s<sup>1</sup>dhnomi	s<sup>1</sup>dhnuvaā	s<sup>1</sup>dhnumaā

A<sup>1</sup> (5 ) = 'to eat, enjoy.'

tmanepada

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
	a<sup>1</sup>nute	a<sup>1</sup>nuv<sup>1</sup>te	a<sup>1</sup>nuvate
	a<sup>1</sup>nue	a<sup>1</sup>nuv<sup>1</sup>the	a<sup>1</sup>nudhve
	a<sup>1</sup>nuve	a<sup>1</sup>nuvahe	a<sup>1</sup>numahe

Tud<sup>1</sup>di (=Sixth) Class : Before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, the adjunct ॥ap applied to the roots of the is class is replaced by ॥a which is its ॥ab<sup>1</sup>de॥a. For instance, tud+॥ap+ti = tud+a+ti = tud+a+ti=tudati / mĀ+॥ap+te=mĀ+a+te=mriy+a+te=mriyate /

Tud (6 U.)= 'to push strike, goad' Vid (6 U.)= 'to find, obtain'

Parasmaipada

tmanepada

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	tudati	tudataāā	tudanti	vindate	vindete	vindate
M. Pu.	tudasi	tudathaāā	tudatha	vindase	vinde	vindadhve
U. Pu.	tud<sup>1</sup>mi	tud<sup>1</sup>vaāā	tud<sup>1</sup>maāā	vinde	vid<sup>1</sup>vahe	vindamahe

Rudh<sup>1</sup>di (=Seventh) Class : Before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, the adjunct ॥ap is replaced by ॥nam (=na) which is its ॥ab<sup>1</sup>de॥a. Since this ॥nam is mit, it is placed just before the final vowel of the root. For instance, rudh+॥ap+ti=rudh+॥nam+ti=ru+na+dh+ti=ru<sup>a</sup>adh+ti=ru<sup>a</sup>aaddhi/bhid_+॥nam+te=bhi+n+d+te=bhīn+d+te=bhīnte/bhidante

Rudh (7 U.)='stop, withhold. Bhid (7 U.)= 'to split, break, pierce'.

Parasmaipada

tmanepada

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	ru<sup>a</sup>addhi	rundhaāā	rundhanti	bhintē	bhnd<sup>1</sup>te	bhindante
M. Pu.	ru<sup>a</sup>atsi	rundhaāā	rundha	bhintse	bhind<sup>1</sup>the	bhindadhve
U. Pu.	ru<sup>a</sup>adhmi	rundhvaāā	rundhmaāā	bhinde	bhidvahe	bhindmahe

Tan<sup>1</sup>di (Eighth) Class : Before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, the adjunct ॥ap is replaced by u which is its ॥ab<sup>1</sup>de॥a, and it is then replaced by o its gu<sup>a</sup>de-a, because ॥ap is pit. For instance, tan+॥ap+ti=tan+u+ti=tan+o+to=tanoti/tan+॥ap+ttan+u+te=tanute /

Thus, by interpreting every reply of KĀ-a in a different way, Gopî gives a fresh reply resulting from the different interpretation. Thus, finally, when KĀ-a could not win over Gopi in this dialogue, he blushes, and his face bears the beautiful expression of blushing redness. This verse thus incorporates a beautifully humorous human play of the divine Lord.

A-pado dōra-g<sup>1</sup>m» ca s<sup>1</sup>k-aro na ca pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā / Amukhaā sphi-a-vakt<sup>1</sup> ca yo j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti sa pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā //

A-padaā = pada-rahitaā = (1) cara<sup>a</sup>a-rahitaā (=lame), (2) ॥abda-rahitaā =(speechless) / S<sup>1</sup>k-araā = (1) ak-ara-jñ<sup>1</sup>na-yuktaā ॥ik-itaā = educated, (2) likhitaiā ak॥arasiā yuktaā =(endowed with written syllables) / Amukhaā = mukharahitaā (= mouthless).

Asmin ॥loke prahelik<sup>1</sup> (=enigma, riddle) prastut<sup>1</sup> (=has been proposed) / Yaā a-padaā pada-rahitaā bhavati, sa katha, dōra-g<sup>1</sup>m» dōra, gantu, samarthaā bhavati ? Arth<sup>1</sup>t (=that means), naiva bhavati / That<sup>1</sup>pi kaā »dĀ॥aā vartate? Yaā s<sup>1</sup>k-araā ak-ara-jñ<sup>1</sup>na-yuktaā, arth<sup>1</sup>t ॥ik-itaā vartate saā ava॥yam eva pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā bhavati / That<sup>1</sup> pi s<sup>1</sup>k-araā sann api katha, pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā n<sup>1</sup>sti ? Yaā a-mukhaā mukha-rahitaā vartate saā katha, sphi-a-vakt<sup>1</sup> spa<sup>a</sup>-a, vaktu, samarthaā bhavati ? Arth<sup>1</sup>t naiva bhavati / Tarhi (=then) kaā et<sup>1</sup>dĀ॥aā ? Evam e<sup>1</sup> prahelik<sup>1</sup> /

Asy<sup>1</sup>ā prahelik<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā sam<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>nam (= solution) ettha, (= in this way) bhavati / Apadaā sann api lekhaā (= a letter) dōra-g<sup>1</sup>m» bhavati (=goes far away). S<sup>1</sup>k-araā likhitaiā ak॥arasiā yuktaā sann api lekhaā pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā (= learned person) naiva vartate / Amukhaā) mukha-rahitaā sann api lekhaā sande॥a, spa<sup>a</sup>-atay<sup>1</sup> kathayati jñ<sup>1</sup>payati (=conveys). Eva, prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>asy<sup>1</sup>ā prahelik<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā satya, uttara, yaā j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti, sa eva pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā kathayitu, yogyaā ity arthaā //

Parvat<sup>1</sup>gre ratho y<sup>1</sup>ti bhōmau ti-hati s<sup>1</sup>rathiā / Calate v<sup>1</sup>yu-vegena padam eka, na gacchati //

E<sup>1</sup> pi prahelik<sup>1</sup> / Asy<sup>1</sup>ā sam<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>nam anvi-yat<sup>1</sup>m (= find out). Yadi rathaā parvatasya agra-bh<sup>1</sup>ge gacchati, tad<sup>1</sup> tasya s<sup>1</sup>rathiā bhōmau katha, ti-het ? Idam asambhavam / Yadi rathaā v<sup>1</sup>yu-vegena (= with the speed of the wind), ekam api pada, (=even a single step) katha, na gacchati ? Idam api asambhavam / Asy<sup>1</sup>ā sam<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>nam ittha, / Kumbha-k<sup>1</sup>rasya rathaā, arthat ratha-cakra, , parvatasya a<sup>1</sup>guly<sup>1</sup>ā agre (=at the tip of the finger) calati, that<sup>1</sup> pi tasya ratha-cakrasya s<sup>1</sup>rathiā,

Thus, by interpreting every reply of Kāraṇa in a different way, Gopī gives a fresh reply resulting from the different interpretation. Thus, finally, when Kāraṇa could not win over Gopi in this dialogue, he blushes, and his face bears the beautiful expression of blushing redness. This verse thus incorporates a beautifully humorous human play of the divine Lord.

*A-pado dōra-g<sup>1m</sup> ca s<sup>1</sup>k-a-ro na ca pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā /
Amukhaā sphu-a-vakt<sup>1</sup> ca yo j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti sa pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā //*

A-padaā = pada-rahitaā = (1) cara<sup>a</sup>a-rahitaā (=lame), (2) labda-rahitaā =(speechless) / S<sup>1</sup>k-a-raā = (1)ak-a-ra-jñ<sup>1</sup>na-yuktaā lik-itaā = educated, (2) likhitaiā akarasiā yuktaā =(endowed with written syllables) / Amukhaā = mukharahitaā (= mouthless).

Asmin ꝓloke prahelik<sup>1</sup> (=enigma, riddle) prastut<sup>1</sup> (=has been proposed) / Yaā a-padaā pada-rahitaā bhavati, sa katha, dōra-g<sup>1m</sup> dōra, gantu, samarthaā bhavati ? Arth<sup>1t</sup> (=that means), naiva bhavati / That<sup>1</sup>pi kaā »dālaā vartate? Yaā s<sup>1</sup>k-a-raā ak-a-ra-jñ<sup>1</sup>na-yuktaā, arth<sup>1t</sup> lik-itaā vartate saā ava<sup>lyam</sup> eva pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā bhavati/ That<sup>1</sup> 'pi s<sup>1</sup>k-a-raā sann api katha, pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā n<sup>1</sup>sti ? Yaā a-mukhaā mukha-rahitaā vartate saā katha, sphu-a-vakt<sup>1</sup> spa-a, vaktu, samarthaā bhavati ? Arth<sup>1t</sup>. naiva bhavati / Tarhi (=then) kaā et<sup>1</sup>dālaā ? Evam e<sup>-1</sup> prahelik<sup>1</sup> /

Asy<sup>1</sup>ā prahelik<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā sam<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>nam (= solution) ettha, (= in this way) bhavati / Apadaā sann api lekhaā (= a letter) dōra-g<sup>1m</sup> bhavati (=goes far away). S<sup>1</sup>k-a-raā likhitaiā akarasiā yuktaā sann api lekhaā pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā (= learned person) naiva vartate / Amukhaā) mukha-rahitaā sann api lekhaā sande<sup>la</sup>, spa-atay<sup>1</sup> kathayati jñ<sup>1</sup>payati (=conveys). Eva, prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup> asy<sup>1</sup>ā prahelik<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā satya, uttara, yaā j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti, sa eva pa<sup>a</sup>ritaā kathayitu, yogyaā ity arthaā //

*Parvat<sup>1</sup>gre ratho y<sup>1</sup>ti bhōmau ti-hati s<sup>1</sup>rathiā /
Calate v<sup>1</sup>yu-vegena padam eka, na gacchati //*

E<sup>-1</sup> 'pi prahelik<sup>1</sup> / Asy<sup>1</sup>ā sam<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>nam anvi-yat<sup>1</sup>m (= find out). Yadi rathaā parvatasya agra-bh<sup>1</sup>ge gacchati, tad<sup>1</sup> tasya s<sup>1</sup>rathiā bhōmau katha, ti-het ? Idam asambhavam / Yadi rathaā v<sup>1</sup>yu-vegena (= with the speed of the wind), ekam api pada, (=even a single step) katha, na gacchati ? Idam api asambhavam / Asy<sup>1</sup>ā sam<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>nam ittha, / Kumbha-k<sup>1</sup>rasya rathaā, arthat ratha-cakra, , parvatasya a<sup>j</sup> guly<sup>1</sup>ā agre (=at the tip of the finger) calati, that<sup>1</sup> 'pi tasya ratha-cakrasya s<sup>1</sup>rathiā,

	Y<sup>1</sup> (2 P.) = 'to go'.			s (2. ,.) = 'to sit'
		Parasmaipada			tmanepada
	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu.	y<sup>1</sup>ti	y<sup>1</sup>ntaā	y<sup>1</sup>nti	'ste	's<sup>1</sup>te	's<sup>1</sup>te
M.Pu.	y<sup>1</sup>si	y<sup>1</sup>thaā	y<sup>1</sup>tha	'sse	's<sup>1</sup>the	'dhve
U. Pu.	y<sup>1</sup>mi	y<sup>1</sup>vaā	y<sup>1</sup>maā	'se	's<sup>1</sup>vahe	's<sup>1</sup>mahe

Juhoty<sup>1di</sup> (= Third) Class: When the adjunct ꝓap is applied to the roots of this class, the initial consonant is duplicated before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them. For instance, hu + ꝓap+ti= hahu +a +ti = juhu +a +ti=juhoti / bhĀ+ ꝓap+te= bhĀbhĀ +a+te=bibhĀ+a+te=bibhĀte / There are specific rules of duplication of the initial consonant; we look into their details later on.

	Hu (3 P.)='to sacrifice'.			BhĀ (3 ,.)= ' to bear, carry'.
		Parasmaipada			tmanepada
	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	juhoti	juhutaā	juhvati	bibhĀte	bibhrate	bibhĀte
M. Pu.	juho-i	juhvathaā	juhutha	bibhĀ-e	bibh<sup>1</sup>the	bibhĀdhve
U. Pu.	juhomī	juhuvaā	juhumāā	bibhre	bibhĀvahe	bibhĀmahe

Div<sup>1di</sup> (=Fourth) Class: Before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, the adjunct ꝓap applied to the roots of this class is replaced by ꝓyan (= ya) which is its ꝓab<sup>1de<sup>la</sup>. For instance, div+ ꝓap+ti = div+ ꝓyan+ti = div+ya+ti + divyati / vid+ ꝓap+te= vid+ ꝓyan+te= vid+ ya+te= vidyate /</sup>

	Dv(4 P.)='to lay a wager, bet with			Vid (4. ,)= 'know, understand'
		Parasmaipada			tmanepada
	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	dv�ati	dv�yataā	dv�yanti	vidyate	vidyete	vidyante
M. Pu.	dv�ysi	dv�yathaā	dv�yatha	vidyase	vidythe	vidyad<sup>1</sup>hve
U. Pu.	dv�y<sup>1</sup>mi	dv�y<sup>1</sup>vaā	dv�y<sup>1</sup>maā	vidye	vidy<sup>1</sup>vahe	vidy<sup>1</sup>mahe

Sv<sup>1di</sup> (=Fifth) Class : Before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, the adjunct ꝓap applied to the roots of this class is replaced by ꝓnu (=nu) which is its ꝓab<sup>1de<sup>la</sup>. For instance, su+ ꝓap+ti = su+ ꝓnu+ti= su+nu+ti= su+no (by gu<sup>a</sup>a)+ti=sunoti / a<sup>j</sup>+ ꝓap+te= a<sup>j</sup>+ ꝓnu+te= a<sup>j</sup>+nu+te=a<sup>j</sup>nuote/</sup>

LESSON 18
(A<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup>da<sup>1</sup>la<sup>1</sup> P<sup>1</sup>-ha<sup>1</sup>)

In order to introduce in briefly the P<sup>1</sup>aian procedure in general, we had given the information about the adjuncts, i.e. the signs, of the ten verbal classes, and had shown as to which adjunct ultimately occurs in the concerned class.

Now, in order to understand the process in operation, let us see the Active Present Tense forms of the representative verbal roots of each of the classes, both in the Parasmai-pada and the tmane-pada by way of specimen. Where the verbal root is Ubhaya-pad, only the Parasmai-pada or the tmane-pada forms are shown in this lesson, as per the necessity.

Bhv<sup>1</sup>di (=First) Class : To the roots of this class, the adjunct ॥ap intervenes before the terminations of the Present Tense (La-) are applied to it. Since the adjunct ॥ap is pit (i.e. having the it-sign p), it replaces the final or the last-but-one vowel by its Gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent' as for instance bhØ+॥ap+ti = bhØ+a+ti = bhav+a+ti = bhavati / Mud +॥ap+te = mod+a+te=modate /

BhÅ (1 P.) = 'to fill'. Parasmaipada	Mud (1 ,.)= 'to rejoice' tmanepada
Sing.      Du.      Pl.	Sing.      Du.      Pl.
Pr. Pu. bharati bharataå bharanti modate modete modante
M. Pu. bharasi bharathaå bharatha modase modethe modadhve
Ut. Pu. bhar<sup>1</sup>mi bhar<sup>1</sup>vaå bhar<sup>1</sup>maå mode mod<sup>1</sup>vahe mod<sup>1</sup>mahe

Ad<sup>1</sup>di (= Second) Class: Although the adjunct ॥ap is technically applied to the roots of this class, it is practically elided, and hence ultimately no adjunct seems to have been applied at all, and the terminations of Tenses and Moods seem to have been applied directly to the root when the verbal forms comes into being. For instance, y<sup>1</sup>+॥ap+ti = y<sup>1</sup>+ti = y<sup>1</sup>ti / 1s+॥ap+te = 1s+te=1ste /

arth<sup>1</sup>t c<sup>1</sup>lakaå kumbhak<sup>1</sup>raå (= potter), mÅd-bh<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, (=of the earthen utensils) nirm<sup>1</sup>a-k<sup>1</sup>le (=at the time of moulding), bhØmau pÅthivy<sup>1</sup>m ti-~hati uipaviflati /Yady api kumbhak<sup>1</sup>rasya cakra, v<sup>1</sup>yuvegena calate (=revolves), tath<sup>1</sup> pi ekam api pada, pada-m<sup>1</sup>tram api m<sup>1</sup>rga, na gacchati / 'Subh<sup>1</sup>-ita-bh<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>1</sup>-n<sup>1</sup>mni granthe et<sup>1</sup>dÅp<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m prahelik<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, saj graho vartate, sa dÅ-avyo viñle-a-jiñ<sup>1</sup>subhi /

In the Second Lesson above, we came to know about the division of the verbal roots into ten classes, their names, and the adjuncts (vikara<sup>a</sup>a). From these classes, we noted that in the First (Bhv<sup>1</sup>di), the Fourth (Div<sup>1</sup>di), the Sixth (Tud<sup>1</sup>di) class, and the Tenth (Cur<sup>1</sup>di) class, the roots take the adjuncts, a, ya, a, and aya, and that certain modifications take place, before the intended final verbal form is ready for use in a sentence. The base formed after the application of the adjunct to the root, is called Aj ga. In the case of the above four classes, the Aj ga ends in a, i.e. it is a-k<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>nta. Since there occurs no internal modifications in the roots of these classes, they are known as A-vik<sup>1</sup>r (= non-modifying) classes.. For instance, bhØ+a=bho (by gu<sup>a</sup>a)+a=bhava-; div+ya=dv (by lengthening) dv+ya=dvya-; tud+a=tuda-; cur+aya=Cor (by gu<sup>a</sup>a)+aya=coraya-. All these are the verbal bases (aj gas). Then, after applying the terminations of various Tenses or Moods, in various Persons and Numbers, the intended verbal forms come into being ready for use in sentences. For instance, bhava+ti=bhavati / dvya+tu=dvayatu / tuda+thaå=tudathaå / coraya+taå=corayataå /

In the case of the rest of the classes, viz., the Second (Ad<sup>1</sup>di), Third (Juhoty<sup>1</sup>di), Fifth (Sv<sup>1</sup>di), Seventh (Rudh<sup>1</sup>di), Eighth (Tan<sup>1</sup>di) and Ninth (Kry<sup>1</sup>di), the aj ga never ends in a, i.e., it is not a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, and since due modifications take place in them, they are known as Vik<sup>1</sup>r-ga<sup>a</sup>as.

---

<sup>1</sup>Cf. Subh<sup>1</sup>-ita-bh<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ra, edited by N<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>a</sup>a R<sup>1</sup>ma<sup>1</sup> c<sup>1</sup>rya "K<sup>1</sup>vya-b<sup>1</sup>rtha", enlarged edition, Nir<sup>a</sup>aya-s<sup>1</sup>gara Press, Mumbai (India), 1952.

LESSON 17

(Sapta-dafaa P<sup>1</sup>-haå)

The terminations applying in the modificatory classes, viz., 2nd, 3rd, 5th, 7th, 8th, and 9th, of the Sanskrit verbal roots are divided into two sets: strong and weak. The base (giga), i.e., the root+class sign (=dh<sup>1</sup>tu+vikara<sup>a</sup>a), taking the strong (khara) terminations may be called the 'strong base', and that taking the weak (mådu) ones the 'weak base'.

The Strong terminations are: The Singulars, viz. -tip (= -ti), -sip (= -si), -mip (= -mi), of all the Persons of the Present (La-); the -ta, -s, -am, of the Imperfect (Lå-); the Third Person Singular, -tu, and all the numbers, viz., -<sup>1</sup>ni, -<sup>1</sup>va, <sup>1</sup>ma of the First Person of the Imperative (Lo-), in the Parasmai-pada, and all numbers, viz., -ai, <sup>1</sup>vahai, -<sup>1</sup>mahai, of the First Person of the Imperative in the tmane-pada. The rest are the Weak ones.

When the Strong terminations are applied, the short vowel occurring in the final (antya) or the last-but-one (up<sup>1</sup>ntya) place of the base of the verbal root concerned is replaced by its corresponding Gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent. For instance, su+nu+ti = sunu+ti = suno+ti = sunoti. Similarly, suno-i, sunomi / asunot, asunoå, asunavam / sunav<sup>1</sup>ni, sunav<sup>1</sup>ma, sunav<sup>1</sup>ma / sunavai, sunav<sup>1</sup>vahai, sunav<sup>1</sup>mahai / Since the rest of the terminations are Weak, no change takes place in the short vowel occurring in final or the last-but-one place of the concerned verbal base. For instance, sunu+vas = sunuvaå / Similarly, sunumaå / asunut<sup>1</sup>m / sunut<sup>1</sup>m / sunuy<sup>1</sup>am, and etc.

Now, note: The forms of a Sanskrit verbal root can express the senses of various Tenses or Moods, such as, the Present (La-), the Past Perfect (Li-), the First or the Immediate Future (Lu-), Second or Common Future (Lå-), the Vedic Subjunctive (Le-), the Imperative (Lo-), the Imperfect Past (La<sub>j</sub>), the Potential (Li<sub>j</sub>), the Aorist (Lu<sub>j</sub>), and the Conditional (Lå<sub>j</sub>), in accordance with the terminations applied to it.

root, it undergoes the following process: In the case of the Active (kartari) construction, an adjunct ॥ap (=a) comes in between the root and the termination of a Tense or a Mood. And, in the case of the Passive (karma<sup>a</sup>i) construction, the adjunct Yak (=ya) comes in between. Then, in the case of different classes of the roots concerned, this adjunct ॥ap is replaced by the corresponding sub-adjunct known as the ॥ab-<sup>1</sup>de॥a. Thus, in the case of the Div<sup>1</sup>di class the sub-adjunct that replaces the ॥ap is ॥yan (=ya), in Sv<sup>1</sup>di class it is ॥nu (=nu), in Tud<sup>1</sup>di class it is ॥a (=a), in Rudh<sup>1</sup>di class it is ॥nam (=na), in Tan<sup>1</sup>di class it is u, in kry<sup>1</sup>di class it is ॥n<sup>1</sup> (=n<sup>1</sup>), and in Cur<sup>1</sup>di class it is <sup>a</sup>ic (=i). Thus, it should be born in heart that the terminations of the Tenses or Moods can operate only after the sub-adjuncts intervene. This is the P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>inian grammatical viewpoint.

lava<sup>a</sup>-a-rahit<sup>1</sup> rasavat», k-am<sup>1</sup>-rahita, tapaå, vega-h»no
gho-akaå, na ¶obhate /

Madah»naå = madena h»naå, gajaå = hast», na ¶obhate, ¶obh<sup>1</sup>, na dad<sup>1</sup>ti / Lajj<sup>1</sup>-h»n<sup>1</sup> = lajjay<sup>1</sup> rahit<sup>1</sup>, kula-vadhØ = ¶obhana-kulasya putra-vadhØ, na ¶obhate / N<sup>1</sup>ti-vikalaå = n»tau n»ti-vi-aye, vikalaå = p<sup>1</sup>lana, svaya, kartum, praj<sup>1</sup>, ca tat k<sup>1</sup>rayitum a-samarthaå, r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> na ¶obhate / D<sup>1</sup>na-h»naå = a-d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> = aud<sup>1</sup>rya-rahitaå, n<sup>1</sup>yakaå = net<sup>1</sup>, na ¶obhate / Badhiraå = e<sup>o</sup>aå = ¶rotum a-samarthaå (=deaf) = satya, ¶rutv<sup>1</sup>pi tan na ¶rutam iti vartayan = avajñ<sup>1</sup>, kurvan, mantr» = am<sup>1</sup>tyaå, na ¶obhate / Dur-vin»taå = dur-vinaya-yuktaå = a-vinay», li-yaå = vidy<sup>1</sup>rth», na ¶obhate / Dhvaja-rahita, = dhavena h»na, , deva-kula, = dev<sup>1</sup>laya, , na ¶obhate / jya-rahita, = jyena-h»na, = ghåta vih»na, , bhojana, , na ¶obhate / Lava<sup>a</sup>-a-rahit<sup>1</sup> = lava<sup>a</sup>ena vih»n<sup>1</sup>, rasavat» = bhojana, (= cooked food), na ¶obhate / K-am<sup>1</sup>-rahita, = kamay<sup>1</sup>-vih»na, , tapa¶-cara<sup>a</sup>, = tapasy<sup>1</sup>, na ¶obhate / Vega-rahitaå = vegena dh<sup>1</sup>vitum a-samarthaå, gho-akaå = a¶vahaå, na ¶obhate /

Verbal roots: ¶ubh (1 .) = 'to beautify, embellish, adorn, beautify one's self, look beautiful or handsome, shine, be bright or splendid' - ¶obhate /

Vocabulary : (adj.) rahitaå = h»naå = vi-h»naå = bereft of, without, not endowed with, not having'.

Now, note: Out of the ten classes of the verbal roots with which we familiarized ourselves, since the original form of the roots belonging to the Bhv<sup>1</sup>di (=first), Div<sup>1</sup>di (=fourth), Tud<sup>1</sup>di (=sixth) and the Cur<sup>1</sup>di (=tenth) classes (ga<sup>a</sup>a) undergo some changes, for instance, gam > gacch, d<sup>1</sup> > yacch, p<sup>1</sup> > pub, sth<sup>1</sup> > ti~h, e~i > icch, when the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, they are known as the Vik<sup>1</sup>r or the vik<sup>1</sup>raka ones.

But, since the verbal roots of the rest of the six classes, viz., Ad<sup>1</sup>di (=second), Juhoty<sup>1</sup>di (=third), Sv<sup>1</sup>di (fifth), Rudh<sup>1</sup>di (=seventh), Tan<sup>1</sup>di (=eighth) and Kry<sup>1</sup>di (=ninth), do not undergo any change whatsoever, they are known as A-vik<sup>1</sup>r or A-vik<sup>1</sup>raka, i.e. unchanging.

According to the grammatical point of view of P<sup>1</sup>ini, when for use in a sentence a form comes into being from an original verbal

As per the P<sup>1</sup>ini process, when a verb form is to be processed, first of all the la-k<sup>1</sup>ra is applied to the root, and the la-k<sup>1</sup>ra is replaced by the ti<sub>j</sub> terminations by way of an ¹deßla. For instance, bhØ+la-. Now, as per the wish of the speaker to express the Present Tense, the la-k<sup>1</sup>ra is replaced by the tip (= ti) termination by an ¹deßla, thus bhØ+tip. Then, since the intention is to use the Active Voice (kartari-prayoga), the adjunct (¹gama) flap (=a) will come in, thus bhØ+flap+tip. Now, since both the flap and tip are pit, the final vowel Ø of the root will be replaced by its Gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent o. Thus, bhØ+flap+tip=bhØ+a+ti=bho+a+ti=bh+av (because o+a=av) +a+ti=bhavati. In the P<sup>1</sup>ini system, the verb-forms in which the four la-k<sup>1</sup>ras, viz., the Present Tense (la-), the Imperative (lo-), the Imperfect Past (la<sub>j</sub>) and the Potential (li<sub>j</sub>), are applied are known as the S<sup>1</sup>rva-dh<sup>1</sup>tuka ones, while the verb-forms in the rest of the la-k<sup>1</sup>ras are known as the rdha-dh<sup>1</sup>tuka ones.

Now, let us observe carefully and familiarize us with the Present Tense Third Person (prathama puru-a) Singular forms of the verbal roots pa-h and p<sup>1</sup> in all the ten la-k<sup>1</sup>ras, given by way of the specimens:

Lak <sup>1</sup> ra	Verb form
La-	pa-hati / pibati
Li-	pap<sup>1</sup>-ha / papau
Lu-	pa-hit<sup>1</sup> / p<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>
LA-	pa-hi-yati / p<sup>1</sup>sati
Let	- / p<sup>1</sup>sati
Lo-	pa-hatu / pibatu
Lai	apa-hat / apibat
Li<sub>j</sub>	pa-het / pibet
Lu<sub>j</sub>	ap<sup>1</sup>-hit / ap<sup>1</sup>t
LA<sub>j</sub>	apa-hi-yat / ap<sup>1</sup>syat

Herein, the Lak<sup>1</sup>ras, viz., the Present (La-), the Imperative (Lo-), the Imperfect Past (La<sub>j</sub>) and the Potential (Li<sub>j</sub>), in which the root 'p<sup>1</sup>' is replaced by the ¹deßla 'pib' by way of its ¹deßla, they are of the S<sup>1</sup>rva-dh<sup>1</sup>tuka type. The rest of the Lak<sup>1</sup>ras, in which such a change has not occurred, are of the rdhadh<sup>1</sup>tuka type. The changes that occur in the verbal roots are shown in the brackets, as in, d<sup>1</sup> (yacch), p<sup>1</sup> (pib).

sth<sup>1</sup> (ti-n-h), dā- (paññy), gam (gacch), i- (icch), sic (si-j c), sad (sid), yam (yacch), brō (vac), kram (kr<sup>1</sup>m), bhrām (bhr<sup>1</sup>m), ~am (ñ<sup>1</sup>m), muc (mu-j c), pracch (pācch), mĀ (mriy), jan (j<sup>1</sup>), jñ<sup>1</sup> (j<sup>1</sup>n), kĀt (kĀnt), cak- (khy<sup>1</sup>), etc. This replacement in the place of the original verbal root (dhtv-<sup>1</sup>deñ) is known as the khila-dh<sup>1</sup>tu, and similarly the replacement of the termination applied to different Lak<sup>1</sup>ras is known as the I-<sup>1</sup>deñla.

Now, we shall acquaint ourselves with a few more verbal roots with some their useful forms.

Of the verbal roots that were given above, all belonged to the First, i.e., the Bhv<sup>1</sup>di, Class, and with each of them their forms of Present (La-), Imperfect past (La<sub>j</sub>), Imperative (Lo-), Potential (Li<sub>j</sub>), Aorist (Lu<sub>j</sub>), Present Participle (~atr-anta/~<sup>1</sup>naj-anta), Potential Participle (Tavy<sup>1</sup>nta/An»yaranta/ Yadanta), Past Passive participle or Gerund (ktv<sup>1</sup>nta/lyabanta), Infinitive (Tum-anta), and Conditional (LĀ<sub>j</sub>), both in Active (Kartari) and Passive (Karma<sup>a</sup>i) Voices, have been given.

Thereafter, having rearranged the forms of different verbal roots in separate lists o in accordance with the similar Tense, Mood or Participle, and writing down their meanings, keeping in view the change of meanings with the change of the form.

These verbal roots were given only by way of specimens. In the Classical Sanskrit, however, only about two hundred twenty-five roots are found to be utilized in practical usage. Each of them can have different forms like these, though all are not found to be actually used in literature. But, by keeping a practice of recognizing the forms, one automatically grasps the original verbal root, in the concerned Tense or Mood, the Person, the Number, and consequently its exact meaning.

Rearrange the forms of the following verbal roots by sorting them as per the similar Tense, Mood, etc.:

Ad (2 P.) = 'to eat' – atti, adyate / <sup>1</sup>dat, <sup>1</sup>dyata / attu, adyat<sup>1</sup>m / ady<sup>1</sup>t, adyeta / adat, adyam<sup>1</sup>na / attavya, adan»ya, <sup>1</sup>dfa /

sah<sup>1</sup>ya, ca, dad<sup>1</sup>ti / Ida, sarva, militv<sup>1</sup>, san-mitra-lak-a<sup>a</sup>a, = ñlobhanasya mitrasya cihna, , bhavati iti, santaā = sajjan<sup>1</sup>å, pravadanti = prakar-e<sup>a</sup>a vadanti var<sup>a</sup>ayanti /

Coalescence: p<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>t+ niv<sup>1</sup>rayati / San-mitra-lak-a<sup>a</sup>am+idam /
Verbal Roots: ni+vÅ (10 U.) = to stop, to make avoid; niv<sup>1</sup>rayatri – niv<sup>1</sup>rayate / yuj (7 U.) = to join, unite, engage in; yunakti – yuj; kte / guh (1 U.) = to hide, conceal; gōhati – gōhate / h<sup>1</sup> (3 P.) = to abandon; jah<sup>1</sup>ti / d<sup>1</sup> (3 U.) = to give; dad<sup>1</sup>ti – datte / pra+vad (1 P.) = to speak, to declare; pravadati /

J<sup>1</sup>øya, dhiyo harati siñcati v<sup>1</sup>ci satya,
Manonnati, diñlati p<sup>1</sup>pam ap<sup>1</sup>karoti /
Cetaå pras<sup>1</sup>dayati dik-u tanoti krti,
Sat-saj gatiå kathaya kin na karoti pu, s<sup>1</sup>m //

Sat-saj gatiå = sajjan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, saj gaå, diyaå = buddheå, j<sup>1</sup>øya, = ja<sup>o</sup>at<sup>1</sup>, , harati = apa-nayati / Sajjanana-saj gaå v<sup>1</sup>ci=v<sup>1</sup>a y<sup>1</sup>, , satya, siñcati = satyasya siñcana, karoti / Sat-saj gaå m<sup>1</sup>nonnati, = m<sup>1</sup>na, ca unnati, ca ubhayam eva, diñlati = darñlayati / Sajjanana-saj gatiå p<sup>1</sup>pam ap<sup>1</sup>karoti = dōra, karoti / Saj gatiå cataå = citta, , pras<sup>1</sup>dayati = prasanna, kurute / Sajjanana-saj gaå dik-u = diñsu sarvatra, krti, = yañlaå, tanoti = vist<sup>1</sup>rayati / He mitra! Kathaya / Sat-saj gatiå pu, s<sup>1</sup>, = nar<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, kĀte (=for) ki, na karoti ? Etat-sarvam eva karoti ity arthaå /

Verbal Roots: HĀ (1 U.) = 'to take, bear, carry, convey, bring, offer, fetch, present, take away, carry off' – harati – harate / Sic (6 U.) = 'to pour out, discharge, emit, shed, infuse' / siñcati – siñcate / Diñ (6 U.) = 'to point out, show, exhibit, bring forward, promote, effect, accomplish' – diñlati – diñlate / Apa +<sup>1</sup>+kĀ (8 U.) = 'to remove, drive away, cast off, reject, desist from' – ap<sup>1</sup>karoti – ap<sup>1</sup>kurute / Pra+sad (1 P.) = 'to settle down, grow clear and bright, become placid or tranquil, become clear' – pras<sup>1</sup>dati ; Caus. pras<sup>1</sup>dayati / Tan (8 U.) = 'to spread, extend, be diffused, shine, stretch' – tanoti – tanute /

Mada-h»no gajaå, lajj<sup>1</sup>-h»n<sup>1</sup> kula-vadhØå, n»ti-vikalo r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>, d<sup>1</sup>na-h»no n<sup>1</sup>yakaå, badhiro mantr», alasaå kum<sup>1</sup>raå, dur-vin»taå ñli-yaå, dhvaja-rahita, deva-kulam, 1jaya-rahita, bhojana, ,

*Tamo dhun»te kurute prak<sup>1</sup>॥a, ~ama, vidhatte vinihanti kopam /
Tanoti dharma, vidhunoti p<sup>1</sup>pa,
Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, na ki, ki, kurute nar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>m //*

Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, manasi tamaā dhun»te (= shakes off) dōr-karoti / Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, buddhau prak<sup>1</sup>॥a, kurute / Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nar<sup>1- a<sup>1</sup></sup>, hādaye ॥ama, vidhatte karoti / Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, kopa, vini- hanti (= n<sup>1</sup>॥ayati) / Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>m <sup>1</sup>cara<sup>a</sup>e dharma, tanoti (=spreads) vist<sup>1</sup>rayati / Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, manasi p<sup>1</sup>pa, kartum icch<sup>1</sup>, vidhunoti (=disperses) n<sup>1</sup>॥ayati / Jñ<sup>1</sup>na, nar<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, ki, ki, na kurute ? Sarvam eva kurute ity arthaā / Yat tv etan na kurute na taj jñ<sup>1</sup>na, , tattvajñ<sup>1</sup>nam eva, na tu tattv<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, jñ<sup>1</sup>na, , vipar<sup>ta</sup>, jñ<sup>1</sup>na, , na tu vijñ<sup>1</sup>na, , na tu vi<sup>1</sup>lī<sup>1</sup>-a, jñ<sup>1</sup>nam /

Coalescence: tamaā + dhun»te / iti+arthaā /yat+tu / kartum +icch<sup>1</sup>m / sarvam+eva /etat+na / tat+jñ<sup>1</sup>nam / tat+tu+ ajñ<sup>1</sup>nam+eva/

Verbal roots: dhθ (9 U.) = to shake off; dhunoti – dhun»te / KĀ (9 U.)= to do; karoti – kurute / vi+dh<sup>1</sup> (3 U.)= to bear, to do; vidadh<sup>1</sup>ti – vidhatte / vi+ni+han (2 P.)= to destroy, annihilate; vini- hanti / tan (8 U.)= to spread, stretch; tanoti – tanute /

*P<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>n niv<sup>1</sup>rayati yojayate hit<sup>1</sup>ya
Guhy<sup>1</sup>ni ḡ̄hati gu<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>n praka-»karoti /
.pad-gata, ca na jah<sup>1</sup>ti dad<sup>1</sup>ti k<sup>1</sup>le
San-mitra-lak-a<sup>a</sup>am ida, pravadanti santaā //*

San-mitra =sobhanaā suhĀd= su-suhĀd (= a good friend), svasya mitram p<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>t (=p<sup>1</sup>pa-karm<sup>1</sup>t = du- ad <sup>1</sup>cara<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>t), niv<sup>1</sup>rayati =apa-gamayati= dōr- karoti /Sanmitra, sva-mitra, , hit<sup>1</sup>ya =tasya hita, kartu, , yojayati /Su-suhĀd nije-mitrasya, guhy<sup>1</sup>ni =gupt<sup>1</sup>ni =rahasy<sup>1</sup>ni (=secrets) rak<sup>-ati</sup> = gopayati (=hides, conceals) / Su- mitram nije-suhĀdaā, gu<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>n sad-gu<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>n, praka-»karoti= praka-<sup>1</sup>n karoti (=reveals, makes visible) / Sat-suhĀd <sup>1</sup>pad-gata, = vipattau patita, , sva-suhĀda, na jah<sup>1</sup>ti = na tyajati (=does not desert) / Api ca san- mitra, svasya mitra, , k<sup>1</sup>le = yad<sup>1</sup> <sup>1</sup>vafyaka, bhavet tad<sup>1</sup>, dhana,

*jagdha / attum / jaghdhv<sup>1</sup> (prajaghdyā) / atsyati / <sup>1</sup>tsy<sup>1</sup>t /
Abhi+artha (10 .) = 'to praise, celebrate in song, to worship, reverence' – abhyarthayate, abhyarthayate / abhyarthayata, abhyarthayata / abhyarthayata abhyarthayata abhyarthayata abhyarthayata / abhyartht<sup>1</sup>m, abhyarthyat<sup>1</sup>m / abhyarthayeata, abhyarthyeta / abhyartham<sup>1</sup>na, abhyarthym<sup>1</sup>na / abhyarthitavya abhyarthanya, abhyarthya / abhyarthita / abhyarthayitum / abhyartha / abhyarthayi-yate / abhy<sup>1</sup>rthayi-yata /*

I- (6 P.) = 'to desire, wish, long for, intend, endeavor to obtain, endeavor to make favorable' – icchat<sup>i</sup>, »-yate /icchat, ai-yata / icchatu, i-yat<sup>1</sup>m / icchet, i-yeta / icchat, i-yam<sup>1</sup>a / e-itavya, e-avya, e-a<sup>a</sup>ya, e-ya / i-<sup>1</sup>a / e-itum, e-um / e-v<sup>1</sup>, e-itv<sup>1</sup> / e-i-yati / ai-i-yata /

Kath (10 U.) = 'to tell, relate, narrate, report, inform, speak about, declare, explain, announce – kathayati - kathayate, kathyate / akathayat - akathayata, akathyayata, kathayatu – kathayat<sup>1</sup>m, katyyat<sup>1</sup>m / kathayet – kathayeta, kathyeta / kathayat – kathyam<sup>1</sup>na, kathyam<sup>1</sup>na / kathayitavya, kathan<sup>1</sup>ya, k<sup>1</sup>thya / Kathita /kathayitum / kathayitv<sup>1</sup> / kathayi-yati - kathayi-yate / akathayi-yat - akathayi- yata /

Kup (4 P.) = 'to be moved or excited or agitated, be angry with, swell, heave or boil with rage or emotion' – kupyati, kupyate / akupyat, akupyata / kupyatu, kupyat<sup>1</sup>m / kupyet, kupyata / kupyat, kupyam<sup>1</sup>na, kopitavya, kopian<sup>1</sup>ya, kupya / kupita / kopitum / kupytv<sup>1</sup>, kopitv<sup>1</sup> / kopyi-yati / akopayi-yat /

K-al (10 U.) = 'to wash, wash off, purify, cleanse, clean' – k<sup>1</sup>layati - k<sup>1</sup>layate, k<sup>1</sup>lyate / ak<sup>1</sup>layat - ak<sup>1</sup>layata, ak<sup>1</sup>lyata / k<sup>1</sup>layatu - k<sup>1</sup>layat<sup>1</sup>m, k<sup>1</sup>lylat<sup>1</sup>m / k<sup>1</sup>layet, k<sup>1</sup>lyeta / k<sup>1</sup>layat - k<sup>1</sup>layam<sup>1</sup>na. k<sup>1</sup>lyam<sup>1</sup>na / k<sup>1</sup>layitavya, k<sup>1</sup>lan<sup>1</sup>ya, k<sup>1</sup>yla / k<sup>1</sup>lita / k<sup>1</sup>layitum / k<sup>1</sup>layitv<sup>1</sup> / k<sup>1</sup>layi-yati - k<sup>1</sup>layi-yate / ak<sup>1</sup>layi-yat - ak<sup>1</sup>layi-yata /

K-ip (6 U.) = 'to throw,, cast, send, despatch, move hastily (arms or legs), throw a glance, strike or hit, put or place anything on or in' – k<sup>1</sup>ipati - k<sup>1</sup>ipate, k<sup>1</sup>ipyate / ak<sup>1</sup>ipat - ak<sup>1</sup>ipata, ak<sup>1</sup>ipyata / k<sup>1</sup>ipatu - k<sup>1</sup>ipat<sup>1</sup>m, k<sup>1</sup>ipyat<sup>1</sup>m / k<sup>1</sup>ipet - k<sup>1</sup>ipeta, k<sup>1</sup>ipyeta / k<sup>1</sup>ipam<sup>1</sup>a, k<sup>1</sup>ipyam<sup>1</sup>a / k<sup>1</sup>epatavya, k<sup>1</sup>epa<sup>a</sup>ya, k<sup>1</sup>epya / k<sup>1</sup>ipta / k<sup>1</sup>epatum / k<sup>1</sup>iptv<sup>1</sup> / k<sup>1</sup>epsyati - k<sup>1</sup>esypate / ak<sup>1</sup>epsyat - ak<sup>1</sup>psyata /

Jan (4 .) = 'to be born or produced, come into existence,

grow, become, be, be changed into' – j<sup>1</sup>yate, janyate - j<sup>1</sup>yate / aj<sup>1</sup>yata, ajanyata / j<sup>1</sup>yat<sup>1</sup>m, janyat<sup>1</sup>m - j<sup>1</sup>yat<sup>1</sup>m / j<sup>1</sup>yeta, janyata j<sup>1</sup>yeta / j<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1</sup>na, jayam<sup>1</sup>na - j<sup>1</sup>yam<sup>1</sup>na / janitavya, janan<sup>1</sup>ya, janya / j<sup>1</sup>ta / janitum / jayitv<sup>1</sup> / (saijanya - sajj<sup>1</sup>ya) / jani-yate / ajani-yata /

Di- (6 U.) = 'to point out, show, exhibit, bring forward 9as a witness in a court of law), promote, assign grant, bestow' – dīfati - dīfate, dīfyate / adīfati - adīfata, adīfyata / dīfat<sup>1</sup>m, dīfyat<sup>1</sup>m / dīfet - dīfeta, dīfyeta / dīfat<sup>1</sup>m - dīfam<sup>1</sup>na, dīfyam<sup>1</sup>na / de-avya, defjan<sup>1</sup>ya, defya / di-a / de-um / di-v<sup>1</sup> / <sup>1</sup>dīfyā (= upadīfyā) / dek-yati-dek-yate / adek-yat – adek-yata /

Druh (4 P.) = 'to hurt, see to harm, be hostile to, bear malice or hatred, be a foe or rival' – druhyati, druhyare / adruhyat, adruhyata / druhyatu, druhyat<sup>1</sup>m / druhyet, druhyeta / droha<sup>a</sup>ya, druhyam<sup>1</sup>na / drohitavya, droddhavya - dro<sup>c</sup>havy, droha<sup>a</sup>ya, drohya / drugdha - dru<sup>c</sup>ha / drohitum, droghum, dro<sup>c</sup>hum / druittv<sup>1</sup> / drohitv<sup>1</sup>, drughv<sup>1</sup>, dru<sup>c</sup>hv<sup>1</sup> / drohi-yatui / adrohi-yat /

Pach (1 U.) = 'to cook, bake, roast, boil, digest, ripen, mature, bring to perfection or completion' – pacati – pacate, pacyate / apacat – apacata, apacyata / pacatu – pacat<sup>1</sup>m, apacyat<sup>1</sup>m / pacet – paceta, pacyeta / pacat – pacam<sup>1</sup>na, pacyam<sup>1</sup>na / paktavya, pacan<sup>1</sup>ya, p<sup>1</sup>kya / pakva / paktum / paktv<sup>1</sup>, (vipacya) / pak-yati – pak-yate / apak-yat, apak-yata /

Ud+pad (4 ) = 'to arise, rise, originate, be born or produced; to come forth, become visible, appear; to be ready – utpadyate, utpadyate / udapadyata, udapadyata / utpadyeta, utpadyeta / utpadyam<sup>1</sup>na, utpadyam<sup>1</sup>na / utpattavya, utp<sup>1</sup>dan<sup>1</sup>ya, utp<sup>1</sup>dya / utpanna / utpttum / utpadya / utpatsyate / udapatsyata /

Pach (1 U.) = 'to cook, bake, roast, boil, digest, ripen, mature, bring to perfection or completion' – pacati – pacate, pacyate / apacat – apacata, apacyata / pacatu – pacat<sup>1</sup>m, apacyat<sup>1</sup>m / pacet – paceta, pacyeta / pacat – pacam<sup>1</sup>na, pacyam<sup>1</sup>na / paktavya, pacan<sup>1</sup>ya, p<sup>1</sup>kya / pakva / paktum / paktv<sup>1</sup>, (vipacya) / pak-yati – pak-yate / apak-yat, apak-yata /

Ud+pad (4 ) = 'to arise, rise, originate, be born or produced; to come forth, become visible, appear; to be ready – utpadyate, utpadyate

/ udapadyata, udapadyata / utpadyeta, utpadyeta / utpadyam<sup>1</sup>na, utpadyam<sup>1</sup>na / utpattavya, utp<sup>1</sup>dan<sup>1</sup>ya, utp<sup>1</sup>dya / utpanna / utpttum / utpadya / utpatsyate / udapatsyata /

Prach (6 P.) = 'to ask, question, interrogate; to ask after, inquire about' – pĀcchatī, pĀcchyaē / apĀcchat, apĀcchyaē / pĀcchatī / pĀcchet, pĀccheta / pĀcchat, pĀcchyam<sup>1</sup>na / pra-avya, pĀcchan<sup>1</sup>ya, pĀcchya / pĀ-ā / pĀa-um / pĀ-v<sup>1</sup> / prak-yati / aprak-yat /

, +prach (6 ,) = 'to take leave, bid farewell;; to call (on a god), implore; to ask, inquire for, to extol' – <sup>1</sup>pĀcchate, <sup>1</sup>pĀcchyaē / <sup>1</sup>pĀcchata, <sup>1</sup>pĀcchyaē / <sup>1</sup>pĀcchat<sup>1</sup>m, <sup>1</sup>pĀcchyat<sup>1</sup>m / <sup>1</sup>pĀccheta, <sup>1</sup>pĀcchya / <sup>1</sup>pĀccham<sup>1</sup>na, <sup>1</sup>pĀcchyam<sup>1</sup>na / <sup>1</sup>pra-avya, <sup>1</sup>pracchan<sup>1</sup>ya, <sup>1</sup>pĀcchya / <sup>1</sup>prak-yate / <sup>1</sup>prak-yata /

Muh (4 P.) = 'to become stupefied or unconscious, be bewildered or perplexed, err, be mistaken, go astray; to become confused, fail miscarry' – muhyati, muhyate / amuhyat, amuhyata / muhyatu, muhyat<sup>1</sup>m / muhyet, muhyeta / muhyat, muhyam<sup>1</sup>na / mohitavya – mogdhavya – mo<sup>c</sup>havya, mohan<sup>1</sup>ya. mohya / mugdha - mō<sup>c</sup>ha / mohitum - mogdhum – mo<sup>c</sup>hum / mughv<sup>1</sup> - muhitv<sup>1</sup> -mohitv<sup>1</sup> / mohi-yati – mok-yati / amohi-yat / amohi-yat – amok-yat /

The verbal roots that are given above belong to the Div<sup>1</sup>di (4th), the Tud<sup>1</sup>di (6th), or the Cur<sup>1</sup>di (10th) classes. Having marked the forms given against them, just make separate form-wise lists, and having taken into account the changed forms write down the meaning against each form, so that we shall be fully conversant with all their verbal forms.

About two hundred seventy-five verbal roots of these three verbal classes are found to be actually used in the Sanskrit literature, but all of the forms given above are rarely found to be used. Even then, it would be very easy to recognize the forms and understand their meanings due to the study indicated above.

Now, recite aloud the following verses
and utter aloud their explanation:

i.e., replacement of the sagho-a mah<sup>1</sup>-pr<sup>1</sup>a by the a-gho-a mah<sup>1</sup>-pr<sup>1</sup>a consonant, of abhy<sup>1</sup>sa) ba+bh<sup>0</sup>+a =ba+bhuv+a=ba bh<sup>0</sup>
va/ lilekha =likh+ti=li likh+a (by tib<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la)=li lekh (by gu<sup>a</sup>1de<sup>1</sup>la of the root) +a (by tib<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la)=li le kha / In the Parasmaipada this gu<sup>a</sup>1de<sup>1</sup>la occurs in the singular forms of all the three Persons. In the 2nd Per. Sing., e.g., li likh+i+tha=lilikhitha, and in the 1st Per. Du., and Pl., e.g., li likh+i+tha=lilikhitha, and in the 1st Per. Du., and Pl., e.g., li likh+i+va= likhiva, li likh+i+ma= likhima, the root takes the i<sup>o</sup>d-1gama. In the forms of the rot pa-h, the root takes the vÅddhay-1de<sup>1</sup>la, i.e., replacement of a, e, o, by i, ai, au, respectively, e.g., pa-h+ti= pa-h+a (by tib-1de<sup>1</sup>la)=pa pa-h (by dvitva) +a=p p<sup>1</sup>-h (by vÅddhay-1de<sup>1</sup>la) +a=pap<sup>1</sup>-ha. But, in the forms other than those of the 3rd and the 1st Per., the elision of reduplication (abhy<sup>1</sup>sa-lopa), replacement by e (etv<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la) occurs. Pa pa-h+anti= pa-h+a (by tib-1de<sup>1</sup>la) = pa+pa-h (by dvitva) +a= pe-h (by abhy<sup>1</sup>sa-lopa and etv<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la) +a= pe-h a= pe-ha / Similarly, pethuā/ pa-h+si= pa-h+tha (by tib-1de<sup>1</sup>la)=pa pa-h+tha (by dvitva) = pe-h+i+tha (by abhy<sup>1</sup>sa- etv<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la-lopa and i<sup>o</sup>1gama)= pe-h i tha= pe-hitha / In the tmane-pada, the termination se of 2nd Per. Sing. is retroflexed to ~, e.g., cakÅ-e / In the 1st Per. Sing. Du. And Pl. tmane-pada forms of the root kÅ, the final Å is replaced by the reph<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la, i.e., ra, e.g., kÅ+e=ca kÅ (by dvitva) +e=ca kr (by reph<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la) +e=ca kr e=cakre / Similarly, cakr<sup>1</sup>te, cakrire / In the forms of the root adhi+i, the root is replaced by jag, its dh<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la.

The replacement of the root by something is called the dh<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la. In the roots of the Ad<sup>1</sup>di, i.e., 2nd class, the root as is replaced bh<sup>0</sup>, its dh<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la, and the forms of bh<sup>0</sup> are considered to be those of the root as in Past Perfect (Li-.). In the Li- forms of the root as (4 P.) of the Div<sup>1</sup>di, i.e., the 4th class, the reduplication of the first syllable a gives us a a = ~, as per the coalescence.

Tan (8 U.)= 'to extend, spread'. KÅ(8 U.)= 'to do, make, perform'

	Parasmaipada			tmanepada
	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	tanute	tanutaā	tanvanti	kurute	kurutaā	kurvanti
M. Pu.	tano-i	tanuthaā	tanutha	kuru-e	kurv<sup>1</sup>the	kurudhve
U. Pu.	tanomi	tanuvaā	tanumaā	kurve	kurvahe	urmahe

Kry<sup>1</sup>di (=Ninth) Class: Before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, the adjunct lap is replaced by n<sup>1</sup> which is its lab<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la, and before the pit terminations (i.e. in 1st, 2nd and 3rd Per. Sing.) it remains n<sup>1</sup>, before the non-pit terminations with initial consonant it becomes n», and before the non-pit terminations with initial vowel it becomes n.<sup>1</sup> For instance, kr»+lap+ti=kr»+n<sup>1</sup>+ti=kr»+n<sup>1</sup>+ti=kr»+a<sup>1</sup>+ti=kr»+a<sup>1</sup>ti/kr»+lap+taā=kr»+n<sup>1</sup>+taā=kr»+taā/kr»+n<sup>1</sup>+taā=kr»+n<sup>1</sup>+anti=kr»+n<sup>1</sup>+anti=kr»+n+anti=kr»+a<sup>1</sup>+anti=kr»+a<sup>1</sup>anti/jñ<sup>1</sup>=jñ<sup>1</sup>+lap+te=j<sup>1</sup>+n<sup>1</sup>+te=j<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>te/

Kr» (9 U.)= 'to buy, purchase' Jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 U.)= 'to know, understand'

	Parasmaipada			tmanepada
	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	kr»<sup>a</sup>1ti	kr»<sup>a</sup>taā	kr»<sup>a</sup>anti	j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>te	j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>te	j<sup>1</sup>nate
M. Pu.	kr»<sup>a</sup>1si	kr»<sup>a</sup>thaā	kr»<sup>a</sup>tha	j<sup>1</sup>n»e	j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>the	j<sup>1</sup>n»dhve
U. Pu.	kr»<sup>a</sup>1mi	kr»<sup>a</sup>vaā	kr»<sup>a</sup>maā	j<sup>1</sup>ne	j<sup>1</sup>n»vahe	j<sup>1</sup>n»mahe

Cur<sup>1</sup>di (= Tenth) Class: Before the terminations of Tenses and Moods are applied to them, the adjunct ic is applied to it, but since it is not a lab<sup>1</sup>de<sup>1</sup>la, the adjunct lap is also applied to it after it, and because of it the final or the penultimate vowel of the verbal root is replaced by its gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent. For instance, cur+<sup>a</sup>ic+lap+ti=cur+i+a+ti=cor+e (by gu<sup>a</sup>1de<sup>1</sup>la) +a+ti=cor+ay (by coalescence of e+a+ti=corayati) / ni+mantr+nic+lap+te= ni+mantr+i+a+te=ni+mantr+e+a+te+ ni+mantr+ay+te / Hence, it is by way of simplification that the students are taught that the adjunct of the Tenth Class is aya !

Rac (10 U.) = 'to make, produce.'	Ni+sud (10 U.) = 'to kill, slay.'
Parasmaipada	tmanepada
Sing. Du.	Pl. Sing. Du. Pl.
P.Pu. racayati	racayataā racayanti

M.Pu. racayasi

U.Pu. racay'mi racay'vah racay'mā

ni-Ødayate	ni-Ødayete	ni-Ødayante
ni-Ødayase	ni-Ødayethe	ni-Ødayadhve
ni-Ødaye	ni-Øday'vah	ni-Øday'mahe

In English the different voices of speech such as Active, Passive and Causal are well known. For instance: 'I am playing' (Active); 'I am being played' (Passive); Friend is making me play' (Causal). In Sanskrit such constructions are known as Kartari, Karma<sup>a</sup>i and Preraka, respectively.

Now, read aloud the following verse and its Sanskrit explanation:

~atrØn agamayat svarga, ved'rtha, sv'n avedayat /
      , layac c'māta, dev'n vedam adhy'payad vidhim /

(Footnotes)

<sup>1</sup> Here we have to note that the terminations tip, sip and mip of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Pers. Sing. are pit; the terminations tas, thas and vas of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Pers. Du. are non-pit and having an initial consonant; and the terminations jha (P. = anti) and jha (., = anta) are having an initial vowel. In modern Sanskrit Grammars the pit terminations are called "strong", while the non-pit terminations are called "weak".

, sayat salile pÅtv», yaå sa me ¶r»-harir gatiå //

Yaå ¶r»-hariå ¶atrØn svargam agamayat (=made go; took, conveyed); yaå ¶r»-hariå sv'n svaky'1n ved'rtham avedayat (= helped to know); yaå ¶r» hariå dev', ¶ca amÅtam 1¶yat asv'1dayat (=helped them taste); yaå ¶r» hariå vidhi, brahma-deva, vedam adhy'payad a¶lik-ayat (=taught); yaå ¶r» hariå pÅtv», salile jale 1sayat sthir'1m akarot (=stabilized); saå ¶r» hariå me mama gatiå sarvottama, ¶ara<sup>a</sup>am asti /

~i-yaå p<sup>1</sup>-ha, pa-hati (=learns) / , c<sup>1</sup>ryaa p<sup>1</sup>-ha, p<sup>1</sup>-hayati (=makes learn, teaches) / Putraå hasati (=laughs) / M<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> putra, h<sup>1</sup>sayati (=makes laugh) / Gaj<sup>1</sup>å jala, pibanti (=drink) / , dhora<sup>a</sup>a (=elephant driver) gaj<sup>1</sup>n jala, p<sup>1</sup>yayati (=makes drink) / BhÅtyaå karma karoti (=does) / ~v<sup>1</sup>m» bhÅty<sup>1</sup>n karma k<sup>1</sup>rayati (=makes do) / Mayuraå nÅtyati (=dances) / Meghaå mayura, nartayati (=makes dance) /

Pa-h (1 P.) = 'to study, read'      ram (1 ,) = 'to play, be pleased'

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
P.Pu.	pap<sup>1</sup>-ha	pe-hatuå	pe-huå	reme	rem<sup>1</sup>te	remire
M.Pu.	pe-hitha	pe-hathuå	pe-ha	remi-e	rem<sup>1</sup>the	remidhve
U.Pu.	pap<sup>1</sup>-h	pe-hiva	pe-hima	reme	remivaha	remimaha

kÅ (8. U.) = 'to do, make'

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu.	cak<sup>1</sup>ra	cakratuå	cakruå	cakre	cak<sup>1</sup>te	cakrire
M.Pu.	cakartha	cakrathuå	cakra	cakr-e	cak<sup>1</sup>the	cakr<sup>o</sup>he
U.Pu.	cak<sup>1</sup>ra	cakÅva	cakÅma	cakre	cakrvahe	cakrmahe

BhØ (1 U.) = 'to be'

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu.	babhØva	babhØtuå	babhØvuå	babhØve	babhØv<sup>1</sup>te	babhØvire
M.Pu.	babhØvitha	babhØvathuå	babhØva	babhØvithe	babhØv<sup>1</sup>the	babhØvidhve
U.Pu.	babhØva	babhØviva	babhØvima	babhØve	babhØvivaha	babhØvimahe

as (4 P.) = 'to throw, hurl'

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu.	'sa	'saatuå	'suå	adhijage	adhij<sup>1</sup>te	adhijagire
M.Pu.	'sitha	'sathuå	'sa	adhijagi-e	adhijag<sup>1</sup>the	adhijagidhve
U.Pu.	'sa	'sasiva	'sasima	adhijage	adhijagivaha	adhijagimaha

From the view point of the P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>inian system, the terminations <sup>a</sup>al etc., shown above are the tib<sup>1</sup>deßas (= tip + <sup>1</sup>deßa), i.e., the ones that replace the original terminations tip etc. As per the P<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>inian procedure, first of all the la-k<sup>1</sup>ra is applied to the verbal root, and thereafter the tib<sup>1</sup>deßas replace them. Thus, for instance, when the tib<sup>1</sup>deßas are applied to the verbal root bhØ, there comes in between the adjunct vug<sup>1</sup>gama (= vuk + <sup>1</sup>gama), of which only v survives, because the sounds u and k are elided since they are the its, i.e., symbolical. Then, the reduplication operates, in which the original root is called 'an-abhy<sup>1</sup>sa' (=on-repeated), while the reduplicated part put first before the original root is called 'abhy<sup>1</sup>sa'. Then the changes occur in the abhy<sup>1</sup>sa.

Now, let us examine from the point of view of grammatical analysis some of the verbal forms seen above: babhØva = bhØ+ti=bhØ+a (by tib<sup>1</sup>deßa) = (by reduplication) bhØ bhØ+a=bha bha = (by ja<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup>deßa,

From the viewpoint of the grammatical word formation, of these verbal forms, the first syllable of the verbal root is duplicated. This process of duplication is technically called 'dvitva' (= doubling) or 'abhy<sup>1</sup>sa' (=reduplication). The rules about it are as follows: (1) First of all the whole root is repeated, as for instance, pa-h pa-h , in which the first 'pa-h' part is called 'abhy<sup>1</sup>sa'. (2) From it the first syllable 'pa' of is retained, while the rest 'h' is elided; thus 'pa pa-h' survives. (3) If there be a mah<sup>1</sup>-pr<sup>1a</sup>a consonant (=the 2nd or 4th of the respective class) in the abhy<sup>1</sup>sa, it is replaced by the alpa-pr<sup>1a</sup>a one (=the 1st or 3rd one of the respective class), for instance, bh<sup>1</sup>-bh<sup>1</sup>- = bh<sup>1</sup> bh<sup>1</sup>-= b<sup>1</sup> bh<sup>1</sup>-, chid chid = chi chid / Thus, k, kh or k- changes to c, g to j, ch to c , dh to d, bh to b, and h to j. For instance, krand > ca-krand, khan > ca-khan, gam > ja-gam, chad > ca-ched, dh<sup>1</sup>v > da-dh<sup>1</sup>v, bhram > ba-bhram, and h<sup>1</sup> > ja-h<sup>1</sup>. (4) The long vowel in the abhy<sup>1</sup>sa is shortened, as for instance, n» > ni-n». (5) The guttural consonant in the abhy<sup>1</sup>sa is replaced by the dental one, as for instance, kh<sup>1</sup>d kh<sup>1</sup>d > kh<sup>1</sup> kh<sup>1</sup>a > kha kh<sup>1</sup>d > ca kh<sup>1</sup>d, gam gam > ga gam > ja gam. (6) In the case of some verbal roots in which the vowel a occurs medially, it is replaced by e, except in the 1st and the 3rd Per. Sing., for instance, ram > rem. (7) After all these processes, the terminations of the Past Perfect Tense (L-) are directly applied to verbal root without any vikara<sup>a</sup>a intervening it.

On seeing the reduplication and the termination of the L-, which are given below, one can immediately recognize the verbal form of the Past Perfect Tense:

Parasmai-pada			tmane-pada
Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu. <sup>a</sup> al (=a)	atus	us	e	<sup>1</sup> te	ire
M.Pu. thal (=tha)	athus	a	se	<sup>1</sup> the	dhve
U.Pu. <sup>a</sup> al (=a)	va	ma	e	vahe	mahe

Let us see the Past Perfect forms of a few verbal roots, given below:

Parasmai-pada			tmanepada
Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
likh (6 P.) = 'to write'			bh<sup>1</sup>- (1 ..) = 'to speak'
Sing.      Du.      Pl.			Sing.      Du.      Pl.
Pr. Pu. lilekh	lilikhatuā	lilikhuā	bab<sup>1</sup>-e	bab<sup>1</sup>-te	bab<sup>1</sup>-ire
M. Pu. lilekhittha	lilikhatuā	lilikha	bab<sup>1</sup>-i-e	bab<sup>1</sup>-the	bab<sup>1</sup>-idhve
U. Pu. lilekha	lilikhiva	lilikhma	bab<sup>1</sup>-e	bab<sup>1</sup>-iavahe	bab<sup>1</sup>-imahe

Now, note : In the above verse and sentences, the usages agamat, avedyat, <sup>1</sup>ayat, adhy<sup>1</sup>payat, <sup>1</sup>sayat, ak<sup>1</sup>rayat, p<sup>1</sup>-hayati, h<sup>1</sup>sayati, p<sup>1</sup>yayati, k<sup>1</sup>rayati, nartayati are the verbs the causal sense of the respective roots. For converting a verb from the Active Voice to the Causal, the termination aya is applied to the root. In the P<sup>1a</sup>inian system this termination is mentioned as <sup>a</sup>ic (=i, having the indicatory marks <sup>a</sup> and c attached to it), and the forms in which this termination is applied are technically known as <sup>a</sup>y-anta (<sup>a</sup>i-ended). Practically, this Causal termination i is replaced by e its gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent, which combines with the lap (=a) following it, thus forming the final form of the termination as aya. As we have seen above, the verbal roots of the Tenth Class take the termination aya, and the forms of this class in the Active Voice are, therefore, technically called <sup>a</sup>jj-anta (nic-ended). When the termination of aya is applied to the verbal root of any root-class, its in Causal is obtained, and then as per the intention of the user the terminations of the intended Tense or Mood, Person and Number are applied and the requisite form is ready for use in the sentence.

Now, let us see from viewpoint of Grammatical Analysis: agamat = a+gam+aya+t / Here, the adjunct a- (known as a<sup>o</sup>-<sup>1</sup>gama) of the Imperfect Past Tense has been prefixed to, and the termination aya of the Causal has come after, the root gam, and the termination t of the Third Person (Prathama Puru-a) Singular has been applied at the end. Similarly, avedyat = a+vid+aya+t = a+ved(gu<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>de<sup>a</sup>)+aya+t / <sup>1</sup>ayat = a+a<sup>1</sup>+aya+t = <sup>1</sup>+a<sup>1</sup>+aya+t / ady<sup>1</sup>payat = adhi+a+i+apaya+t = adhy+a+e+apaya+t = adhya+ apaya+t / <sup>1</sup>sayat = a+as+aya+t = <sup>1</sup>+as+aya+t / ak<sup>1</sup>rayat = a+k<sup>1</sup>A + aya+t = =a+k<sup>1</sup>r(by v<sup>1</sup>ddhy<sup>1</sup>de<sup>a</sup> of A to <sup>1</sup>r) / p<sup>1</sup>-hayatu=pa-h (>p<sup>1</sup>-h)+aya+ti / h<sup>1</sup>sayati = has (>h<sup>1</sup>s)+aya+ti / p<sup>1</sup>yayati = pyai (>py<sup>1</sup>y by v<sup>1</sup>ddhy<sup>1</sup>de<sup>a</sup> of ai to <sup>1</sup>y)+aya+ti / k<sup>1</sup>rayati = k<sup>1</sup>A + aya+ti =k<sup>1</sup>r(by v<sup>1</sup>ddhy<sup>1</sup>de<sup>a</sup> of A to <sup>1</sup>r)) +aya+ti / nartayati = n<sup>1</sup>A (>nart by gu<sup>a</sup><sup>1</sup>de<sup>a</sup> of A to ar)+aya+ti /

While applying the termination aya of the Causal (and thus practically following the procedure of the Tenth Class) the other changes that take place in accordance with the procedure are the following: (1) The final vowel of the root is replaced by its v<sup>1</sup>ddhy<sup>1</sup>de<sup>a</sup>, e.g., nai

>  $n^1y / bh\emptyset > bh^1v /$  (2) The penultimate short vowel of most of the roots is replaced by its  $d\bar{r}gh^1de\bar{a}$ , i.e., long one, e.g.,  $pa-h > p^1-h$ ;  $nad > n^1d /$  (3) The penultimate short vowel of some of the roots is replaced by its  $gu^a\bar{a}de\bar{a}$ , e.g.,  $bhid > bhed$ ;  $mud > mod$ ;  $k\bar{A} > kar\bar{A} /$  (4) The roots like jan, gam, and others being exceptions to this rule, no  $d\bar{r}gh^1de\bar{a}$  nor  $gu^a\bar{a}de\bar{a}$  has taken place in its Causal forms like janayati, gamayati, etc. (5) p or y is added at the end of the verbal root ending in  $^1$ , as for instance,  $sth^1+aya+ti=sth^1 p=+aya+ti=sth^1 payati / m^1+aya+ti=m^1+p+aya+ti=m^1 payati / p^1+aya+ti=p^1+y+aya+ti=p^1 yayati /$

In Sanskrit language, when the following verbal roots govern two objects, used in double Accusative, hence they are called dvi-karmaka: duh (2 U.) = 'to milk', G<sup>1</sup>, dogdhi - dugdhe payaā / y<sup>1</sup>c (1 U.) = 'to beg', Bali, vasudh<sup>1</sup>, y<sup>1</sup>cati - y<sup>1</sup>cate / pac (1 U.) Ta<sup>a</sup>ul<sup>1</sup>n odana, pacati - pacate / *da<sup>a</sup> (10 U.) Garg<sup>1</sup>n ¶ata, da<sup>a</sup>ayati - da<sup>a</sup>ayate / rudh (7 U.) 'to hold up', G<sup>1</sup>, vrajam ava-ru<sup>a</sup>addhi - ava-rundhē / pracch (6 P.) 'to ask', M<sup>a</sup>avaka, panth<sup>1</sup>na, pAchhati / ci (5 U.) = 'to collect', vAk-am ava-cinoti - ava-cinute - phal<sup>1</sup>ni/brØ (2 U.) 'to speak', bravAti - bAØte, ¶i-a, dharma, bravti - brØte/¶i's (2 P.) = 'to advise', ¶i-ya, dharma, ¶i'sti // ji (1 P.) = 'to win' devadatta, ¶ata, jayati / manth (9 P.) = 'to churn, to agitate' Sudh<sup>1</sup>, k<sup>1</sup>ra-nidhi, mathn<sup>1</sup>ti / mu- (9 P.) = to rob, plunder' devadatta, ¶ata, mu-<sup>a</sup>ti / n (1 U.) = 'to lead, carry off' gr<sup>1</sup>mam aj<sup>1</sup>, nayati - nayate / hA (1 U.) = 'to take, bar, carry, convey, fetch' gr<sup>1</sup>mam aj<sup>1</sup>, harati - harate/ kA> (1 P.) = 'to draw, pull, plough' gr<sup>1</sup>mam aj<sup>1</sup>, kA}-ati / vah (1 U.) = 'to bear along, carry, flow' gr<sup>1</sup>mam aj<sup>1</sup>, vahati - vahate / These, and other verbal roots having similar sense, are dvi-karmaka, i.e., they govern two objects.*

Now note : When a form of a dvi-karmaka verbal root is utilized, two nouns are used in the Objective Case in the sentence; one of them is the principal and the other is subsidiary. For instance, ¶i-hari<sup>1</sup> ¶at<sup>1</sup> svargam agamayat / Here in the Active Voice sentence the statement is about being sent to heaven (svargam) which is the destination, used as the Object in the Accusative Case. But since the construction is Causal with the verb agamayat, the original Object 'svargam' of the Active Voice

*Atha prabh<sup>1</sup>te sa van<sup>1</sup>ya (=for forest) dhenu, (=the cow) mumoca (=released) / Sa-vats<sup>1</sup>, dhenu, pradak-*i<sup>a</sup>ka*Åtya (=having circumambulated) sa nÅpaå puraå (=forward) yayau (=started, went) / Tasy<sup>1</sup>, sudak-i<sup>a</sup>1y<sup>1</sup>, raghu-n<sup>1</sup>mn<sup>1</sup> suto jajñe (=was born) / Guru-dak-i<sup>a</sup>1rth kautso raghu, (=to Raghu) prapede (=approached) / Raghor v<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>ti<sup>1</sup>layena (=due to superior valour) vÅtrah<sup>1</sup> (=Indra) tuto-a (=was satisfied) /*

*Siddh<sup>1</sup>rthaå pr<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>de (=in the palace) sukha, na lebhe (=got, obtained) / Sa hira<sup>a</sup>maya, (=golden, made of gold) syandanam (=chariot) <sup>1</sup>ruroha (=mounted on, ascended on) / <sup>1</sup>anaiå ¶anaiå (=slowly and slowly) ca sa r<sup>1</sup>ja-m<sup>1</sup>rga, (=on the royal road) pratasthe (=started, went) / Ta, dra-u, (=in order to see, look at) v<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>yane-u (=in the windows) vanit<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, (=of the damsels) mukha-paj kaj<sup>1</sup>ni (=lotus-like faces) virejuå (=shone out, looked beautiful) /*

*Tasmin sa, yamin<sup>1</sup>, (=of the celibates) vane madhuå (=the Spring season) jajÅmbhe (=blossomed, spread out) / <sup>1</sup>mra-mañjan-sv<sup>1</sup>dena (=due to the taste of the Mango buds) mattaå kokilaå madhra, (=sweetly) cukØja (=cooked) / Um<sup>1</sup> 'pi vÅ-abha-dhvaj<sup>1</sup>ya (=to <sup>1</sup>iva, having a bull as a banner symbol) pra<sup>a</sup>an<sup>1</sup>ma (=bowed down, saluted) / Atha gaur<sup>1</sup> <sup>1</sup>mra-ruc<sup>1</sup> (=having the copper luster) kare<sup>a</sup> gir<sup>1</sup>ya (=to <sup>1</sup>iva, the Lord of the Himalayan mountain) pu-kara-bj<sup>1</sup>a-m<sup>1</sup>1, (=a garland of lotus seeds) upaninye (=presented) / Haraå tasy<sup>1</sup>å mukhe dÅ-i, cak<sup>1</sup>ra (=directed a gaze)/ Tataå k<sup>1</sup>madeva, dÅ-v<sup>1</sup> (=having seen) bhave-netra-jam<sup>1</sup>-vahnia (=the fire generated from the eye of <sup>1</sup>iva) madana, bhasm<sup>1</sup>va<sup>1</sup>le-a, (=as a residue in the form of ashes) cak<sup>1</sup>ra (=made, rendered) / <sup>1</sup>Øny<sup>1</sup> ¶ail<sup>1</sup>tmaj<sup>1</sup> (=P<sup>1</sup>rvat<sup>1</sup>, the of the Himalayan mountain) pitur bhavana, jag<sup>1</sup>ma (=went away) /*

In the above sentences we find the verbs like babhØva, pari<sup>a</sup>in<sup>1</sup>ya, jagmatuå, cakruå, mumoca, prayayau, jajñe, prapede, tuto-a, lebhe, <sup>1</sup>ruroha, pratasthe, jajÅmbha, cukØja, pra<sup>a</sup>an<sup>1</sup>ma, upaninye, cak<sup>1</sup>ra, cakre and jag<sup>1</sup>ma; they denote the sense of very far past events or actions, that occurred in ancient times. In Sanskrit such verbal forms are called Parok-a-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la. Parok-am = ak-<sup>a</sup>oå param = that which is beyond are vision. Such verbal forms are found to be used in the ancient literature, like the Vedic Sa, hit<sup>1</sup>s, the Br<sup>1</sup>ma<sup>a</sup>as, ra<sup>a</sup>yakas and the Upani-ads. In the P<sup>1</sup>ainian system the Parok-a-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la, or the Past Perfect Tense is known by the term Li-.

instances the ā has been changed to r, which has joined with the following consonant or vowel. At<sup>1</sup>ayat+cara<sup>a</sup>ataā (t+c=c+c=cc).

In this verse there is an enjoyable play of questions and answers. The syllables in answer to the first question in the first half of the quarter, when inverted provides the answer to the question in the second half of the same quarter of this verse. Thus, the syllables of the word 's<sup>1</sup>-dha-ve' (=to a good man), the answer to the first question, when inverted becomes 've-dha-s<sup>1</sup>' and provides the answer to the second question in the same quarter.

Aho kened<sup>1</sup> buddhir d<sup>1</sup>ru<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup> tava nirmit<sup>1</sup> /
Trigu<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup> *¶rōyate buddhir na tu d<sup>1</sup>rumay» kvacit //

Atra ¶loke pōrv<sup>1</sup>rdhe vallabhaā (=a lovin husband) ru-<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā (=of the offended) priyatam<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā (=of the loving wife) anunaya, kurvan (=while entreating) brōte (=tells): *Aho ! He ! priyatame ! Tava buddhir id<sup>1</sup> d<sup>1</sup>ru<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup> bhaya<sup>1</sup> kar<sup>1</sup>, ka-hor<sup>1</sup> v<sup>1</sup>, kena nirmit<sup>1</sup> ? Eva, ka-hora-vacanena yad<sup>1</sup> priy<sup>1</sup> m<sup>1</sup>na, na muñcati, tad<sup>1</sup> priyatamaā svasya prañnasyottara, svayam eva vadati yat (=that) buddhiā tri-gu<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup> sattva-rajas-tama iti gu<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>a-traya-svarōp<sup>1</sup> *¶rōyate/ s<sup>1</sup>; khyā-¶<sup>1</sup>stre, vede v<sup>1</sup>, ki, -tu kvacit kutr<sup>1</sup>pi d<sup>1</sup>rumay» k<sup>1</sup>-ha-may» naiva *¶rōyate /

This verse, too, contains an entertaining play of the questions and answers. A loving husband trying to get court his beloved, but offended, wife reconciled, is tired at last by her undaunted attitude, and exclaims as to who has created the terribly wooden mentality in her. And, as an after thought he reflects that this creation cannot be of the creator of the world, since the mind is not made of the wood ! Here, there is verbal play on the word 'd<sup>1</sup>ru<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>'. When this word is taken as a Nom. Sing. of the feminine form of the adjective 'd<sup>1</sup>ru<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>' it means 'terrible'; but when taken as an Instr, Sing. of the neuter noun 'd<sup>1</sup>ru' (=wood), it means '(made) out of wood'.

Now, read the following sentences aloud trying to understand their meanings:

Pur<sup>1</sup> (=formerly) ayody<sup>1</sup>-nagary<sup>1</sup>, dil<sup>1</sup>po n<sup>1</sup>ma r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> babhōva (= was there, happened to be) / Sa sudak-i<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>, n<sup>1</sup>ma magadha-r<sup>1</sup>ja-putr», pari<sup>a</sup>in<sup>1</sup>ya (=married) / Atha kad<sup>1</sup>cid (=sometimes) tau dampat» (=couple) vasi-<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>¶rama, jagmatuā (=went) / Munayas t<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m arha<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>, (=respectful welcome) cakruā (=did) / sentence, viz., '¶atravaā svargam agacchan /' has become subsidiary in the Causal construction, and the Subject '¶atravaā' has become the principal Object used in the Accusative Case. Thus, in the Causal construction the verbal root 'gam' (= 'to go) is dvi-karmak and conveys the sense of the root 'n' (= 'to take, convey, carry').

Now, read aloud the following sentences, trying to grasp their meaning:

*Adhy<sup>1</sup>pakaā ¶i-y<sup>1</sup>ya p<sup>1</sup>rito-ika, (=prize) yacchati / , c<sup>1</sup>ryaā adhy<sup>1</sup>pakena ¶i-y<sup>1</sup>ya p<sup>1</sup>rito-ika, d<sup>1</sup>payati (=makes him give) / B<sup>1</sup>laā da<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>ena ghata, bhanakti (=breaks) / Kifloraā b<sup>1</sup>lena da<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>ena ghata, bhañjayati (=makes him break) / Ch<sup>1</sup>traā pustaka, vahati (=carries) / Guruā ch<sup>1</sup>tre<sup>a</sup> pustaka, v<sup>1</sup>hayati (=makes him carry) /*

In these sentences the first one is in the Active construction, while the second one is in the Causal. In the Causal construction, the subject (in the Nominative Case) of the original Active construction is put in the Instrumental Case, while the words on the Objective, Instrumental and Dative in the original remain unchanged in the Causal one. But when the dvikarmaka verbal roots are used the principal and subsidiary objects of the original sentence are put in the Accusative Case. For instance:

Sudaā (= the cook) anna, pacati (=cooks) / Sv<sup>1</sup>m» sōdena anna, p<sup>1</sup>cayati (=makes him cook) / Sv<sup>1</sup>min<sup>1</sup> (=by the master) sōdena (=through the cook) anna, p<sup>1</sup>cayate (=is being cooked) / b<sup>1</sup>laā p<sup>1</sup>-ha¶<sup>1</sup>I<sup>1</sup>, gacchati / pit<sup>1</sup> b<sup>1</sup>la, p<sup>1</sup>-ha¶<sup>1</sup>I<sup>1</sup>, gamayati / pitr<sup>1</sup> b<sup>1</sup>laā p<sup>1</sup>-ha¶<sup>1</sup>I<sup>1</sup>, gamayate / tva-<sup>1</sup> vajra, karoti / dev<sup>1</sup>ā tva-<sup>1</sup>ra, - tva-<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup> - vajra, k<sup>1</sup>rayanti / devaiā tva-<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup> vajra, k<sup>1</sup>ryate / r<sup>1</sup>maā caturda¶a-sa, vatsara, vana, prati-<sup>1</sup>hati (=starts

f In above sentences, every third one contains the Causal Passive construction, where the Causal Active construction is changed into the Causal Passive one by putting subject in the Instrumental Case and the verb in the passive form.

Now, read aloud the following verses and their explanation:

*Yasm<sup>1</sup>d viʃvam udeti yatra ramate yasmin punar b̄yate
Bh<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup> yasya jagad vibh<sup>1</sup>ti sahaj<sup>1</sup>nandojjvala, yan-mahaā /
~<sup>1</sup>nta, ॥<sup>1</sup>vatam akriya, yam apunarbh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>ya bh̄oteʃvara, Dvaita-dhv<sup>1</sup>ntam ap<sup>1</sup>sya y<sup>1</sup>nti kātinaā prastaumi ta, p̄oru-am //*

Ta, p̄oru-a, param<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup>na, prastaumi prakA-a, stav̄mi / ka, p̄oru-am ? yasm<sup>1</sup>d viʃvam udeti, tam / punaā kam ? yatra viʃva, ramate, tam / punaā kam ? yasmin viʃva, punar b̄yate laya, pr<sup>1</sup>pnoti, tam /
punaā kam ? yasya bh<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup> prak<sup>1</sup>ʃena jagad vibh<sup>1</sup>ti prak<sup>1</sup>ʃat, tam / punaā
kam ? yan-mahaā yasya mahaā tejaā sahaj<sup>1</sup>nandojjvala, sahajena naisarge<sup>a</sup>a <sup>1</sup>nandena ujjvala, vartate, tam / punaā kam ?<sup>1</sup>ntam / punaā kam ?<sup>1</sup>vatam / punaā kam ?akriya, kriy<sup>1</sup>-rahitam / punaā kam ?bh̄oteʃvara, bh̄ot<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, sth<sup>1</sup>vara-
rōp<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, jaʃgama-rōp<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, ca pr<sup>1</sup>a in<sup>1</sup>m ॥ʃvara, sv<sup>1</sup>minam / punaā
kam ? kātinaā dhanyā jv<sup>1</sup>ā dvaita-dhv<sup>1</sup>nta, bheda-buddhi-rōpam andhak<sup>1</sup>ram ap<sup>1</sup>sya dōra, k-iptv<sup>1</sup>, a-punar-bhav<sup>1</sup>ya punar-janmarōpa, sa, s<sup>1</sup>ra, niv<sup>1</sup>rayitu, ya, prati y<sup>1</sup>nti gacchanti, tam / et<sup>1</sup>- dAʃla, (=such a one) viʃvasya-sA-i-sthiti-sa, h<sup>1</sup>ra-k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>a, jagad-udbh<sup>1</sup>saka, jyotiā-svarōpa, ,<sup>1</sup>nta, ॥<sup>1</sup>vatam a-kriya, bh̄ota-
n<sup>1</sup>tha, mok<sup>a</sup>-gatibh̄ota, puru-ottama, prastav̄mi ity arthaā //

In this verse the nature of God has been depicted scientifically in majestic and sweetly poetic language, irrespective of any sectarian outlook, so that it may be acceptable to all religions.

Coalescence : Here in both the cases, yasm<sup>1</sup>t+viʃvam and jagat+vibh<sup>1</sup>ti, since the final t of the previous word has been followed by the soft consonant v, it is changed to d. In punaā+bh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>ya, since the visarga (:) is followed by a soft consonant bh, it is changed to r.

Vocabulary : udeti = La-. (Pres.) Pra. Pu. (3rd Per.) Sing. of ud+i (2 P.) = 'to rise'. ramate = La-. (Pres.) Pra. Pu. (3rd Per.) Sing. of

(8) When more than one consonant occur at the end of a word due to application of the terminations, the first one survives, while the others are elided. For instance, suhĀd+s (Nom. Sing. termination)= suhĀd / hasan+t+s (as per the rules of coalescence pertaining to the declension of nouns) =hasan.

(9) When s occurs after any vowel other than a, or after the consonants of the guttural k class, or after r, it becomes retroflex, i.e., ~. For instance, b<sup>1</sup>le+su (Loc. Pl. termination)= b<sup>1</sup>le+~u=b<sup>1</sup>le~u=v<sup>1</sup>k+su=v<sup>1</sup>k+~u=v<sup>1</sup>k~u / g<sup>1</sup>r+su=g<sup>1</sup>r+~u=g<sup>1</sup>r~u / This, too, is as per the rules of coalescence pertaining to the declension of nouns.

(10) When a word having n finally is followed by one having t initially, the n is changed to , and s is added immediately after it, in between. For instance, t<sup>1</sup>n+t<sup>1</sup>n=t<sup>1</sup>, +s+t<sup>1</sup>n+t<sup>1</sup>, t<sup>1</sup>n / pr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>n+ tyaktv<sup>1</sup>=pr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, +s+tyaktv<sup>1</sup>=pr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, +s+tyaktv<sup>1</sup> /

(11) The hard consonants occurring finally in a word become soft ones, optionally. For instance, marut or marud / v<sup>1</sup>k or v<sup>1</sup>g /

Now, read aloud the following verses and their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

*Kasm<sup>1</sup>i yacchat<sup>1</sup> sajjan<sup>1</sup> bahu-dhana, sA-<sup>1</sup>a, jagat kena v<sup>1</sup>
~ambhor bh<sup>1</sup>ti ca k<sup>1</sup> gale yuvatibhir ve<sup>2</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, ca k<sup>1</sup> dh<sup>1</sup>ryate /
Gauriʃlaā kam at<sup>1</sup>ayac cara<sup>a</sup>ataā k<sup>1</sup> rak-it<sup>1</sup> r<sup>1</sup>k-asai-
R<sup>1</sup>rohad avarohataā kalayat<sup>1</sup>m eka, dvayor uttaram //*

Sajjanaā kasm<sup>1</sup>i bahu-dhana, yacchat<sup>1</sup> ? Ka-sm<sup>1</sup>i=s<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>ave / Kena
v<sup>1</sup> jagat sA-<sup>1</sup>am ? Ke-na=brahma<sup>a</sup> = vedhas<sup>1</sup> / ~ambhor ca gale k<sup>1</sup>
bh<sup>1</sup>ti ? K<sup>1</sup>=k<sup>1</sup>lim<sup>1</sup> / Yuvatibhir ve<sup>2</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, ca k<sup>1</sup> dh<sup>1</sup>ryate ? m<sup>1</sup>lik<sup>1</sup> /
Gauriʃlaā cara<sup>a</sup>ataā kam at<sup>1</sup>ayat ? k<sup>1</sup>lam / R<sup>1</sup>k-asai k<sup>1</sup> rak-it<sup>1</sup> ?
la<sup>1</sup> k<sup>1</sup> / Asmin ʃloke pratyekasmi, ॥ cara<sup>a</sup>e p̄orv<sup>1</sup>rdha-gatasya
praf<sup>1</sup>nasyottara, yasmin ʃabde var<sup>a</sup>in<sup>1</sup>m 1rohataā labhyate, tasyaiva
ʃabdasyavar<sup>a</sup>in<sup>1</sup>m, avarohataā=viparyaye<sup>a</sup>a, tasminn eva cara<sup>a</sup>e uttar<sup>1</sup>rdha-gatasya praf<sup>1</sup>nasyottara, labhyate / Yath<sup>1</sup> prathama-cara<sup>a</sup>e, 's<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>ave' - 'vedhas<sup>1</sup>' / Dvit<sup>1</sup>ya-cara<sup>a</sup>e. 'k<sup>1</sup>lim<sup>1</sup>' - 'm<sup>1</sup>lik<sup>1</sup>' / T<sup>1</sup>At<sup>1</sup>ya-cara<sup>a</sup>e,
'k<sup>1</sup>lam' - 'la, k<sup>1</sup>' /

Coalescence: ~ambhoā+bh<sup>1</sup>ti (ā+bh<sup>1</sup>= r+bh<sup>1</sup>= -rbh<sup>1</sup>) /
Yuvatibhiā +ve<sup>a</sup>yam (h+ve=r+ve= -rve-) / R<sup>1</sup>k-asaiā+ 1rohat (ā+ =r+<sup>1</sup>= -r<sup>1</sup>) / Dvayoā+uttaram (ā+u=r+u= -ru-) / In all these preferences for particular sect. The idea suggested is that the external forms are of no importance, and consequently, the differences of opinion, as well as conflicts based on them, are unwarranted.

In Sanskrit language, as in many other modern spoken ones, there occur certain invariable changes when particular sounds come together as the final one of the preceding word and the initial one of the immediately following one; this change is known as 'coalescence'. This process is natural. We have seen it in connection with the coalescence of vowels and visarga (ā), occurring in the sentences or the compounds. In this lesson we would like to introduce ourselves with the coalescence of consonants. The general rule of the consonantal coalescence is that the previous consonantal sound takes over the qualities of the one that follows it. This process works in many ways, as shown below:

- (1) (1) When a hard consonant follows a soft one, the latter becomes a hard one. For instance, tad+k<sup>1</sup>laā=tat+k<sup>1</sup>laā (d+k=t+k) / suhĀd+samak-am=suhĀt+samak-am (d+s=t+s) / v<sup>1</sup>g+kalahaā=v<sup>1</sup>k+kalahaā (g+k=k+k) = v<sup>1</sup>k-kalahaā/
- (1) (2) When a soft consonant follows a hard one, the latter becomes a soft one. For instance, dik+gajaā=dig+gajaā (k+g=g+g) = dig-gajaā/
- (2) (3) When a nasal consonant follows a non-nasal one, the former changes to the nasal of its own group. For instance, cit+mayaā=cin+mayaā (t+m=n+m; n being the nasal of the dental t-group)
- (4) This tendency of taking over the qualities of the following consonant is seen in another way, too. For instance, ta◎it+lat<sup>1</sup>=ta◎il+lat<sup>1</sup> (t+l=l+l) = ta◎ll-lat<sup>1</sup>.
- (5) The final c, ḥ and j of the words become k, even if nothing follows them. For instance, v<sup>1</sup>c=v<sup>1</sup>k / diḥ=dik / bhi-aj=bhi-ak /
- (6) In a word when occurring medially, the n preceded by न or r, irrespective of the intermediate vowel, becomes <sup>a</sup>. For instance, mar+anam=mar+a<sup>a</sup>am= mar<sup>a</sup>am / po-+anam=po-+a<sup>a</sup>am= po-a<sup>a</sup>am /
- (7) When in a word t is followed by न, the former becomes c and the latter ch. For instance, tat+॥abdaā=tac+chabdaā (t+॥=c+ch) / mat+॥i॥uā=mac+chi॥uā= macchi॥uā / ram (1 .) = 'to play, stand still, enjoy. Lyate = La-. (Pres.) Passive Pra. Pu. (3rd Per.) Sing. of l (9 P. lin<sup>1</sup>ti) = 'to adhere, melt'. Vibh<sup>1</sup>ti=La-. (Pres.) Pra. Pu. (3rd Per.) Sing. of vi+bh<sup>1</sup> (2 P.) = 'to shine, gleam forth'. Y<sup>1</sup>nti= La-. (Pres.) Pra. Pu. (3rd Per. y<sup>1</sup>ti) Pl. of y<sup>1</sup> (2 P.) "to go". Prastaumi = La-. (Pres.) Utt. Pu. (1st Per.) Sing. of pra+stu (2 U. prastauti, prastav<sup>1</sup>ti, prastute, prastuv<sup>1</sup>te) = 'to praise. Eulogize. Ap<sup>1</sup>syā = Gerund from apa+as (4. P. ap<sup>1</sup>syati).

Compounds: sahaj<sup>1</sup>nandojjvalam=sahaja, ca<sup>1</sup>nanda, ca ujjvala, ca ḥa sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ra-dvandva). akriyam= na kriyam (a nañ-tatpuru-a sam<sup>1</sup>sa). apunarbhav<sup>1</sup>ya = na punarbhav<sup>1</sup>ya (Nañ-tatpuru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa). Dvaita-dhv<sup>1</sup>ntam= dvaitam eva dhv<sup>1</sup>ntam (karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya sam<sup>1</sup>sa).

LESSON 19
(Ekonvīlaā P<sup>1</sup>-haā)

*~akya, yan na viṣṭe-ato nigaditu prem<sup>a</sup>iva yac cintita, Mādva; g>-vadanendu-ma<sup>a</sup>alam iva sv<sup>1</sup>nte vidhatte mudam /
Yan mugdh<sup>1</sup>-nayan<sup>1</sup>nta-ce-<sup>1</sup>itam iv<sup>1</sup>dhyak-e 'pi no lak-ita, Tat tejo vinay<sup>1</sup>d amanda-hāday<sup>1</sup>nand<sup>1</sup>ya vand<sup>1</sup>mahe //*

Tat tejaā vand<sup>1</sup>mahe / Kim artham ? a-manda-hāday<sup>1</sup>nand<sup>1</sup>ya = a-mandaā = na mandaā, arth<sup>1</sup>t bahu, yaā hādayasya <sup>1</sup>nandaā, tad-artham / Kasm<sup>1</sup>t k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>1t vad<sup>1</sup>mahe ? Vinay<sup>1</sup>t / K>dāla, tat tejaā ? Yat viṣṭe-ataā= viṣṭe-rōpe<sup>a</sup>a, nigaditu, = v<sup>1</sup>a<sup>y</sup>1 var<sup>a</sup>ayitu, , na ḥakyam, arth<sup>1</sup>t a-var<sup>a</sup>am asti / Punaā k>dālaam ? Yat tejaā prem<sup>a</sup>1 eva, cintita, = cintana-vi-aya, , kāta, sat, sv<sup>c</sup>1nte = bhaktasya hādaye, mudam <sup>1</sup>nanda, vidhatte / Katham iva ? Mādva; g>-vadanendu-ma<sup>a</sup>alam iva / Iva = yath<sup>1</sup>, mādōni = snigdh<sup>1</sup>ni, a<sup>j</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ni avayav<sup>1</sup>ā, yasy<sup>1</sup>ā s<sup>1</sup>, tasy<sup>1</sup>ā indu-ma<sup>a</sup>alena = candra-ma<sup>a</sup>alena, adāla, , vadana, = mukha, / Arth<sup>1</sup>t, yath<sup>1</sup> snigdh<sup>1</sup>vayava-lliny<sup>1</sup>ā priy<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā candravat ma<sup>a</sup>1kāti mukha, priyasya hādaye, mudam = <sup>1</sup>nandam, utp<sup>1</sup>dayati tath<sup>1</sup> / Punaā k>dāla, tat tejaā ? yat tejaā, adhyak-e = ak<sup>1</sup>oā purataā vartam<sup>1</sup>nam, api mugdh<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā nayanayoā ant<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, = ka<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, ce-<sup>1</sup>ita, = pravāttiā / Ak<sup>1</sup>oā purataā vartam<sup>1</sup>nam api na lak-ita, bhavati tath<sup>1</sup> / A-var<sup>a</sup>anya, , bhakti-yukta-dhy<sup>1</sup>nena <sup>1</sup>nanda-janaka, , pratyak-a, sat api na dra~u, ḥakya, , tejomaya, param<sup>1</sup>tma-svarōpa, brahm<sup>1</sup>nanda-pr<sup>1</sup>ptaye vand<sup>1</sup>mahe ity arthaā /

Coalescence: In yat+na ( t+na=n+na na=nna by replacement of t by n) = yan na / In yat+ci- (=t+c=c+c by replacement of t by c) = yac ci/ In yat+mu- ( t+m=n+m by replacement of t by n)= yan mu / In prem<sup>a</sup>1+eva ( <sup>1</sup>+e=a) = -<sup>a</sup>ai/-

Word Forms: prem<sup>a</sup>1=Instr. Sing of preman (Neu.)= love, affection. vidhatte = 3rd Per. Sing. of vi+dh<sup>1</sup> (3 U. dadh<sup>1</sup>ti-dhatte)= to do, generate. vand<sup>1</sup>mahe = 1st Per. Pl. of vand (2nd. vandate)= to salute, bow down. nigaditum=Infinitive of ni+gad (1 P. nigadati).

Compounds: mādva; g>-vadanendu-ma<sup>a</sup>alam = indoā ma<sup>a</sup>alam = indu-ma<sup>a</sup>alam ( | a~hi-tatpu.) / vadanam eva indu-ma<sup>a</sup>alam = vadanendu-ma<sup>a</sup>alam (Karmdh<sup>1</sup>raya) / mādu a<sup>j</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ni yasy<sup>1</sup>ā s<sup>1</sup> mādva; g> (Bahuvr̥hi) / mādva; gy<sup>1</sup>ā vadanendu-ma<sup>a</sup>alam ( | a~hi-tatpu.)

It is noteworthy that there is in this verse a poetic depiction of the incomparable infinite joy obtained by the worshipful meditation on the inconceivable form of the God, and it is rendered more tasty by means of sweet illustrations.

*Vi<sup>1</sup>ur v<sup>1</sup> tripur<sup>1</sup>ntako bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>
brahm<sup>1</sup> surendro 'thav<sup>1</sup>
Bh<sup>1</sup>nur v<sup>1</sup> ḥaṭa-lak-a<sup>a</sup>o 'tha bhagav<sup>1</sup>n
buddho 'tha siddho 'thav<sup>1</sup>/
R<sup>1</sup>ga-dve-a-vi<sup>1</sup>rti-moha-rahitaā
sattv<sup>1</sup>nukampodyato
Yaā sarvaiā saha sa, skāto gu<sup>a</sup>a-ga<sup>a</sup>ais
tasmai namaā sarvad<sup>1</sup> //*

R<sup>1</sup>ga-dve-a-vi<sup>1</sup>rti-moha-rahitaā=r<sup>1</sup>ga-deve-a-rōpe<sup>a</sup>a vi<sup>1</sup>-amaya- duākha-mohena vīh>naā san, sattv<sup>1</sup>nukampodyataā = pr<sup>1</sup>aibhyaā anukamp<sup>1</sup>, kartum udyama-ḥlaā san, yaā sarvaiā gu<sup>a</sup>asamōhaiā saha sa, sk<sup>1</sup>ra-yuktaā bhavati, tasmai sarvad<sup>1</sup> namaā / Saā viṣṭauā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, tripur<sup>1</sup>ntakaā= ḥivaā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, brahm<sup>1</sup> = praj<sup>1</sup>patiā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, surendraā= sur<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m indraāadhipatiā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, bh<sup>1</sup>nuā = sōryaā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, ḥaṭa-lak-a<sup>a</sup>āā = candraā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, bhagav<sup>1</sup>n buddhaā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, siddhaā jinaā bhavatu v<sup>1</sup>, / Mama abhiniveṭā na viṣṭi-a-svarōpa-yukta, param<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup>na, prati, kintu v>ta-r<sup>1</sup>ga-dve-a, day<sup>1</sup>ḥla, prati eva bhavati ity arthaā /

Colescence: In vi<sup>1</sup>uā+v<sup>1</sup> (ā+v=r+v by replacement of visarga by r)= -rv<sup>1</sup> / In surendraā+ athav<sup>1</sup> (-a+ā+a=-a+u+a=-o+a- =-o+' =-o'- by elision of initial as indicated by avagraha in Deva-n<sup>1</sup>gar, or apostrophe in Roman). In gu<sup>a</sup>aga<sup>a</sup>aiā+tasmai (ā+t=s+t by replacement of ā by si)= -sta- /

Compounds: try<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, pur<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā tripuram (Dvigu), tasya antakaā ( | a~hi-tatpu.)

In this verse, a sense of respect for the Supreme Soul has been expressed by emphasizing the abstract nature in the form of the excellent spiritual quality of compassion for all beings, and of rising above painfully poisonous passions like attachment, hatred and delusion, so as to be acceptable to all irrespective of their individual or personal

Bh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>rtha and karm<sup>1</sup>tha : To derive an abstract noun or the one expressing similar behavior, from a noun or adjective the taddhita terminations tva, tal (=t<sup>1</sup>), imanic, -yañ, añ, vati and kan are suffixed to it.

-tva or -tal (=t<sup>1</sup>) - These taddhita terminations are suffixed to a noun or adjective to derive an abstract noun from it. When -tva is applied the derived abstract noun or adjective becomes a neuter one, and when -tal > t<sup>1</sup> is applied the derived abstract noun or adjective becomes a feminine one. For instance: go+tva=gotva=gotvam (N.) = bullness. go+tal > go+ t<sup>1</sup>= got<sup>1</sup> (F.) = cowness. ॥i॥u+tva=॥i॥utva=॥i॥utvam (N.) = childhood. ॥i॥u+tal > ॥i॥u+ t<sup>1</sup>=॥i॥ut<sup>1</sup> (F.) = childhood.

Recite aloud the following verse and its explanation, trying to grasp their meanings:

*Vidvata, ca nĀpatva, ca naiva tulye kad<sup>1</sup>cana /
Sva-deffe pujyat<sup>1</sup> r<sup>1</sup>jñaā sarvatra vidu-o hi s<sup>1</sup> //*

Vidvatva, = vidu-aā bh<sup>1</sup>vaā= vidvatt<sup>1</sup> (= learnedness, scholarship). NĀpatva, = nĀpsyā karma=nĀpat<sup>1</sup> (= kingship). Ubhe kad<sup>1</sup>pi tulye=tulan<sup>1</sup>ye (=comparable) naiva (=never) bhavataā / Ki, k<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>am? R<sup>1</sup>jñaā pujyat<sup>1</sup> =pujyasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaā=pujyatvam (=respectability) svad-deffe eva bhavati / R<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> tu svasya r<sup>1</sup>jye eva pujyate / Kin-tu vidu-aā pujyat<sup>1</sup> tu sarvatra eva bhavati / Vidv<sup>1</sup>n sarvatra eva p<sup>0</sup>jyate /

-imanic (=imanic) - By applying the taddhita termination imanic abstract nouns are derived from the nouns and adjectives like, pĀthu, mĀdu, mahat, pa-u, tanu, laghu, bahu, s<sup>1</sup>dhu, etc.. When this termination is suffixed, the initial vowel changes to its corresponding semivowel when warranted, and the final vowel with the final consonant is elided. For instance: pĀthu+imanic >pĀthu+ iman> prath+iman =prathiman =extensiveness. laghu+ imanic > laghu +iman>lagh+iman=laghiman=smallness. mahat+imanic >mahat> mah+iman=mahiman (=greatness).

-yañ (=ya) - This taddhita termination is suffixed to the nouns like n̄la, ॥ukla, etc., denoting color, and the qualitative nouns, like dĀ<sup>2</sup>ha, kĀ<sup>2</sup>la, vakra, ॥ukra, etc., to derive abstract nouns from them. When the termination is applied, the initial vowel of the noun concerned undergoes the vĀddhi, and the final vowel is elided. And, the resultant

LESSON 20 (Vi, ॥aā P<sup>1</sup>-haā)

P<sup>1</sup>āini has set the system of the 1gama (addition) and 1deffa (replacement) and with a view to explain logically the word forms as they were actually used in the Sanskrit language spoken in his times. He has analyzed the language as it actually was spoken then. He has not set up a new language. Patañjali, the author of the Great Commentary (Mah<sup>1</sup>-bh<sup>1</sup>-ya) on the A-1dhy<sup>1</sup>y of P<sup>1</sup>āini has specifically mentioned that one of five objectives, rather benefits, of composing this work of P<sup>1</sup>āini was to master the Sanskrit language easily. And, those who grasp the system of the P<sup>1</sup>āinian Grammar can read, and understand thoroughly, any of the innumerable works in Sanskrit. It for this reason that we are giving here the information about the P<sup>1</sup>āinian terminology in these lessons, to enable the interested student of Sanskrit to master it, and equip himself thoroughly, with a provision that those not interested in it may skip over it.

Now, we continue here the topic of the Past Perfect (Li-) verbal forms. The 3rd Per. Sing. forms are mostly found to be used in Sanskrit literature. And, the Past Perfect forms of the verbal roots of the Tenth Class more popular; they are the ones in which the adjunct am is added to the verbal root, and then the Past Perfect forms of the roots bhØ, kĀ, or as are suffixed to it. Let us look at the three types of the P.P. forms of a few verbal roots:

»k- (1 . .)= 'to see, observe'
Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu. { »k- <sup>1</sup> mbabhØva	»k- <sup>1</sup> mbabhØvatuā	»k- <sup>1</sup> mbabhvua
(3 rd .Per. { »k- <sup>1</sup> ncakre	»k- <sup>1</sup> ncakr <sup>1</sup> te	»k- <sup>1</sup> ncakrire
Sing.) { »k- <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> sa	»k- <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> satuā	»k- <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> suā

cak<sup>1</sup>s (2 P.)= ' to shine, look bright'
Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu. { cak <sup>1</sup> mbabhØva	cak <sup>1</sup> mbabhØvatuā	cak <sup>1</sup> mbabhvua
(3 rd .Per. { cak <sup>1</sup> ncakre	cak <sup>1</sup> ncakr <sup>1</sup> te	cak <sup>1</sup> ncakrire
Sing.) { cak <sup>1</sup> s <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> sa	cak <sup>1</sup> s <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> satuā	cak <sup>1</sup> s <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> suā

ga<sup>a</sup> (10 U.) = 'to count. Calculate, consider'

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu.	{ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> mbabh <sup>0</sup> va	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> mbabh <sup>0</sup> vatuā	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> mbabh <sup>0</sup> vuā
(P. 3 rd )	{ ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> cak <sup>1</sup> ra	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> ñcakratuā	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> ñcakruā
Per.	{ ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> sa	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> satuā	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> suā

Sing.	{ ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> mbabh <sup>0</sup> ve	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> mbabh <sup>0</sup> v <sup>1</sup> te	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> mbabh <sup>0</sup> vire
(.. 3 rd )	{ ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> ñcakre	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> ñcakr <sup>1</sup> te	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> ñcakrire
Per.	{ ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> sa	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> satuā	ga <sup>a</sup> ay <sup>1</sup> m <sup>1</sup> suā

Now read aloud the following verses and their explanations, trying to understand the meanings:

*Sa bibhre-a pracuk-oda dantair o-<sup>1</sup>ha, cakh<sup>1</sup>da ca /
Pragop<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ñcak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup> "॥u yatnena paritaā puram //*

Sa r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>aā bibhre-a cac<sup>1</sup>la (=started) / Sa lo-<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>n (=the earthen clods. Etc.) pracuk-oda cōr<sup>a</sup>itav<sup>1</sup>n (=powdered, reduced to dust) / Sa dantaiā o-<sup>1</sup>ha, cakh<sup>1</sup>da da-<sup>1</sup>av<sup>1</sup>n (=chewed, masticated) /

Sa pur<sup>1</sup>, laj k<sup>1</sup>, paritaā sarvataā (=on all sides) yatnena pray<sup>1</sup>sena (=with due efforts) ॥u ॥ghra, (=quickly, forthwith) pragop<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ñcak<sup>1</sup>ra rak-<sup>1</sup>itav<sup>1</sup>n (=duly protected) ca /

*Laluā kha<sup>o</sup>g<sup>1</sup>n mam<sup>1</sup>rju॥ ca mam<sup>1</sup>ju॥ ca para॥vadh<sup>1</sup>n /
Alañcakre sam<sup>1</sup>lebhe vavase bubhuje pape //*

Bha-<sup>1</sup>ā (=soldiers) kha<sup>o</sup>g<sup>1</sup>n as<sup>1</sup>n (=swords) laluā gāhitavantaā (=held, brandished), mam<sup>1</sup>rjuā vi<sup>1</sup>ddh<sup>1</sup>n kātavantaā (=polished), para॥vadh<sup>1</sup>n para॥n<sup>1</sup>m adho-bh<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>n (=the lower end portions of the battle-axes) mam<sup>1</sup>juā <sup>1</sup>odhitavantaā (=sharpened)/ alañcakre alaj kāt<sup>1</sup>ā bah<sup>0</sup>bhuā (=adorned themselves), sam<sup>1</sup>lebhe sutar<sup>1</sup>, anulepana, kātavantaā (=anointed themselves), vavase vastrair<sup>1</sup>cch<sup>1</sup>dit<sup>1</sup>ā babh<sup>0</sup>vuā (=covered themselves with clothes) bubhuje bhuktavantaā (=fed themselves), papau p<sup>1</sup>tavantaā (=drank) /

Verbal Forms: bibhre-a=bhō- (5 P. 'to start' - bhō-<sup>a</sup>oti) P.P. 3rd. Per, Sing. Pra-cuk-oda=pra+k-ud (7 U. 'to pound, powder' -

kallolita (=having the waves, surging with joy. mōrchita=(one ) who has swooned. pratibimbita= (that)which is reflected. d<sup>1</sup>k-ita = (one) who has been initiated.

-ini (= in) } These taddhita termination are suffixed to a-
--han (=ika) } k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns to derive the matvarth<sup>ya</sup> nouns from them. The final vowel of the noun is elided on the application of the termination. For instance, dan<sup>a</sup>o+a+ini > da<sup>a</sup>o + in = da<sup>a</sup>o in (=one) having a stick, or staff. dhana+ -hak > dhan+ika= dhanika (=one) having, money, wealth.

-matup (mat/vat) – When it is sought to be derive a noun from the one denoting a thing, this taddhita termination is suffixed to express that one has that particular thing. For instance: go+matup > go+mat = gomat (=one) who has cows.

When this termination is suffixed to a noun having as its penultimate consonant ma or any of the four first ones of any of the five classes, the termination changes to vatup (=vat) For instance: vidy<sup>1</sup>+matup > vidy<sup>1</sup>+mat> vidy<sup>1</sup>+vat = vidy<sup>1</sup>vat (=one) possessing learning, a learned person. ya॥as+matup > ya॥as+mat > ya॥as+vat = ya॥asvat (=one) having fame, famous. dhana+matup > dhana+mat > dhana+vat = dhanavat (=one) having money, rich. Similarly, r<sup>1</sup>opavat =handsome, rasavat = juicy, tasty, delicious. vidutvat = ta<sup>a</sup>itvat = having lightning. -

Recite the following verses aloud along with their explanations, and memorize them to keep in mind the use of these matvarth<sup>ya</sup> terminations:

*Bhōma-nind<sup>1</sup>-pra॥a, s<sup>1</sup>su nitya-yoge 'ti॥yane /
Sambandhe 'sti-vivak-<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, bhavanti matup-<sup>1</sup>dayaā //*

Bhōm<sup>1</sup>rthe pu-kal<sup>1</sup>rthe (=in the sense of 'very much, excessive') vivak-ite (=when it is sought to be conveyed) matu-<sup>1</sup>dayaā (= -matup, etc.) pratyay<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti (=are applied)/ Nind<sup>1</sup>rthe (=the sense of censure) vivak-ite matu-<sup>1</sup>dayaā pratyay<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti / Nitya-yoge (=constant connection, concomitance) vivak-ite matu-<sup>1</sup>dayaā pratyay<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti / Ati॥yane (=excessiveness) vivak-ite matu-<sup>1</sup>dayaā pratyay<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti / Sambandhe (=relation) vivak-ite matu-<sup>1</sup>dayaā pratyay<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti / Asti (=existence, is possessed of, is having) vivak-ite matu-<sup>1</sup>dayaā pratyay<sup>1</sup>ā bhavanti /

d<sup>1</sup>parathi = son of Da<sup>1</sup>taratha. i.e., R<sup>1</sup>ma. Dak-a+iñ > d<sup>1</sup>k-a+i = dak-ya apatya, pum<sup>1</sup>n = d<sup>1</sup>k-i = son of Dak-a, i.e., P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini.

-<sup>o</sup>hak (=ay)- This termination is suffixed to the feminine nouns derived by the application of the str-pratyaya (like -?). to derive the apaty<sup>1</sup>rtha nouns from them. When it is suffixed, the first vowel in them it replaced by its vāddhi equivalent, and the final vowel is elided and the adjunct a is added in the final position. For instance, vinat<sup>1</sup> + -<sup>o</sup>hak > vainat+ey+a=vainateya=vinat<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā apatya, pum<sup>1</sup>n = son of Vinat<sup>1</sup>, i.e. Garu<sup>o</sup>a, eagle. Bhagin<sup>1</sup>+-<sup>o</sup>hak > bh<sup>1</sup>gin+ey+a = bh<sup>1</sup>gineya= bhaginiy<sup>1</sup>ā apatya, pum<sup>1</sup>n =son of sister, i.e., nephew.

-Yat (=ya) - This taddhita termination is suffixed to the nouns, like r<sup>1</sup>jan, vasura, to derive the to derive the apaty<sup>1</sup>rtha nouns from them. When it is suffixed, the first vowel in them it replaced by its vāddhi equivalent, and the final vowel is elided. For instance, r<sup>1</sup>jan+yat > r<sup>1</sup>jan+ya= r<sup>1</sup>janya= r<sup>1</sup>jñaā apatya, pum<sup>1</sup>n =son of a king, or one belonging to the royal family, a feudal king, a person of warrior class. vasura+yat > ~v<sup>1</sup>sur+ya = ~v<sup>1</sup>surya= ~vasurasya apatya, pum<sup>1</sup>n =son of the father-in-law, i.e., wife's brother.

Matvarth<sup>1</sup>ya: To express the sense of 'belonging to, possessing, having', these terminations are suffixed. P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini has listed four such terminations, viz., itac*, ini, -han and *matup, which are all called matvarth<sup>1</sup>ya.

-itac (=ita) – By suffixing the taddhita terminaton 'itac', matvarth<sup>1</sup>ya noun is derived from the nouns, like t<sup>1</sup>rak<sup>1</sup>, pu-pa, mañjar<sup>1</sup>, sōtra, mōtra, prac<sup>1</sup>ra, vic<sup>1</sup>ra, ku<sup>o</sup>mala, ka<sup>a</sup>-aka, etc.. When the termination is applied, the last vowel of the noun is elided. For instance: t<sup>1</sup>rak<sup>1</sup>+ita > t<sup>1</sup>rak+ita = t<sup>1</sup>rakita= (the sky) full of the stars. Similarly, pu-pita= (a tree or plant or a creeper) having the flowers. sōtrita= (a literary work) comprising the aphorisms. prac<sup>1</sup>rita= (an ideology, or sermon) which has been propagated. vic<sup>1</sup>rita= (a philosophical concept) that is thought about. ka<sup>a</sup>-kita= (a plant) having the thorns. rom<sup>1</sup>ñcita= (a body) with hair standing on end, thrilled. pallavita=(a tree or plant) having the leaves. kha<sup>a</sup>-ita=(something) that is broken. nindita= (that) which is censured. bubhuk-ita= k-dhita =(one) who is hungry. pip<sup>1</sup>sita= (one) who is thirsty. Similarly, sukhita, duākhita, utka<sup>a</sup>-hita, *k-u<sup>a</sup>atti/k-unte) P. P. 3<sup>d</sup> Per Sing. cakh<sup>1</sup>da=kh<sup>1</sup>d (1 P. 'to eat, masticate' – kh<sup>1</sup>dati) P. P.3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. Pra-gop<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, cak<sup>1</sup>ra = pra+ gup(1 P. 'to protect' – pragop<sup>1</sup>yati) P.P.3<sup>d</sup>. Per.Sing. laluā = lō(9 U. 'to brandish' – lōn<sup>1</sup>ti-lun<sup>1</sup>te) P.P.3<sup>d</sup> Per.Sing. mamājuā/mam<sup>1</sup>rjuā =māj (2 P. 'to polish' – m<sup>1</sup>r-i) P.P.3<sup>d</sup>. Per. Sing. alañcakre = ala, + KĀ(8 U. 'to adorn' – alaj karoti-alaj kurute) P.P. Pass. 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. sam<sup>1</sup>lebhe = sam + <sup>1</sup> + labh (2 , 'to anoint' – sam<sup>1</sup>labhate) P.P.Pass. 3<sup>d</sup>. Per. Sing. vavase =(2 , 'to cover, clothe' - vase) P.P. Pass. 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. bubhuje=bhuj (7 U. 'to eat' -bhunakti-bhuj kte) P.P.Pass. 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. pape = p<sup>1</sup> (1 P. 'to drink' – pibati) P.P. Pass. 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing.*

In the second half of the second verse, we find the Past Perfect forms in the Passive Voice, too. These two verses have been quoted from the famous classical Sanskrit epic Bha--i-k<sup>1</sup>vyam. Such forms have been deliberately used by the poets of the scholarly Sanskrit epics like the Kir<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>rjun<sup>1</sup>yam of Bh<sup>1</sup>ravi, the ~i<sup>1</sup>lup<sup>1</sup>lavadham of M<sup>1</sup>gha, and the Nai-adh<sup>1</sup>ycaritam of ~rihar-a, to exhibit their profound grammatical knowledge. Such an exhibition of learning entertains the experts of Sanskrit grammar. We can also enjoy similarly if we dive deeper into the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>inian system of Sanskrit grammar. This is akin to the knower of classical Indian music who alone can properly enjoy and appreciate the elaborately prsented musical craftsmanship and skill of maestros like Pt. Ravishankar, Ustad Allauddinkhan, Pt. Jashraj, Pt. Hariprasad Chaurasiya, Vishva Mohan Bhatt, Zakr Hussein, and others.

Now, read aloud the following sentences and their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

P<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>mbara, (=the yellow silken lower garment) v<sup>1</sup>k-ya (=having observed) samudraå vi-<sup>a</sup>u, sva-kany<sup>1</sup>, dadau (=gave in marriage), ~la<sup>1</sup> kara, carm<sup>1</sup>mbara, (=having the tiger skin garment) dÅ-<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup> sa ca vi-<sup>a</sup>, dadau /Bhagavati vasundhare ! dehi (=give) me vivaram (=a cavern) / Raviå sahasra-gu<sup>a</sup>am ustra-<sup>1</sup>u, (=to give off, return) rasam<sup>1</sup>datte (=accepts, takes up) / Kleñlaå phalena hi punar navat<sup>1</sup>, (=renovation, freshness) vidhatte (=takes over, bears) / M0<sup>o</sup>ha ! jah<sup>1</sup>hi dhan<sup>1</sup>gama-tÅ-<sup>a</sup>1m (=the yearning for getting wealth) / Buddhi-yukto iha sukÅtadu-kÅte ubhe jah<sup>1</sup>ti (=leaves off, gets free from) / Sarva, ka-<sup>1</sup> (=the superior to all)

*Dadatu dadatu g<sup>1</sup>lr g<sup>1</sup>limanto bhavantaā /
 Vayam api tad-abh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>d g<sup>1</sup>li-d<sup>1</sup>ne 'samarth<sup>1</sup>ā //
 (He p<sup>1</sup>-hak<sup>1</sup>ā ! Yadi p<sup>1</sup>a-in»ya-paddhaty<sup>1</sup> labda-viʃle-ama, pa-hitv<sup>1</sup> bhavat<sup>1</sup>, manasi nirvedaā sañj<sup>1</sup>yate, tena k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>2</sup>ena
 bhavanto yadi g<sup>1</sup>l<sub>1</sub>, d<sup>1</sup>tum icchatha, tad<sup>1</sup> bhavanto g<sup>1</sup>limananto
 g<sup>1</sup>li-yulk<sup>1</sup>ā santo 'vaʃyam asmabhyā, g<sup>1</sup>li-d<sup>1</sup>na, kurvantu / Vaya, tu asm<sup>1</sup>ka, sak<sup>1</sup>le g<sup>1</sup>ln<sup>1</sup>m abh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>t tasmin karma<sup>2</sup>i a-
 samarth<sup>1</sup>ā / Kevala, jñ<sup>1</sup>na-d<sup>1</sup>ne eva samarth<sup>1</sup>ā bhav<sup>1</sup>ma iti
 bh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>rthaā /*

Vocabulary: dadatu=do give. G<sup>1</sup>li = abuse, abusive term. G<sup>1</sup>limantaā=ones who possess (the stock of) abusive terms. Tad-abh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>t=tasya abh<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>t= g<sup>1</sup>ly-abh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>t =due to lack of that.

Verbal forms: dadatu=d<sup>1</sup> (3 U. 'to give, dad<sup>1</sup>ti-datte) P.P. 3rd Per. Pl.

The verbal roots of the juhoty-1di* class are reduplicated when the terminations of the any Tenses and Moods apply to them. The process of reduplication here is the same as has been shown in the case of the Past Perfect forms of the verbal roots of all classes. A few selected 3rd Per. Sing. forms of a few verbal roots of the Juhoty<sup>1</sup>di class are given below, in the serial order of the Lak<sup>1</sup>ras, i.e., la-, li-, lu-, lāt, lo-, la<sub>j</sub>, li<sub>j</sub>, lu<sub>j</sub>, lā<sub>j</sub>: Now, from this list of every verbal root, select the forms of the same lak<sup>1</sup>ra, and make nine lak<sup>1</sup>ra-wise lists in each of them , from all these verbal roots, and mention the meaning of each of the forms along with them. For instance: (La-) dad<sup>1</sup>ti-datte= gives. dad<sup>1</sup>ti-dhatte= bears, possesses. bibheti = fears. jah<sup>1</sup>ti= deserts, leaves.

D<sup>1</sup> (3 U. 'to give, bestow') dad<sup>1</sup>ti, datte / dadau, dade / d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>, d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> / d<sup>1</sup>syati d<sup>1</sup>syate / dad<sup>1</sup>tu, datt<sup>1</sup>m / adadh<sup>1</sup>t, adatta / dady<sup>1</sup>t, dad<sup>1</sup>ta / ad<sup>1</sup>t, adita / ad<sup>1</sup>syat, ad<sup>1</sup>syata /

Dh<sup>1</sup> (3 U. 'to bear, possess') dad<sup>1</sup>ti, dhatte / dadhou, dadhe / dh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>, dh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> / dh<sup>1</sup>syati dh<sup>1</sup>syate / dad<sup>1</sup>tu, dhatt<sup>1</sup>m / adadh<sup>1</sup>t, adhatta / adhy<sup>1</sup>t, adh<sup>1</sup>ta / adh<sup>1</sup>ti, adhita / adh<sup>1</sup>syat, adh<sup>1</sup>syata /

Bh<sup>1</sup> (3 P. 'to fear, be afraid') bibheti / bibhav<sup>1</sup>ñcak<sup>1</sup>ra / bhet<sup>1</sup> / bhe-yati / bibhetu, bihit<sup>1</sup>t, bibh<sup>1</sup>t / abibhet / bibhiy<sup>1</sup>t, bibh<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t / abhai-<sup>1</sup>t / abhe-yat /

H<sup>1</sup> (3 P. 'to leave, desert) jah<sup>1</sup>ti / jahau / h<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> / h<sup>1</sup>syati / jah<sup>1</sup>tu, jahit<sup>1</sup>t, jah<sup>1</sup>t / ajah<sup>1</sup>t / jahy<sup>1</sup>t / ah<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>t / ah<sup>1</sup>syat /

pada are suffixed to the base of the verbal forms the Sanskrit roots in Future Tense. For instance, gam(1.P) – gam+i+-ya+at = gami-yat (=He) will be going). mud (1st) mud > mod+i+-ya+m<sup>1</sup>na = modi-yam<sup>1</sup>na > modi-yam<sup>1</sup>a (=He) will be delighted.

In the previous chapter we have casually referred to the Taddhita usages. Now, we shall treat them in detail. We know that from a verbal root various Participles are derived to express the continuing action, the relation between to action, to motive or purpose, and while some of them are declined in Cases and Numbers like nouns or adjectives, others remain Indeclinable. Similarly, fresh nouns with added sense are derived from nouns, pronouns and adjectives. The termination helps to derive such forms is called the Taddita-pratyaya. *P<sup>1</sup>a*ni has treated all such terminations in detail in the section called the Taddita-adhik<sup>1</sup>ra in his A-<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>y. These terminations are treated there, and here also, in accordance with the sense they express in addition to the original of the nouns, etc.

Apaty<sup>1</sup>rtha*: 'Apatya' means offspring or child, may be male (apatya, pum<sup>1</sup>n) or feminine (apatya, str<sup>1</sup>). The word 'gotra' (= family of three generations) is also used in connection with these terminations, and hence the sense denoted is expressed as gotr<sup>1</sup>patya, pum<sup>1</sup>n for a male offspring, and as gotr<sup>1</sup>patya, str<sup>1</sup> for the female offspring. *P<sup>1</sup>a*ni has listed four Taddita terminations, viz., a<sup>a</sup>, iñ, hak and yat as being apaty<sup>1</sup>ty<sup>1</sup>rthaka, i.e., expressing the sense of an offspring.

-a<sup>a</sup>*(=a) – This taddhita termination is suffixed to the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ta nouns and adjectives, like aʃvapati, ʃatapati, dhanapati, ga<sup>a</sup>pati, r<sup>1</sup>-rapati, g<sup>1</sup>hapati, paʃupati, dh<sup>1</sup>nyapati, sabh<sup>1</sup>pati, pr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>pati, k<sup>1</sup>-etrapati, etc., to derive the apaty<sup>1</sup>rtha nouns from them. When it is suffixed, the first vowel in them is replaced by its vAddhi equivalent, and the final vowel is elided. For instance, aʃvapati+a<sup>a</sup> > ʃvapat+a<sup>a</sup> = ʃvapata = aʃvapateā apaty<sup>1</sup>, pum<sup>1</sup>n = son of aʃvapati.

-iñ*(=i) – This taddhita termination is suffixed to the a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns, like daʃaratha, to derive the to derive the apaty<sup>1</sup>rtha nouns from them. When it is suffixed, the first vowel in them is replaced by its vAddhi equivalent, and the final vowel is elided. For instance, daʃaratha+iñ > d<sup>1</sup>ʃarath+i = daʃarathasya apaty<sup>1</sup>, puman =

In these verses, the verbs, like 'nandit'raā, pra-'raā, to-'gant'ra, samet', a, hit'smahe and labdh'he, are the verbal forms in the Second Future Tense (LĀ). They indicate the sense of near future action. Such verbal forms are found to have been used sometimes in the classical Sanskrit literature.

Let us see the terminations used in the formation of such verbal forms in the Second Future Tense (LĀ):

Parasmai-pada			tmane-pada
Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr.Pu. (3 rd Per.)	t<sup>1</sup>	t<sup>1</sup>rau	t<sup>1</sup>raā	t<sup>1</sup>	t<sup>1</sup>rau	t<sup>1</sup>raā
M.Pu. (2 nd Per.)	t<sup>1</sup>si	t<sup>1</sup>sthaā	t<sup>1</sup>stha	t<sup>1</sup>se	t<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>the	t<sup>1</sup>dhve
U.Pu. (1 st Per.)	t<sup>1</sup>smi	t<sup>1</sup>svaaā	t<sup>1</sup>smaā	t<sup>1</sup>he	t<sup>1</sup>svahe	t<sup>1</sup>smahe

Now, let us see the conjugational forms of the verbal root d<sup>1</sup> (3 P. 'to give, donate', dad<sup>1</sup>ti - datte) the LĀ :

Parasmai-pada			tmane-pada
Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Pr. Pu.	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>rau	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>raā	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>rau	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>raā
M. Pu.	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>si	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>sthaā	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>stha	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>se	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>the	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>dhve
U. Pu.	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>smi	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>svaaā	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>smaā	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>he	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>svahe	d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>smahe

*d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>=d<sup>1</sup>syati=d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>=d<sup>1</sup>syate = he will give, donate / d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>si=d<sup>1</sup>syasi = d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>se = d<sup>1</sup>syase = you will give, donate. It should be noted that both in the Parasmai-pada and the tmane-pada, the terminations of the Pr. Pu. (i.e., the 3rd Per.) are similar, and as a result the verbal forms in them are also similar. The forms in the rest of the persons and Numbers differ. Moreover, the forms of the Ā-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun d<sup>1</sup>tā (M. 'giver, donor') also seem to be similar to the verbal forms of the root d<sup>1</sup> (3 U.) in the Pr. Pu. Sing. Du. and Plural.*

The terminations of Lu- or LĀ- are found to have been applied to the verbal forms in the Future Tense. But the Future Participles are also found to be used in Sanskrit sometimes. In these forms the terminations 'at' in the Parasmai-pada and the 'm<sup>1</sup>na' in the tmane-

The verbal roots of the Rudh<sup>1</sup>di, i.e., the 7th class, take the adjunct ṇam (=na), and since this adjunct ends in m, the surviving na is placed after the first vowel of the root, i.e., in the medial position, before the terminations of the Tenses and Moods apply to it. For instance: rudh+ṇam > ru+na+dh / chid+ṇam > chi+na+d / Bhañj+ṇam > bha+na+ñj / bhuj+ṇam > bhu+na+j /

Now, from this list of every verbal root, select the forms of the same lak<sup>1</sup>ra, and make nine lak<sup>1</sup>ra-wise lists in each of them , from all these verbal roots, and mention the meaning of each of the forms along with them. For instance: (La-) dad<sup>1</sup>ti-datte= gives. dadh<sup>1</sup>ti-dhatte= bears, possesses. bibheti = fears. jah<sup>1</sup>ti= deserts, leaves.

A few selected 3rd Per. Sing. forms of a few verbal roots of the Rudh<sup>1</sup>di class are given below, in the serial order of the Lak<sup>1</sup>ras, i.e., la-, li-, lu-, lāt, lo-, la<sub>i</sub>, li<sub>i</sub>, lu<sub>i</sub>, lā<sub>i</sub>:

Rudh (7 U. 'to obstruct, stop') ru<sup>a</sup>addhi, rundhe / rurudha, rurudhe / roddh<sup>1</sup>, roddh<sup>1</sup> / rotsyati, rotsyate / ru<sup>a</sup>addhu, runddh<sup>1</sup>m / aru<sup>a</sup>at – aru<sup>a</sup>ad, arundha / rundhy<sup>1</sup>t, rundh<sup>1</sup>ta / arudhat, arauts<sup>1</sup>t – arundha / arautsyat, arautsyata /

Chid (7 U. 'to cut, cut asunder') chinatti, chinte / chicheda, chichide / chett<sup>1</sup>, chett<sup>1</sup> / chetsyati, chetsyate / chinattu, chint<sup>1</sup>m /

acchinat, acchinta / chindy<sup>1</sup>t, chindeta / acchidat, achhais<sup>1</sup>t - acchitta / acchetsyat, acchetsyata /

Bhañj (7 U. 'to break, break to pieces') bhanakti / babhañja / bhaj kt<sup>1</sup> / bhaj k<sup>1</sup>yati / bhanaktu – bhaj kt<sup>1</sup>t / abhanak / bhañjy<sup>1</sup>t / abh<sup>1</sup>j k<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t / abhaj k<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t /

Bhuj (7 U. 'to eat, experience, feel') bhunakti, bhu<sub>i</sub> k<sub>t</sub>e / bubhoja, bubhuje / bhokt<sup>1</sup>, bhokt<sup>1</sup> / bhok yati, bhok yate / bhunaktu - bhu<sub>i</sub> k<sub>t</sub>1t, bhu<sub>i</sub> k<sub>t</sub>1m / abhunak, abhu<sub>i</sub> k<sub>t</sub>a / bhuñjy<sup>1</sup>t, bhuñjy<sup>1</sup>ta / abh<sup>1</sup>uk<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t, abhukta / abhok yat, abhok yata /

Now, from this list of every verbal root, select the forms of the same lak<sup>1</sup>ra, and make nine lak<sup>1</sup>ra-wise lists in each of them , from all these verbal roots, and mention the meaning of each of the forms along with them. For instance: (La-) ru<sup>a</sup>addhi, runddh<sup>1</sup>he = stops. chinatti, chinte = cuts. Bhanakti=breaks. Bhunakti=eats.

Now, read aloud the following sentences:

Candram<sup>1</sup> kasya na priyaā? Ki, kad<sup>1</sup>pi r<sup>1</sup>jate rajan<sup>1</sup>
candramasa, vin<sup>1</sup>? Candramasaiva r<sup>1</sup>trau prak<sup>1</sup>॥aā / Candra-
mase jan<sup>1</sup>ā pra<sup>a</sup>amanti caturthy<sup>1</sup>, r<sup>1</sup>trau / Candramasaā
sravaty amāta, paur<sup>a</sup>im<sup>1</sup>sy<sup>1</sup>m iti manyante jan<sup>1</sup>ā / Candra- masaā prak<sup>1</sup>॥aā sarve<sup>-1</sup>m upak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>yaiva, yath<sup>1</sup> sōryasya / can-
dramasi dālyate hari<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>raā kalai; kas tena ca ॥a<sup>1</sup>i ka ucyate /
Pōr<sup>a</sup>-candrasya tejas<sup>1</sup> pay<sup>1</sup>, si raupya-drava-rōp<sup>1</sup>ī i pratibh<sup>1</sup>nti
/ Payas<sup>1</sup> saraā vibh<sup>1</sup>ti / sarasi kamal<sup>1</sup>ni vikasanti / Samudrasya
payassu kallol<sup>1</sup>ā samudbhavanti / Tad-dā-v<sup>1</sup> modate manaā /

In the above sentences, the forms of the sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta (i.e., having s in the final position) nouns, viz., candramas (M.), payas (N.), tejas (N.), saras (N.), and manas (N.), are used. The forms of such nouns are given below to enable us to understand their meaning in different Cases and Numbers.

Vocabulary: Candram<sup>1</sup>ā = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i kaā = vidhuā = candraā = 'the Moon' / Candramaā = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i ka = vidho = candra = 'O Moon' / Candramasam = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i kam = vidhum = candram = 'towards the Moon' / Candramas<sup>1</sup> = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i kena = vidhun<sup>1</sup> = candre<sup>a</sup>a = 'by the Moon') / Candramase = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i k<sup>1</sup>ya = vidhune = candr<sup>1</sup>ya = 'to the Moon') / Candramasaā = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i k<sup>1</sup>t = vidhunaā = candr<sup>1</sup>t = 'from the Moon') / Candramasaā = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i kasya = vidhunaā = candrasya = 'of the Moon') / Candramasi = ॥a<sup>1</sup>i ke = vidhuni = candre = 'in the Moon') /

Candramas (M.) = 'the Moon'

Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom. cadram<sup>1</sup>ā	candramasau	candramasaā	{ paraā	payasi	pay<sup>1</sup> , si
Voc. candramaā	candramasau	candramasaā	{ payāā	payasi	pay<sup>1</sup> , si
Acc. candramasam	candramasau	candramasaā	{ payāā	payasi	pay<sup>1</sup> , si
Instr. candramas<sup>1</sup>	candramobhy<sup>1</sup>m	candramobhiā	payas<sup>1</sup>	payobhy<sup>1</sup>m	payobhiā
Dat. candramase	candramobhy<sup>1</sup>m	candramobhyaā	payase	payobhy<sup>1</sup>m	payobhyaā
Abl. candramasaā	candramobhy<sup>1</sup>m	candramobhyaā	payasaā	payobhy<sup>1</sup>m	payobhyaā
Gen. candramasaā	candramasoā	candramas<sup>1</sup>m	payasaā	pasayoā	payas<sup>1</sup>m
Loc. candramasi	candramasoā	candramaāsu	payasi	pasayoā	payaāsu

Payas (N.) = 'water'

The feminine P. Perf. Participle forms in the tmane-pada, like are formed by suffixing the feminine termination <sup>1</sup> to the masculine forms, like bubudh<sup>1</sup>na. e.g. bubudh<sup>1</sup>na + 1 = bubudh<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>. Being <sup>1</sup>-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, they are declined like the noun Ram<sup>1</sup> (F.), etc.

The forms of the P. Perf. Participles, shown above, are generally found to be used in the scholarly classical epics, like the Ki<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>junyam, ~i<sup>1</sup>lup<sup>1</sup>lavadham, Nai-adh<sup>1</sup>yacaritam, and etc. Such forms can be understood from their usage in Sanskrit literature. The same applies to the forms of the nouns like, do-an/dos (=hand), dat (=tooth), ni- (=night), pad (=foot), as<sup>1</sup>j (=blood), m<sup>1</sup>s (=month), hAd (=heart).

Now, read aloud the following verses and their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

nandit<sup>1</sup>ras tv<sup>1</sup>, dā-v<sup>1</sup> pra-<sup>-1</sup>ra<sup>1</sup> 1vayoā ॥ivam /
M<sup>1</sup>taraā saha maithily<sup>1</sup> to-<sup>-1</sup> ca bharataā param //

(He Hanuman ) m<sup>1</sup>taraā tv<sup>1</sup>, dā-v<sup>1</sup> 1nandit<sup>1</sup>raā = 1nandi-
yanti = 1nandit<sup>1</sup>ā bhavi-yanti / Maithily<sup>1</sup> = j<sup>1</sup>naky<sup>1</sup> = s<sup>1</sup>tay<sup>1</sup>, saha = samam, 1vayoā = r<sup>1</sup>ma-lak-ma<sup>a</sup>ayoā, ॥iva, = kaly<sup>1</sup>a, , pra-<sup>-1</sup>raā = pra<sup>1</sup>nayi-yanti = prak-yanti / Bharata॥ ca para, to-<sup>-1</sup>
= santok-yti = santu-o bhavi-yati /

Gant<sup>1</sup>raā param<sup>1</sup>, pr̄ti, paur<sup>1</sup>ā ॥rutv<sup>1</sup> vacas tava /
Jñ<sup>1</sup>tvaitat sammukh<sup>1</sup>na॥ ca samet<sup>1</sup> bharato dhruvam //

Paur<sup>1</sup>ā = n<sup>1</sup>garika-jan<sup>1</sup>ā, tava vacaā = vacana, = v<sup>1</sup>a, , ॥rutv<sup>1</sup>,
param<sup>1</sup>, = utkā-<sup>-1</sup>, , pr̄ti, = prasannat<sup>1</sup>, , gant<sup>1</sup>raā = gami-yanti / Etat = ida, , vĀtt<sup>1</sup>nta, = v<sup>1</sup>rt<sup>1</sup>, , jñ<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup> = viditv<sup>1</sup>, bharataā ca
druta, = ॥ghra, , sammukh<sup>1</sup>naā = abhimukhaā san, dhruva, =
ava<sup>1</sup>ya, = a-sa, ॥aya, , samet<sup>1</sup> = sam-<sup>1</sup>gami॥yati /

Gate tvayi path<sup>1</sup> 'nena vayam apy a, hit<sup>1</sup>smahe /
Labdh<sup>1</sup>he 'ha, ॥ruti, pr<sup>1</sup>pte bhōyo bhavati sammukhe //

Anena path<sup>1</sup> = m<sup>1</sup>rge<sup>a</sup>a, tvayi gate = y<sup>1</sup>te sati = yad<sup>1</sup> tva gato
bhavi-yati tad<sup>1</sup> (= after you have gone), vayam = r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>dayaā, api. a, hit<sup>1</sup>smahe = gami-y<sup>1</sup>maā / Bhōyaā = punar api, tvayi
sammukhe = abhimukhe = yad<sup>1</sup> tvam asm<sup>1</sup>ka, puraā (= before us), pr<sup>1</sup>pte (= reached, arrived), aha, dhāti, = dhairyā, = santo-a, , labdh<sup>1</sup>he = lapsye (= will get) /

LESSON 21
Ekavi, एका P<sup>1</sup>-haा

The P. P. Perf. Parti. forms like bubudhvas, jajñivas, etc., being sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta masculine nouns, are declined like those of vidvas. When these forms are converted into feminine, they become »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta. For instance, jagmivas > jagmu- (by change of s > -) + » = jagmu- / tasthivas + » > tasthu- + » = tasthu- / nin»vas + » > ninyu- + » = ninyu- / ॥u॥r0vas + » = ॥u॥r0- + » = ॥u॥r0- / being »-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta their forms are declined like those of nad. For instance: jagmu-y<sup>1</sup>ा / *tasthu-*m / ninyu॥bhyaा / ninyu-<sup>a</sup> m / *su॥r0-*u / The forms of bubudh<sup>1</sup>na, etc., being a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, are declined like the noun r<sup>1</sup>ma.

Now, let us see the declension of these sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns, jagmivas (M.) and tasthu- (F.) by way of specimens:

jagmivas (M.) = 'one who had gone'

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
1 st . Nom.	jagmiv<sup>1</sup>n	jagmiv<sup>1</sup>, sau	jagmiv<sup>1</sup>, saा
8 th Voc.	jagmivan	jagmiv<sup>1</sup>, sau	jagmiv<sup>1</sup>, saा
2 nd Acc.	jagmiv<sup>1</sup>, sam	jagmiv<sup>1</sup>, sau	jagmu-aा
3 rd Instr.	jagmu- <sup>1</sup>	jagmivadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	jagmivadbhiा
4 th Dat.	jagmu- e	jagmivadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	jagmivadbhyaा
5 th Abl.	jagmu-aा	jagmivadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	jagmivadbhyaা
6 th Gen.	jagmu-aা	jagmu-oा	jagmu- <sup>1</sup> m
7 th Loc.	jagmu-i	jagmu-oा	jagmivatsu

tasthu- (F.) = 'one who was standing'

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
1 st . Nom.	tasthu-	tasthu-yau	tasthu-yaা
8 th Voc.	tasthu-i	tasthu-yau	tasthu-yaা
2 nd Acc.	tasthu- m	tasthu-yau	tasthu-y<sup>1</sup>া
3 rd Instr.	tasthu-y<sup>1</sup>	tasthu-॥bhy<sup>1</sup>m	tasthu-॥bhiা
4 th Dat.	tasthu-yai	tasthu-॥bhy<sup>1</sup>m	tasthu-॥bhyaা
5 th Abl.	tasthu-y<sup>1</sup>া	tasthu-॥bhy<sup>1</sup>m	tasthu-॥bhy<sup>1</sup>া
6 th Gen.	tasthu-y<sup>1</sup>া	tasthu-yoা	tasthu-॥<sup>a</sup>1m
7 th Loc.	tasthu-y<sup>1</sup>m	tasthu-yoा	tasthu-॥u

Manas (N.) = 'mind'

	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom.	{ manā	manas	man<sup>1</sup>, si	tejaā	tejas	tejas<sup>1</sup>, si
Voc.	{ manā	manas	man<sup>1</sup>, si	tejaā	tejas	tejas<sup>1</sup>, si
Acc.	{ manā	manas	man<sup>1</sup>, si	tejaā	tejas	tejas<sup>1</sup>, si

The forms of the other Cases and Numbers of both are similarly declined in accordance with the forms of candramas as given above.

Now, recite aloud the following verses:

Vidv<sup>1</sup>n eva vij<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti vidvaj-jana-pari॥ramam /
Na hi vandhy<sup>1</sup> vij<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti gurv», prasava-vedan<sup>1</sup>m //
Vidu-<sup>1</sup>, vadan<sup>1</sup>d v<sup>1</sup>caা sahas<sup>1</sup> y<sup>1</sup>nti no bahiা /
Y<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>॥ cen na par<sup>1</sup>ñcanti dvirad<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, rad<sup>1</sup> iva //
Satya, damo jñ<sup>1</sup>nam ahi, sat<sup>1</sup> ca
Vidvat-pra<sup>a</sup>1ma, ca su॥plat<sup>1</sup> ca /
Et<sup>1</sup>ni yo dh<sup>1</sup>rayat sa vidv<sup>1</sup>n
Na kevala, yo pa-hati sa vidv<sup>1</sup>n //

Vocabulary: Vidv<sup>1</sup>n=pa<sup>a</sup>ditaা='vidy<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>n=scholar, learned, wise.' Gurv<sup>1</sup>m=ka-hin<sup>1</sup>m=ka~amaym='heavy, difficult, painful.' Vidu-<sup>1</sup>m = pa<sup>a</sup>dit<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m=vidy<sup>1</sup>vat<sup>1</sup>m='of the scholars, of the learned men, of the wise ones.' Y<sup>1</sup>nti=gacchanti='go.' Bahiা='outside.' Ced=‘if at all.’ Par<sup>1</sup>ñcanti=‘go back, return.’ dviradaা=dvau radau yasya saা=gajaা=‘the one having two tusks, elephant.’ Radaা=‘tooth, tusk.’ Ahi, sat<sup>1</sup>=ahi, s<sup>1</sup>=‘non-violence.’

In the above verses some of the forms of the sa-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta word 'vidvas' have been used. All the forms of the word are as follows:

Vidvas (M.)

Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.	Case	Sing.	Du.	Pl.
Nom.	vidv<sup>1</sup>n	vidv<sup>1</sup>, sau	vidv<sup>1</sup>, saা	Dat.	vidu-e	vidvadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	vidvadbhyaা
Voc.	vidv<sup>1</sup>n	vidv<sup>1</sup>, sau	vidv<sup>1</sup>, saা	Abl.	vidu-aা	vidvadbhy<sup>1</sup>m	vidvadbhyaা
Acc.	vidv<sup>1</sup>, sam	vidv<sup>1</sup>, sau	vidu-aা	Gen.	vidu-aা	vidu-oা	vidu-oা
Instr.	vidu- <sup>1</sup>	vidv<sup>1</sup>	vidvadbhiা	Loc.	vidu-i	vidu-oা	vidvatsu

In these forms, those of the Acc. Pl. (vidu-aা), Abl. Sing. (vidu-aা) and Gen. Sing. (vidu-aা), are similar. Their contextual meaning has to be inferred from their use in the sentence concerned. Similar is the case with the similar forms of the Inst. Du., Dat. Du. Abl. Du., and the Gen. Du. as well as Loc. Du. in the declensions of almost all the nouns in Sanskrit. The particular point to be noted is that in the case of the noun vidvas the sound s changes to ् in the Gen. and Loc. Du. and Gen. Pl.

In Sanskrit, sometimes we find the use of Past Perfect Participles also. For instance: Svargam upeyu-ō v̄r̄<sup>1</sup>ā vara<sup>a<sup>1</sup></sup>ya vara-m<sup>1<sup>1</sup></sup>-sahit<sup>1</sup>ā dev<sup>1</sup>i gan<sup>1</sup>ā sam<sup>1</sup>jagmu-»r adr<sup>1</sup>k-uā / Here, upeyu-ā= gat<sup>1</sup>ā = 'that had arrived, reached' / sam<sup>1</sup>jagmu-»ā = gat<sup>1</sup>ā = 'that had arrived, reached' / adr<sup>1</sup>k-uā= apalīyan= saw.

We know that in the Past Perfect Tense (Li- lak<sup>1</sup>ra), the forms having the terminations '-us' in the Parasmai-pada, e.g. bubudhuā, jajñuā, tasthuā, etc., and those having '-ire' in the tmane-pada, e.g., mamire, dadire, remire, etc., are used. In these forms we should note that the base is like bubudh-, jajñ-, tasth-, mam-, dad-, rem-, etc.

When the termination vas in the Parasmai-pada, and <sup>1</sup>na in the tmane-pada, is applied to this Li- 3rd Per. Pl. base of a verbal root, it becomes the P.P. Participle form of the root. And, in the case the root is se- or ve-, the additional i is affixed regularly or optionally, to the Parasmai-pada termination making it ivas. For instance, in the Parasmaipada: *budh - bubudh+vas = bubudhvas / jñ<sup>1</sup> - jig+i+vas = jajñivas / sth<sup>1</sup>- tasth+i+vas = tasthivas / gai - jig+i+vas = jigivas / ji - jig+i+vas = jigivas / ni - nin»+vas = nin»vas / bh» - nin»+vas = nin»vas / bibhay<sup>1</sup>cakĀ+vas = bibhay<sup>1</sup>cakĀvas / nu - nunØ+vas = nunØvas / stu - tu~u+vas = tu~uvas / ru - u~rØ+vas = u~rØvas / bhØ- = bubhØvas / kA - cakĀ+vas = cakĀvas / tA - titr +vas = titrvas / na<sup>1</sup> - ne<sup>1</sup>i+va<sup>1</sup> = ne<sup>1</sup>iva<sup>1</sup> / pac - pec+i+vas = pecivas / Similarly, in the tmane-pada, the termination <sup>1</sup>na is applied to the 3rd Per. Pl. base of the root, we get the P.P. Perfect Participle. For instance: *budh - bubudh+<sup>1</sup>na = bubudh<sup>1</sup>na / m<sup>1</sup> - mam+<sup>1</sup>na = mam<sup>1</sup>na / d<sup>1</sup> - dad+<sup>1</sup>na = dad<sup>1</sup>na / trai - tatr+<sup>1</sup>na = tatr<sup>1</sup>a / ci - cicy+<sup>1</sup>na = cicy<sup>1</sup>na, ciky+<sup>1</sup>na = ciky<sup>1</sup>na / adhi+i - adhi+jag+<sup>1</sup>na = adhijag<sup>1</sup>na / stu - tu~uv+<sup>1</sup>na = tu~uv<sup>1</sup>na / bhA - babhr<sup>1</sup>a = stA - tastar+<sup>1</sup>na = tastar<sup>1</sup>a / ram - rem+<sup>1</sup>na = rem<sup>1</sup>a / In some of the latter forms the n is changed to a as per the rule of coalescence.

Now, Some forms of the very notable mas., fem., and neu. nouns ending in consonants (hal-anta) are given below by way of specimens, so that we can recognize the those of other similar ones:

Noun	Gndr.	N.Sg.	N. Pl.	Vc.Sg.	Ac. Pl.	Abl. Sg.	Gnt. Pl.	Lct.Sg.
pu, s (M.)	pum<sup>1</sup>n	puma	saā puman	pu	saā pu	s<sup>1</sup>m pu	si
gir (F.)	gā	giraā	gā	giraā	giraā	gir<sup>1</sup>m	giri
ahan (N.)	ahaā	ah<sup>1</sup>ni	ahar	ah<sup>1</sup>ni	ahnaā	ahn<sup>1</sup>m	ahnī/ahani
arvan (N.)	arv<sup>1</sup>	arantaā	arvan	arvataā	arvataā	arvart<sup>1</sup>m	arvati
uñanas (P.)	uñan<sup>1</sup>	uñanasaā	uñanan	uñan	uñan	uñan	uñan
viflavav<sup>1</sup>h (P.)	viflavav<sup>1</sup>h	viflavav<sup>1</sup>ā	viflavav<sup>1</sup>-	viflauhaā	viflauhaā	viflauh<sup>1</sup>m	viflauhi
up<sup>1</sup>nah (F.)	{ up<sup>1</sup>nah	up<sup>1</sup>nahaā	{ up<sup>1</sup>nat	up<sup>1</sup>nahaā	up<sup>1</sup>nahaā	up<sup>1</sup>nah<sup>1</sup>m	up<sup>1</sup>nah<sup>1</sup>
	{ up<sup>1</sup>nad		{ up<sup>1</sup>nad
tur<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>h (P.)	tur<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>haā	tur<sup>1</sup>~<sup>1</sup>h	tur<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>haā	tur<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>haā	tur<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>m	tur<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>hi
mahat (P.)	mah<sup>1</sup>n	mah<sup>1</sup>ntaā	mahan	mahataā	mahataā	mahat<sup>1</sup>m	mahati
mahat (N.)	mahat	mah<sup>1</sup>nti	mahat	mah<sup>1</sup>nti	mahataā	mahat<sup>1</sup>m	mahati
mahat (F.)	mahat<sup>1</sup>	mahatyaā	mahati	mahat<sup>1</sup>ā	mahatty<sup>1</sup>ā	mahat<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m	mahaty<sup>1</sup>m
dif<sup>1</sup> (F.)	dik/dig	diflaā	dik/dig	diflaā	diflaā	dif<sup>1</sup>m	dif<sup>1</sup>jī
v<sup>1</sup>c (F.)	v<sup>1</sup>c/v<sup>1</sup>g	v<sup>1</sup>caā	v<sup>1</sup>k/v<sup>1</sup>g	v<sup>1</sup>caā	v<sup>1</sup>caā	v<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>m	v<sup>1</sup>ci

tills the earth with a plough.) / (2) The word denoting time or path, for conveying the sense of success or fulfillment of an action, e.g., M<sup>1</sup>sena vy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>am adh<sup>1</sup>tav<sup>1</sup>n (=He completed the study of Grammar in one month.) / Kro<sup>1</sup>lena pustaka, pa-hitav<sup>1</sup>n (= He read the book by the mile.) / (3) The word denoting the assistant or helper of the Subject, when the indeclinable words samam, saha, s<sup>1</sup>kam, sahitam, s<sup>1</sup>rdham denoting the sense of 'with', 'along with', 'accompanied by' is used in a sentence, e.g., Lak-ama<sup>a</sup>aā s<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> ca r<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup> sama, or saha or s<sup>1</sup>ka, or sahita, or s<sup>1</sup>rdha, vana, jagmatuā (= Lak-man and Sita went to forest with R<sup>1</sup>m.) / Up<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>yaā ch<sup>1</sup>traiā sama, or saha or s<sup>1</sup>ka, or sahita, or s<sup>1</sup>rdha, sn<sup>1</sup>ti (= The assistant teacher takes bath in company of the students.) (4) The words denoting physical handicap or defect, similarity or equality, reason or motive, e.g. ak-<sup>a</sup>1 k<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>aā (=blind in one eye) / ¶iras<sup>1</sup> khav<sup>1</sup>-aā (=bald in head) / kar<sup>a</sup>ena badhiraā (=deaf in the ear) / p<sup>1</sup>dena khañjaā (=lame in one foot) / Duryodhano bh<sup>1</sup>mena tulyaā or samaā or sad<sup>1</sup>¶laā balav<sup>1</sup>n n<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>t (= Duryodhan was not equally strong as Bhim) / Pu<sup>a</sup>yena d<sup>1</sup>-aā hariā (=God was visualized by merit) / Adhyayanena vasati (=he stays for studying) / Dhana, pari¶rame<sup>a</sup>a bhavati (= Wealth is obtained by efforts) / Svare<sup>a</sup> r<sup>1</sup>mabhadram anuharati (=He is akin to Rambhadra in point of voice) / Bilva-pu-pe<sup>a</sup>a rudra, yajate (=He worships ~iva with Bilva leaves).

Caturth<sup>1</sup> vibhakti (Dative Case): A noun, pronoun or an adjective is used in the Dative Case in the following syntactical situations in a sentence: (1) A thing to be given, or anybody with reference to whom something is done, e.g. Daridr<sup>1</sup>ya bhojana, dad<sup>1</sup>ti (=He offers food to a pauper.) / Bhojan<sup>1</sup>ya pa-hati (He studies for food). (2) When the verbal root ruc (1 . = to like) is used as a verb in a sentence, the word denoting the thing one likes, e.g. B<sup>1</sup>lak<sup>1</sup>ya modak<sup>1</sup>ā rocante (=A child likes the sweet balls.) / Rug<sup>a</sup>1ya puru-<sup>1</sup>ya bhojana, na rocate (=A sick person does not like the food.) / (3) When the verbal root dh<sup>1</sup> (10 U. =to owe to) is used in a sentence, the word denoting the lender to whom one owes something, e.g. Govindo r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya lak-a, dh<sup>1</sup>rayati (=Govind owes one lakh rupees to Ram). / (4) The person who is the target of anger, betrayal, envy or malice, when the forms of

abstract noun is a neuter one. For instance: d<sup>1</sup>ha-yañ > d<sup>1</sup>ha+ya > d<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>h+ya = d<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>hya > d<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>hyam (N.) = firmness, strength. madhura-yañ > madhura+ya > m<sup>1</sup>dhur+ya = m<sup>1</sup>dhurya = m<sup>1</sup>dhryam (N.)=sweetness.

Similarly, in the case of the qualitative nouns, e.g. br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>a-yañ > br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>a+ya > br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>+ya = br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>ya = br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>yam (N.)=brahminhood. cora-+-yañ > cor-a+ya > caura+ya =cauryam (N.)=theft. Likewise, from dh<sup>1</sup>orta > dhauryam (N.) =fraud, cheating; nipu<sup>a</sup>a > naipu<sup>a</sup>yam (N.)= skill; alas > lasyam (N.)=idleness.

añ (=a) – In the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta nouns or adjectives, if the initial vowel be short, the taddhita termination -añ is suffixed to them to derive abstract nouns from them. When the termination is applied the initial short vowel in the noun is replaced by its vAddhi equivalent, and the final vowel is dropped. For instance: ¶uci (=pure) + añ > ¶auci+a > ¶auc+a = ¶aucam (N.)= purity. Muni+añ > muni+a=maun+a = maunam (N.)= silence, keeping quiet.

vati (=vat) – To express the sense of similarity of action, or a thing, the taddhita termination is suffixed to a noun or adjective to derive abstract nouns from them. No change occurs in the original word when this termination is applied to them. For instance: br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>a+vati > br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>a+vat > br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>avat = br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>ena tulaya=like a Brahmin. Br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>avat adh<sup>1</sup>te=br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>ena tulayam adh<sup>1</sup>te = veda-p<sup>1</sup>-ha, karoti =studies, or recites, the Veda like a Brahmin. Indrapratha+vati > indrapratha+vat > indraprathavat= as in Indraprastha city (of gods). Indraprathavat pray<sup>1</sup>ge pi durgaā (=a fort) asti / Ramesha+vati > ramesha+vat= rameshavat = like that of Ramesha. Rameshavat hareshasya vastr<sup>1</sup>i vartante /

-kan (=ka) – This taddhita termination is suffixed to a noun or adjective to derive a noun expressing the sense that somebody or some or picture or form is mistaken for something else. For instance: a¶va+kan > a¶va+ka = a¶vaka=one whose form resembles that of a horse. putra+kan > putra+ka = putraka= some tree or bird or animal adopted as one's own son.

Sam<sup>0</sup>h<sup>1</sup>rthaka: The taddhita terminations a<sup>a</sup> (=a) and tal (=t<sup>1</sup>) are suffixed to a noun to derive a noun expressing the sense of a collection or a multitude.

-a<sup>a</sup> (=a) - When this taddhita is applied to a noun denoting a bird or animal, the initial vowel of concerned noun is replaced by its vāddhi equivalent and the final one is elided, and a neuter noun is derived. For instance: baka+a<sup>a</sup> > b<sup>1</sup>k+a=b<sup>1</sup>ka=b<sup>1</sup>kam = a flock of cranes. Similarly, k<sup>1</sup>kam (from k<sup>1</sup>ka) = a flock of crows; m<sup>1</sup>yōram (from mayōra) = a flock of peacocks; k<sup>1</sup>potam (from kapota) = a flock of pigeons; v<sup>1</sup>rkam (from vāka) = a horde of wolves.

tal* (=t<sup>1</sup>) - When this taddhita termination is suffixed to a noun a noun denoting a noun or adjective, a fresh feminine gr<sup>1</sup>ma+tal one is derived expressing its collection or multitude. For instance: gr<sup>1</sup>ma+tal > gr<sup>1</sup>ma+t<sup>1</sup>=gr<sup>1</sup>mat<sup>1</sup> (F.). Similarly, (from bandhu) bandhut<sup>1</sup> = a collection of relatives; (from gaja) gajat<sup>1</sup> = a horde of elephants. (from sah<sup>1</sup>ya) sah<sup>1</sup>yat<sup>1</sup> = a group of helpers.

Sambandh<sup>1</sup>rthaka or Vik<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>rthaka - The terminations a<sup>a</sup> (=a), -hak (=ika), añ(=a), and maya- (=maya) are applied to derive a from a noun fresh noun expressing the sense of 'being related to' or 'belonging to'.

-a<sup>a</sup> (=a) - This taddhita termination is suffixed to derive a neuter noun denoting 'being related to' or 'belonging to'. When this termination is applied, the initial vowel of the concerned noun is replaced by its vāddhi equivalent, and its final vowel is elided. For instance: deva+a<sup>a</sup> > deva+a>daiv+a=daiva=daivam (N.) = devasya idam = the one related to the gods, destiny; gri-ma+a<sup>a</sup> > gri-ma+a>grai-m+a=grai-ma=grai-mam (N.) = the one belonging to the Summer Season; nī+a<sup>a</sup> > nī+a>nai+a=nai+a=naiam (N.) = that which belongs to the night.

Some nouns derived by this termination denote the source, also. For instance, rajat+a<sup>a</sup> > r<sup>1</sup>jata>r<sup>1</sup>jatam (N.) = made of silver; suvar<sup>a</sup>a+a<sup>a</sup> > sauvar<sup>a</sup>am (N.) = made of gold. mayōra+a<sup>a</sup> > m<sup>1</sup>yōraā=mayōrasya vik<sup>1</sup>raā = created from the peacock, or mayōrasya avayavaā=a limb of peacock. Similarly, from marka-a>m<sup>1</sup>rka-aā=marka-asya vik<sup>1</sup>raā = generated from a ape, or marka-asya avayavaā=a limb of an ape.

--hak (=ika) - This taddhita termination is applied to derive the nouns denoting the sense of the source, i.e. 'being created from'. For instance: prakāti+a<sup>a</sup> > pr<sup>1</sup>kāta=prakāteā vik<sup>1</sup>raā = created from the Nature, a source. māttik<sup>1</sup>+a<sup>a</sup> > m<sup>1</sup>rttika = one created from

in the Accusative Case, e.g. Aha, tv<sup>1</sup>, pañy<sup>1</sup>mi (=I see you.) / (2) When the forms of the following verbal roots are used with the prefixes adhi, anu, upa, 1, the word denoting the location of the action denoted by the verbal root is put in the Accusative Case. For instance: adhi+॥ (2 . =to lie down on) in Candr<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>॥ā ॥il<sup>1</sup>pa--am adhi॥i॥ye (=Candrap<sup>1</sup>a reclined down on a stone slab.) / adhi+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 P._=to sit on) in Dāśarathaā gotrabido 'rdh<sup>1</sup>sanam adhitasthau (=Dāśaratha sat on the half seat of the throne of Indra) / adhi+<sup>1</sup>s (2 . = to sit on) in Bhōpatiā si, h<sup>1</sup>sanam adhy<sup>1</sup>ste (= King sits on a lion-seat) / adhi+vas or upa+vas or anu+vas or 1+vas (1 P. = to reside in) in Hariā vaiku<sup>a</sup>-ham adhvasati or upavasati or anuvasati or <sup>1</sup>vasati (=Hari resides in Vaiku<sup>a</sup>-ha)/ But, when the verbal root vas with the prefix upa is used in the sense of 'fasting', the word denoting the location is not put in is Accusative, as in, upa+vas (1 P. = to fast, go without food) in Bharataā vane upacasati (=Bharat keeps a fast in the forest.) / (3) With the indeclinable words, like antar<sup>1</sup> (=in between) and antare<sup>a</sup>a (=about), the related words in the sentence are put in the Accusative Case, as in Antar<sup>1</sup> tv<sup>1</sup>, m<sup>1</sup>, hariā (=God is between you and me)/ R<sup>1</sup>mam antare<sup>a</sup>a na kiñcit j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>mi (=I do not know anything about R<sup>1</sup>m) / (4) When the sense of some action being done, or happens, continuously upto a particular time, or distance, the word denoting the time duration, or the path, is put in the Accusative Case. For instance, Catv<sup>1</sup>ri va-<sup>1</sup>i vedam adhijage (=He studied Veda for four years.) / Kroñla, ku-il<sup>1</sup> nad<sup>1</sup> (=The river is curved upto four miles.) / (5) When there is no Object denoting the path, and the action has to be completed physically, the Object of the action is put in the Accusative Case. For instance, Narapati-hita-kart<sup>1</sup> dve-yat<sup>1</sup>, y<sup>1</sup>ti loke (=A benefactor of a king is subjected to malignance in the world.)/ Vinay<sup>1</sup>d y<sup>1</sup>ti p<sup>1</sup>trat<sup>1</sup>m (=One becomes worthy due to modesty.)/

Tāty<sup>1</sup> vibhakti (Instrumental Case): A noun pronoun or an adjective is used in the Instrumental Case in the following syntactical situations: (1) The word denoting instrument or means in a sentence of Active Voice, e.g., Jñ<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup> 1ntar-cak-u-1 pañyati (=A wise man sees through the intuitive eye.) / Kā-akaā halena bhōmi, kā-atī (= A farmer

LESSON 23
(Trayo-vi, त्रयोऽपि-वाक्)

Now, let us acquaint ourselves with the Cases in detail:

In the Sanskrit language, when a sentence is formulated, there would be different words in various Cases and at least one verb. The subject or the verb of the sentence can remain implied, i.e., not expressed. The usages of the Cases are found to have the peculiarities of their own. They are noticed and collectively chalked down in the chapters known as kṛtakā or the vibhakti-arthā, i.e., syntax.

Pratham<sup>1</sup> vibhakti (Nominative Case): (1) Generally, a noun, pronoun or an adjective is put in the following syntactical situations in a sentence: The Subject of the sentence, e.g., R<sup>1</sup>maā gacchati /; or (2) the sense of a mere word (pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika) to which the terminations have not yet been applied, e.g., r<sup>1</sup>maā (=the word 'r<sup>1</sup>ma') ; or (3) it may indicate the gender (lī ga), e.g., ta-aā(M.) ta-(F.) ta-am(N.); or (4) the Number (vacana), e.g., ekaā (=one), dvau (=two), bahavaā (=three) ; or (5) the size (parim<sup>1</sup>a), e.g., prastho vr̥hiā (=a balloon of rice). (6) In the Passive construction the Nominative Case indicates the Object of the sentence, as for instance in 'R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>2</sup>a r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>2</sup>o hataā' (= R<sup>1</sup>va<sup>2</sup>a was killed by R<sup>1</sup>ma.)

Sambodhana vibhakti (Vocative Case): The forms of words in this Case are quite similar to those of the Nominative Case, except in the Singular, which are very slightly different, e.g. r<sup>1</sup>maā (Nom.) – r<sup>1</sup>ma (Voc. = O! R<sup>1</sup>ma), ram<sup>1</sup> (Nom.) – rame (Voc. = O! Ram<sup>1</sup>!), nad<sup>1</sup> (Nom.)- nadi (Voc. = O! River!), vidv<sup>1</sup>n (Nom.) – vidvan (Voc. = O! Learned Man!). In the declension tables we have therefore, put the forms of Vocative just after those of the Nominative. This Case conveys the sense of addressing, calling, when we accentuate the word in high pitch to draw the attention of the person we address.

Dvity<sup>1</sup> vibhakti (Accusative Case): (1) Generally, a noun, pronoun or an adjective denoting the Object of the sentence is put earth, e.g. an earthen pot. hala+-hak > h<sup>1</sup>likaā=one related with the plough, a farmer. sra+-hak > sairika = one related with the plough, a farmer.

-añ (=a) - This taddhita termination is applied to the u-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta noun to derive a fresh noun denoting a limb. For instance: devad<sup>1</sup>ru+añ > daivad<sup>1</sup>ravam (N.)= devad<sup>1</sup>roā avayavaā =a limb of the pine tree, or pine wood.

-maya- (=maya) - This taddhita termination is applied, in the place of the termination -a<sup>2</sup>, to a noun to derive a fresh noun denoting the source, i.e. made from, and a part of it. For instance: añman+maya- > añmamayam (N.)= añmanaā vik<sup>1</sup>raā= made of stone, or añmanaā avayavaā= a part of stone, stony. Similarly, bhasmayam= made from ashes; suvar<sup>2</sup>amayam= made of gold, golden.

But, the termination -a<sup>2</sup> is applied, instead of maya-, to the things devoting eatable or to be worn. For instance: mudga+a<sup>2</sup> > maudgam(N.)= prepared from moong pulse; k<sup>1</sup>rp<sup>1</sup>sam= made from cotton.

LESSON 22
(Dv<sup>1</sup>vi, द्वाा P<sup>1</sup>-haाा)

Now, recite aloud the following verses along with their explanations:

*Nāp<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, ca nar<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, ca kevala, tulyaya- mōrtit<sup>1</sup> /
dhikya, tu k-am<sup>1</sup>-dhairyam<sup>1</sup>-d<sup>1</sup>na, par<sup>1</sup>kramaा //
S<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ny<sup>1</sup>ा nar<sup>1</sup>ा / Vi॥i-~1॥ ca nāp<sup>1</sup>ा / tayoा mōrtiा b<sup>1</sup>hya-svar०pa, tulyam eva bhavati / tulya-mōrteा bh<sup>1</sup>vaाा tulya-mōrtit<sup>1</sup> (=similarity of form or figure) / Kin-tu s<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>nya-nar<sup>1</sup>pek-ay<sup>1</sup> (= in comparison to a common man) nāpe-u (= in the protectors of people, i.e., kings), k-am<sup>1</sup>, ॥1. d<sup>1</sup>na, par<sup>1</sup>kramaा ity-ete<sup>1</sup>, gu<sup>a</sup>1n<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>dhikya, d<sup>1</sup>lyate / ete gu<sup>a</sup>1s te-u adhik<sup>1</sup>ा bhavanti / Adhikasya bh<sup>1</sup>vaाा 1dhikyam (=preponderance) /*

*Kitav<sup>1</sup> ya, pra॥a, santi ya, pra॥a, santi c<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>1ा /
Ya, pra॥a, santi bandhakaा sa p<sup>1</sup>rtha puru<sup>1</sup>dhamaा//
He p<sup>1</sup>rtha! (O Yudhi-ira!, or Arjuna! or Bh०ma!) Yasya puru-asya kitav<sup>1</sup>ा (= gamblers) = ॥a-h<sup>1</sup>ा(=rogues) = dhōrt<sup>1</sup>ा (=cheaters), pra॥a, s<sup>1</sup>, kurvanti saा puru॥aा, puru-e-u adhamaा bhavati / Yasya
puru-asya, c<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>1ा =bandi-jan<sup>1</sup>ा (=bards, panegyrists) pra॥a, s<sup>1</sup>, kurvanti saा puru॥aा adhamaा bhavati / Yasya puru-asya, bandhakaा=ve<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ा =ga<sup>a</sup>ik<sup>1</sup>ा (=harlots, courtesans, prostitutes), pra॥a, s<sup>1</sup>, kurvanti saा puru॥aा adhamaा bhavati /*

*Alpecchur dhrutim<sup>1</sup>n pr<sup>1</sup>jñā॥ cch<sup>1</sup>yev<sup>1</sup>nugataा sad<sup>1</sup> /
di- o na vikalpeta sa r<sup>1</sup>ja-vasati, vaset // Yo janaा alpecchuा (=having few wants) bhavati saा r<sup>1</sup>ja-vasati, (=in the residence of a king, in royal palace) vaset (=may stay) sevaka-rōpe<sup>a</sup>a (=as a servant) / T<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>॥aा puru-aa r<sup>1</sup>ja-sev<sup>1</sup>, d<sup>1</sup>rgahak<sup>1</sup>la-paryanta, kartu, ॥aknoti (= is able to serve a king for a long time) / bahvecchu, jana, (=the person entertaining many desires), r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> sev<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ा (=from the service) ni-k<sup>1</sup>sayati (=dismisses, lays off) /
Eva, saphala, r<sup>1</sup>ja-sevaka, bhavitum (=for becoming) puru-e<sup>a</sup>a dhātimat<sup>1</sup> (=possessing fortitude), prajñ<sup>1</sup>vat<sup>1</sup> (=very intelligent, shrewd), sad<sup>1</sup> anugatena (=following, going behind), bh<sup>1</sup>vya, = bhavan<sup>1</sup>ya, = bhavita- vyam (=should become). Api ca (=moreover) yad<sup>1</sup> r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> kim-*

The following compounds are rather irregular or exceptional ones: a॥vaा ca va<sup>o</sup>av<sup>1</sup> ca = a॥va-va<sup>o</sup>avau (=horse and mare), ahaा ca r<sup>1</sup>triā ca = ahor<sup>1</sup>trau (= day and night), dyauā ca p<sup>1</sup>thv<sup>1</sup> ca = dy<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>-p<sup>1</sup>Athivyau= divas-p<sup>1</sup>Athivyau= rodasyau = rodas» (= heaven and earth), j<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup> ca patiा ca =jampat» or dampat» or j<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>-pati (=couple). m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> ca pit<sup>1</sup> ca = m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>-pitaraу = m<sup>1</sup>tar-pitaraу (=mother and father), str<sup>1</sup> ca pum<sup>1</sup>n ca str<sup>1</sup>-pu, sau (=woman and man, i.e., man and woman), nakta, ca diva, ca = nakta, -divam (=night and day, i.e., day and night), ahani ca div<sup>1</sup> ca = ahar-divam (=day by day), ahani ca ni॥y<sup>1</sup>, ca = ahar-ni॥am (= by day and night).

he mere coalescence the individual stray words retain their Case terminations, and come together independently. They do not have any mutual relation from the viewpoint of a coherent meaning. This is the difference between the coalesced words and the compounded words.

Dvandva-sam'sa: It is of three types, viz., the itaretara-dvandva, the sam'h'ra-dvandva, and the eka-॥e-a-devandva.

(1) The itaretara-dvandva-sam'sa being an ubhaya-pada-pradh'na one, the word compounded in it possess equal importance, and each of the compounded words bears individual sense. Consequently, the termination at the end of the compound is in dual if only two words combine, and in plural if more than two words combine to form a compound. Thus, the compounds like r'ma-kā-<sup>a</sup>au (= ramaā ca kā-<sup>a</sup>ā ca), str-puru-<sup>a</sup>u (= str ca puru-<sup>a</sup> ca), and similarly guru-॥i-yau, sxt<sup>1</sup>-r'mau, m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>-pitaraū, pit<sup>1</sup>-putraū, kukku-a-mayōryau. nad<sup>1</sup>-nada-palval<sup>1</sup>ni, r'ma-lak-ma<sup>a</sup>a-bharata-॥atrughn<sup>1</sup>ā, are instances of the itaretara-dvandva-sam'sa.

(2) In the sam'h'ra-dvandva-sam'sa, the individual sense of the combining words do not bear independent importance, but their combined total (sam'h'ra) sense becomes prominent. For instance: vadh<sup>0</sup>-varam (= vadhuā ca varaā ca tayoā sam'h'raā = a group of wife and husband), p<sup>1</sup>a-i-p<sup>1</sup>dam (= p<sup>1</sup>a ca p<sup>1</sup>dau ca, te-<sup>1</sup>, sam'h'raā (= a group of two hands and two feet), ahi-nakulam (= ahiā ca nakulaā ca tayoā sam'h'raā = the group of a serpent and a mongoose, implying the sense of natural mutual enmity), 'h'ra-nidr<sup>1</sup>-bhaya-maithunam (= 'h'raā ca nidr<sup>1</sup> ca bhaya, ca maithuna, ca, te-<sup>1</sup>, sam'h'raā = the group of food, sleep, fear and sexual intercourse). Similarly, v<sup>1</sup>k-tvacam (= group of speech and skin), chatrop<sup>1</sup>naham (= a group of umbrella and shoes), v<sup>1</sup>k ca manaā ca v<sup>1</sup>j -manas (= a group of speech and mind), ak-i<sup>2</sup>ca bhruvau ca = ak-i-bhruvam, are also instances of the iteretara-dvandva-sam'sa.

(3) In the eka-॥e-a-dvandva-sam'sa, two or more words of masculine, feminine or neuter gender combine together into a compound, but only one (eka) of them survives (॥e-a), while the rest of them are dropped in the compound. For instance, r'maā ca r'm<sup>1</sup> ca = ramau, m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> ca pit<sup>1</sup> ca =-pitaraū (=parents), ha, saā ca ha, s<sup>1</sup>ca = ha, sau (=swans).

api <sup>1</sup>diʃati = <sup>1</sup>jñ<sup>1</sup>, dad<sup>1</sup>ti (= orders, commands) tad<sup>1</sup>, kury<sup>1</sup>, na v<sup>1</sup> kury<sup>1</sup>m iti vikalpa, (=putting up excuses) = may<sup>1</sup> etat kartum na p<sup>1</sup>ryate (=indicating optional inability that it may or may not be done) na kury<sup>1</sup>t / eva, (=thus) na kad<sup>1</sup>pi vadet / R<sup>1</sup>ja-sevakasya s<sup>1</sup>phaly<sup>1</sup>ya ete gu<sup>a</sup>1ā atra dar॥it<sup>1</sup>ā (=have been shown) /

Upakart<sup>1</sup> 'dhik<sup>1</sup>rasthaā sv<sup>1</sup>par<sup>1</sup>dha, na manyate / Upak<sup>1</sup>ra, dhvaj॥kĀtya sarvan-ev<sup>1</sup>valumpati //

Ya upak<sup>1</sup>ra, karoti sa upak<sup>1</sup> = upakart<sup>1</sup> (=one who obliges, helps, favors), yo 'dhik<sup>1</sup>re ti-<sup>1</sup>hati so 'dhik<sup>1</sup>rasthaā (=one who holds authority, an officer holding superior position), saā upakart<sup>1</sup> puru-aā yadi adhik<sup>1</sup>rasthaā vartate tad<sup>1</sup> savasya apar<sup>1</sup>dha, na manyate / yady api tena apar<sup>1</sup>dhakĀtya, kĀta, bhavet (=although he has committed an offence even then) tath<sup>1</sup> pi sv<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup>nam apar<sup>1</sup>dhina, na manyate, apar<sup>1</sup>dhi-r<sup>0</sup>pe<sup>a</sup> svasya sv<sup>1</sup>ra, na karoti (= does not believe, or accept, himself to have become an offender or guilty). Api ca (= moreover), upak<sup>1</sup>ra, dhvaj॥kĀtya dhvajavad unnata, , sarve-<sup>1</sup>, kĀte sukhena dra-<sup>1</sup>u, sulabha, yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> kĀtv<sup>1</sup> (=having raised up like a flag so as to be noticeable by all), upakĀtasya janasya (= of the one obliged) tasya sarvam eva dhana, , svam<sup>1</sup>na, , ya॥aā (= all of his wealth, self-respect and fame), avalumpati (snatches, robs away).

Artha-n<sup>1</sup>॥a, manas-t<sup>1</sup>pa, gĀhe duʃcarit<sup>1</sup>ni ca / Vañcana, c<sup>1</sup>pam<sup>1</sup>na, ca matim<sup>1</sup>n na prak<sup>1</sup>॥ayet //

Yo janaā matim<sup>1</sup>n=buddhi॥l<sup>1</sup> (=intelligent, wise) asti tena praka-ana, na kartavya = svasya arthasya n<sup>1</sup>॥aā (= loss of money, or one's desired objective) praka-o na kartavyāā (=should not expose, make open) / Tena svasya manas-t<sup>1</sup>paā (=mental worry, pain) na praka-an<sup>1</sup>tam / Tena svasya gĀhe j<sup>1</sup>ta, duʃcarita, du-<sup>1</sup>am<sup>1</sup>cara<sup>a</sup>a, (= misbehaviour, evil act) na prak<sup>1</sup>॥an<sup>1</sup>yam / Tena anyena kĀta, svasya apam<sup>1</sup>na, ca na prak<sup>1</sup>॥yam /

Now, compare the following sentences:

B<sup>1</sup>laā adhyayana, kartum icchati /
B<sup>1</sup>laā adhyayana, cik<sup>1</sup>r-ti /
R<sup>1</sup>maā vana, gantum icchati /
R<sup>1</sup>maā vana, jigami-ati /

In each of these two sets of sentences the predicates in the first ones seek to express a desire by using an infinitive and a verb. In the second ones, the verb itself expresses the desire. Such verbal usage in which the verb itself expresses a desire is known as Desiderative usage. Pāṇini uses the term san for the termination applied for making the verb desiderative, and calls such a desiderative verb sann-anta (= san+anta), i.e. the one to which the termination san has been suffixed. The process of forming such desiderative usages is known as the Sannanta-prakriyā.

In order to convert a verbal root to the Desiderative base we have to work out three procedures: (1) The root is reduplicated; (2) The termination san (= -a) is affixed before applying those of Tenses and Moods, e.g. kA > cikir > cikir + -a = cikir-a, gam > jigam + sa > jigami-a / (3) After the formation of the sannanta base, the terminations of Tenses and Moods can be applied and the intended verbal form may be obtained, for instance, as follows.

kA - cakrātio (=wants to do), acikrāt (=wanted to do), cakrātate (=let him want to do), cakrāt-1, cakrāt-1a (=had wanted to do), cakrāt-1t/cikrāt-1yati (=will want to do), acikrāt-1yat (=would have wanted), cakrāt-1t (=may want to do), cakrāt-yat (=one wanting to do), cakrāt-ita (=that which is wanted to be done), cakrātavya (=fit to be wanted to do), cikrāt-1tum (=in order to want to do).

The sannanta word expresses the sense that a particular person wants to do something or a particular action is going to be done immediately. For instance, kōla, pipati-ati (=the bank is about to collapse).

By suffixing the termination <sup>1</sup> to the desiderative base of a verbal root, we get an desiderative abstract noun, e.g., muc > mumuc + -a + 1 = mumuk + -a + 1 = mumuk-1 (=desire to be liberated)/ jijñ + sa + 1 = jijñ-1s1 (=desire to know) / ṝrō > ṝu - rō + -a + 1 = ṝuṝrō-1 (=desire to serve) /

By suffixing the termination u to the desiderative base of a verbal root, we get a desiderative agent noun, e.g., muc > mu muc + -a + u = mumuk + -u = mumuk-u (=one desiring to be liberated), cikrāt-u = one desiring to do, ṝuṝrō-u = one desiring to serve.

yogya, kim-api vastu eva n<sup>1</sup>sti, atah eva vyayasya abh<sup>1</sup>vo vartate / Aha, pōr<sup>a</sup>-a-rōpe<sup>a</sup> a nirdhano 'smi ity-arthaā / Ataā, he r<sup>1</sup>jan ! mahya, bhōmi-d<sup>1</sup>na, dehi, yena mama, me patny<sup>1</sup>ā ity-<sup>1</sup>vayoā dampatyōā jvan<sup>1</sup>rtha, dh<sup>1</sup>nya, , mama dvayor gavo॥ ca jvan<sup>1</sup>rtha, gh<sup>1</sup>sa, sulabha, bhaved iti bh<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>rthaā /

Asmin ॥loke sam<sup>1</sup>sasya mukhy<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, prak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>, n<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ni k<sup>1</sup>vyavacitryam ॥ritya kavin<sup>1</sup> gumphit<sup>1</sup>ni / Tad-yath - dvandasam<sup>1</sup>saāubhaya-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>naā, dvigu-sam<sup>1</sup>saā saj khy<sup>1</sup>-pōrvaā, avyayi-bh<sup>1</sup>va-sam<sup>1</sup>saā pōrva-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>naā, tat-puru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>saā uttara-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>naā, karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya-sam<sup>1</sup>sa upam<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>na-pōvapado v<sup>1</sup> upam<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>nottara-pado v<sup>1</sup> vi॥e-a<sup>2</sup>obhaya-pado v<sup>1</sup>, bahuvr<sup>1</sup>hi-sam<sup>1</sup>sa॥ ca anya-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>naā / Eva, sa, k-ep<sup>1</sup>t sam<sup>1</sup>saā -o<sup>2</sup>h<sup>1</sup> -a-prak<sup>1</sup>rakaā (=of six types) bhavati /

In the above verse we saw the names of all the six types of Sanskrit compound skillfully mentioned in a beautiful poetical context of an interesting story.

Now let us, acquaint ourselves with these types of the Sanskrit compounds, serially:

When in Sanskrit a word combines with other words to form a saṁsa, the combining words remain in their original pr<sup>1</sup>tipadika, i.e., the non-declined form bereft of any terminations. For instance: ॥aḥin+mukha, r<sup>1</sup>jan+puru-a, etc. Pronouns, too, remain so, e.g., tat+sukh, ahan > ahas > ahar_ni॥a. But, asmad > mat and yu-mat > tvat in singular, e.g., mama+putra > mat+putraā > mat-putraā, tava+pustakam > tvat+pustakam > tvat-pustakam. The terminations (pratyaya) of the combining words (pada) are dropped, and the words are mutually coalesced when warranted. After the two words have combined, the compounded word (saṁsa) is regarded as only one pada. Two or more such s<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>sika-padas can combine to form another bigger compound. The Case Termination is then suffixed to the whole compound. The type of the resulting compound depends upon the intention of the speaker to express a particular sense. The compound is not formed by merely coalescing the words, because in subsidiary, because here, the propriety (yath<sup>1</sup>) is more important than time (k<sup>1</sup>la). Hence, being pōrva-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>na, this compound is called the avyay1va-sam<sup>1</sup>sa.

In the compound word antarhita-dharm<sup>1a</sup><sup>1</sup>m = antarhitaā dharmā ye<sup>-1</sup>, te, te<sup>-1</sup>m (= of the ones whose sense of duty has been suppressed), consists of two padas, of which the former (pōrva) denoting 'being suppressed', and the latter (uttara) denoting the 'sense of duty' (dharma). But, both of them are subsidiary, because the compound denotes a person indicated by the two words, and is other (anya) than these two, and is the principal one. Hence, being anya-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>na, it is a bahuvr̥hi-sam<sup>1</sup>sa.

In the compound word spar॥a-do<sup>-1</sup>t = spar॥asya do-e<sup>a</sup>a (=due to the pollution of touch), of the two words spar॥a and do-a, the former (pōrva) is subsidiary while the latter (uttara) is prominent because touch is but a type of pollution. Hence, being an uttara-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>na, it is called the tatpuru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa. And, since the relation between the two words is of relation expressed by the Genitive Case as is clear in its vigraha, this compound is a -a-h--tatpuru-a type.

Now, recite aloud the following verse and its explanation, trying to grasp its sense:

*Dvando dvigur api c<sup>1</sup>ham mad-gehe nityam avyay1vaā /
Tat puru-a karma dh<sup>1</sup>raya yen<sup>1</sup>ha, sy<sup>1</sup>m bahuvr̥hi //*

Pa<sup>a</sup>it<sup>1</sup>ā pr<sup>1</sup>yo (=generally) nirdhan<sup>1</sup>ā santi / Et<sup>1</sup>dĀ॥jaā ka॥cid vidv<sup>1</sup>n kasyacid r<sup>1</sup>jño r<sup>1</sup>ja-sab<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, jag<sup>1</sup>ma / Tatra ca r<sup>1</sup>ja-samak-a, svasy<sup>1</sup>kiñcanat<sup>1</sup>, var<sup>a</sup>ayitu, ||lokam ima, jagau / He puru-a ! he r<sup>1</sup>jan ! karma bh<sup>0</sup>mi-d<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>tmaka, dh<sup>1</sup>raya aj g<sup>1</sup>kuru / Mahya, k<sup>1</sup>cid bh<sup>0</sup>miā d<sup>1</sup>na-r<sup>0</sup>pe<sup>a</sup>a dehi, yena pari<sup>a</sup>ma-r<sup>0</sup>pe<sup>a</sup>a, aha, bahuvr̥hiā prabh<sup>0</sup>ta-dh<sup>1</sup>nya-yuktaā (=one having profuse rice grains), sy<sup>1</sup>, bhaveyam / Adhun<sup>1</sup> tu k<sup>1</sup>dĀ॥o 'ham ? Dvandvaā str<sup>1</sup>-puru-a-r<sup>0</sup>pa-vyakti-dvay<sup>1</sup>tmakaā bhav<sup>1</sup>mi / Mama ku-umbe aha, patir mama ca patn<sup>1</sup>ity eva, dv<sup>1</sup>v eva bhav<sup>1</sup>vaā ity-arthaā / Punaā k<sup>1</sup>dĀ॥jaā ? Dviguā dvau g<sup>1</sup>vau yasya saā, t<sup>1</sup>dĀ॥jaā / Mama sam<sup>1</sup>pe dvau dhen<sup>0</sup>r api staā / Tath<sup>1</sup> 'pi mama g<sup>1</sup>he 'nyat ki, vartate ? Nityam avyay1vo vartate / Bh<sup>1</sup>vaā astitvam / Vyayaā arthasya (=of things, money) apa-gamaā (=going away, being spent up) / Na vyayaā a-vyayaā / A-vyayasya-bh<sup>1</sup>vaā = vyayasya a-bh<sup>1</sup>vaā = a-vayy<sup>1</sup>-bh<sup>1</sup>vaā (=lack of being spent out) / Mama g<sup>1</sup>he vyaya-

Various desiderative forms of some verbal roots, given below by way of specimen, should be noted:

grah (9 U. = to catch, seize, hold, accept - gĀh<sup>a</sup>ti - gĀh<sup>a</sup>te) - jighĀk-ati - jighĀk-ate / jighĀk<sup>-1</sup> / jighĀk-uā /
bhō (1 P. = to be, become - bhavati) - bubhō-ati / bubhō<sup>-1</sup> / bubhō-uā /
rud (2 P. = to cry, weep - roditi - rudati) - rurudi-ati / rurudi<sup>-1</sup> /
rurudi-uā
n» (1 U.= to carry, take away – nayati – nayate) nin»-at - nin»-ate / / nin»<sup>-1</sup> / nin»-uā / muc (6 U. = to leave off, give up, desert – muñcati – muñcate) – mumuk-ati / mumuk<sup>-1</sup> / mumuk-uā /
svap (2 P. = to sleep - svapiti) – su-upsati / su-ups<sup>1</sup> / su-upsuā / labh (1 , . = to get, obtain, acquire – labhate) – lipsate / lips<sup>1</sup> / lipsuā /
han (2P.= to kill, hit - hanti) – jigh<sup>1</sup>, sati / jigh<sup>1</sup>, s<sup>1</sup> / jigh<sup>1</sup>, suā /
jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 U.=to know- j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti- j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>te) – jijñ<sup>1</sup>sati - jijñ<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup> / jijñ<sup>1</sup>suā /
vac (2 P. = to speak, utter -vakti)– vivak-ati / vivak<sup>-1</sup> / vivak-uā / stu (2 U. = to praise, pray, eulogize – stauti – stav<sup>1</sup>ti ) tu-Ø-ati -
tu-Ø<sup>-1</sup> / tu-Ø-uā /
1+rabh (1 , . = to start, commence - 1rabhate) 1ripsate / 1rips<sup>1</sup> / 1ripsyuā / ad (2 P. = to eat - atti) – jightsati / jights<sup>1</sup> / jightsuā /
dambh (10 U. = to to inspire, send – dambhayati - dambhayate) – dh<sup>1</sup>psati - didambhi-ati / dh<sup>1</sup>psate - didambhi-ate /
dhips<sup>1</sup> - didambhi<sup>-1</sup> / dhipsuā - didambhi-uā / tan (8U.= to spread – tanoti – tanute) – tit<sup>1</sup>, sati - tit<sup>1</sup>, sate /
titani-ati - titani-ate / titani<sup>-1</sup> / titani-uā /
pat (1 P.to fall, fly - patati ) pitsati -pipati-ati / pipati<sup>-1</sup> pipati-uā / jñap (10 U. = to to know, inform, convey, be pleased – jñ<sup>1</sup>payati - jñ<sup>1</sup>payate ) – jñ<sup>1</sup>psati - jñ<sup>1</sup>psate / jijñapayi-ati - jijñapayi-ate / jijñapayi<sup>-1</sup> / jijñapayi-uā / prati+i (2 P. = to know, experience – pratiyati) – prati-i-ati / prati-i<sup>-1</sup> /prati-i-uā / bhid (7 U. = to break, pierce – bhinatti – bhinte) – bibhītsati /
bibhīts<sup>1</sup> / bibhītsuā /
tā (1 P. = swim, float, surmount, cross over - tarati) – tit<sup>1</sup>r-ti /

titari-atि / titari-<sup>1</sup> titari-uā /
 श्रू (5 P. = to hear, listen, serve – श्रूति) - श्रूरू-ate / श्रूरू-<sup>1</sup> / श्रूरू-uā hve (1 U.= to call, invite – hvayati – hvayate) – juh०-atि / juh०-<sup>1</sup> / juh०-uā /
adhi+i (2 .. to know, study – adhitे - adhigacchati) – adhijig<sup>1</sup>, - sate / adhijig<sup>1</sup>, s<sup>1</sup> / adhijig<sup>1</sup>, suā /

Now, read aloud the following sentences, trying to understand their meanings:

Yad<sup>1</sup> vai (=indeed) deflā-nagara-nigama-janapad<sup>1n<sup>1</sup></sup>,
pradh<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>ा</sup> (=ministers, leaders) dharman ullaj ghya (= having transgressed) adharme<sup>a</sup>a praj<sup>1</sup>, pravartayanti (= prompt, activate) tad<sup>1</sup> tad-<sup>1</sup>ritop<sup>1</sup>rit<sup>1</sup>ा (=their dependents and lower cadres) paura-j<sup>1</sup>napad<sup>1</sup>ा (= citizens and town-dwellers) vyavah<sup>1</sup>ropaj<sup>1</sup>vina॥ (= traders and craftsmen) ca tam adhar- mam abhivardhayanti (= promote, increase) / Tataā so 'dharmaā prasabha, (= forcibly) dharmam antardhatte (=suppresses) / Tatas te 'ntarhita-dharmi<sup>a</sup>o (= the ones whose sense of duty has been suppressed) devat<sup>1</sup>bhir api tyajyante / Te-<sup>1</sup>m antarhita-dharm<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m adharma-pradh<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m</sup> (= of the ones in whom the lack of the sense of duty is prominent) apakr<sup>1</sup>nmta-devat<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>m</sup> (= of the ones whom the gods have deserted) Åtavaā vy<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>dyante (=are severed) / Tena yath<sup>1</sup>-k<sup>1</sup>la, devo na var-ati, vikāta, v<sup>1</sup> var-ati / V<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> na samyag abhiv<sup>1</sup>nti / K-itiā (=the earth, land) v<sup>1</sup>padyate (=is spoiled), salil<sup>1</sup>ni upaflū-yanti (= dry up) o-adhayaā (=plants, shrubs) svabh<sup>1</sup>va, parih<sup>1</sup>ya (=having left) <sup>1</sup>padyante (= aquire) vikātim (=perversion) / tata (=then, consequently) spar<sup>1</sup>- bhyavah<sup>1</sup>rya-do-e<sup>a</sup>a (= due to the pollution of touch and food) uddhva, sante (= are uprooted, destroyed) janapad<sup>1</sup>ा / Asmin paricchede carak<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>rye<sup>a</sup>a caraka-sa, hit<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>m etad dar<sup>1</sup>ita, yad adharmasya pr<sup>1</sup>baly<sup>1</sup>t v<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>vara<sup>a</sup>e dos<sup>1</sup>ा pr<sup>1</sup>durbhavanti, tena ca k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>ena deflā praj<sup>1</sup>॥ ca vin<sup>1</sup>lam <sup>1</sup>pnuvanti /

Just as there is a custom in English language, to use in a sentence a compound consisting of two or three words combined, e.g., 'match-box', 'house-wife', and etc., similarly, in the ancient Vedic

Sanskrit literature, too, the usage of compounds consisting of not more than three two or three words is to be found. But in the classical Sanskrit, we find compounds consisting of three and many more words, especially in the works of poets like Bh<sup>1</sup>ravi, M<sup>1</sup>gha, ~r<sup>1</sup>har-a, and others. And, in the Prose Romances, like the K<sup>1</sup>dambar of B<sup>1</sup>a abha-a, the Tilakamañjar of dhanap<sup>1</sup>ila, and in the Champ<sup>0</sup>k<sup>1</sup>vyas we find very long compounds extending to several printed lines. This is the peculiarity of the Sanskrit language, and to grasp the meaning contained in such compound constructions, we need a thorough mastery in the structural process of the compounds.

According to the P<sup>1</sup>aian system, a word like noun, pronoun or adjective, formed by declining it in various Cases through the supratyayas is called the sub-anta, while a verb formed by conjugating the verbal root in various Tenses and Moods through the ti<sub>i</sub>-pratyayas are called the ti<sub>i</sub>-anta; and both are called by the common term pada.

The basic P<sup>1</sup>aian principle for combining the padas into a compound is that they should be mutually related (sam-arthā); and such a compound is called a 'sam<sup>1</sup>sa'. The process of separating the padas combined into a sam<sup>1</sup>sa is called vigraha.

In the paragraph given above we find the words like deflā-nigama-jana-pad<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>m</sup>, paura-j<sup>1</sup>napad<sup>1</sup>ा, vyavah<sup>1</sup>ropaj<sup>1</sup>vinaā, antarhita-dharm<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m, spar<sup>1</sup>bhyavah<sup>1</sup>ryo<sup>1</sup>do-e<sup>a</sup>a. Each of them is a compound word (s<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>sika-pada). In these compounds, the padas combined are mutually related. For instance, deflā ca nagara, ca nigamaā ca janapadaā ca = deflā-nagara-nigama-janapad<sup>1</sup>ा, te-<sup>1</sup>m = deflā-nagara-nigama-janapad<sup>1n<sup>1</sup>m</sup> (= of the country, city, town and village). In this compound all the padas have equal status; none of them is subsidiary to another. Hence, this compound is ubhaya-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>na, rather sarva-pada-pradh<sup>1</sup>na, which is technically called a dvandva-sam<sup>1</sup>sa.

The compound word yath<sup>1</sup>-k<sup>1</sup>lam = k<sup>1</sup>lam anatikramya, = without transgressing, i.e., in accordance with, i.e., at proper, time. In this sam<sup>1</sup>sa there are two padas, out of which the former (pōrvā) one, yath<sup>1</sup> is principal (pradh<sup>1</sup>na), while the latter k<sup>1</sup>la is

Compounds: Ik-u-rasa-siktaā = ik-oā rasaā ik-u-rasaā (=sugarcane juice), tēna siktaā (=sprinkled by it) / Dugdha-dhataā=dugdhenā dhautaā (=washed with milk) / Su-pu-aā = sitara, pu-aā (=tended very well) / Aīva-l̄l̄m = aīvasya l̄l̄t̄, t̄m (=the conduct of a horse) / Gaja-s̄myam =gajena s̄myam=hastin̄ tulyat̄, t̄m (=comparison with an elephant) / Gai ga-jale =gai ḡyaā jala, , tasmin (=in the water of the river Ganges) / svacch-cittaā =svaccha, cittaā yaya saā (=one whose mind is clean, clean-hearted) / Su-dhautam= su-h yath̄ syt̄ tath̄ dhautam (=washed very well) / Sur̄-bh̄a@am =sur̄ȳā bh̄a@am (=a vessel of wine) / Dur-janaā = du-aā janaā (=an evil person) / Su-janaā =su-hu janaā (=a good man) /

Vocabulary: nimbaā =a Neem tree / k̄kaā = a crow / kharaā = a donkey, ass / aīvaā=a horse / mayōraā = a peacock / gajaā=an elephant / m̄rj̄raā=a cat / sur̄= wine, liquor /

Verbal Forms: Ha, s̄yate = ha, sa iva ̄carati (=behaves like a swan) / Dr̄k-̄yate =dr̄k-̄ iva ̄catati (=acts like the grape) / These are the verbal derivatives derived from the nouns ha, sa and dr̄k-̄, conjugated in the tmane-pada 3rd Per. Sing. Such verbal derivatives are always conjugated in this way.

Atmano mukha-do-eā a badhyante ūuka-s̄rik̄ā /

Bak̄s tatra na badhyante mauna, sarv̄rtha-s̄dhanam //

~uk̄s ca s̄rik̄ ūca ̄tmano mukha-do-eāa (=due to the fault of their mouths) pañjare-u (= in the cages) badhyante (=are confined) / Manu-yasya v̄cam iva v̄cam (=speech) ucc̄ray itu, (=to utter) the verbal roots kĀdh (4 P.= to be angry), druh (4 P. =to betray), »r- (4 P. =to envy), and Asōy (6 P. = to malign) are used in the sentence, e.g., Sv̄m» bhĀtȳya (=towards the servant) krudhyati (=is angry) / ~a-haā (= a Rogue) sarvebhyo (=towards all) druhyati (betrays) / Duryodhanā bh̄m̄ya (=towards Bhim) »r-yati (=envies) / Khal̄ā sajjanebhaā (=towards good men) asōyanti (=maligns). But, when these verbal roots are used with the prefixes, their target words are put in the Accusative Case, e.g.. Pit̄ putra, (=to the son) sa, krudhyati / (5) The person to whom the action is intended, when the verbal roots ̄+ūA (5 P. = to pledge) and prati+ūA (5 P.= to promise) are used in the sentence, e.g. KĀ-a o vipr̄ya ḡt̄, aūAot̄ (=pledges to give) – pratiūAot̄ (==promises to give) / (6) When an abstract noun is used in the sense of infinitive (tum-anta) is used, e.g., ȳḡya (=ya-um=for performing a sacrifice) ȳti / ~ayan̄ya (=sayitum=to sleep) icchat̄i / Utth̄n̄ya (=utth̄tum=to get up) yatac̄ / (7) When the verbal root spĀh (10 P. = to like, long, covet) or a similar one, the thing that is liked, or for whom the action is intended, e.g., B̄l̄ pu-p̄ya spĀhayati(= A girl has a liking for flowers) / Dhan̄ya yatac̄ (=He endeavors for money)/ ~iūuā modak̄ya roditi (=The child cries for a sweet ball)/ ~bharaāya suvarāam (=Gold for ornaments)/ Phalebhyāā(=phal̄ni ̄netum=to bring fruits) ȳti / (8) When the indeclinable words namaā, svasti, sv̄h̄, svadh̄, va-a-, alam and manye and the roots r̄dh or »k- are used, the one to whom the sense of, or the action denoted by, the word is directed, e.g. Nāsi, h̄ya (=nāsi, ham anukulayitum =to render Nrisimha favorable) namaā / Tasmai ūr̄-gurave namaā (= Salutation to the honorable preceptor) / Svasti bhavate (= Wish you well) / Agnaye sv̄h̄ (= Offering to the Fire-god) / Similarly, Pit̄bh̄yaā svadh̄ (= Water-offering to the Manes) / Indr̄ya va-a- (=Sacrificial offering to Indra) / Daitybhyo (for the demons) ala, (is a match) hariā (= Lord Vi-a-u) / Tv̄, t̄āya or t̄āa, manye (=I consider you a straw) / Gargaā kĀ-a ya r̄dhyati or »k-ate (=asks about the well-being).

Now, let us treat the next type of Sanskrit compounds:

Avyayibh̄va-sam̄sa: In this type of the compound the first member is generally some prefix or an indeclinable, and the second one is some noun. The two or more words making such a compound are the always used as an indeclinable in the Neuter Gender and Singular Number, consequently, it is called an avayaybh<sup>1</sup>va compound. While explaining the compound by its vigraha, the expression 'yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup>' is used. Thus, for instance, prati+dinam = pratidinam = dine dine yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> (= everyday) / Similarly, pratidivasam, pratyaham /

In the formation of this compound, if there is a final long vowel in the second or the last member, it is shortened, e.g. upa+god<sup>1</sup>=upagodam= god<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>å sam»pe yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=in the vicinity of the river God<sup>1</sup>var) / adhi+str»=adhistri = str»å adhikÅtya (=with regard to, or about, women) /; if there is final e or ai, and o or au it is replaced by i, or by u, respectively, e.g., upa+go = upagu = goå samipa, yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=nearby the cow) ; if there is a final consonant a is added to it, e.g., adhi+tman=adhy<sup>1</sup>mam= <sup>1</sup>tmani iti (=pertaining to the soul) / upa+s»m<sup>1</sup>=upas»mam=s»m<sup>1</sup> m sam»pe yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (= near the border) / anu+pathin=patham anusÅtya yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=in accordance with the path)/ similarly, upasaradam, sumanasam, pratidivam, upadi¶am; if the second member is nad or giri, the final vowel is replaced by a, e.g., upa+nad»=upanadam or upanadi = nady<sup>1</sup>å sam»pe yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=nearby the river)/ Similarly, adhigirim or adhigiri = gireå upari yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=on the mountain) / Pratyak-am = samak-am = ak-<sup>a</sup>oå agre yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> = ak-<sup>a</sup>oå sam»pam yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=in front of, or near, the eyes)/ anuvi-<sup>a</sup>u =vi-<sup>a</sup>oå pa¶c<sup>1</sup>t yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=following, or behind, Vishnu) / yath<sup>1</sup>¶akti = ¶aktim an-atikramya yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=in accordance with ones strength) / anurØpam=rØpasya yogya, yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=befitting the beauty, in accordance with the form)/ adhiihari = harau iti (=with regard to, or about, God).

Now, recite aloud the following verses with their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

*Vifvaya hetur amaraiaå bahu gyase tva,
Vifva, bhare ¶iva-¶ive tri-gun<sup>a</sup>¹tma-mØrte /
Cid-vyomato 'pi param<sup>1</sup>, pratham<sup>1</sup>, vadanti
Tv<sup>1</sup>, yoginaå stuti-par<sup>1</sup>å pra<sup>a</sup>idh<sup>1</sup>na-dÅ-y<sup>1</sup> //*

= bahu-nad»kaå deßiaå (= a country having many rivers) / Similarly, saha vadho yena saå =sa-vadhøkaå gÅhasthaå (=a householder with his wife) / ¶vara-keartÅka, jagat (=the universe created by God / Bahavaå da<sup>a</sup>©inaå yasy<sup>1</sup>, s<sup>1</sup> = bahu-da<sup>a</sup>©ik<sup>1</sup> nagar» (=a city having profuse mendicants ) / If the latter member of a bahuvrhi compound is an <sup>1</sup>-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta feminine noun, the adjunct ka is added optionally at the end, e.g., lak-miå bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup> yasyasaå = lak-m-bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>kaå = vi-<sup>a</sup>uå (=the one having the Goddess of Prosperity as His wife, i.e. Lord Vishnu)/ Apagataå arthaå yasm<sup>1</sup>t tat = apagat<sup>1</sup>rthakam = meaningless, useless) / Some bahuvrhi compounds may be irregular, e.g., ~obhanaå pr<sup>1</sup>taå asya = su-pr<sup>1</sup>taå (=one having good morning)/ ~obhana, div<sup>1</sup> asya=su-divåå (=the one whose day is good) / Ka<sup>a</sup>-he k<sup>1</sup>laå yasya saå = Ka<sup>a</sup>-he-k<sup>1</sup>laå= ¶ivaå (= the one who has the poison in his throat, i.e., ~iva).

1a-h» Vibhakti (Genitive Case): The six (or seven with the Vocative) Cases discussed above show the different relations of the subject with the verb in the sentence. But, to show the particular relations, like that of a master and his servant (sv<sup>1</sup>mi-sevaka-bh<sup>1</sup>ba), of a thing created with its creator (janya-janaka-bh<sup>1</sup>va), of an effect and its cause (k<sup>1</sup>rya-k<sup>1</sup>ra¶la-bh<sup>1</sup>va), the Genitive Case is used. For instance, R<sup>1</sup>jñaå puru-aå =r<sup>1</sup>ja-puru-aå (=a royal person, a person of the king) / R<sup>1</sup>masya m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> = r<sup>1</sup>ma-m<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>, i.e., Kau¶aly<sup>1</sup>. Suvar<sup>a</sup>asya gha-aå = suvar<sup>a</sup>a-gha-aå = a pitcher of gold. When the Genitive Case is used for denoting a cause or purpose, by using the word hetu, both the words are put in that Case, e.g. tasya hetoå (= for that reason) / Kasya hetoå =for what purpose?

Now, read aloud the following sentences:

Ik-u-rasa-sikto 'pi nimbaå ki, dr<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>-yate ? Dugdh-dauto 'pi k<sup>1</sup>kaå ki, ha, s<sup>1</sup>yate ? Su-<sup>a</sup>høpa- carito 'pi kharaå kim a¶va-lI<sup>1</sup>, bibharti ? ¶A<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>rito 'pi mayØraå ki, gaja-lI<sup>1</sup>, labhate ? Ga<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>-jale sn<sup>1</sup>to 'pi m<sup>1</sup>rj<sup>1</sup>raå ki, svaccha-citto bhavati ? Sudhatam api sur<sup>1</sup>-bh<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>o, ki, pavitrat<sup>1</sup>, y<sup>1</sup>ti ? Tathaiva bahu sa, skÅto 'pi dur-janaå ki, su-jano bhavati ?

Coalescence: -siktaå+api / Su-<sup>a</sup>hu+upa-catitaå+api / ¶A<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ritaå+api / Sn<sup>1</sup>taå+api / Tath<sup>1</sup>+eva / Sa, skÅtaå+api /

gata-jvitaā (= one from whom life has gone out, i.e., departed, as in kukkuraā = ¶v<sup>1</sup>naā = a dog) / (4) If the former member is a negative particle like na, it is called the nañ-bahuvr̥hi; the negative particle na is generally replaced by a if the latter member begins with an initial consonant e.g., na vidyam<sup>1</sup>naā (= a-vidyam<sup>1</sup>naā), or na asti, putraā yasya saā=a-putraā (=one who has no sonless, childless) / Also, na vidyate kula, yasya saā = na-kulaā / but if the latter member begins with an initial vowel, the na is replaced by an, e.g., na vidyate, or na asti, abhil<sup>1</sup>-aā yasya saā = an-abhil<sup>1</sup>-aā (=one who does not entertain any desire, desireless, detached) / (5) If the former member is saha, it is called a saha-bahuvr̥hi, e.g., saha putro yasya saā or saha putre<sup>a</sup>a=s-a-putraā (=one having a son, like say devadattaā, the father Devadatt) / (6) If the former member is a prefix, a numerical adjective, or a word like sampa, sanna, a-dōra, adhika, etc., and the latter member is a numerical adjective, it is called the sa, khy<sup>1</sup>-bahuvr̥hi, e.g., dai<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, sam<sup>1</sup>pe ye santi te = upa-dai<sup>1</sup>ā (=the ones near, or about ten)/ Catur<sup>1</sup>, sam<sup>1</sup>pe santi ye te = upa-catur<sup>1</sup>ā (=the ones near, or about, four)/ Dvau v<sup>1</sup> trayaaā v<sup>1</sup> dvi-tr<sup>1</sup>ā, deve v<sup>1</sup> tr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>i v<sup>1</sup> dvi-tr<sup>1</sup>āi (=two or three)/ Trayaā v<sup>1</sup> catv<sup>1</sup>raā v<sup>1</sup> tri-catur<sup>1</sup>ā (=three or four) / Dviā v<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>tt<sup>1</sup>ā dai<sup>1</sup>a = dvi-dai<sup>1</sup>ā (=two times ten= twenty)/ Vi, ¶lateā sann<sup>1</sup>ā = sanna-vi, ¶tāā (= about twenty) / Tri, ¶ataā a-dōr<sup>1</sup>ā = a-dōra-tri, ¶tāā (=not far from thirty) / Catv<sup>1</sup>ri, ¶ataā adhik<sup>1</sup>ā = adhika-catv<sup>1</sup>ri, ¶tāā (=more than forty) / Such compounds are always in Plural. (7) When two nouns denoting the directions cometogether to form a compound denoting the corner direction (vi-di<sup>1</sup> or upa-di<sup>1</sup>), it is called the dig-bahuvr̥hi, e.g., dak-ī<sup>a</sup>asy<sup>1</sup>ā pōrvasy<sup>1</sup>ā ca di<sup>1</sup>loā antar<sup>1</sup>la, s<sup>1</sup> (dik) = dak-ī<sup>a</sup>a-pōrv<sup>1</sup> dik (= South-East direction / Similarly, uttara-pōrv<sup>1</sup> (= North-East) /

If the a member of the bahuvr̥hi compound is an adjective or a Past Passive Participle, it is put as the former member, e.g., Mahan b<sup>1</sup>hō yasya saā = mah<sup>1</sup>-b<sup>1</sup>huā (=one having large arms) / Priyaā gu<sup>1</sup>a yasya saā = priya-gu<sup>1</sup>aā (one who likes jaggery or treacle) / Pta, jala, yena saā = pta-jalaā p<sup>1</sup>ntaā (=a traveler who has drunk water) / If the later member of the bahuvr̥hi compound ends is »k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, Ø-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, A-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, or in-anta, an adjunct ka in the masculine, or k<sup>1</sup> in the feminine gender is added in the bahuvr̥hi compound, e.g., bahavo nadyāā yasmin saā

He Vi¶va, bhare! he ¶iva-'ive! he tri-gu<sup>a</sup>1tma-mØrte! tvam amaraiā vi¶vasya hetuā iti bahu ḡyase / Stuti-par<sup>1</sup>ā yoginaā pra<sup>a</sup>i-dh<sup>1</sup>na-dÅ-y<sup>1</sup> tv<sup>1</sup>, cid-vyomataā api param<sup>1</sup>, pratham<sup>1</sup>, vadanti ity anvayaā /

Vi¶vambhare = O! You who nourishes the universe! ~iva-'ive = O! You who looks after the well-being of ~iva! Tri-gu<sup>a</sup>1tma-mØrte= trayo gu<sup>a</sup>1ā sattva-rajas-tamas-svarØp<sup>1</sup>ā svasya 1tmanaā mØrta, svarØpa, yasy<sup>1</sup>ā s<sup>1</sup>, t<sup>1</sup>dÅ! he devi =O! You who has the form of the three qualities (called sattva, rajas and tamas) or you who has manifested in the three forms of goddesses called Mah<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>l» Mah<sup>1</sup>lak~m» Mah<sup>1</sup>sarasvat» ! Tva, vi¶vasya hetuā=jagataā k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>am, athav<sup>1</sup> vi¶vasyaā vi¶v<sup>1</sup>sa, kartu, yogya, k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>am, iti (=as) bahu (=highly,, very much) ḡyase= pra¶a- syase (=are sung in prayers) / Stuti-par<sup>1</sup>ā (=prone to praying) yoginaā tv<sup>1</sup>, pra<sup>a</sup>idh<sup>1</sup>na-dÅ-y<sup>1</sup> (=through their inner vision in the meditation) cid-vyomataā (=than the firmament of the consciousness), param<sup>1</sup>, (=beyond, higher) pratham<sup>1</sup>, (=the first, prime) vadanti (=say, declare) /

This verse has been composed in the Vasanta-tilak<sup>1</sup> metre having fourteen syllables in every quarter. It contains a prayer describing the greatness of the Goddess Durg<sup>1</sup>. Now, by deleting the sixth, seventh and eighth syllables from each quarter, and replacing the long vowel in the last but one verse of the third one, a new verse composed in the indra-vajr<sup>1</sup> meter will emerge, as follows:

*Vi¶vasya hetur bahu ḡyase tva,
Vi¶va, bhare¶i- tri-gun<sup>a</sup>1tma-mØrte /
Cid-vyomato 'pi parama, vadanti
Tv<sup>1</sup>, yoginastu pra<sup>a</sup>idh<sup>1</sup>na-dÅ-y<sup>1</sup> //*

He! Vi¶va, bhare¶i- tri-gun<sup>a</sup>1tma-mØrte = jagataā »varyā sv<sup>1</sup>miny<sup>1</sup>ā, tri-gu<sup>a</sup>1= mah<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>l»-mah<sup>1</sup>lak~m»-mah<sup>1</sup>sarasvat» 'ti tribhiā svarup<sup>1</sup>ā, tri-gu<sup>a</sup>1 (=tripled = thrice multiplied), 1tma-mØrti sva-pr<sup>1</sup>ka-ya, (=self-manifestation) yasya saā t<sup>1</sup>dÅ!aā he ~iva! Tva, vi¶vasya hetuā=jagataā k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>am (=cause of the universe), athav<sup>1</sup> vi¶vasyaā vi¶v<sup>1</sup>sa, kartu, yogya, k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>am (= or a reliable source), iti (=as) bahu (=highly,, very much) ḡyase= pra¶asyase (=are sung in prayers) / Stuti-par<sup>1</sup>ā (=prone to praying) yoginaā tv<sup>1</sup>, pra<sup>a</sup>idh<sup>1</sup>na-dÅ-y<sup>1</sup> (=through their inner vision in the meditation) cid-vyomataā

(=than the firmament of the consciousness), param<sup>1</sup>, (=beyond, higher) pratham<sup>1</sup>, (=the first, prime) vadanti (=say, declare) /

This verse slightly modified verse contains the praise of Lord ~iva! This is one of the several beautiful wonders of the Sanskrit language!!

Some of the very interesting and often used avyaybh<sup>1</sup>va compounds are given below : anu-gaj gam=gaj g<sup>1</sup>m anu<sup>1</sup>yatam (=near, or extended near, the river Ganges)/ Su-mudram=madr<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, su-samÅddhiå (=excellent prosperity of the Madra people) / Dur-yavanam = yavan<sup>1n<sup>1</sup></sup>, du-t<sup>1</sup>, vigat<sup>1</sup> v<sup>1</sup>, Åddhiå (=the past, or the wicked, glory of the Greeks) / Praty-artham = artham arthan yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=for everybody, in every way) / Sa-tÅ<sup>a</sup>am=tÅ<sup>a</sup>am api a-pari-tyajya yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (= without leaving out even a blade of grass, i.e. totally without a residue) / Sa-rajasam = rajaå api a-pari-tyajya yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (= without leaving out even a grain of dust, i.e. completely without an iota) / , -jaladhi - <sup>1</sup>-jaladheå = jaladheå <sup>1</sup>rabya (= from the ocean, upto the ocean) / Abhy-agni-praty-agni = agnim abhi (=towards fire) - agni, prati (=in front of fire) / P<sup>1</sup>re-gaj gam - p<sup>1</sup>re-gaj g<sup>1</sup>t = gaj g<sup>1</sup>yaå pare (=on the opposite bank of the river Ganges) / Madhye-gaj gam = gaj g<sup>1</sup>yaå madhye (=in the middle stream of the river Ganges) / Bahir-gr<sup>1</sup>mam - bahir-gr<sup>1m<sup>1</sup></sup>, bahiå (=outside the village) / Antar-gr<sup>1</sup>mam = gr<sup>1</sup>masya antaå madhye (=inside the village) / Ati-s»mam = s»m<sup>1</sup>m ati-kramya (=beyond the border) / Y<sup>1</sup>vad-avak<sup>1</sup>¶am = y<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>n avak<sup>1</sup>¶aå yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=as per the empty space, in accordance with the empty accommodation, as per the convenience, as far as possible) / Y<sup>1</sup>vaj-j»vam=y<sup>1</sup>vat jvana, yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> =j»van-paryantam (=so far as one is alive, as long as one lives) / Anu-jye-~ham =jye-~hasya anukramre<sup>a</sup> or <sup>1</sup>nupØrve<sup>a</sup> (=serially from, or beginning with, the elder one, ) / Nirmak-ikam = mak-ik<sup>1a<sup>1</sup></sup>, abh<sup>1</sup>vaå yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=without the flies, i.e., interference, or obstruction) Ati-himam = himasya atyayaå yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> (=after the Winter season is over) / Ati- nidram =nidr<sup>1m</sup> atikramya yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1t</sup> tath<sup>1</sup> = nidr<sup>1</sup> samprati na yujyate (=beyond the time of sleeping)/ The neuter form of some of the bahuvrhi compounds are used adverbially, e.g., bahu-vidham=bahavaå viddayaå or

(=Lord Vishnu) / Bahunad»kaå=bahuyaå nayaå yasmin saå (= that in which there are many rivers) deßaaå/SapitÅkaå =saha pit<sup>1</sup> yasya saå (=the one having his father with him) putraå (=son) / If the substantive is in Feminine Gender, the compound would be in Feminine Gender with appropriate termination of that Gender suffixed to it, e.g., bahudhn<sup>1</sup> = bahu dhana, yasy<sup>1å</sup> s<sup>1</sup> str (=the woman who has profuse wealth) / SabhartÅk<sup>1</sup> or sadhav<sup>1</sup>= saha bhart<sup>1</sup> or dhavaå yasy<sup>1å</sup> s<sup>1</sup> vadħØå (=the wife who has her husband with her, i.e., one with living husband) / In accordance with the Gender of the substantive, which may be Masculine, Feminine, Neuter, and the latter member of the compound may be vyañjan<sup>1nta</sup>, i.e., having a final consonant, and in any Gender, the compound would be of the Gender of the substantive only, and it would be declined in accordance with the final vowel or consonant and Gender of the compound. Thus, sarala-man<sup>1å</sup> (puru-aå), sara-man<sup>1</sup> (str), sarala-manaå (mitram)/ This is the common practice of Sanskrit usage. There may be exceptions in it due to idiomatic usage, of which one can easily grasp the meaning by resorting to the dissolution (vigraha) of the compound. For instance, komala, aj ga, yasya saå = komal<sup>1j</sup> gaå (r<sup>1</sup>maå), but komala, aj ga, yasy<sup>1å</sup> s<sup>1</sup> = komal<sup>1j</sup> g<sup>1</sup> or komal<sup>1j</sup> g» (st<sup>1</sup>) / Similarly, candra-mukh<sup>1</sup> or candramukh», su-kef<sup>1</sup> or su-kef», kÅdar<sup>1</sup> or kÅdar», kamal<sup>1k<sup>1</sup></sup> or kamal<sup>1k<sup>1</sup></sup> / Moreover, sam<sup>1</sup>naå patiå yasy<sup>1å</sup> s<sup>1</sup> =saptn (=having a common or the same husband, a co-wife)/ Sv<sup>1</sup>dh»naå patiå yasy<sup>1å</sup> s<sup>1</sup> = sv<sup>1</sup>dh»napatik<sup>1</sup> (=one having an obedient or docile husband)/ Mah<sup>1n</sup> <sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup> yasya saå = mah<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup> (puru-aå) / Mah<sup>1n</sup> <sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup> yasy<sup>1å</sup> s<sup>1</sup> = mah<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup> (str)/

The bahuvrhi compound may be of several types: (1) If the former member (pØrva-pada) and the latter one (uttara-pada) to be compounded are in the same Case, it is called the sam<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>dhikara<sup>a</sup>-bahuvrhi type, e.g., ¶vetam ambara, yasya saå = ¶vet<sup>1</sup>mbaraå (=wearing white clothes). (2) If the two members to be compounded are in different Cases, it is called the vy-adhikara<sup>a</sup>-bahuvrhi, e.g. cakra, p<sup>1a</sup>u yasya saå cakra-p<sup>1a</sup>iå = vi-<sup>a</sup>uå (=Lord Vishnu) / Bh<sup>1</sup>le candraå yasya saå = bh<sup>1</sup>la-candraå (=Ga<sup>a</sup>pati, the son of Lord ~iva) / (3) If the former member is a Prefix (upasarga), it is called the pr<sup>1</sup>di-bahuvrhi, e.g., vigata, j»vita, yasya saå = vi-j»vitaå or (by adding some Past Passive Participle like gata in dissolution) vi-

Vishnu) / Here, Lord Vishnu is neither 'yellow' nor the 'cloth', the word 'yellow' being the adjective of the noun 'cloth', while both of them when combined serve as an adjective of the third one who wears the yellow cloth. Similarly, Mah<sup>1</sup>ntau b<sup>1</sup>hØ yasya saå = mah<sup>1</sup>b<sup>1</sup>huå (=the one who has huge arms, i.e., Bhøma) / Meghan<sup>1</sup>daå = meghasya n<sup>1</sup>daå iva n<sup>1</sup>daå yasya saå (=the one whose resounding voice is like that of a thundering cloud = Indrajit, the son of R<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>a) / Kamalanayan<sup>1</sup> = kamale iva nayane yasy<sup>1</sup>å s<sup>1</sup> (=the one whose two eyes are like two lotuses, i.e., Lak-m», the Goddess of Prosperity) / A-k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>am = na vidyate k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>a, yasya tat (= that for which there is no cause, i.e., unwarranted) rodanam (=weeping) / Bahuvr<sup>1</sup>hiå = bahavo vr<sup>1</sup>hayaå yasya saå (=the one who has profuse rice) gåhasthaå (=a householder) / A form of the pronoun yad is used in the dissolution (vigraha) of this compound. The Gender of this compound is determined in accordance with the substantive noun of which it is an adjective, e.g., pr<sup>1</sup>ptam (N.) udaka, ya, saå (M.) = pr<sup>1</sup>ptodakaå (=that to which the water has reached) gr<sup>1</sup>maå (=village)/ Here, the two words forming the compound are in Neuter Gender, while the resulting compound is in the Masculine Gender. U<sup>0</sup>haå rathaå yena saå = Ø<sup>0</sup>harathaå (=the one who has been drawing the chariot) A<sup>1</sup>vaå (=a horse)/ Upahåtabhojanaå = upahåta, bhojana, yasmai saå (=the one to whom a meal is offered) bhik<sup>1</sup>ukaå (=a monk, a beggar) / Nirgat<sup>1</sup>riå = nirgataå aria yasm<sup>1</sup>t saå (=that from which the enemy has gone away) de<sup>1</sup>laå (=a country)/ Buddhidhanaå = buddhiå dhana, yasya saå (=the one who is rich in intelligence, i.e., a learned man)/ Tyaktaj<sup>1</sup>vitaå (naraå) - = tyakta, j<sup>1</sup>vita, yena saå (= the one who has left his life) naraå (=man), Tyaktaj<sup>1</sup>vit<sup>1</sup> (= the one who has left her life) n<sup>1</sup>r» (= woman), Tyaktaj<sup>1</sup>vitam (= the one who has left its life) b<sup>1</sup>lakam (=child) / Thus, if the substantive is of Masculine Gender, the termination a is suffixed to the compound to make it Masculine; if the substantive is of Feminine Gender, the termination 1 is suffixed to the compound to make it Feminine, and if the substantive is of Neuter Gender, the termination am is suffixed to the compound to make it Neuter. If the latter member of the compound is 1-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta, being Feminine, and the substantive of which compound is to be an adjective is in Masculine, the final 1 of the latter member is replaced by a, making it Masculine, e.g., lak-m»bh<sup>1</sup>ryaå = lak-m»å bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup> yasya saå (=the one whose wife is Lakshmi) vi-åuå

prak<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>åyasimin karma<sup>a</sup>i yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> (=in many ways or of many types)/ Sa-kampam=kampena sahitam yasmin karma<sup>a</sup>i yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> (=while shaking, tremblingly) / Nirdayam=nirgat<sup>1</sup> day<sup>1</sup> yasmat karma<sup>a</sup>å yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> (= without mercy, mercilessly). But they are not called the avyay»bh<sup>1</sup>va compounds.

Now, recite the following verse and read its explanation, aloud:

Ahi-ripu-pati-k<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup>-t<sup>1</sup>ta-sambaddha-k<sup>1</sup>tn<sup>1</sup>-Hara-tanaya-nihantÅ-pr<sup>1</sup>a-d<sup>1</sup>tÅ-dhvajasya / Sakhi-suta-suta-k<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup>-t<sup>1</sup>ta-sampØjay-k<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup>-PitÅ-¶irasi patant<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>hnava vaå pun<sup>1</sup>tu //

Ahiå sarpaå / Tasya ripuå garu<sup>0</sup>aå / tasya patiå vi-åuå / Tasya k<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup> = patn» = lak-miå / Tasy<sup>1</sup>å t<sup>1</sup>taå = pit<sup>1</sup>=samudraå / Såå sambaddho yena saå r<sup>1</sup>maå / Tasya k<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup> j<sup>1</sup>nak» / Tasya haraå=hart<sup>1</sup> r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>å/ Tasya nanayaå=putraå=indrajit / Tasya nihantÅ=lak-ma<sup>a</sup>åå / Tasya pr<sup>1</sup>a-d<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> hanØm<sup>1</sup>n / Såå dhvaje yasya saå, tasya =arjunasya, sakh<sup>1</sup>=mitra, =kÅ-åå / Tasya sutaaå =putraå=pradyminaå=madanaå / Tasya sutaaå aniruddhaå / Tasya k<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup> u<sup>1</sup> / Tasy<sup>1</sup>å t<sup>1</sup>taå = b<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>suraå / Tasya sampØjyaå=i-å-a-devaå =¶ivaå / Tasya k<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup> p<sup>1</sup>rvat» / Tasy<sup>1</sup>å pit<sup>1</sup> = him<sup>1</sup>layaå / Tasya ¶irasi = mastake, patant<sup>1</sup> =j<sup>1</sup>hnava » =bh<sup>1</sup>g»rath»=gai g<sup>1</sup> / Naå= asm<sup>1</sup>n, pun<sup>1</sup>tu= pavitr<sup>1</sup>n karotu, ity-arthaå / In this verse the poet, having a very strong sense of humor, has adopted a style of using very long compounds extending upto the end of the second quarter of the verse to express a simple prayer meaning: 'May the river Ganges purify us all !' To mention the name of the river Ganges, he has started with 'serpent' !! Thus, a serpent's enemy is the eagle. Eagle, being the vehicle, its master is Lord Vi-åu. The wife of Vi-åu is Lak-m». Her father was the ocean, according to Hindu mythology. Connected with the ocean is R<sup>1</sup>ma. His wife is S<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>. The one who kidnapped her was R<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>a. His son was Indrajit. He was killed by Lak-ma<sup>a</sup>a. His life was saved by HanØm<sup>1</sup>n, when he swooned in the battle. The one, in whose banner HanØm<sup>1</sup>n sat during the Mah<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>rata War, was Arjuna. His friend was KÅ-åå. His son was Pradyerna. His son was Aniruddha. His wife was U<sup>1</sup>. Her father was B<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>sura. His favorite deity was ~iva. The one who descended from heaven on his head was the river Ganges ! So, may this Ganges purify us all !! Here there are only two compounds!!! And the references are to numerous stories of Hindu mythology.

Pañcam» vibhakti (=Ablative Case): A noun pronoun or an adjective is used in the Ablative Case in the following syntactical situations: (1) When something gets separated from another, the one that moves away is called ap<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>na; the word denoting an ap<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>na, i.e. the thing that got separated, is used in the Ablative Case in the sentence, e.g., vāk<sup>1</sup>t (=from the tree) par<sup>a</sup>ni patanti / R<sup>1</sup>maā ayodhy<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā (=from the city of Ayodhy<sup>1</sup>) nir-gacchati (=goes out). (2) When the words denoting hatred, stopping, leaving of, committing mistake, being afraid, to hide, expressing distance of location or time, etc., are used in the sentence, the word denoting the thing or person towards whom these are directed, e.g., p<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>t jugupsate (=Hates or dislikes sin.) / Dhr<sup>1</sup>ā ni<sup>1</sup>cit<sup>1</sup>rth<sup>1</sup>t na viramanti (=Men with fortitude do not desist from the things they determine to do.) / Sv<sup>1</sup>dhik<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>t pramattaā (=Neglected the duty)/ Caur<sup>1</sup>t bibheti (= Is afraid of the thief.)/ Sarp<sup>1</sup>t bhayam (=afraid of snake) / Mitraā p<sup>1</sup>p<sup>1</sup>t niv<sup>1</sup>rayati (=A friend prevents from sin.)/ KĀ-<sup>a</sup>aā matuā ni<sup>1</sup>yate (=Krishna hides himself from his mother)/ Up<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>yat adh<sup>1</sup>te (=Learns from the teacher)/ K<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t krodhaā prabhavati (=From desire arises anger)/ Himavataā gaj g<sup>1</sup> prabhavati (=the Ganges originates from the Himalayas)/ ~vasur<sup>1</sup>t (=~vasura, v<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>-ya) jihreti (=Gets shy of father-in-law )/ ~san<sup>1</sup>t (= ~sane upavīlya or sthitv<sup>1</sup>) prek-ate(=looks from the seat)/ mama gāh<sup>1</sup>t pray<sup>1</sup>gaā yojana-trayam asti (=The city of Prayag is at a distance of three miles from my house.)/ Pōr<sup>1</sup>im<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā KĀ-<sup>a</sup>1-~am a~asu divase-u (=the eighth day of the dark fortnight is on the eighth day from the Full moon day)/ Vardhan<sup>1</sup>t rak-a<sup>2</sup>a, ~reyaā (=Protecting is better than increasing)/ Maun<sup>1</sup>t satya, vi<sup>1</sup>li-~yate (=Truth is superior to silence)/ KĀ-<sup>a</sup>1t bhinnaā, itaraā, anyaa (=different from Krishna)/ Van<sup>1</sup>t ar<sup>1</sup>t (=distant from, or near to, the forest)/ KĀ-<sup>a</sup>1t Āte (=without Krishna) / Chaitr<sup>1</sup>t pōrvaā ph<sup>1</sup>lgunaā (=The month of Phalgun is prior to that of Chaitra) / Pr<sup>1</sup>k (=to the East), pratyak (=to the West), dak-i<sup>2</sup>1 or dak-i<sup>2</sup>1 (=to the South) gr<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t (=from the village)/ ~ai<sup>1</sup>lav<sup>1</sup>t prabhāti (=since the childhood)/ Tasmat param or anantaram (=after that) / apa or pari hareā sa, s<sup>1</sup>raā (=God is beyond the transmigrating world)/ ~-janmanaā (=Since the birth) / ~-mara<sup>1</sup>t svaikartavya, narah

Bhojan<sup>1</sup>nte=bhojanasya ante (=at the end of a meal), v<sup>1</sup>ri=jala, =jala-p<sup>1</sup>na, (= water-drinking, i.e. to drink water) vi-a, = vi-a-tulya, (= tantamount to poison, i.e. harmful) / Bhojane =bhojanasya madhye (=in the midst of a meal), v<sup>1</sup>ri paramam = atiflayam (=very much, highly), amĀta, = amĀta-tulya, (=comparable to nectar), bhe-ajam =Au-adha-tulyam upak<sup>1</sup>rakam (=comparable to a medicine, i.e., beneficial) / J<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>e = yad<sup>1</sup> bhojana, ja-hare jr<sup>1</sup>a, bhavati tad<sup>1</sup> (=when digested, i.e., when the food is digested in the stomach) v<sup>1</sup>ri bala-prada, =flakti-d<sup>1</sup>yaka, (=augmenting strength, i.e., conducive to health) vartate /

Din<sup>1</sup>nte ca pibed dugdha, ni<sup>1</sup>ntē ca pibet payaā /
Bhojan<sup>1</sup>nte pibet takra, ki, vaidyasya prayojanam //

Din<sup>1</sup>nte=dinasya=divasasya ante = r<sup>1</sup>trau flayan<sup>1</sup>t pōrvam (=at the end of the day, i.e., at night just before going to bed), dugdha, (=milk), pibet (=should drink / Ni<sup>1</sup>ntē = ni<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā ante= prabh<sup>1</sup>te (=at the end of the night, i.e., in the early morning), payaā=jalam= v<sup>1</sup>ri (=water) pibet / Bhojan<sup>1</sup>nte = bhojanasya ante (=at the end of a meal, i.e. after lunch or dinner), takra, (=butter-milk) pibet / Yadi niyamita-rōpe<sup>2</sup>a (=as a rule, i.e., regularly) etat traya, (=these three) kriyate (= is done), tataā (=then), vaidyasya (=of a physician), ki, prayojanam (=what is the need of)? kima-api prayojana, na vartate ity-athaā (= it means, there is no need at all).

In these two verses, two sets of three very vital facts, according to the System of Indian Medicine (1yur-veda), have been presented in a very simple direct manner. (1) The first set is about our simple daily action of drinking water by us, informing us as to when we should drink water so that it conduces to our health, and when it is not so. Thus, water should be drunk in the midst of taking a meal, not just immediately before it, not just immediately after it, but definitely after about an hour or so when the food has been digested in the stomach! (2) The second set is about the use of milk, water and buttermilk. In a bahu-vr<sup>1</sup>hi-sam<sup>1</sup>sa, two are more nouns or adjectives join to form a compound word, which in its turn serves as an adjective of another word. For instance, p<sup>1</sup>tam (=yellow) ambaram (=cloth) yasya saā =p<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>mbaraā (=the one whose garment is yellow), i.e. Vi-a-u (=God

LESSON 24

(Catv<sup>1</sup>ri, चतुर्वारी प्रथा)

Recite aloud the following verses and their explanatory commentaries:

*Aml<sup>1</sup>na-paj kaj<sup>1</sup> m<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup> ka<sup>a</sup>-he r<sup>1</sup>masya s<sup>1</sup>tay<sup>1</sup> /
Mudh<sup>1</sup> buh<sup>1</sup> bhramanty atra pratyak-e 'pi kriy<sup>1</sup>pade //*

S<sup>1</sup>tay<sup>1</sup> r<sup>1</sup>masya ka<sup>a</sup>-he, aml<sup>1</sup>na-paj kaj<sup>1</sup> = na ml<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ni = na ml<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ni = pratyagr<sup>1</sup>a = abhinav<sup>1</sup>ni (=unfaded, fresh) paj kaj<sup>1</sup>ni = paj ke j<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>ni = kamal<sup>1</sup>ni (=the ones that are born in mud, i.e. lotuses) yasy<sup>1</sup>, s<sup>1</sup>, t<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>प m<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup> (=such a garland) / Et<sup>1</sup>vat-paryante (=upto this) v<sup>1</sup>kye (=in the sentence), pratyak-e 'pi kriy<sup>1</sup>pade sati= yady-api kriy<sup>1</sup>-pada, (=although the verb) pratyak-a, vidyate (=is visible to the eyes, obvious), tath<sup>1</sup> 'pi (=even then), ap<sup>0</sup>r<sup>a</sup>am iva (=as though incomplete), pratibh<sup>1</sup>ti (=seems to be) / Tena k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>ena (=because of it, due to that reason), atra v<sup>1</sup>kye (=in this sentence), budh<sup>1</sup>ā = pa<sup>a</sup>o it<sup>1</sup>ā (=wise men), mudh<sup>1</sup> = vin<sup>1</sup>-k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>a, (=uselessly, without any reason), bhramanti = bhr<sup>1</sup>ntim anubhavanti (=are wandering, feeling deluded) / Ki, tat pratyak-a, kriy<sup>1</sup>-padam? Pratyak-epi = prati-p<sup>0</sup>rvakasya k-ip-dh<sup>1</sup>to (=of the verbal root prati+k-ip - 6 P. = to throw), karma<sup>a</sup>i lui i (=in the Passive Aorist), pratham-puru-e eka-vacane (=in the Third Person Singular) prati+ak-epi = pratyak-epi (=threw, made to put on) iti kriy<sup>1</sup>pada, "pratyak-e 'pi" = pratyak-e+api, iti eva, nird<sup>1</sup>ya (=having mentioned thus), kavin<sup>1</sup> (=by the poet), yukty<sup>1</sup> (=skillfully), gupta, sth<sup>1</sup>pitam (=has been kept hidden) /

In this verse the poet has presented an interesting poetic style of kriy<sup>1</sup>-guptam (=hidden verb) although the verb is presented visible in a slightly different way. Thus, the intended Aorist 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. form of the verb pratyak-epi (=prati+ak-epi), derived from the verbal root prati+k-ip has been hidden by presenting it skillfully as pratyak-e 'pi (=pratyak-e+api) in order to delude the ones learned in Sanskrit Grammar!

*Bhojan<sup>1</sup>nte vi-a, v<sup>1</sup>ri bhojane c<sup>1</sup>māta, param /
A-j<sup>1</sup>r<sup>a</sup>e bhe-a, v<sup>1</sup>ri j<sup>1</sup>r<sup>a</sup>e v<sup>1</sup>ri bala-pradam //*

parip<sup>1</sup>layet (=Man should observe his duty upto the death)/ Pradymnaā kĀ-<sup>a</sup>1t prati (=Pradyumna representing Krishna)/ Tilebhyaā prati-yacchati m<sup>1</sup>-<sup>1</sup>n (=Returns black bins against sesame)/ J<sup>1</sup>©y<sup>1</sup>t baddhaā (=arrested due to foolishness)/ Jñ<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>t muktaā (=liberated due to knowledge)/ Dh<sup>0</sup>m<sup>1</sup>t vahnim<sup>1</sup>n parvataā (=The mountain is having fire as is inferred from the smoke on it)/

Saptam» vibhakti (Locative Case): A word denoting the support of an action is called the location or support (adhi-kara<sup>a</sup>a), because it occurs in, on, over, or about it. This adhi-kara<sup>a</sup>a is of three types, viz. aupa॒॥le-i<sup>a</sup>ka, (=that which has the physical relation or material connection, vai-ayika (=having an mental connection pertaining to something), abhi-vy<sup>1</sup>paka (=having the relation of pervading and being pervaded. (1) The noun pronoun or an adjective denoting any of these three types of location is thus used in the Locative Case in a sentence, e.g. Kate<sup>1</sup>ste (=Sits on a mat.), Mok<sup>1</sup>e icch<sup>1</sup> asti (=Has a wish for liberation), Tile-u tailam (=the oil in sesame seeds). (2) The words denoting vicinity, distance, the time, or subject, e.g., Gr<sup>1</sup>masya antike (=near the village)/ Gr<sup>1</sup>masya d<sup>0</sup>re (=far from the village) / ~<sup>1</sup>©hasya pratha-divase (=on the first day of the month of Ashadh) / ~ai॥ave bhyasta-vidy<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m (=of those who studied the branches of knowledge) / Adh<sup>1</sup>tv vy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>e (=well-versed in Grammar) / (3) with the adjectives s<sup>1</sup>dhu and a-s<sup>1</sup>dhu when the thing referred to by them is to be marked out from the group, e.g., S<sup>1</sup>dhur m<sup>1</sup>tari (=good to the mother) / A-s<sup>1</sup>dhur m<sup>1</sup>tule (=bad to the mother's brother) / Kavi-u k<sup>1</sup>lid<sup>1</sup>saā श्रेष्ठ-हाा (=Among the poets K<sup>1</sup>lid<sup>1</sup>sa is the best). (4) In the traditional Sanskrit dictionary to indicate the usage of the word concerned, e.g., B<sup>1</sup>ाo bali-sute शरे (=The word 'b<sup>1</sup>ाo' in the sense of 'the son of Bali', and 'an arrow'). (5) With the words denoting behavior, or conduct, e.g., Adya bhukt<sup>1</sup> aya, tryahne bhokt<sup>1</sup> (=This man would eat today and then on the third day.) / Iha-sthaā aya, kro<sup>॥le</sup> lak-ya, vidhyet (=While standing here, he would pierce the target a mile away.) (6) With the words denoting desire, attachment or respect, e.g., Nidr<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, prasitaā (=desiring to sleep)/

ryo 'smi vinayena vartat<sup>1</sup>m (=May your good self treat him respectfully.) / Sapatn»-jane priya-sakhi-vātti, kuru (=Do treat your co-wives as though they are your beloved friends.) / Sva-yo-iti

ratiā (=Love for one's own wife.) / Deve candragupte dĀ̄ham anuraktaā prakĀ̄tayaā (=The subjects ate strongly attached to His Highness Chandragupta.) Da<sup>a</sup>-a-nĀ̄ty<sup>1</sup>, n<sup>1</sup>ty<sup>1</sup>dĀ̄to 'bhōt (=Was not having much respect for the science of polity.) / Na t<sup>1</sup>pasa-kany<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, mam<sup>1</sup>bhil<sup>1</sup>-aā (= I am not yearning for the ascetic girl) / (7) With the words showing a cause or effect. e.g., daivam eva nĀ̄<sup>a</sup> 1, vĀddhau k-aye ca k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>am (=Destiny is responsible for the rise or the fall of men.) / (8) With the verb formed from the verbal root yuj or others having similar meaning, e.g. K<sup>1</sup>lyapaa ūakuntal<sup>1</sup>m 1rama-dharme niyu; kte (=Kashyap appoints Shakuntala to look after the obligations of the hermitage.) / Trailocyasy<sup>1</sup>pi prabutva, tasmin yujyate (= He is worthy of the kingship of even all the three worlds.) / Upapannam etat tasmin r<sup>1</sup>jar-au (=This is but consistent with that royal seer.)/. (9) With the verbs formed from the verbal roots k-ip, muc, as, pat, e.g., MĀge-u ūar<sup>1</sup>n cik-epa or mumoca (=Shot his arrows to the antelopes) / yogya-sacive r<sup>1</sup>ja-bharaā nyastaā (=The burden of the regal administration was entrusted to the worthy minister.). (10) With the words vy<sup>1</sup>pĀ̄ta, 1sakta, vyagra, tatpara, kuūala, nippu<sup>a</sup>a, ūau<sup>a</sup>āa, e.g. GĀha-karma<sup>a</sup>i vy<sup>1</sup>pĀ̄t<sup>1</sup> or 1sakt<sup>1</sup> or vyagr<sup>1</sup> or tatpar<sup>1</sup> gĀhi<sup>a</sup> (=The house-wife engrossed/ intently occupied/ absorbed in the household work.) / Ak-e-u kuku-aā or nippu<sup>a</sup>aā or ūau<sup>a</sup>āā (=Expert or skilled or proficient in gambling.). (11) With the forms derived from the verbal root apa+r<sup>1</sup>dh, or other ones denoting similar sense, e.g. durv<sup>1</sup>sasi apar<sup>1</sup>ddh<sup>1</sup> ūakuntal<sup>1</sup> (=Shakuntala offended Durv<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>). (12) When the sense of another action being started after one action is completed is sought to be conveyed, through the use of participle (kĀd-anta), e.g., Sōrye asta, gate (=yad<sup>1</sup> sōryaā asta, gataā tad<sup>1</sup>) gop<sup>1</sup>ā gĀham agacchan / R<sup>1</sup>me vana, gate (=yad<sup>1</sup> r<sup>1</sup>maā vana, gataā tad<sup>1</sup>) daūarathaā pr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>n taty<sup>1</sup>ja (=left vital breathes=died) / Sure ūe g<sup>1</sup>yati (=yad<sup>1</sup> sure ūā g<sup>1</sup>yati tad<sup>1</sup>) surve jahasuā (=laughed) / Surve-u ūay<sup>1</sup>ne-u (=yad<sup>1</sup> surve aūeta tad<sup>1</sup>) Ūy<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup> roditi / Such usages where the participles are used in the Locative case as adjectives, the usage is known as Sati saptam or Bh<sup>1</sup>va-saptam (=Locative Absolute).

The Cases Pratham<sup>1</sup>, Dvit<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, TĀ̄ty<sup>1</sup>, Caturth<sup>1</sup>, Pañcam<sup>1</sup> and Saptam<sup>1</sup>, known technically as Kart<sup>1</sup>, Karma, Kara<sup>a</sup>a, Samprad<sup>1</sup>na, Ap<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>na, Adhikara<sup>a</sup>a, respectively, are called the K<sup>1</sup>raka-vibhaktis, because they are concerned with the relation of the subject with the verb in a sentence, while the Sa-h is called the Sambandha-vibhakti, because it is concerned with the relation of belonging between to nouns.

prefix (upasarga), and the latter member is some verb or a form derived from a verbal root, and the whole compound is used as an some noun or adjective, e.g., su-taraā (= very well) / dur-jayaā (=difficult to conquer) / dur-labhaā (= difficult to obtain) / Here, the latter member retains its original form, e.g., jala-muc (=one who releases water, i.e., a cloud), gr̄ma- (=leader of the village) / The an adjunct t (tak̄r̄gama) is added the final i, u or ā of the latter member, e.g., vi॒va+ji > vi॒va+jit = vi॒vajit (=univer- sal conquerer) / k̄rya+kā > k̄rya+kāt = k̄ryakāt (= a worker, manager) / The final ī of the latter member is shortened to a, e.g., dhandā > dhandāā / puraāsārā > puraāsaraā / guh̄lāyā > guh̄lāyāā / jāmbhak̄r̄ā > jāmbhak̄raā / The -in termination is suffixed, e.g., paropak̄rin > paropak̄r̄ (=one who helps others) / madhu+p̄yin > madhup̄y (=one who drinks honey, a honey-bee, a drunkard) / The words bhaj, jan, gam han, and kā become bh̄j, ja, ga, ghna, and kar, respectively, in the latter member, e.g., sukha+bh̄j > sukha-bh̄j, saro+jan > saroja, anu+gam > anu-ga, ñatru+han = ñatrughna, ñoka+kā > ñokakara /

The following examples of the Upapada-sam̄sa should be noted: k̄ma dogdhi = kama+duh > k̄ma-dhuk (=the one who fulfills the wishes) / v̄ra, s̄te = v̄ra+s̄ > v̄ra-s̄ā (=one who gives birth to a heroic child, a hero-mother), svaya, bhavati = svayambh̄ > svayam-bh̄ā (=a self-born one, like Brahm<sup>1</sup>, Vishnu and Mahesh) / vi॒va, jatati = vi॒vajit (=one who conquers the universe) / p̄pa, karoti = p̄pa-kāt (=a sinner) / dv̄ri ti-hati = dv̄ā-sthaā (=a door-keeper) / s̄ma ḡyati = s̄ma-gaā (=a singer of the S̄ma-veda) / guh̄y, ñete = guh̄lāyāā (=one who sleeps in the cave, lying in a cave) / kumbha, karoti = kumbha-k̄ra (=a potter) / bh̄mi, or bhuva, p̄layati = bhumi-p̄laā or bh̄o-p̄laā (=protector of earth, a king) / pare-īm upak̄r̄ = paropak̄r̄ (=obliging others) / jale ñete = jala-ñy (=one who sleeps in the waters, i.e., Lord Narayaā, i.e. Vishnu) / punaā ca punaā ca madhu or madya, pibati = madhu-p̄y or madya-p̄y (= a drunkard) / kula, dō-ayati = kula-dō-aā (=one who stigmatizes the family) / kula, bh̄o-ayati = kula-bh̄o-aā (=one who adorns the family) / ñirasi rohati = ñiroruhaā (=hair on the head) / sukha, bhajati = sukha-bh̄k (=enjoying happiness, happy) / sarasi j̄yate = sarojam

s̄marthya-r̄po(=in the form of the capacity) yo guās te-ī, sa eva bandjan̄ya nimitta, bhavati(=becomes instrumental for) iti etat-k̄raāt sa mukha-do-a / Bak̄s, tatra = tasmin do-e, a-vidyam̄ne sati (=in the absence of that fault), na badhyante = bandhana, na pr̄pnuvanti (=are not subjected to confinement) / Ata eva (=that is why, from this) etat t̄tparya, (=this significance) anum̄yate yat (=is inferred that) mauna, sarv̄tha-s̄dhana, vartate (=silence conduces to success in every objective).

Compounds: Mukha-do-eāa = mukhasya do-aā, tena / ~uka-s̄rik̄ā = ñuk̄ā ca s̄rik̄ā ca / Sarv̄r̄tha-s̄dhanam = sarve arthā srvarthā, te-ī, s̄dhanam / Sth̄na-bhra-ī na ñlobhante dantā keñā nakhā narā / Iti vijñ̄ya matim̄n sva-sth̄na, na pari-tyajet //

Compound: Sth̄na-bhra-īā = sth̄n̄t bhra-īā (=fallen from their proper place) /

Ki, v̄sas̄ tatra vic̄raāya,
V̄saā pradh̄na, khalu yogyat̄yā
Pt̄mbara, v̄k̄ya dadau sva-kanȳ,
Digambara, v̄k̄ya vi-a, samudraā //

Asmin ñloke ñlobhana-vastra-paridh̄nasya (=of putting on excellent dress) mahim̄ (=importance) nir̄pitaā (=has been described) / Prathama-caraēe prañnaā (there is a question in the first quarter.) V̄sas̄ tatra = vastra-paridh̄nā-vi-aye (=in the matter of dressing oneself) ki, vic̄raāyam (=what is to be thought about) ? Kim-artha, vic̄raā kartavyāā? Yatha yasmai rocate tathā vastra-paridh̄na, kartavyam iti bh̄vaā / Tatra uttaram dvit̄ya-caraēe uttara, idam (=there is this answer in the second quarter) yat (=that) v̄saā yogyat̄yāā (=in the matter of fitness) pradh̄nam (=chief consideration) / Tāt̄ye caturthe ca carane ud̄haraāni d̄yante (=in the third and the fourth quarters illustrations are given) / Samudraā pt̄mbara, v̄k̄ya = dā-v̄, sva-kanȳ, lak̄m̄, vi-āave dadau (=having seen the silken yellow garment, the ocean offered his daughter to Lord Vishnu), kin-tu=but digambara, v̄k̄ya ña, kar̄ya vi-a, dadau (= having seen him naked, the ocean gave poison to Lord ~iva) /

Lesson 25
(Pañca-vi, वा पि-हाः)

The Tat-puru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa, has normally two members (padas), of which the first member is the adjective of the second one. But sometimes there may be only one pada also. Tatpuru-a compound can be of seven types, viz., vibhakti-tatpuru-a, nañ-tatpuru-a, karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya, dvigu, pr<sup>1</sup>di-tatpuru-a, gati-tatpuru-a and upapada-tatpuru-a. These types are based on the mutual relation of the two padas forming the compound.

When of the two padas of tatpuru-a compound, the former member (purva-pada) and the latter member (uttara-pada) have a mutual relation of some Case (vibhakti), except the pratham<sup>1</sup>, it is called the vibhakti-tatpuru-a type. In accordance with this Case relation of the two constituent members, this compound can be of six sub-types, such as the dvit<sup>y</sup>-tatpuru-a, tāt<sup>y</sup>-tatpuru-a, caturth<sup>y</sup>-tatpuru-a, pañcam<sup>y</sup>-tatpuru-a, -a---tatpuru-a, and saptam<sup>y</sup>-tatpuru-a, called so by joining the name of the Case with the name 'tatpuru-a'.

Dvit<sup>y</sup>-tatpuru-a: In the tatpuru-a compound of this sub-type, the first member and the second one have the mutual relation of the Accusative Case (dvit<sup>y</sup> vibhakti), e.g., kā-<sup>a</sup>a, ॥ritaā = kā-<sup>a</sup>a-॥ritaā (=one who has taken recourse to Krishna) / duākham at̄taā = duākh<sup>1</sup>taā (= one who has gone beyond unhappiness) / gr<sup>1</sup>ma, gataā = gr<sup>1</sup>ma-gataā = (one who has gone to a village) / naraka, patitaā = naraka-patitaā (=one who has fallen into the hell) / jvīk<sup>1</sup>, pr<sup>1</sup>ptaā = jvīk<sup>1</sup>-pr<sup>1</sup>ptaā (=one who has obtained his living, i.e., salary) / moham<sup>1</sup>pannaā = moh<sup>1</sup>pannaā (=one who has been deluded, or swooned) / sa, vatsara, v<sup>1</sup>saā = sa, vatsara- v<sup>1</sup>saā (=staying for one year) / muhōrta, sukhām = muhōrta-sukhām (=happiness lasting for the duration of an hour and a half, i.e. momentary happiness).

Tāt<sup>y</sup>-tatpuru-a: In the tatpuru-a compound of this sub-type, the first member and the second one have the mutual relation of the Instrumental Case (tāt<sup>y</sup> vibhakti), e.g., matr<sup>1</sup> sad<sup>1</sup>॥laā = mat<sup>1</sup>sad<sup>1</sup>॥laā (=resembling the mother) / bhagini<sup>1</sup> samaā = bhagini->

favorable to pride, i.e., proud) / sutar<sup>1</sup>, nippu<sup>a</sup>aā = sunippu<sup>a</sup>aā (=highly skillful) / ni॥cita, ॥reyaā = ni॥reyasam (=fixed well being, i.e., the final liberation) /

Gati-tatpuru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: In this type of the tatpuru-a compound, the former member is a prefix or some Indeclinable (aviary) word, and the latter member is some Indeclinable (aviary) participle derived from a verbal root, e.g., Ør» kātv<sup>1</sup> = Ør»kātya (=having accepted) / urar» kātv<sup>1</sup> = ur»kātya (=having agreed, sanctioned) / pr<sup>1</sup>duā bhōtv<sup>1</sup> = pradurbhōya (=having manifested) / Similarly, ala, kātv<sup>1</sup> = ala, kātya (=having adorned or ornamented) / tirobhōya (=having disappeared) / asta, gatyā (=having set down, or gone down) / a-satkāya (=having not respected, disrespected, unwelcomed) / Here, in the above instances, since the Gerund (ktv<sup>1</sup>nta = ktv<sup>1</sup>-anta), i.e. the past participle showing relation between two actions, formed by suffixing the termination tv<sup>1</sup>, has been preceded by a prefix, it is replaced by the termination tya, thus making it a lyabanta (=lap-anta). Sometimes, the latter member of the compound is a word derived from a verbal root, e.g., puraā+k<sup>1</sup>raā = purask<sup>1</sup>raā (=the act of making one forward, i.e. promoting, rewarding) / Similarly, satk<sup>1</sup>raā = welcoming, honoring / astamayaā = setting / ala, kātiā = adorning, etc. Sometimes the words known as the cv forms, denoting the act of behaving like something else, is also used as the latter member of the compound, e.g. ॥ukl»-kātya = na ॥uklam > a-॥uklam, a-॥ukla, ॥ukla, sampadyam<sup>1</sup>na, or bhōtv<sup>1</sup> yatha sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> kātv<sup>1</sup> (=having made white, whitened) / *pavitr<sup>1</sup>kātya = a-pavitra, pavitra, kātv<sup>1</sup> yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> = purified, made holy) / ~il»bhōt<sup>1</sup> = a-॥il<sup>1</sup> ॥il<sup>1</sup> sampadyam<sup>1</sup>na or bhōtv<sup>1</sup> yatha sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> kātv<sup>1</sup> (=having transformed into a stone) / Such a compound is formed by suffixing the forms of the verbal roots kā or bhō as the latter member in the compound, and the final vowel of the former member is lengthened by d>rgh<sup>1</sup>de॥a, e.g., d<sup>1</sup>sa+bhōya > d<sup>1</sup>s<sup>2</sup>bhōya, tanu+kātya > tanōkātya. the final ā of the former member is replaced by r, e.g., pitr<sup>1</sup>kātya / The final n or s of the former member is dropped, e.g., bhasman+kātya > bhasm<sup>1</sup>kātya / unmanas+bhōya > unman<sup>1</sup>bhōya /*

Upapada-tatpuru-a-sa<sup>1</sup>sa: In this type of tatpuru-a compound the former member is some Indeclinable (avyaya) or an

Lesson 26
(‘advi, लाा P<sup>1</sup>-haा)

Pr<sup>1</sup>di-vibhakti-tatpuru-a: In this type of the tatpuru-a compound the former member is some prefix and the latter member is some noun, and the two members have some mutual Case relation, e.g., atikr<sup>1</sup>ntaा m<sup>1</sup>/’m = atim<sup>1</sup>laा (= better than the garland) / adhy<sup>1</sup>r0@h<sup>1</sup>ā ratham = adhirath<sup>1</sup>ā / Pragataा adhvam = pr<sup>1</sup>dhvaा (=gone very far off on the road) / atikr<sup>1</sup>taा r<sup>1</sup>trim = atir<sup>1</sup>traा / upagataा antyam = up<sup>1</sup>ntyaा (=near to the last, last but one) / avakA-aा kokilay<sup>1</sup> = avakokilaा (=attracted by the cuckoo) / sannaddhaा arthena = samarthaा (=well bound with the purpose, or objective, or money) / pariml<sup>1</sup>naा adhyayan<sup>1</sup>ya (= bored of studying) / vigataा lak-a<sup>2</sup>1t = vilak-a<sup>2</sup>aा (=without characteristics, i.e., peculiar) / Similarly, vir0pa, vyarthaा, etc. nirgataा ’nand<sup>1</sup>t = nir<sup>1</sup>nandaा (=bereft of joy, joyless), nirgalaा argal<sup>1</sup>t (=gone out of the bolt, i.e., beyond control) / nirgataा kalaj<sup>1</sup>t = ni-kalaj kaा (=free from blemish, immaculate, faultless,) / udgat<sup>1</sup> k0l<sup>1</sup>t = utk0l<sup>1</sup> (=woman gone out of the family decorum, i.e., a wanton woman, or a river that has flooded beyond its banks) / Similarly, utpathaा or unm<sup>1</sup>rgaa (= the wrong path), etc. / apagataा siddh<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup>t = apashiddh<sup>1</sup>ntaा (=bereft of any principles, wrong doctrine) / apagataা arth<sup>1</sup>t = ap<sup>1</sup>rhaा (=bereft of purpose, purposeless, useless) / adhara, j<sup>1</sup>nunaा = adhoj<sup>1</sup>nu (=lower than the knee) / arthasya yogyaा = yath<sup>1</sup>rhaা (=in keeping with the objective, i.e., proper) / arha<sup>2</sup>asya yogyaা = yath<sup>1</sup>rhaা (=in keeping with the worthiness, i.e., worthy) / su-hu bh<sup>1</sup>-itam = subh<sup>1</sup>-itam (=well said, i.e., pithy saying) / samyak pa-hitam = supa-hitam (=well studied) / pr<sup>1</sup>rambh<sup>1</sup>aा ahnaা = pr<sup>1</sup>h<sup>2</sup>aা (=day-dawn, morning) / k0lam anugataা = anuk0laা (=corresponding to the family or the river bank, i.e., convenient) / Similarly, anur0paা (=corresponding to the form, i.e., similar, befitting) / anvarthaা (=corresponding to the purpose, i.e., true to the sense, appropriate) / rathena virahitaা (=bereft of a chariot) / pak<sup>1</sup>t bhinna or virahitaা = vipak-a (=out of the favour, i.e., unfavourable, opposite) / »at raktaা = raktaা (=slightly red)

samaা (=likehis sister) / ekena Ønaা = ekonaা (=short by one, one less than) / m<sup>1</sup>sena pØrvaা = m<sup>1</sup>sa-pØrvaা (=previous, or elder by, one month) / lava<sup>2</sup>ena mi॥raা = lava<sup>2</sup>a-mi॥raা (=mixed with salt) / ekena adhikaা = ek<sup>1</sup>dhikam (=more by one, one more)/ hari<sup>2</sup>1 tr<sup>1</sup>taা = hari-tr<sup>1</sup>taা (=saved by God) / nakhena bhinnaা = nakha-bhinnaা (=broken, or pierced, by finger-nails or claws)/ jalena ’rdraা = jal<sup>1</sup>rdraা (= moist with water) / dadh<sup>1</sup> odanaা = dadhyodanaা (=rice with yogurt) / k<sup>2</sup>re<sup>2</sup>a odanaা = k<sup>2</sup>rodanaা (=rice with milk) / gu<sup>2</sup>ena dh<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup> = gu<sup>2</sup>a-dh<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup> (=coriander seeds with jaggery /)

Caturth<sup>2</sup>-tatpuru-a: In the tatpuru-a compound of this subtype, the first member and the second one have the mutual relation of the Dative Case (caturth<sup>2</sup> vibhakti), e.g., dvij<sup>1</sup>rtha, payaা = dvij<sup>1</sup>rtha-payaা (=milk meant for a Brahmin)/ Similarly, dvij<sup>1</sup>rtha-caruা (=sacrificial food meant for Brahmin) / dvij<sup>1</sup>rtha-dak-i<sup>2</sup>1 (=ceremonial gift for Brahmin) / In such a compound, a form of the pronoun idam has to be mentioned in lieu of the word artha, e.g. dvij<sup>1</sup>rtha, = dvij<sup>1</sup>ya ayam (=for Brahmin) / bh0tebhyaা baliা = bh0ta-baliা (=oblation meant for the goblins, or elements) / netr<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, sukham = netra-sukham (= pleasing to the two eyes) / yajñ<sup>1</sup>ya rak-itam = yajñ<sup>1</sup>a-rak-itam (=preserved for sacrifice)/ gave hitam = go-hitam (=beneficial to the cows) / y0p<sup>1</sup>ya d<sup>1</sup>ru = y0pa-d<sup>1</sup>ru (=wood for sacrificial post) / odan<sup>1</sup>ya ॥<sup>1</sup>layaaা = odana-॥<sup>1</sup>layaaা (=rice grains meant for making cooked rice)/ ku<sup>2</sup>ala-hira<sup>2</sup>am = ku<sup>2</sup>ala-hira<sup>2</sup>am (= gold meant for making ear-rings)/

Pañcam<sup>2</sup>-tatpuru-a: In the tatpuru-a compound of this subtype, the first member and the second one have the mutual relation of the Ablative Case (pañcam<sup>2</sup> vibhakti), e.g., caur<sup>1</sup>t bhayam = caura-bhayam (=fear from a thief) / vy<sup>1</sup>ghr<sup>1</sup>t bh<sup>2</sup>taা = vy<sup>1</sup>ghra-bh<sup>2</sup>taা (=afraid of a tiger) / sukh<sup>1</sup>t apetaা = sukh<sup>1</sup>petaা (=away from, i.e., bereft of, happiness= unhappy) / gA<sup>h</sup><sup>1</sup>t apo<sup>2</sup>haা = gA<sup>h</sup><sup>1</sup>po<sup>2</sup>haা (=kidnapped away from the house) / hast<sup>1</sup>t muktaা = hasta-muktaা (=freed, or shot, from the hands)/ svarg<sup>1</sup>t patitaা = svarga-patitaা (=fallen from heaven) / taraj<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>t apa-trastaা = taraj<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>patrastaা (=distressed by the waves)/

।a-ḥ-tatpuru-a: In the tatpuru-a compound of this sub-type, the first member and the second one have the mutual relation of the Genitive Case (।a-ḥ-vibhakti), e.g., bhojanasya vel<sup>1</sup> = bhojana-vel<sup>1</sup> (=time for taking food)/ mṛkha<sup>1a</sup>, ॥atam = mṛkha-॥atam (= a group of hundred fools)/ tasya upari = tad-upari (=above it, moreover)/ If the former member denotes the whole thing and the latter member denotes a part of it, the also such a compound is formed, but in its dissolution (vigraha) the member denoting the whole thing is put in the Genitive Case, e.g., pṛvva, k<sup>1</sup>yasya = pṛvva-k<sup>1</sup>yaā (=upper, or former, or front, part of the body) / ahnaā pṛrvam = pṛv<sup>1</sup>h<sup>2</sup>aā (= the former part of the day, i.e., morning)/ ahnaā madhyam = madhy<sup>1</sup>hnaā (=midday, middle of the day, i.e., noon)/ ahnaā s<sup>1</sup>yam = s<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>hnaā (= latter part of the day, i.e., evening)/ sa, vatsara, mātasya = sa, vatsara-mātaā (=died before one year, one year since he expired) /

Saptam»-tatpuru-a: In the tatpuru-a compound of this sub-type, the first member and the second one have the mutual relation of the Locative Case (saptam» vibhakti), e.g., avasare pr<sup>1</sup>ptaā = avasara-pr<sup>1</sup>ptaā (=arrived on the occasion) / si, h<sup>1</sup>sane sthitaā = si, h<sup>1</sup>sana-sthitaā or si, h<sup>1</sup>sana-sthaā (=sitting on the royal throne) / tapē ॥u-kaā = tapē ॥u-kaā (=dried in the sunshine) / ak-e-u ॥au<sup>a</sup>ā = ak-a-॥au<sup>a</sup>ā (=skilled in gambling)/ sabh<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, pa<sup>a</sup>ōitaā = sabh<sup>1</sup>-pa<sup>a</sup>ōitaā (= court savant, wise man appointed as such in an assembly) / ॥<sup>1</sup>stre-u prav<sup>»a</sup>ā = ॥<sup>1</sup>stra-prav<sup>»a</sup>ā (=proficient in scriptures, or sciences)/ v<sup>1</sup>ci pa-uā = v<sup>1</sup>k-pa-uā (=clever in speech) / puru-e-u uttamaā = puru-ottamaā (= the best among men, i.e., God) / nā-u ॥re-ḥaā = nara-॥re-ḥaā (=the best among men)/ manuje-u ॥re-ḥaā = manuja-॥re-ḥaā =best among the human beings) / dvije-u ॥re-ḥaā = dvija-॥re-ḥaā (=the best among the twice-born ones, i.e., the Brahmins, the birds)/

The following compounds are irregular (a-niyamita): anyasya k<sup>1</sup>rakaā = anyat-k<sup>1</sup>rakaā (=doing other things) / udakasya kumbhaā = udaka-kumbhaā (=a pitcher of water) / udakasya dhiā = uda-dhiā (=collection, or mass, of water, i.e., sea, or ocean)/ gav<sup>1</sup>m ak-i iva = gav<sup>1</sup>k-aā (=an ellipsoid small window)/ gav<sup>1</sup>, ॥<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup> = go॥<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup> (=cowshed)/ dinasya ardham = din<sup>1</sup>rdham or ardha-dinam (=half-day, midday) / de॥asya madhyam = madhyade॥aā or de॥a-

adjective, e.g., pragataā ॥c<sup>1</sup>ryaā = pr<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>ryaā / prakĀ-॥aā v<sup>1</sup>taā = prav<sup>1</sup>taā / prakĀ-॥aā adhv<sup>1</sup> = pr<sup>1</sup>dhvaā / kutsitaā ॥abdaā = ku॥abdaā / apakĀ-॥aā ॥abdaā = apa॥abdaā / vipar॥taā m<sup>1</sup>rgaā = vim<sup>1</sup>rgaā / vibhinnaā de॥aā = vide॥aā / ati॥layitaā vegaā = ativegaā / pratikĀlaā yodhaā = pratiyoshaā / adhikaā patiā = adhipatiā / adhikaā r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> = adhir<sup>1</sup>jaā / adhi-॥tā daivatam = adhidaiyatam, adhidevat<sup>1</sup> / The prefix in the former member is sometimes used as an Indeclinable, e.g., prakar-e<sup>a</sup>a ca<sup>a</sup>ōaā = praca<sup>a</sup>ōaā / prakĀ-॥aā, tanuā = pratanuā / ati॥aya, kĀ-॥aā = atikĀ॥aā / ati॥ayena dōraā = atidōraā / at॥vadur<sup>1</sup>paā = sudur<sup>1</sup>paā (=very much difficult to obtain) /

he ~vra ! ru~en api = tva, kevaala, kruddha~abhavasi tad<sup>1</sup> api (=even when you get angry only), t<sup>1</sup>dA~ena tvay<sup>1</sup>, aria = satruå (=enemy) samaå=sama-talaå=bhØmau patitaå (=lying flat on the earth), Kåtaå (=has been rendered) /

The poet has tried to entertain the readers by using his poetic skill of using the compounds in such a way that the real meaning remains hidden until the compounds are not dissolved properly, and the apparent sense of the verse looks rather funny. Thus, apparently it looks as if, the verse is addressed to some person who is normally remains dejected, maintains himself by begging alms, and is ever subjected to disease, but due to his short-temperament, he has committed the rashness of making enmity with no less a God like ~iva! It is a sort of parody!! But, the really intended sense is the eulogy of Lord ~iva, who has gulped the deadly poison K<sup>1</sup>kakØ-a, lives on alms, never leaves the Himalyan mountains, and has, by mere anger, rendered K<sup>1</sup>madeva, the god-of-love, flat, in the form of a heap of ashes, on earth! Such a mighty hero is Lord Shiva, that his mere anger is enough to lay down the enemy flat on the ground!!

Now, let us get acquainted with the rest of the types of the tatpuru-a compound:

Pr<sup>1</sup>di-tatpur-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa has some of the prefixes (pra-<sup>1</sup>di, i.e., the upa-sargas) as the former member of the compound. P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ini has listed, in his Ga<sup>a</sup>a-p<sup>1</sup>-ha, all the twenty-two uapsaargas in a søtra beginning with pra, and hence he refers to them Pr<sup>1</sup>di, i.e., pra, etc. Hence this nomenclature of the compound. For instance, ati-r<sup>1</sup>traå (=lasting beyond the night)/ vi-rØpaå (=bereft of beauty, ugly) / anu-k<sup>1</sup>laå (=corresponding time) / While dissolving such compounds we have to add some such words., like gata, kr<sup>1</sup>nta in the vigraha-v<sup>1</sup>kya and make some adjective like pra-gata or ati-kr<sup>1</sup>nta for the purpose, e.g., ati-kr<sup>1</sup>nt<sup>1</sup> ca r<sup>1</sup>try<sup>1</sup>å iti ati-r<sup>1</sup>raå (y<sup>1</sup>gaå) /

Pr<sup>1</sup>di-karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya: Some of the pr<sup>1</sup>di-tatpur-a compounds are of the karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya type, too. In such a compound, the former member is some prefix and the latter member is some

madhyam (=central part of a country, middle country)/ puru~asya yu~am = puru~yu~am (=human life-span)/ bÅhat<sup>1</sup>, patiå = bÅhaspatiå (= Brihaspati, the preceptor of the gods)/ ma<sup>a</sup>Øk<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, saraå = ma<sup>a</sup>Øka-saraå (=a pond full of frogs)/ vanasya patiå= vanaspatiå (=a large forest tree) / vi~vasya mitram = vi~v<sup>1</sup>mitraå (=the seer named Vishvamitra) / hÅdaya lokaå = hÅdaya-lokaå or hÅchokaå (=heart pain, heartfelt sorrow) / ~vare adhi = ~var<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>naå (=depending on God)/ r<sup>1</sup>jñi adi = r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>naå (=depending on the king, subject to the scope of king)/

Now, recite aloud the following verses and their explanations, trying to grasp their meaning:

KastØr<sup>1</sup> j<sup>1</sup>yate kasm<sup>1</sup> ko hanti kari<sup>a</sup>a, kulam /
Ki, kury<sup>1</sup>t k<sup>1</sup>taro yuddhe mÅg<sup>1</sup>t si, ho pal<sup>1</sup>yanam //
Antar<sup>1</sup>I<sup>1</sup>po 'yam (=this is an internal dialogue), prastutaå (=has been presented) / Asmin ~loke prathama-dvit<sup>1</sup>ya-tÅtya-cara<sup>a</sup>e-u (=in the first, second and the third quarters), pra~ln<sup>1</sup>å (=questions) pradatt<sup>1</sup>å (=have been given) / Caturtha-cara<sup>a</sup>e kram<sup>1</sup>t (=serially, i.e., one by one), pratyekasya (=of every) pra~lnasya uttara, (=reply) pradattam / Yath<sup>1</sup> (= For example, instance) - mÅg<sup>1</sup>t - si, haå / pal<sup>1</sup>yanam / Uttara<sup>1</sup>i tu eva, bhavanti / KastØr<sup>1</sup> kasm<sup>1</sup> t j<sup>1</sup>yate (= wherefrom is the deer-musk created)? MÅg<sup>1</sup>t (=from a deer, or antelope)/ kar<sup>a</sup>1, kula, kaå hanti (=who kills the horde of elephants)? Si, haå (=a lion) / K<sup>1</sup>taraå (=a timid person) yuddhe ki, kury<sup>1</sup>t (= what would he do)? Pal<sup>1</sup>yanam (=running away, elopement)/ The fun in this verse is in the apparent funny statement in the last quarter, which would mean: 'A lion flees from a deer!'

S<sup>1</sup>mantin<sup>1</sup>u k<sup>1</sup> ~nt<sup>1</sup> r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> ko'dbhuta-gu<sup>a</sup>ottamaå /
Vidvadbhiå k<sup>1</sup> sad<sup>1</sup> vandy<sup>1</sup> atravokta, na budhyate //
Ayam apy-antar<sup>1</sup>I<sup>1</sup>paå/ Asmin ~loke prathama-dvit<sup>1</sup>ya-tÅtya-cara<sup>a</sup>e-u (=in the first, second and the third quarters), pra~ln<sup>1</sup>å (=questions) pradatt<sup>1</sup>å (=have been given) / Caturtha-cara<sup>a</sup>e kram<sup>1</sup>t (=serially, i.e., one by one), pratyekasya (=of every) pra~lnasya uttara, (=reply) pratyekasya cara<sup>a</sup>asya (=of every quarter) dy-ak-aram anty<sup>1</sup>k-ara, ca (=the first and the last syllable) melayitv<sup>1</sup> (=by combining) pr<sup>1</sup>pyate (=is obtained) /

Kā r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> adbhu-ta-gu<sup>a</sup>ottamaā = adbhu-tā ॥ carya-k<sup>1</sup>rak<sup>1</sup>ā gu<sup>a</sup>1ā
yasya santi saā, vartate (=exists, happens to be) ? r<sup>1</sup>+maā= r<sup>1</sup>maā (= Rama) /Vidvadbhiā sad<sup>1</sup> k<sup>1</sup> vandy<sup>1</sup>? vi+dy<sup>1</sup>ā = vidyaā (=learning, or sciences ) /

Kā kau ke ka, kau k<sup>1</sup>n hasati ca
hasato hasanti hari<sup>a</sup>1k-y<sup>1</sup>ā / Adharaā pallavam aī ghr» ha, sau
kundasya korak<sup>1</sup>n dant<sup>1</sup>ā //

Antar<sup>1</sup>1po 'yam (=this is an internal dialogue), prastutaā
(=has been presented) / Asmin ॥loke prathama-dvit<sup>1</sup>ya—cara<sup>a</sup>yoā (=in the first, and the second quarters), pra॥n<sup>1</sup>ā (=questions)
pradatt<sup>1</sup>ā (=have been given) / TĀt<sup>1</sup>ya-caturtha-cara<sup>a</sup>yoā kram<sup>1</sup>t (=serially, i.e., one by one), pratyekasya (=of every) pra॥nasya
uttara, (=reply) pradattam / Tatra (=Thus), pra॥n<sup>1</sup>ā uttar<sup>1</sup>i ca krame<sup>a</sup> yath<sup>1</sup> (= the questions and the answers are, like this, respectively) – Kā ka, hasati (=who laughs at whom)? Hari<sup>a</sup>1-k-y<sup>1</sup>ā = hari<sup>a</sup>asyaā ak-i<sup>a</sup> iva ak-i<sup>a</sup> yasy<sup>1</sup>ā s<sup>1</sup>, tasy<sup>1</sup>ā (= of the deer-eyed woman, i.e., a beautiful damsel) adharaā pallava, hasati/Tasy<sup>1</sup>ā kau kau hasataā (=her what two laugh at whom two)? Tasy<sup>1</sup>ā
ak-i<sup>a</sup> aī ghr» ha, sau hasataā (=her two feet laugh at the swans) /
Tasy<sup>1</sup>ā ke k<sup>1</sup>n hasanti (=her what limbs laugh at what things)?
Tasy<sup>1</sup>ā dant<sup>1</sup>ā kundasya korak<sup>1</sup>n hasanti (=her teeth laugh at the buds of the jasmine flower) /

Tatpru-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: The nañ-tatpuru-a compound denotes the sense of negation, as expressed by nañ (= na) / In such a compound the first syllable is a (= na = not) where the word begins with a consonant, e.g., a-jñ<sup>1</sup>nam = na jñ<sup>1</sup>nam (=absence of knowledge, i.e., ignorance) / a-sandehaā = na sandehaā (=absence of doubt, doubtless)/ a-krodaā = na krodaā (=absence of anger, i.e., patience)/ na n̄tiā = an̄tiā (=absence of morality, i.e., immorality) / a-pa-aā = na pa-aā (=non-cloth, i.e., something else than cloth) / na sitaā= a-sitaā (=non-white, i.e., black)/ na sm̄tv<sup>1</sup> = a- sm̄tv<sup>1</sup> (=having not remembered, i.e., forgotten) / But, where the word begins with a vowel, the negative particle na is replaced by an, e.g., na 1rambhaā = an- 1rambhaā (=absence of beginning, i.e., non-beginning) / na udara, yasy<sup>1</sup>ā s<sup>1</sup> = an-udar<sup>1</sup> (=one who has no noun and long vowel, and to antya-»k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>de॥a (i.e., →) of the final a, e.g., dvayoā gavoā sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā = dvi-gavam / ppañc<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, va-1n<sup>1</sup>,

sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā = pañca-va-» / Sapt<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, pad<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā=sapta-pad» phal<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā = tri-phal<sup>1</sup> / catur<sup>a</sup>1, yug<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā =
/ Catōr<sup>a</sup>1, s1a1, sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ā=catuā-sōtr» /

But, tray<sup>1</sup>a1, bhuvan<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā = tribhuvanam / tray<sup>1</sup>a1,
catur-yugam / pañc<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>, p<sup>1</sup>tr<sup>1</sup>a1, sam<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>raā = pañca-p<sup>1</sup>tram /
Similarly, pañc<sup>1</sup>gam (an almanac, having five aspects), dvyahaā
(= two days), tri-patham (=a junction of three roads), catuā॥1lam
(= a place having four rooms), ~-karma (= the group of six religious rituals, viz., ॥auca, mukha-m<sup>1</sup>rgjana, sn<sup>1</sup>na, sandhy<sup>1</sup>-vndana, sv<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>ya and vai॥va-deva).

Now, recite aloud the following verse along with its explanation, trying to grasp its meaning:

Vi-1d» bhaik<sup>1</sup>-am a॥n<sup>1</sup>ti sad<sup>1</sup>-roga, na muñcati /
Ru-en<sup>1</sup>pi tvay<sup>1</sup> v̄ra ॥ambhun<sup>1</sup>riā sama-kl̄taā //

Sam<sup>1</sup>sa-guptam idam / Asmin ॥loke am<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>ā gupta-rōpe<sup>a</sup> (=in the hidden form) vartante / Prathama-d̄-y<sup>1</sup> (= at first sight) tu
 (=however) et<sup>1</sup>d̄॥laā (=such) arthaā (=a sense) pratib<sup>1</sup>ti (=appears) yad (=that) vi-1d» = lok<sup>1</sup>turaā = khinnaā (=sorrowful, dejected), bhaik<sup>1</sup>yyam = bhik<sup>1</sup>ay<sup>1</sup> labdham annam (=the food obtained by begging alms) a॥n<sup>1</sup>ti = kh<sup>1</sup>dati (=eats) / Api ca (=moreover), sad<sup>1</sup>-roga, =sarvad<sup>1</sup> lagna, (=permanent, chronic)
roga, (=disease) na muñcati (=does not give up) / Kad<sup>1</sup>pi sv<sup>1</sup>sthya- yuktaā na bhavati (=is never cured, or never regains health) / tath<sup>1</sup>pi
 (=even then) t<sup>1</sup>d̄॥ena tvay<sup>1</sup> ru-ena = yad<sup>1</sup> krodh-yuktaā bhavasi
tad<sup>1</sup> (=when you get angry), ॥ambhun<sup>1</sup> samaā = ॥ambhu-sad<sup>1</sup>॥ā (=like ~ivaā) ariā kl̄taā = (=made an enemy) / Kin-tu (=but),
n<sup>1</sup>ya, kaveā abhipretaā (=intended) arthaā / Yad<sup>1</sup> guptaā = nil<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ā (= hidden) sam<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>ā udgh<sup>1</sup>-yante (=opened up) tad<sup>1</sup> arthaā et<sup>1</sup>d̄॥laā
vartate / Tad-yath<sup>1</sup> (=for instance) – vi-1d» = vi-a, k<sup>1</sup>lak<sup>0</sup>-am (=deadly poison) atti (=eats, gulps) iti saā = ~ivaā, iti tatpuru-a-
sam<sup>1</sup>saā / ~a-d<sup>1</sup>ro 'ga, na muñcati / D<sup>1</sup>raiā saha vartate iti sa-d<sup>1</sup>raā / ~ivaā sad<sup>1</sup> ardha-n<sup>1</sup>r»-na-e॥vara-rōpe<sup>a</sup> vartate ity-arthaā / Sā a- ga, = na gacchati iti a-gaā=parvataā him<sup>1</sup>laya-rōpaā (=the mountain, i.e. the Him<sup>1</sup>layas), na muñcati (=never deserts) / ~iva
sadaiva him<sup>1</sup>laye eva ni-vasati ity-arthaā / Et<sup>1</sup>Ā-ena ॥abhu<sup>1</sup> tvay<sup>1</sup>,

¶<sup>1</sup>ka-priyā p<sup>1</sup>rthivaā = ¶<sup>1</sup>ka-p<sup>1</sup>rthivaā (=a king, or a person, who likes vegetables) / Similarly, deva-pujakaā br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>ā = deva-br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>ā (=a Brahmin worshipping the deity) / ch<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>-pradh<sup>1</sup>naā taruā = ch<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>-taruā (=a shady tree)/ vi-a-mifram annam = vi-<sup>1</sup>nnam (=poisoned food)/ icch<sup>1</sup>-kĀtaā bhogaā = icch<sup>1</sup>-bhogaā (=the wished-for enjoyment) / agni-preritaā rathaā = agni-rathaā (=the chariot driven by fire)/ abhijñ<sup>1</sup>na-smĀt<sup>1</sup> ¶akuntal<sup>1</sup> = abhijñ<sup>1</sup>na-¶akuntal<sup>1</sup> (=Shakuntala remembered by a token of recognition)/

The following karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya compounds are irregular, and are called mayōra-vya, sak<sup>1</sup>di-sam<sup>1</sup>sa, e.g., mayōraā ca asau vya, sakaā (=cunning) = mayōra-vyasakaā / vi¶i-a, tejaā = tejo-vi¶e-aā (=extraordinary majesty) / vi¶i-aā atithiā= atithi-vi¶e-aā (=special guest)/ vi¶i-aā satk<sup>1</sup>raā = satk<sup>1</sup>ra-vi¶e-aā (=particular welcome) / adhamaa r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>=r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>dhamaaā (=bad king) / hatakaā duryodhanaā = duryodhana-hatakaā (= wretched Duryodhan) / apasadaā naraā = nar<sup>1</sup>pasadaā (=a vile man)/ t<sup>1</sup>pase-a¶ ca asau kunñjara¶ = kuñjaraā t<sup>1</sup>pasaā = t<sup>1</sup>pasa-kuñjaraā (=an elephant, i.e., a mighty one among the ascetics = an excellent ascetic) / puru-a¶ ca asau n<sup>1</sup>a¶ca = puru-a-n<sup>1</sup>gaā (= a cobra, i.e., highly sensitive and dangerous man, or a notable man) / kĀtakaā putraā = putra-kĀtakaā (=the one who has been taken as a son) / anyaa r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> = r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup>ntaram (=another king) / anyat janma = janm<sup>1</sup>ntaram (= another birth) / cid eva=cin-m<sup>1</sup>tram (=consciousness only, pure consciousness) / na asti bhaya, kutaā api asya = a-kutobhayaā (=the one who has no fear from anywhere) / na asti kiñ-cana asya = a-kiñcana (=having nothing of his own, a fully utterly poor, indigent person) / One should remember that, generally, the Gender of the karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya compound is the same as that of the latter member in it. If there is the word r<sup>1</sup>tri or ahan, or one having a final long vowel, it is replaced by final a (a-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>ny<sup>1</sup>de-a), making them r<sup>1</sup>tra, aha, etc. This is called antya-hrasv<sup>1</sup>de¶a, e.g., pØrva, r<sup>1</sup>try<sup>1</sup>ā=pØrva-r<sup>1</sup>tram (=fore-night)/madhy<sup>1</sup>hnam(=midday, noon) /

Dvigu-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: In the dvigu compound, the former member (pØrva-pada) is a numerical adjective (ṣa<sup>1</sup>khy<sup>1</sup>-v<sup>1</sup>caka-vi¶e-a<sup>a</sup>a), except eka, and the whole compound denotes a group or a collection of things. The latter member in it is subjected to antya-hrasv<sup>1</sup>de¶a of the final

belly, i.e., a girl whose waist so thin as almost non-existent) / The following tatpuru-a compounds are irregular: na panth<sup>1</sup>ā =a-panth<sup>1</sup> or a-patham (=contrary to the proper path, i.e., bad way)/ na puman na str» =na-pu, sakaā (=an eunuch) / na mitram =a-mitram (=a non-friend, i.e., an enemy)/

Karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: In the karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya compound, of the two members, either the former or the latter one expresses the sense of comparison. In comparing one thing to another, the thing compared is called the upameya, e.g., mukham (=face), while the thing with which it is compared is called upam<sup>1</sup>na, i.e., candraā (=the Moon). The karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya compound in which the former member denotes an upam<sup>1</sup>na is called the upam<sup>1</sup>na-pØrvapada-karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya. e.g., Ghanaā iva fly<sup>1</sup>maā = Ghana-fly<sup>1</sup>maā (=dark like a cloud. i.e. Lord R<sup>1</sup>ma or Lord Krishna)/ Candraā iva sundaram = candra-sundaram (=beautiful like the Moon)/ vidyut iva cañcalam =vidyuc-cañcalam (=unsteady, or fleeting, like the lightning) / himaā iva ¶i¶raā = hima-¶i¶raā (=cool like ice, ice-cold).

The karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya compound in which the former member denotes an upameya is called the upameya-pØrvapada-karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya. e.g., puru-a vy<sup>1</sup>ghraā iva = puru-a-vy<sup>1</sup>ghraā (=tiger-like, i.e., cruel and rash man) / mukha, kamalam iva = mukha-kamalam (=lotus-like face)/ v<sup>1</sup>lmik<sup>1</sup>eva kokilaā = v<sup>1</sup>lmik<sup>1</sup>-kokilaā (=a cuckoo in the form of the seer V<sup>1</sup>lm<sup>1</sup>ki) / kavit<sup>1</sup> eva ¶<sup>1</sup>kh<sup>1</sup> = kavit<sup>1</sup>-¶<sup>1</sup>kh<sup>1</sup> (=a branch in the form of poetry)/ padam aravindam iva or padam eva aravindam = pad<sup>1</sup>ravindam (=lotus-like foot, or lotus in the form of a foot) /

Now, recite aloud the following verses along with their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

*Kar<sup>1</sup>ravindena pad<sup>1</sup>rvinda,
Mukh<sup>1</sup>ravinde vinive¶ayantam/
Va-asya patrasya pu-e ¶ay¶ha,
B<sup>1</sup>la, mukunda, mans<sup>1</sup> smar<sup>1</sup>mi //*
Karaā=hastaā, eva aravinda, -kamalam, iti ka<sup>1</sup>ravinda, = hasta-kamala, , tena (=by the lotus-like hand), pad<sup>1</sup>rvinda, = cara<sup>a</sup>a-kamala, (=the lotus-like foot), mukharvinde= <sup>1</sup>sy-a-kamale= (=in the lotus-like mouth), vi-ni-ve¶ayanta, = vi¶e-a-rØpe<sup>a</sup>

sth<sup>1</sup>payanta, (=putting specially or particularly), b<sup>1</sup>la, =॥i॥u-svarōpa, (=child or infant), mukunda, =kā-<sup>a</sup>a, (=to Krishna), manas<sup>1</sup> (=by the mind, mentally), smar<sup>1</sup>mi (= I remember).

Kōjanta, r<sup>1</sup>ma r<sup>1</sup>meti madhura, madhur<sup>1</sup>k-aram / ruhya kavit<sup>1</sup>-॥kha, vande v<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ki-kokilam //

Kavita-॥kh<sup>1</sup>, = kavit<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>ā, r<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>a</sup>a-mah<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>vya-rōpasya vĀ-kasya ॥kh<sup>1</sup>, (= on the branch in the form of poetry, i.e., of the tree in the form of the great epic, the R<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ya<sup>a</sup>am), aruhya= <sup>1</sup>roha<sup>a</sup>a, kĀtv<sup>1</sup> (=having ascended), madhura, =madhura, yath<sup>1</sup>sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> (=sweetly), madhur<sup>1</sup>k-ara, =madhuraiā ak-araiā yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> (=with sweet words), r<sup>1</sup>ma r<sup>1</sup>meti = he r<sup>1</sup>ma! he r<sup>1</sup>ma iti (=like 'O R<sup>1</sup>ma! O R<sup>1</sup>ma!') kōjanta, =kōjana, kurvanta, (=cooing, warbling), v<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>ki-kokila, =v<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ki-mahar-i-rōpa, kokila, (=to the seer Valmiki in the form of a cuckoo), vande=namaskaromi (=I bow down, salute) /

The karma-dh<sup>1</sup>aya compound, in which the former member is a qualifying adjective, is called the viʃe-<sup>a</sup>a-pōrva-pada-karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya, e.g., gambh̄raā (=deeply resonant) n<sup>1</sup>daā (=voice, sound) = gambh̄ra-n<sup>1</sup>daā / uttamaā (=best, topmost) janaā (=person) = uttama-janaā / ghora, (=dangerous) vanam (forest) = ghoravanam / While dissolving such a compound, it is customary to use a form of the pronoun adas (M.) with the substantive of the Masculine and Feminine Gender, and that of the pronoun tad (N.) with the substantive of the Neuter Gender, e.g., uttamaā ca asau janaā = uttama-janaā / ghora, ca tad vanam = ghora-vanam /

The karma-dh<sup>1</sup>aya compound, in which the both the members are qualifying adjectives, is called the viʃe-<sup>a</sup>obhaya-pada-karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya, e.g., ॥ta, ca u-<sup>a</sup>a, ca =॥to-<sup>a</sup>am (=cold and warm) / ॥uklaā ca kĀ-<sup>a</sup>a ca = ॥ukla-kĀ-<sup>a</sup>am (=white and black, i.e., black and white) / daū sn<sup>1</sup>taā (=bathed first) pa॥c<sup>1</sup>t anuliptaā (=then anointed) = sn<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>nuliptaā / daū suptaā (=asleep) pa॥cat utthitaā (=awoke) = suptothittaā / kĀta, ca a-kĀta, ca = kĀt<sup>1</sup>kĀtam = (done and undone, or not properly done) /

Sometimes, when the sense of 'good' or 'bad' is to be conveyed, the prefix su (=su-hu or ॥obhanam=good, excellent) or ku (=kutsitam=bad) is put as the former member of a karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya compound., e.g., *su-*hu*ā* or ॥obhanaā *puru-*aā or janaā = *su-puru-*aā or su-janaā (=a good man) / *su-*hu*ā* or ॥obhanaā m<sup>1</sup>rgaā or panth<sup>1</sup> = su-m<sup>1</sup>rgaā or su-pathaā (=a good path, excellent way) / kutsitaā m<sup>1</sup>rgaā or panth<sup>1</sup> = ku-m<sup>1</sup>gaā or ku-pathaā (=bad path, or evil way) / Sometimes, when the latter member (uttara-pada) has an initial vowel, or a semi-vowel, the prefix ku is replaced by kat, thus ku+a॥vaā > kat+a॥vaā > kad (by coale- scence) + a॥vaā = kada॥vaā (= bad horse) / ku+rathaā > kat+ rathaā > kad+rathaā = kadrathaā (=a bad chariot)/ ku+ u-<sup>a</sup>am > kat+u-<sup>a</sup>am > kad+u-<sup>a</sup>am = kadu-<sup>a</sup>am or ko-<sup>a</sup>am (= slightly hot, warm)/ ku+rōpam = kurōpam or kat+rōpam > kad+rōpam = kadrōpam (=badly shaped, ugly)/ In the case of kutsitaā r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> or kutsitaā sak<sup>1</sup>, the prefix ku is replace by kim, e.g., ku+sak<sup>1</sup> > kim+sak<sup>1</sup> > ki, + sak<sup>1</sup> = ki, sak<sup>1</sup> (=bad friend) / ku+r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> > kim+r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> > ki, + r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> = ki, r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> (=bad king)/ Similarly, su-dinam (=good day)/ su-vacanam (=good utterance, word) / su-bh<sup>1</sup>-itam (=well spoken, good saying)/ su-jalam (=good water)/ ku-jalam (=bad water)/

If the former member of the compound denotes a direction or a number and the whole compound becomes an adjective of some noun, it is regarded as the karma-dh<sup>1</sup>raya, e.g., sapta ca te Ā-ayaā = saptar-ayaā (=the seven Vedic seers, viz., Madhucchandas, Vishvamitra, Atri, Angirasa, Bhardvaj, Vamdev, Vasishtha, or the seven stars of the Great Bear, representing the seven sages, viz., Marichi, Atri, Angirasa, Pulastya, Pulaha, Kratu and Vasishtha) / pañca ca te jan<sup>1</sup>ā = pañca-jan<sup>1</sup>ā (=the five class of people, viz., Brahmin, Kshatriya, Vaishya, Shudra and Nishad) / Uttaraā ca asau dhruvaā=uttara-dhruvaā (=the North Pole, the north pole-star)/

When, in a karma-d<sup>1</sup>raya, the former member is a compound, and the latter member is some noun, the last member of the former member, i.e., the middle member of the new compound, is dropped, and such a compound is called the madhyama-pada-lop-sam<sup>1</sup>sa

$a^a + khañ (= 1k+»na) - yu\cdot mad+a^a+khañ > yau\cdot m+ 1ka+»na = yau\cdot m\cdot 1ka\cdot na$  (=pertaining to you all) /  $tava+a^a+khañ > t^1v+ak+»na = t^1vak\cdot na$  (=pertaining to you, your's) /  $asmad+a^a+khañ > 1sm+1k+»na = 1sm\cdot 1k\cdot na$  (=pertaining to us, ours') /  $mama+a^a+khañ > m^1m+ak+»na = m^1mak\cdot na$  (=pertaining to me, mine) /

$-hañ (=ika) - m^1sa+-hañ > m^1s+s+ika = m^1sika$  (=belonging to a month, monthly) /  $s^1, vatsarika$  (=yearly, annual) /  $s^1ya, -pr^1tika$  (=pertaining to evening and morning) /  $paunaå-punika$  (=repeatedly) /

$-yu / -yul (=ana) - s^1yam+-yu$  or  $-yul = s^1yam+t+ana = s^1yantanam$  (= of the evening) /  $cirantanam$  (=of a long time)/  $pr^1h^2etanam$  (=of the early morning) /  $pragetanam$  (=of the noon) /  $div^1tanam$  (= of the day) /  $id^1ntanam$  (=of this time, of now) /  $tad^1nntanam$  (=of that time) /

$tarap$  (=tara) -  $kuñala+tarap > kuñala+tara = kuñala-tara$  (=more skillful of the two) /  $catura-tara$  (=more intelligent of the two) /  $vidvat-tara$  (=more learned of the two) /  $dhani-tara$  (=more wealthy of the two) /  $guru-tara$  (=heavier of the two) /  $»yasun (=»yas) - laghu+»yasun > lagh+»yas = lagh»yas$  (=shorter, or lighter, of the two) /  $pa-u+»yasu > pa-+»yas = pa»yas$  (= cleverer of the two) /  $dhana+»yasun > dhana»yas=dha»yas$  (wealthier of the two) /  $antika+»yasun > ned»y+»yas = ned»y+»yas$  (=nearer) /  $alpa+»yasun > alp+»yas = alp»yas$  or  $kan»yas$  (=smaller of the two) /  $yuvan+»yasun > yav+»yas = yav»yas$  (=younger of the two) /  $hrasva+»yasun > hras+»yas=hras»yas$  (=shorter of the two) /  $k-ipra+»yasun > k-ep+»yas = k-ep»yas$  = (speedier of the two) /  $sthøla+»yasun > sthav+»yas = sthav»yas$  (= grosser of the two) /  $døra+»yasun > dav+»yas = dav»yas$  (=nearer of the two) /  $guru+»yasun > gar+»yas = gar»yas$  (=heavier of the two) /  $vara+»yasun > var+»yas=var»yas$  (=better of the two) /  $priya+»yasun > pre+»yas > pre+»yas = preyas$  (=dearer of the two) /  $bahu+»yasun > ba, h+»yas= ba, h»yas$  (=more of the two) /  $kñala+»yasun > krañ+»yas = krañ»yas$  (=thinner of the two) /  $ñreyas$  or  $jy^1yas$  (=better of the two) /  $var»yas$  (=older in years, or age, of the two) /  $stheyas$  (=steadier of the two) /  $dra^2h»yas$  (=stronger, or more firm, of the two) /  $mrad»yas$  (=more tender of the two) /  $bhøyas$  (=more of the two, again and again) /

(= a lake-born one, i.e. lotus) /  $pørva, j^1taå = pørva-jaå$  (=previously born, elder, forefather) /  $anu j^1taå = anu-jaå$  (= born afterwards, younger) /  $anu gacchati = anu-gaå$  (=one who goes after, follower, servant) /  $na gacchati = a-gaå$  (the one who does not go,or move, i.e., a mountain) /  $våtra, hanti = våtra-han or våtra-ghnaå$  (=Indra, the one who killed the demon Våtra) /  $ñoka, dad^1ti=ñoka-daå$  (=one who gives sorrow) / Similarly,  $har-a, karoti = har-a-karaå$  (=one who gives joy) /  $arthaka»vidy^1$  (=the learning that fetches money, commercial knowledge, purposeful knowledge) /  $priya, karoti asy^1å$  ( $iti ñlam asya$ ) =  $priya-karaå$  (= a lover, a friend) /  $Vacana, karotiy^1 s^1 = vacana-kari$  (=obedient) /  $gaja iva gacchati s^1 = gaja-g^1min»$  (=walking like an elephant) / Similarly,  $kokila-bh^1-i^a»$  (=a woman speaking like a cuckoo) /  $sukhen t^1ryate s^1 = su-tar^1 nad»$  (=easily fordable river) /  $sukhena labhyate= su-labhaå$  (=easily available) /  $duåkhena jy^1yate = dur-jayaå$  (=difficult to conquer) /

The following upapada compounds, being irregular, are noteworthy:  $lal^1-a, tapati = lal^1-a, -tapaå$  (=scorching the forehead, i.e., the Sun) /  $udara, bibharti = udara, -bharaå$  (=one who cares only for feeling his belly with food) /  $r^1trau carati = r^1tr, -caraå$  (=one who moves during the night, i.e., a goblin, devil, thief) /  $pa^a@itam 1tm^1na, manyate = pa^a@rita, -manyåå$  (=taking himself to be a savant) /  $kula, ka-atì s^1 = kula, -ka-^1$  (=pulling down the banks, i.e. a stormy river) /  $priya, vadati s^1 = priya, -vad^1$  (=sweet-speaking woman) /  $sørya, na pañyati s^1 = a-sørya, -pañy^1$  (=a woman who never sees the Sun, i.e., living in the harem) /  $ardh^1 Åk = ardha-rc$  or  $ardha-rcam$  (=a semi Åc<sup>1</sup>, i.e., the Vedic verse) /  $vi-^aøa puram = vi-^aøu-puram$  (=the city of Vishnu) /  $vimal^1 1paå yasmin tat = vimal^1pa, saraå$  (=a lake having clean water) /  $r^1jyasya dhøå = r^1jaya-dhur^1$  (= the yoke of kingdom) /  $svargasya panth^1å = svarga-pathaå$  (=the path to heaven) /

Now, recite aloud the following verse and its explanation, trying to grasp its meaning:

*Utsara; ga-kalitoru-ka-1r»bh^1jir<sup>1</sup>
uta bhaya; kara-bh^1I^1å /*

Santu p<sup>1</sup>yaka-ga<sup>a</sup> jaya tais tva, g<sup>1</sup>m ago-har-abhil<sup>1</sup>va il<sup>1</sup>v<sup>o</sup> //

Bh<sup>1</sup>-citram idam (=this is a word-picture) / Asmin ॥loke vicitr<sup>1</sup> (=queer) ॥carya-kar» (=wonderful) bh<sup>1</sup>- (=language) d<sup>1</sup>lyate, yena (=so that) ॥abd<sup>1</sup>nam arth<sup>1</sup>ā (=the meanings of the words) jñ<sup>1</sup>tum (=to know) ka-hina, pratibh<sup>1</sup>ti (=are found to be difficult) / Atra arthaā, eva, prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>a (=in this manner) jñ<sup>1</sup>yate (=is known) / He r<sup>1</sup>jan iti (=O King!) adhy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ryam (=is implied) / Tava ity-api adhy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ryam (=your' is also implied) / p<sup>1</sup>yaka-ga<sup>a</sup>ā = sevaka-lok<sup>1</sup>ā (=mass of the servants) / K<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā? utsaraj ga-kalitoruka-<sup>1</sup>r<sup>o</sup>-bh<sup>1</sup>jit<sup>1</sup>ā / = uts<sup>1</sup>hap<sup>1</sup>r<sup>a</sup>ni, a<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ni ye<sup>-1</sup>, te (=having their limbs full of enthusiasm), te-u kalit<sup>1</sup>ā=d<sup>1</sup>lyam<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ā (=displayed), Ørvyaā = vi<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā (=broad), ka-<sup>1</sup>ryaā laghu-kha<sup>o</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ni (=daggers), t<sup>1</sup>bhiā bh<sup>1</sup>jir<sup>1</sup>ā = ॥obha-m<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ā (=shining) / Yad-v<sup>1</sup> (=or that), ut-sar<sup>1</sup>ni = ati-mudit<sup>1</sup>ni a<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ni, te-u kalit<sup>1</sup>ā = d<sup>1</sup>lyam<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ā, Ørvyaā=vi<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā, ka-<sup>1</sup>ā= kapola-prade<sup>1</sup>ā (=temples, i.e., either sides of the head) ye<sup>-1</sup>, t<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā, ar<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>=ar<sup>a</sup>1m ibh<sup>1</sup>ā gaj<sup>1</sup>ā, te<sup>-1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>jiā=sa, gr<sup>1</sup>maā, ta, ranti=dadati (= giving fight to the broad-templed elephants of the enemy in a battle), uta (=and), kid<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā? Bhaya<sup>1</sup> karbh<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā=bhaya, kurvati ye t<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā, bh<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā=la<sup>1</sup>-a-prade<sup>1</sup>ā ye<sup>-1</sup>, te, t<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā (=having frightening foreheads) sevaka-jan<sup>1</sup>ā, iti yojyam (=should be construed thus), santu (=may they be) / Taiā (=through them), il<sup>1</sup>vaā=il<sup>1</sup>, p<sup>1</sup>thv»m avati iti, asau= p<sup>1</sup>thv»rak-akaā (=one who protects the earth, i.e., the territory of the kingdom = the ruler), bhavasi ity-adhy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ryam / T<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>āa tva, , jaya = vijay» bhava (=may you be victorious) / Api ca (=moreover), tva, taiā, a-gohara, = gav<sup>1</sup>, hara<sup>a</sup>a, yath<sup>1</sup> na sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup>= a-gohara, , (=in such a way that the cows are never kidnapped), yasya saā = a-goharaā (=one inwhose kingdom the cows could never be kidnapped), t<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>āa prabalaā bh<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup> ity-arthā, tva, , il<sup>1</sup>v<sup>o</sup> =kamadevasya jet<sup>1</sup> (=one who defeats the Cupid) bh<sup>1</sup>tv<sup>1</sup> ity-adhy<sup>1</sup>harya ('having become' is implied), g<sup>1</sup>, = p<sup>1</sup>thv», , jaya (= you conquer) /

There is in this verse, an amalgamation of the poetic skill of strange picturesque language, in which some of the words used seem to be of some other unknown language, because at first sight

chvi, and s<sup>1</sup>ti. Let us discuss them in detail as follows:

a (=ya)- gr<sup>1</sup>ma+ya=gr<sup>1</sup>myaā (=a villager, a rustic) / hañ (=ina) - gr<sup>1</sup>ma+khañ = gr<sup>1</sup>ma+»n = gr<sup>1</sup>m»aā (=belonging to village)/

yat (=ya) - dyu+yat > div+ya = divyam (=belonging to heaven, divine) / pr<sup>1</sup>c+yat > pr<sup>1</sup>c+ya=pr<sup>1</sup>cyam (=belonging to the former times, ancient) / ap<sup>1</sup>c+yat > ap<sup>1</sup>c+ ya > ap<sup>1</sup>cyam (=pertaining to the south) / udac+yat > ud»c+ya = ud»cyam (pertaining to the north) / prat»c+yat > prat»c+ya =prat»cyam (=pertaining to the east) / sandhy<sup>1</sup>+yat > s<sup>1</sup>ndhy<sup>1</sup>+ya = s<sup>1</sup>ndhy<sup>1</sup>ym (=pertaining to the evening)/

tyap (=tya)- am<sup>1</sup>+tyap>am<sup>1</sup>+tya=am<sup>1</sup>tyaā (=minister) / iha+tyap > iha+tya = ihatyaā (=pertaining to here) / kva+tyap >kva+tya = kvatyaaā (=pertaining to where) / nityaā (=pertaining to all times, permanent) / tatastyaā = tatrtya (=belonging to that place) / atratyaā (=belonging to this place / yatastyaā (=belonging to where, which place) /

ha (=»ya) - ॥l<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>+cha > ॥l<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>+»ya > ॥l<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>yaā (=belonging to the school) / m<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>+cha > m<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>+»ya > m<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>+ya = m<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>yaā (=belonging to the garland) / tad+cha=tad+»ya = tad»ya (=belonging to him, his) / yad»ya (=whose) / yu-mad»ya (=belonging to you) / asmad»ya (=belonging to us) / bhavad»ya (=belonging to you) /

a<sup>a</sup> (=a) - sandhi-vel<sup>1</sup>+a<sup>a</sup>=s<sup>1</sup>ndhi-velam (=of the twilight time) / am<sup>1</sup>v<sup>1</sup>sy<sup>1</sup>+a<sup>a</sup>=am<sup>1</sup>vasyam (=of the new moon night) / trayo-da»+a<sup>a</sup>=tr<sup>1</sup>yoda»am (=of the thirteenth day) / caturda»+a<sup>a</sup>=c<sup>1</sup>turda»am (=of the fourteenth day) / p<sup>1</sup>or<sup>a</sup>a-m<sup>1</sup>s»+ a<sup>a</sup>=paur<sup>a</sup>am<sup>1</sup>sam (=of the full moon night) / prati-pad<sup>1</sup>+a<sup>a</sup>=pr<sup>1</sup>ti-padam (=of the first day of a month) / hemanta+a<sup>a</sup>=haimantam (=of the Fall season) / ॥i<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ira+ a<sup>a</sup>= ॥ai<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>iram (=of the Winter season) / vasanta+a<sup>a</sup>=v<sup>1</sup>santam (=of the Spring season) / gr»ma+ a<sup>a</sup>= grai-mam (=of the Summer season) /

a<sup>a</sup> (=ka) - yu-mad+a<sup>a</sup> > yau-m+<sup>1</sup>ka= yau-m<sup>1</sup>ka (=pertaining to you all) / tava+a<sup>a</sup> > t<sup>1</sup>v+aka = t<sup>1</sup>vaka (=pertaining to you, your's) / asmad+a<sup>a</sup> > <sup>1</sup>sm+<sup>1</sup>ka = <sup>1</sup>sm<sup>1</sup>ka (=pertaining to us, ours') / mama+a<sup>a</sup> > m<sup>1</sup>m+aka = m<sup>1</sup>maka (=pertaining to me, mine) /

to, or from, us) / ataā=therefore, hence, for this reason) / tataā (=due to that reason, from it, then) / madhyataā (=from middle, or inside) / parataā (=from behind) / kutaā (=from where) / sarvataā (=from everywhere, from all sides) / itaā (=from here) / ubhayataā (=from both sides) / paritaā (=all around) / abhitaaā (=from nearby) / tral (=tra) - tatra (=there) / yatra (=where) / bahutra (=in many places) / sarvatra (=everywhere) / ekatra (=in one place, together) / but, iha (=in this place, here) / d<sup>1</sup> (=d<sup>1</sup>) - sarvad<sup>1</sup> (=at all times, ever) / ekad<sup>1</sup> (=one upon a time) / anyad<sup>1</sup> (=at another time) / kad<sup>1</sup> (=when) / yad<sup>1</sup> (=when) / d<sup>1</sup>n»m (=d<sup>1</sup>n»m) - id<sup>1</sup>n»m (=now, at present) / tad<sup>1</sup>n»m (=at that time, them) / th<sup>1</sup>/ (=th<sup>1</sup>) - yath<sup>1</sup> (=in which way, for instance, as for example) / tath<sup>1</sup> (in that way, also, similarly) / But, katham (=how) / ittham (=thus, in this way) / dh<sup>1</sup> (=dh<sup>1</sup>) - anekad<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup> (=in numerous ways, of many types) / bahudh<sup>1</sup> (=in many ways, of many types) / ast<sup>1</sup>ti (=ast<sup>1</sup>t) - parast<sup>1</sup>t (=in front of) / adhast<sup>1</sup>t (=below, under) / upari<sup>1</sup>-t<sup>1</sup> (=on the upper side, over, above) / anap (=ena) - dak-i<sup>2</sup>ena (=to the south) / uttare<sup>2</sup>a (=to the north) / adhare<sup>2</sup>a (=downwards, under) / pØrve<sup>2</sup>a (=to the east) / pafcimena (=to the west) / ti (=t<sup>1</sup>) - pafc<sup>1</sup>t (=behind, at the back) / uttar<sup>1</sup>t (=to, or from, the north) / adhar<sup>1</sup>t (=from under) / dak-i<sup>2</sup>t (=to, or from, the south) / kÅtvac (=kÅtvas) - pañcakÅtvaaā (=five times) / xa-kÅtvaaā (=six times) / saptakÅtvaaā (=seven times) / bahukÅtvah (=many times) / suc (=s) - dviā (=twice), triā (=thrice) / catuā (=four times) / But, eka+suc > eka + s = ekataā or sakÅt (=once) /

~ai-ika: The terminations that are applied to denote the senses other than those listed above, are called ~ai-ika, i.e., the rest of them, miscellaneous. They are ya, khan, yat, tyap, cha, a<sup>2</sup>, -hañ, -yul, tarap, tamap, iyasun, i-han, kalpap, deßya, deßyar, kan,

the words like utsara<sup>1</sup> ga, ka-<sup>1</sup>r, p<sup>1</sup>yaka, g<sup>1</sup>ma, gohara, bhil<sup>1</sup>va, and ii<sup>1</sup>v hardly seem to belong to Sanskrit proper, and the reader is rather deluded or confused! Then, as we go on dissolving the compounds and try to gather the meaning, we find that after all the language is definitely Sanskrit, and the verse proposes to convey the sense of a statement of blessing or good wishes to a ruler that, with his formidable forces comprising the frightfully hefty and enthusiastic soldiers armed with shining daggers and capable of fighting out the huge elephants in the army of his enemy in the battle, protect his property in the form of hoards of cows from being kidnapped by the enemies, defeat his enemies and come out victorious! The medieval Sanskrit poets, supported by local kings, used to compose such skillful poetic compositions containing mixture of various languages, to parade their mastery over the meters, scholarship, and poetic capability and thereby entertain the kings, and the scholars, as also the variety of courtiers in the royal assemblies, and gain the royal favor as poet laureate. We have presented in this book a few interesting specimens from their rich collection in the famous Sanskrit anthology, known by the title 'Subh<sup>1</sup>-ita-ratna-bh<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>g<sup>1</sup>ra', (i.e., a treasure of the gems in the form of pithy Sanskrit metrical sayings).*

Now, let us acquaint ourselves with the rest of the types of Sanskrit compounds:

Aluk-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: As we have seen so far, when a compound is formed, the Case Termination of the former member (pØrva-pada) is dropped (luk), e.g., r<sup>1</sup>masya bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup> > r<sup>1</sup>ma-bh<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup> / But, it is seen that when some words combine into a compound as the former member, their Case Termination is not dropped (a-luk). In the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>inian system this process of dropping the termination is known by the signs lup, ॥lu, or luk, in different contexts. Thus, the compound in which the Case Termination of the pØrva-pada is not dropped, and remains unelided (a-luk) is called the aluk-sam<sup>1</sup>s, e.g., anjas<sup>1</sup> kÅtam > anjas<sup>1</sup>-kÅtam (=done honestly) / ojas<sup>1</sup> kÅtam > ojas<sup>1</sup>-kÅtam (=done forcefully) / pu, s<sup>1</sup> anujaā > pu, s<sup>1</sup>-anujaā > pu, s<sup>1</sup>-anujaā (=the one having an elder brother) / janu<sup>1</sup> andhaā > janu<sup>1</sup>- ndhaā (=blind from the very birth) / tman<sup>1</sup> pañcamaā > tman<sup>1</sup>- pañcamaā (=including himself and four others) / In all the above instances, the Instrumental Case Termination of the pōrva-pada has not been dropped, and has remained a-luk. In the examples, like parasmai-padam, prasmai-bh<sup>1</sup>-ā, tmane-padam, tmane-bh<sup>1</sup>-ā, etc., the Dative Case Termination of the pōrva-pada has remained undropped (a-luk). In the examples, like dur<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>gataā, cakr<sup>1</sup>n-muktaā, the Ablative Case Termination of the pōrva-pada has remained undropped (a-luk). In the examples, like pañyato-haraā (=stealing in the very presence, i.e., a goldsmith or a robber) / devan<sup>1</sup>, -priyaā (=a fool), d<sup>1</sup>sy<sup>1</sup>ā-putraā (=an illegal son of a servant-maid, a rogue), the Genitive Case Termination of the pōrva-pada has remained undropped (a-luk). / In the examples, like gehe-<sup>1</sup>Øraā (=bold only in his house), gehe-nard (=shouting only in his residence), kar<sup>a</sup>e-japaā (=a slenderer, a back-biter, a spy), yudhi-<sup>1</sup>hiraā (=steadfast in a battle, the name of the eldest P<sup>1a</sup>ava), sarsi-jam (=born in a lake, i.e., a lotus flower), khe-caraā (=moving in the sky, i.e., a bird or a demi-god like a vidy<sup>1</sup>dhara), the Locative Case Termination of the pōrva-pada has remained undropped (a-luk).

-----
---<sup>1</sup>

Published by the Nir<sup>2</sup>aya-s<sup>1</sup>gara Press, 8th Edition, Mumbai, 1952, pp. 200-207.

MayØra-vya, sak<sup>1</sup>di-sam<sup>1</sup>sa : When in some karmadh<sup>1</sup>raya compounds, the component words are not in proper order, or when there is some other type of irregularity, such compounds have been listed in a separate class by P<sup>1a</sup>ini, and it has been named as mayØra-vya, sak<sup>1</sup>di (=beginning with the 'mayØra-vya, saka) from the first compound in the list, e.g., vya, sakaā mayØraā > mayØra-vya, saka (=a cunning peacock), vya, sakaā ca ch<sup>1</sup>traā ca > ch<sup>1</sup>tra-vya, sakaā (=a cunning student) / udak ca av<sup>1</sup>k a > ucc<sup>1</sup>vacam (=higher and lower) / niñca-praca, (=determined, confirmed by experience) / k<sup>1</sup>, diñla, y<sup>1</sup>mi aham iti cintayan pal<sup>1</sup>yitaā=k<sup>1</sup>ndiñikaā (=the one running away haphazardly) / aho puru-ā aham iti yasy<sup>1</sup>, kriy<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>m abhidh<sup>1</sup>yate s<sup>1</sup>=<sup>1</sup>hopuru-ik<sup>1</sup> (=self-praise, self-conceit, boasting), aha, pōrvam iti yasy<sup>1</sup>, kriy<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, abhidh<sup>1</sup>yate s<sup>1</sup> =aham-ahamik<sup>1</sup> (=rivalry, competing spirit) / y<sup>1</sup> Ācch<sup>1</sup> =yad-Ācch<sup>1</sup> (=destiny, accident) / yad bhavi-yati

We shall now discuss the rest of them:

Parim<sup>1a</sup>1rthaka and Sa, khy<sup>1</sup>rthaka: The terminations of this type are: vatup, m<sup>1</sup>trac, a<sup>a</sup>, ©ati, tayap, and ayac / They convey the sense of numbers and measurement.

vatup (= yat) - yat+vatup > i+yat=iyat (=this much)

kim + vatup =kiyat(=how much)/

m<sup>1</sup>trac (= m<sup>1</sup>tra) - pañca+m<sup>1</sup>trac

>pañca+m<sup>1</sup>tra=pañca-m<sup>1</sup>tram (=only five) / lrama-m<sup>1</sup>tram (merely the peace of mind).

a<sup>a</sup> (= a) - puru-a+a<sup>a</sup> >pauru-a+a=pauru-am (=of the size of a man, pertaining to man, manliness, deed of valour) / hastin+a<sup>a</sup> >h<sup>1</sup>stin+a=h<sup>1</sup>stinam (=of the size of an elephant, deep as can drown an elephant) /

©ati (= ati) - kim+©ati > k+ati (=how many) / tayap (= taya) - dvi+tayap > dvi+taya=dvitayam (=a group, or collection, of two) /

ayac (= aya) - dvi+ayac > dv+aya=dvayam (=a group of two) / trayam (=a gathering of three) / catu-<sup>1</sup>yatam (=a collection of four) /

Hit<sup>1</sup>rthaka: The terminations cha and yat are applied to convey the sense of 'beneficial to':

cha (= ya) - vatsa+cha > vats + »ya=vatsi»yam = vatse- bhyaā hitam (=beneficial to the calves) = dugdham (=milk) /

yat (= ya) - danta+yat > dant+ya=dantya (=pertaining, or beneficial, to tooth) / dantyaā vyañjanaā (=dental consonant) / danty<sup>1</sup> au-dhiā (=a medicinal plant beneficial to teeth) / dantyam mañjanam=dantya-mañjanam (=useful for cleaning the teeth) / danta-mañjanam (=tooth-paste) /

Kriy<sup>1</sup>-viñle-a<sup>a</sup>1rthhaka: The terminations tasil denoting the sense of the Ablative Case, tral, d<sup>1</sup> and d<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m denoting time, th<sup>1</sup>l and dh<sup>1</sup> denoting type, ast<sup>1</sup>ti denoting direction, anam, 1ti, kåtvauc and suc denoting repeated action, are applied to form various kinds of adverbs:

tasil (= tas) - tvat+tasil > tvat+tas=tvattaā (=from you, due to you) / yu-<sup>1</sup>mattaā (=due to, or from, you) / asmattaā (=due the Parasmai-pada; and like (3rd Per.) sta, s<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>m, sata; (2nd Per.) sth<sup>1</sup>å, s<sup>1</sup>th<sup>1</sup>m, dhvam; (1st Per.) si, svahi, smahi in the tmane-pada. For instance, of kÅ - (3rd Per.) ak<sup>1</sup>r~t, ak<sup>1</sup>r~ ak<sup>1</sup>r~; (2nd Per.) ak<sup>1</sup>r~å, ak<sup>1</sup>r~-am, ak<sup>1</sup>r~-a; (1st Per.) ak<sup>1</sup>r~-am, ak<sup>1</sup>r~-va, ak<sup>1</sup>r~-ma; in the Parasmai-pada, and (3rd Per.) akÅta, akÅ-at<sup>1</sup>m, akÅ-ata; (2nd Per.) akÅth<sup>1</sup>å, akÅ-<sup>1</sup>th<sup>1</sup>m, akÅ-<sup>1</sup>ham; (1st Per.) akÅ-i, akÅ-vahi, akÅ-mahi in the tmanepada. Similarly, of ¶ru - a¶rau~t, of n<sup>o</sup> - anai~t, of jñ<sup>1</sup> - ajñ<sup>1</sup>sta, of masj - am<sup>1</sup>; k~t, of yaj - ay<sup>1</sup>k~t, of dah - adh<sup>1</sup>k~t, of - ama, sta, of ram - ara, sta, of da¶ - ad<sup>1</sup>k~t, of vas - av<sup>1</sup>ts~t, of pracch - apr<sup>1</sup>k~t, of han - avadh~t, and of adh+i - adhyai~-a adhyag~-a /

Now, recite aloud the following verses, and their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

Kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>as tato 'garj<sup>1</sup>d bha<sup>-1</sup>, ¶ c<sup>1</sup>ny<sup>1</sup>n avvÅtat / Up<sup>1</sup>ya, sta mah<sup>1</sup>str<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>i nirag<sup>1</sup>c ca druta, puraå //

Tataå = r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>a-v<sup>1</sup>ky<sup>1</sup>nantara, , kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>å = r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>asya madhyam<sup>1</sup>nujaå (=mid-brother), agarj<sup>1</sup>t = garjitav<sup>1</sup>n (=roared) / Saå any<sup>1</sup>n = apar<sup>1</sup>n, bha<sup>-1</sup>n = yodh<sup>1</sup>n= sainik<sup>1</sup>n, ca avvÅtat = nivartitav<sup>1</sup>n (=made them return) / Saå mah<sup>1</sup>str<sup>1</sup><sup>a</sup>i = bÅhad<sup>-1</sup>yudh<sup>1</sup>ni (=great weapons), up<sup>1</sup>ya, sta = gÅh<sup>1</sup>tav<sup>1</sup>n (=took) / Saå purah = laj k<sup>1</sup>-nagary<sup>1</sup>å (= from the city of Lanka), nirag<sup>1</sup>t=nirgataå=bahir gata (=went out) ca /

MØrdhn<sup>1</sup> divam iv<sup>1</sup>lekh<sup>1</sup>t kha, vy<sup>1</sup>pad vapu-oru<sup>a</sup>1 / P<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>, k<sup>1</sup>m iv<sup>1</sup>bhaitsit dÅ~-y<sup>1</sup> 'dh<sup>1</sup>k-ad iva divaå //

(Kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>å) mØrdhn<sup>1</sup> = mastakena = ¶iras<sup>1</sup> (=with his head), k<sup>1</sup>¶am (=the sky), alekh<sup>1</sup>t= likhitav<sup>1</sup>n (=scratched), iva (=as though) / saå ur<sup>a</sup>1 = vi¶<sup>1</sup>lena=mahat<sup>1</sup> (=broad, extensive), ¶arre<sup>a</sup>, kham= k<sup>1</sup>¶am (=the sky), vy<sup>1</sup>pat = vy<sup>1</sup>ptav<sup>1</sup>n (=encompassed), iva / Saå p<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>bhy<sup>1</sup>m = cara<sup>a</sup>1bh<sup>1</sup>m (=with two his feet) k<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>m= pÅthv<sup>1</sup>m (=the earth), abhaitsit = vid<sup>1</sup>ritav<sup>1</sup>n = bhinnav<sup>1</sup>n (= pierced, shattered) iva / Saå dÅ~-y<sup>1</sup> = dar¶nena (=by his glance), dvi-aå= ¶atrøn (=the enemies), adh<sup>1</sup>k~t=dagdhav<sup>1</sup>n (=burnt down) iva /

Taddhita-pratyaya: We discussed some of the types of the Taddhita terminations previously in the twenty-first lesson.

tad bhavi~yati iti<sup>1</sup>ha yaå saå = yad-bhavi-yaå (= a fatalist, one depending on destiny) / a¶nta pibata iti eva, yatra abhidh<sup>1</sup>yate tatra = eat-drink situation, attitude of personal physical joyfulness) /

Nitya-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: Some compounds cannot be dissolved, and if one tries to do it, the sense would be changed, because all of its members could not be mentioned in the vigraha. Such a compound is called the nitya-sam<sup>1</sup>sa, e.g. kha-v<sup>1</sup>rØ<sup>0</sup>haå (=mean, indecent) / It was a rule of discipline in ancient times that a student should sleep on the ground, even then if he breaks the rule by sleeping on a bedstead, or commits akin indiscipline, he is mentioned by such a compound. In dvij<sup>1</sup>ya aya, -dvij<sup>1</sup>rtham (caruå=cooked sacrificial food) the word 'artha' does not occur in the vigraha. All the avyay-bh<sup>1</sup>va and some other compounds are included in this type. It can be called by attaching the term 'nitya' with the name of the type to which it belongs.

PÅsodar<sup>1</sup>di-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: When it cannot be explained as to how a particular compound is formed, even if it were of the tatpru-a, bahuvr<sup>1</sup>hi, etc., it is said to belong to the pru-oar<sup>1</sup>di type, and while explaining such a compound when it occurs in any verse or sentence in the literature, the Sanskrit commentators remark: 'pÅ-odar<sup>1</sup>ditv<sup>1</sup>t s<sup>1</sup>dhu' (=It is alright because it belongs to the pru-oar<sup>1</sup>di type !) / Some other examples of this type are as follows: pÅ-ataå udara, (=the belly full of drops of water, i.e., suffering from dropsy) or pÅ-ataå udara, yasya saå = pru-odar<sup>1</sup>m (=one who suffers from dropsy) / manasaå »i<sup>a</sup>å = man»-i<sup>a</sup>å (=learned, or wise man) / v<sup>1</sup>ri<sup>a</sup>1, v<sup>1</sup>hikaå = bal<sup>1</sup>hakaå (=cloud) / gØ<sup>0</sup>haå ca asau<sup>1</sup>tm<sup>1</sup> = gØ<sup>0</sup>hotm<sup>1</sup> (=God) / jøvanasya mØtaå = jømØtaå (=a sack of life, i.e., water = cloud) / pi¶itam<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>mati = pi¶<sup>1</sup>caå (=ghost, evil spirit) / ¶m<sup>1</sup>naå ¶erate atra = ¶ma¶<sup>1</sup>nam (=the place where the dead bodies lie, i.e. cemetery) / mahy<sup>1</sup>, rauti = mayØraå (=peacock) / hartu, manaå yasya = hartu-man<sup>1</sup>å (=one wishing to take away) / kartu, manaå yasya = kartu-man<sup>1</sup>å (=one wishing to do) / gantu, manaå yasya = gantu-man<sup>1</sup>å (=one wishing to go away) / In such cases it is customary to attach the term 'pru-oar<sup>1</sup>di' to the name of the type the particular compound belongs.

Sup-sup-sam<sup>1</sup>sa or Kevala-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: The compounds that could not be included in any of the types of the dvandva, tatpuru-a, bahuvrhi and avyaybh<sup>1</sup>va, have been separated in a different class called the sup-sup-sam<sup>1</sup>sa or kevala-sam<sup>1</sup>sa, e.g., pØrva, bhØtaå = bhØta-pØrvaå (=that existed in the past) / pØrvam adÅ-aå = adÅ-a-pØrvaå (=not seen previously) / adya v<sup>1</sup> fvaå v<sup>1</sup> = adya-fvaå (=today or tomorrow) / pØrva, kÅtaå = kÅta-pØrvam (=done formerly)/ Mostly, the former member in such compounds is some adverb, indeclinable or an avyaybh<sup>1</sup>va-sam<sup>1</sup>sa, and the latter member is some adjective, e.g., janmanaå prabhÅti fuddhh<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = a-janma-suddh<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m (=of those who had been pure right from their very birth) / vidhim an-atikramya yath<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t tath<sup>1</sup> hutam agnau yaiå te<sup>1</sup>m = yath<sup>1</sup>-vidhi-hut<sup>1</sup>gn<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m (=those who had performed sacrifice as per the procedure) / nik<sup>1</sup>ma-bh<sup>1</sup>a-aå (=extremely dangerous)/

S<sup>1</sup>pek-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa: 'Sapek-a' means 'that which expects the other one'. Some compounds are such that they are related to some other word, which should have been a part of it, but in actual usage it is used with the compound as a separate word. Such a compound is called the s<sup>1</sup>pek-a-sam<sup>1</sup>sa, e.g., deva-dattasya guru-kulam / Here, although the word 'guru' is related with the word 'deva-dattasya', it has been compounded with the word 'kula' / In dinasya purv<sup>1</sup>rdha-par<sup>1</sup>rdha-bhinn<sup>1</sup>, although the word pØrv<sup>1</sup>rdh-par<sup>1</sup>rdha' is related to the word 'dinasya', it has not been compounded with it, and remains separate.

Some changes occur at the end of the compounds when the words constituting them come together to form them. All the rules about them are normally given in the chapters, called sam<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>nta-prakara<sup>a</sup>a, in the traditional Sanskrit works known as 'vy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>a', such as, the Siddh<sup>1</sup>nta-kaumud, Prakriy<sup>1</sup>-sarvasvam, ~akat<sup>1</sup>yana-vy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>am, Jainendra-vy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>am, K<sup>1</sup>tantra-vy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>am, and others.

Now, recite aloud the following verses along with their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings

Te bhyagur bhavana, tasya supta, caik-i-at<sup>1</sup>tha tam /
Vy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>r-us tumul<sup>1</sup>n fabd<sup>1</sup>n da<sup>a</sup>©ai<sup>1</sup>c<sup>1</sup>vadhi-ur drutam //

akhyat, apaptat, avocat, a<sup>1</sup>li-at, a<sup>1</sup>vat, ahvat / Now, let us see all the forms of vac, by way of specimen: (3rd Per.) avocat, avocat<sup>1</sup>m, avocan/ (2nd Per.) avocaå, avocatam, avocata / (1st Per.) avocam, avoc<sup>1</sup>va, avoc<sup>1</sup>ma / And, in the tmane-pada (3rd Per.) avocata, avocetet<sup>1</sup>m, avocanta / (2nd Per.) avoath<sup>1</sup>å, avoceth<sup>1</sup>m, avocadhvam / (1st Per.) avoce, avoc<sup>1</sup>vahi, avoc<sup>1</sup>mahi /

Third Variety: Here also the terminations are the same as shown above, but the adjunct caj (=a) is added before the termination, consequently the first syllable (ek<sup>1</sup>c=eka+ac) undergoes reduplication (divtva-bhava). The adjunct caj, instead of cli, is added before the termination in the case of all the roots of the Tenth (cur<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>) Class, any roots used in Causal (preraka), and the verbal roots f<sup>1</sup>ri (=to serve), dru (=to run), sru (=to slip off), e.g., of kath (10 U.), in the Parasmai-pada (3rd Per.) acakathat, acakathat<sup>1</sup>m, acakathan/ (2nd Per.) acakathaå, acakathat<sup>1</sup>m, acakathata, (1st Per.) acakatham, acakath<sup>1</sup>va, acakath<sup>1</sup>ma /, and in the tmane-pada (3rd Per.) acakathata, acakathet<sup>1</sup>m, acakathanta/ (2nd Per.) acakathath<sup>1</sup>å, acakathatheth<sup>1</sup>m, acakathadhvam (1st Per.) acakathe, acakath<sup>1</sup>vahi, acakath<sup>1</sup>mahi /; of kam (1 .=to desire, love - k<sup>1</sup>mayate, in 3rd Per. Sing.) acakamata and ac<sup>1</sup>camata/; of ta© (10 U.=to beat - t<sup>1</sup>©ayati, t<sup>1</sup>©ayate ) at<sup>1</sup>ta©at / at<sup>1</sup>tadata /; of sp<sup>1</sup>h (10 U.=to wish, covet - sp<sup>1</sup>hayati, sp<sup>1</sup>hayate) apasp<sup>1</sup>hat, apasp<sup>1</sup>hata /; of ga<sup>a</sup> (10 U.=to count - ga<sup>a</sup>ayati, ga<sup>a</sup>ayate) ajaga<sup>a</sup>at, aj<sup>1</sup>ga<sup>a</sup>ata /; of cur (10 U.=to steal - corayati, corayate) ac<sup>1</sup>curat, ac<sup>1</sup>curata /. In Causal, of kÅ (10 U.=to do - karoti, kurute) ac<sup>1</sup>karat, ac<sup>1</sup>karata /. Similarly, of bhØ - ab<sup>1</sup>bhavat; of budh - ab<sup>1</sup>budhat; of hr<sup>1</sup> (3 P.=to blush) - aj<sup>1</sup>hripat; of a- (1 P.=to loiter) 1-i-at; of ghr<sup>1</sup> (1 P. =to smell) ajighrapat; of f<sup>1</sup>ri - a<sup>1</sup>f<sup>1</sup>riyat, a<sup>1</sup>f<sup>1</sup>riyata; of dru - adudravata ; of pa-h - ap<sup>1</sup>pa-hat; of pac - ap<sup>1</sup>pacat /

Fourth Variety: Here, too, the same terminations are applied to the verbal roots, but the adjunct sic (=s), instead of the cli, is applied to them, and due to it the vowel in the root undergoes the vÅddhi modification, thus the terminations look like (3rd Per.) -s<sup>1</sup>t, st<sup>1</sup>m, suå; (2nd Per.) s<sup>1</sup>å, stam, sta; (1st Per.) sam, sva, sma in

of impotence! /  $m^1 g^1\bar{a}$   $\text{ʃucam}$  (=don't be sorrowful)/ Here, normally the forms would have been like,  $a\text{-bh}\theta t$ ,  $a\text{-gamaā}$ ,  $a\text{-g}^1\bar{a}$  / (4) After sic, the adjunct i (id-<sup>1</sup>gama) is applied, as of sev in,  $a+sev+i+t > a+sev+\text{+}t = asev\text{+}t$  / (5) After a, the termination jha (of 3rd Pers. Pl.) is replaced by -ata in the tmane-pada, as of edh,  $edh+i+s+jha > edh+i+\text{+}ata = edhi\text{-ata}$  / (6) In the case of the  ${}^{\text{a}}y\text{-anta}$  verbal roots  ${}^{\text{a}}\text{ʃ}$ ,  $\text{ʃri}$ , dru and  $\text{ʃru}$ , used in the Active voice (kartari-prayoga), the adjunct cli is replaced by ca<sub>i</sub> (=a); and even if the vāddhi of the verbal base (aj ga) has occurred due the  ${}^{\text{a}}i$  termination, it is replaced by its hrasv-<sup>1</sup>deʃla, and if the i-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>di termination is not to be applied, even the  ${}^{\text{a}}i$  termination is elided, as of kath,  $a\text{-ca-kath+at} = acakathat$  / (7) If the verbal root is not yet reduplicated (an-abhy<sup>1</sup>sa), its first syllable (ek<sup>1</sup>c=eka-ac), i.e., the first consonant + the first vowel is reduplicated, as of kam in,  $a+ca+kam+ata = acakamata$  / In this la-k<sup>1</sup>ra, the verbal root ad is replaced by ghas, han by vadh, and i by g<sup>1</sup>, which are their dh<sup>1</sup>tv-<sup>1</sup>deʃlas, as of ad in a-ghasat, of han in a-vadh, and of i in a-g<sup>1</sup>t /

First Variety: Here, the terminations: (3rd Per.) t, t<sup>1</sup>m, uā; (2nd Per.) s, tam, ta; and (1st Per.) am, va, ma; are applied, e.g., of d<sup>1</sup> in ad<sup>1</sup>t, ad<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>m, aduā; ad<sup>1</sup>ā, ad<sup>1</sup>tam, ad<sup>1</sup>ta; ad<sup>1</sup>m, ad<sup>1</sup>va, ad<sup>1</sup>ma. Similarly, of bhθ in abhθt, of i in ag<sup>1</sup>t, of sth<sup>1</sup> in asth<sup>1</sup>t, of dh<sup>1</sup> in adh<sup>1</sup>t, of so in as<sup>1</sup>t / From the viewpoint of grammatical analysis here the process is: da+lu<sub>i</sub> > a+d<sup>1</sup> + ʃap+t > a+d<sup>1</sup> + cli+t > a+d<sup>1</sup> + sic+t = (after the elision of sic) = ad<sup>1</sup>t /

Second Variety: The same termination that used to be applied for conveying the sense of the action of yesterday (ana-adyatana-bhθta-k<sup>1</sup>la or hyastana- bhθta-k<sup>1</sup>la) are applied in this variety, too. The roots in this variety mostly conjugated in the Parasmai-pada, but the forms of the verbal roots sam+Ā, khy<sup>1</sup>, vac and as with a prefix are conjugated in the tmane-pada, too, e.g., sam-<sup>1</sup>rata / akhyaṭa / The penultimate nasal of the verbal root is elided, e.g., of bha,  $\text{ʃ}in abhraʃat$ , of skand in askadat / The following verbal roots are replaced by their respective root-substitute (dhtv-<sup>1</sup>deʃla), e.g., as > asth, khy<sup>1</sup> > khya, pat > papt, vac > voc,  $\text{ʃ}is > \text{ʃi}^-\text{-}$ ,  $\text{ʃvi} > \text{ʃva}$ , and hve > hθv, e.g., ththat,

*Te=r<sup>1</sup>k-as<sup>1</sup>ā, tasya=kumbha-kar<sup>a</sup>asya, bhavana, = niketanam* (=to the residence), abhyaguā=gat<sup>1</sup>ā (=went) / Atha=gaman<sup>1</sup>-nantaram (=after going, i.e., having reached, there), ta, = kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>a, =tan-namnaā r<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>asya bhr<sup>1</sup>taram (=Kumbha-kar<sup>a</sup>a, the brother of R<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup>a, the famous king of La<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>), supta, =nidr<sup>1</sup>a, (=while he was asleep), aik-i-ata=d<sup>1</sup>avantaā (=saw), tumul<sup>1</sup>n=mahataā dhvan<sup>n</sup>n=ghora, ʃabd<sup>1</sup>n (=loud noises), vy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>r-uā=vy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>avantaā=ucch<sup>1</sup>titavantaā (=went on uttering), da<sup>a</sup>aiā ca (=and with the sticks), druta, = ʃaghra, (=immediately), avadhi-uā=prah<sup>1</sup>avantaā=t<sup>1</sup>itavantaā (=began to beat, thrash) /

Coalescence: te+abhyaguā+bhavanam / ca+aik-i-ata+ tha/vy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>r-uā+tumul<sup>1</sup>n / da<sup>a</sup>aiā+ca+avadhi-uā+drutam /

Keʃ<sup>1</sup>n aluñci-us tasya gaj<sup>1</sup>n g<sup>1</sup>tr-v acikraman / ~tair abhya-ca, s toyair al<sup>1</sup>taiʃ c<sup>1</sup>py adambhi-uā //

*Te=r<sup>1</sup>k-as<sup>1</sup>ā, tasya=kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>asya, keʃ<sup>1</sup>n(=hairs), aluñci-uā=utp<sup>1</sup>-itavantaā* (=pulled off, drew out) / Tasya g<sup>1</sup>tre-u=a<sub>i</sub> ge-u (=on the limbs), gaj<sup>1</sup>n=hasinaā (=elephants), acikraman (=made to roam, or walk) / ~taiā=ʃtalaiā (=cold), toyaiā=jalaiā (=with water), abhya-ican=abhi-iktavantaā (=poured, bathed, made wet) / Api ca (and, moreover), al<sup>1</sup>taiā=ulmukaiā (=with burning torches), a-dambhi-uā=dagdhavantaā = scorched, -+burnt him).

Nakharair akarti-us t<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>a</sup>air ad<sup>1</sup>i k-ur daʃlanais tath<sup>1</sup> / ~tair atautsuā ʃølaiʃ ca bher<sup>1</sup>bhiʃ c<sup>1</sup> v<sup>1</sup>vadan ʃubh<sup>1</sup>ā //

*Te(=rak-as<sup>1</sup>ā), t<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>a</sup>aiā=nakharaiā* (=sharp, pointed), nakhaiā=nakharaiā (=with the nails), (kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>am) akarti-uā=chinnavantaā (=scratched, breached), tath<sup>1</sup> t<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>a</sup>aiā, daʃlanaiā=dantaiā (=by teeth), ad<sup>1</sup>i k-uā=da<sup>1</sup>-avantaā (=gnawed, nibbled, took bites), t<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>a</sup>aiā ʃølaiā=bhallakaiā (=spears), atautsuā=p<sup>1</sup>itavantaā (=pierced, gave pain), ʃubh<sup>1</sup>ā=ʃobhan<sup>1</sup>ā=sundaraā(excellent), bher<sup>1</sup>n=nak<sup>1</sup>n (=drums), avvadan=v<sup>1</sup>ditavantaā (=played upon) /

Coalescence: nakhaiā+ akarti-uā + t<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>a</sup>aiā + ad<sup>1</sup>i k-uā+ daʃlanaiā + tath<sup>1</sup> / ~taiā+atautsuā / ʃølaiā+ca+ bher<sup>1</sup>a+ca+avvadan /

*Sa t<sup>1</sup>n n<sup>1</sup>jga<sup>a</sup>at sarv<sup>1</sup>n icchay<sup>1</sup> 'budha ca svayam /
AbØbudhata kasm<sup>1</sup>n m<sup>1</sup>m apr<sup>1</sup>k→c ca ni<sup>1</sup>car<sup>1</sup>n //*

Saā = kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>ā, t<sup>1</sup>n = pØrva-nirdi<sup>1</sup>n (=above-mentioned), sarv<sup>1</sup>n = sakal<sup>1</sup>n prabodop<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>n (=all the means of awakening), na ajga<sup>a</sup>at = na ga<sup>a</sup>ay<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>sa = na veditav<sup>1</sup>n (=did not notice, or respond, took no account of), svayam = <sup>1</sup>tman<sup>1</sup>=svecchay<sup>1</sup> =(on his own account), abudha = aj<sup>1</sup>gar<sup>1</sup>t (=woke up, got up) / (tad<sup>1</sup>) saā r<sup>1</sup>k-as<sup>1</sup>n =ni<sup>1</sup>car<sup>1</sup>n (=to the demons), apr<sup>1</sup>k→t =apĀcchat=pA<sup>1</sup>-av<sup>1</sup>n (=asked), kasm<sup>1</sup>n =kena k<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>ena (=why, for what reason), m<sup>1</sup>m (=me), abØbudhata = bodhitavanta (=awakened, made to wake up), iti evam (=thus)/

Coalescence: t<sup>1</sup>n + na + ajga<sup>a</sup>at / sarv<sup>1</sup>n + icchay<sup>1</sup> + abudha / m<sup>1</sup>m+apr<sup>1</sup>k→t+ca /

Now, note: These verses are from the bha--i-k<sup>1</sup>vyam describing picturesquely the ways and means by which the servants of R<sup>1</sup>va<sup>a</sup> tried to slowly awaken his brother Kumbhakar<sup>a</sup> from sleep at an odd time. But, while doing so the poet has skillfully incorporated in these verses the illustrative forms of the Aorist Past Tense, viz., aik-i-ata, vy<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>r-uā, avadhi-uā, aluñci-uā, acikraman, abhya-ican, adambhi-uā, akarti-uā, ad<sup>1</sup>i k-uā, atautsuā, avvadan, ajga<sup>a</sup>at, abudha, abØbudhata, and apr<sup>1</sup>k→t.

LESSON 27 (Sapta-vi, ḥaā P<sup>1</sup>-haā)

Generally, since the verbal forms of Lu<sub>j</sub> (=adyatana-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la), i.e., the Aorist, are found to be used in Sanskrit literature to express the sense of the past events of all the types, whether the recent one, or the near past or very far of one, it is known in common parlance known as the Common Past Tense (s<sup>1</sup>m<sup>1</sup>nya-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la). As we have seen in the case of the verbal forms in the la-k<sup>1</sup>ras, like the Li- (=parok-a-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la) and the Lu- (= hyastana-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la), the verbal root takes the different terminations in it. In order to show its independent existence, we had previously mentioned it as the adyatana-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la.

Adyatana-bhØta-k<sup>1</sup>la (Lu<sub>j</sub>): This type of the Past Tense is found to be of seven varieties in Sanskrit, and in each one of them different terminations are found to be applied to the verbal roots. Of them, the first and the second varieties (excepting some verbal roots of the tud<sup>1</sup>di, i.e., the sixth class) are Parasmai-pad», while the rest of the varieties are Ubhaya-pad». Generally, the usage of the Lu<sub>j</sub>-lak<sup>1</sup>ra is more found in the Vedic Sa, hit<sup>1</sup>s, the Br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>as, the ra<sup>a</sup>yakas, the Upani-ads, and in the classical works of poets like Bh<sup>1</sup>ravi, M<sup>1</sup>gha, ~r<sup>1</sup>-har-a, and others. The verbal forms of this Common Past Tense are multifarious and complicated.

According to the P<sup>1</sup>āinian procedure of the grammatical analysis, the following process is taken to have place in the formation of the verbal forms of the Sanskrit verbal roots in this type of the past tense: (1) The adjunct पा॒प (=a) is at first replaced by cli (=i) and then by sic (=s), as of ्k<sup>1</sup> in, a+्k<sup>1</sup>+i+cli+ata > a+्k<sup>1</sup>+i+sic+ata > a+्k<sup>1</sup>+i+s+ata > a+्k<sup>1</sup>+i+ñ+ata > aik-i-ata. (2) The final vowel of the verbal roots bhØ and sØ is not replaced by its the gu<sup>a</sup>a equivalent, as of bhØ in, a+bhØ+t=abhØt, a+sØ+s+at > a+sØ+so+at > a+sØ+ñ+at = asØ-avat /. (3) When the Lu<sub>j</sub>-lak<sup>1</sup>ra is used with the indeclinables m<sup>1</sup> and sma, the adjunct a<sup>1</sup>gama (=a), normally prefixed in the Past Tense, is dropped, as in m<sup>1</sup> bhØt (=let it not be), klaibya, m<sup>1</sup> sma gamaā p<sup>1</sup>rtha (=O Arjuna! Don't get into a state

SUPPLEMENTARY STUDY
(Sv<sup>1</sup>dh<sup>1</sup>ya-pØrti)

We have acquainted ourselves, to an appreciable extent, with various kinds of the verbal forms. Now, we should look into some of the necessary details worth knowing about some very popular verbal forms of the verbal roots popular in the Sanskrit language.

Note the forms of the following verbal roots in 3rd Per. Sing., of Present (la-) and Imperfect (la<sup>j</sup>-) Tenses (k<sup>1</sup>la) and the Imperative (lo-) and Potential (li<sup>j</sup>-) Moods (artha):

bhØ (1 P.= to be, exist) bhavati, abhavat, bhavatu, bhavet / na<sup>j</sup> (4 P.=to be destroyed, cease to exist) na<sup>j</sup>yati, ana<sup>j</sup>yat, na<sup>j</sup>yatu. na<sup>j</sup>yet /
vi<sup>j</sup> (6 P.=to enter, get in) *vi<sup>j</sup>lati, avi<sup>j</sup>lat, vi<sup>j</sup>latu, vi<sup>j</sup>let / kath (10 P.=to speak, tell, state) kathayati, akathayat, kathayatu, kathayet /
labh (1 .= to get, acquire, attain) labhate, alabhat, labhat<sup>1</sup>m, labheta /
yudh (4 .=to fight) yudhyate, ayudhyata, yudhyat<sup>1</sup>t, yudhyeta / mÅ (6 .=to die) mriyate, amriyata, mriyat<sup>1</sup>m, mriyeta / kath (10 .=to speak, tell, state) *kathayate, akathayat, kathayat<sup>1</sup>m, kathayeta /

Since the verbal forms of the following verbal roots do not follow the rules of their respective class, and are conjugated differently, they have to known as irregular forms:

gup (1 P. =to protect) - gopayati, agop<sup>1</sup>yat, gop<sup>1</sup>yatu, go<sup>1</sup>yet /
dhØp (1 P. = to incense) - dhØp<sup>1</sup>yati, adhØp<sup>1</sup>yat, dhØp<sup>1</sup>yatu, dhØp<sup>1</sup>yet /
vicch (6 P. = to go, move) - dhØp<sup>1</sup>yati, adhØp<sup>1</sup>yat, dhØp<sup>1</sup>yatu, dhØp<sup>1</sup>yet /

tamap(=tama) - ku<sup>j</sup>ala+tamap = ku<sup>j</sup>ala-tama (=most skillful of all) / catura-tama (=cleverest of all)/ vidvat-tama (=most learned of all) / dhni-tama (=wealthiest of all) / mahat-tama (=greatest of all) / guru-tama (=heaviest)/ ladhu-tama (=lightest)

i<sup>j</sup>-han (= i<sup>j</sup>-ha) - pa-u+i<sup>j</sup>-han > pa-=i<sup>j</sup>-ha = pa-i<sup>j</sup>-ha (=cleverest) / lagi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=shortest, youngest) / ghani<sup>j</sup>-ha (=closest, thickest) / nedi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=nearest) / alpi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=smallest) / kani<sup>j</sup>-ha (=youngest) / yavi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=youngest) / hrasi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=shortest) / k<sup>j</sup>-pi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=speediest) / k<sup>j</sup>-odi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=smallest) / sthavi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=grossest) / davi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=most distant) / dr<sup>1</sup>ghi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=longest) / gari<sup>j</sup>-ha (=heaviest) / vari<sup>j</sup>-ha (=greatest, best) / pre<sup>j</sup>-ha (=dearest) / ba, hi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=most) / kra<sup>j</sup>li<sup>j</sup>-ha (=thinnest) / f<sup>j</sup>re<sup>j</sup>-ha (=best) / jye<sup>j</sup>-ha (=eldest) / var<sup>j</sup>-i<sup>j</sup>-ha (=oldest in age) / sthe<sup>j</sup>-ha (=stadiest) / dra<sup>2</sup>hi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=most firm, strongest) / mradi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=most tender) / bhØyi<sup>j</sup>-ha (=most, greatest extent) /

Now, read aloud the following verse and its explanation
Now, read aloud the following verse and its explanation, trying to grasp its meaning:

BÅhat-sah<sup>1</sup>yaå k<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>nata, k<sup>1</sup>-od<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>n api gacchatī /
SambhØy<sup>1</sup>mbodhim abhyeti mah<sup>1</sup>-nady<sup>1</sup> nag<sup>1</sup>pag<sup>1</sup>å // mah<sup>1</sup>k<sup>1</sup>veye (2. 100) vartate / bÅhat-sah<sup>1</sup>yaå =mah<sup>1</sup>-sah<sup>1</sup>yav<sup>1</sup>n

Sloko 'ya, m<sup>1</sup>gha-kaveå f<sup>j</sup>if<sup>j</sup>up<sup>1</sup>la-vadh<sup>1</sup>khe
(=one who has got great assistance), k<sup>1</sup>-od<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>n api (=even if he may be the smallest, most insignificant, person), k<sup>1</sup>ry<sup>1</sup>nta, -k<sup>1</sup>ryasya anta, (=the end of an action, the task) gacchatī (=goes to, reaches) / Tath<sup>1</sup> hi (=as for instance), ap<sup>1</sup>, samØhaå = 'paå (=mass of water), tena gacchatī iti 'pag<sup>1</sup>å (=that which goes by it, i.e. the river), nag<sup>1</sup>pag<sup>1</sup>å = nag<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m 'pag<sup>1</sup>å = giri-nadyaå (= mountain rivers), mah<sup>1</sup>-nady<sup>1</sup> = ga<sup>1</sup>g<sup>1</sup>dikay<sup>1</sup> mahaty<sup>1</sup> nady<sup>1</sup> (=with big river, like the Ganges, etc.), sambhØya = miliv<sup>1</sup> (=having met), ambhodhi, = a, bhas<sup>1</sup>, nidhi, =samudram (=to the sea), abhyeti =abhi-gacchatī =pr<sup>1</sup>p- noti (=arrives at, reaches) /

Sometimes the sense of the indeclinable words, the verbal forms, and the superlative forms are augmented, or intensified, is expressed by suffixing the termination <sup>1</sup>m, e.g.,

kim +tama+<sup>1</sup>m > kim+tama+<sup>1</sup>m = kintam<sup>1</sup>m (=which the best of them) / pr<sup>1</sup>h<sup>a</sup>e-tam<sup>1</sup>m (= in the very early morning) / uccaistam<sup>1</sup>m (=very much loudly, at the highest) / jayatitam<sup>1</sup>m = vijayatetam<sup>1</sup>m (=is the topmost among the victors, is supremely victorious) / kalpap (=kalpa) - defl̥ya (=defl̥ya) - defl̥yar (=defl̥ya) - These three taddhita terminations denote the sense of 'about', 'almost', 'slightly less' and add it to the words when they are suffixed them, e.g., vidvat-kalpaā = vidvad-defl̥yaā = vidvad-defl̥yaā (=almost a scholar, slightly less learned) / pañca-var-a-kalpaā = pañca-var-a-defl̥yaā = pañca-var-a-defl̥yaā (=almost five years old) / yajati-kalpam = yajati-defl̥yam = yajati-defl̥yam (=sacrifices to a slightly less extent) / kan (=ka) - putra+kan = putrakaā (=pitiable son) / bhik-ukā (=the pitiable beggar) /

cvi (=») – When a thing takes over another form than what it had previously, the sense of this phenomenon is expressed by applying the cvi termination. This termination is suffixed along with the forms of the verbal roots kA, bhØ or as. The termination is elided, but the final vowel a or <sup>1</sup> of the former member in the word is replaced by », e.g., a-kA-<sup>a</sup>aā (=that which is not black) kA-<sup>a</sup>aā kriyate=kA-<sup>a</sup>+»+kriyate > kA-<sup>a</sup>»kriyate (=is blackened, is rendered black) / *a-ga;g<sup>1</sup> ga;g<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t = gani;g<sup>1</sup> sy<sup>1</sup>t* (=the non-Ganges is taken to be the Ganges) / fluch»bhavati (=impure is purified) / pa-Økaroti (=a dull one is being taken as clever) /

s<sup>1</sup>ti (=s<sup>1</sup>t) – When some thing is transformed into something like else, this sense is expressed by the s<sup>1</sup>ti termination, as by the cvi. e.g., kAtsnam (=entire) indhanam (=fuel) agniā (=fire) bhavati = indhanam agni-s<sup>1</sup>d bhavati = agn»bhavati (= is reduced to fire) / bhasma-s<sup>1</sup>d bhavati=bhasm»bhavati (=is reduced to ashes) /

so that), sva-janaā=svasya janaā (=a relative), flva-janaā=kukkuraā (=a dog, dog-folk, a canine person) m<sup>1</sup> bhØt = na sy<sup>1</sup>t (=may not be), sakala, (= all, entire), flakala, (=a piece of broken earthen pot) m<sup>1</sup> bhØt, sakÅt =eka-v<sup>1</sup>ram (=once, at one time), flakÅt (=dung) m<sup>1</sup> bhØt / The idea is that if one does not study grammar it would be impossible for one to pronounce the Sanskrit words correctly, as is highly essential for a Sanskrit speaker, and instead, one would confuse, for instance, the dental sibilant consonant 's' in the words like sva-janaā, sakalaam, sakÅt, etc., with the alveolar sibilant 'ʃ', and, consequently, instead of using these words intended to convey the senses of 'a relative', 'entire', and 'once', one would per force convey the unintended senses of 'dog', 'a piece of broken earthen pot' and 'dung', due to the corrupt mispronunciation of those words by replacing their 'sa' by 'la'!

Thus, this verse emphasizes, in a jocularly manner, the serious importance of correct pronunciation of Sanskrit words, because even a slightest modification in a single vowel or consonant in the pronunciation makes a world of difference in the sense conveyed. Correct utterance is a sure key to convey the intended sense of the words utilized by the speaker. It is found that often people use the Sanskrit words in the changed environment of the modern times when the modern Indian languages and local dialects thereof are prevalent in popular usage, and create humouros confusion, and then find fault with the ancient author. For instance, the famous statement of Lord Manu, viz., 'na str» sv<sup>1</sup>tantryam arhati', which recommends that a woman should not be neglected and left to fend herself for protecting her womanhood, and it has been misinterpreted as restricting the independence of women! Thorough knowledge of the Sanskrit through the study of grammar would conduce to stop these unauthorized gestures.

This verse contains a rather sarcastic reference to the conventional sources of corruptions of the originally pure Sanskrit words, conveying thereby that when these same words are pronounced by these social professional groups in their practical usage, they are mispronounced and thus get corrupted! These social groups normally make use of the local vernacular dialects for their normal daily profession which require them to communicate with the local people of the inner rural parts of the various regions of the country, and consequently they have to use a language mixed with the Sanskrit, Prakrit, Apabhrā, ला and modern dialectical words! These are the sources of linguistic modifications of the original Sanskrit words!! And, the task of the Sanskrit grammarian is to preserve the Sanskrit words in their original correct form!!! This is the reason why there have been Sanskrit Grammarians, like the eight predecessors of Pīṇini, Pīṇini himself, Kṛtyāyana, Patañjali, वैकायाना, Jinendra, Hemacandra, and others, in India from time to time in different ages.

Since one was required to have a thorough knowledge of the classical Sanskrit language, recognized the respectable learned (प्रिणा-मन्त्री) people from ancient times for acquiring the knowledge of the Vedic and ancient Indian culture and civilization, as also to dive deep into the R̄īm̄yāa, the Mahābhārata, and the purāṇas, and the religious and philosophical literature, the study of grammar has been strongly recommended as a recognized short-cut to master this language, since it is no longer in popular parlance. To this end, some wise man has advised as follows in the verse given below:

Yady-api bahu n̄dh̄-e tath̄' pi pa-ha putra vȳkara-aam / Sva-janaā ला-jano m̄ bhōt
sakala, लाकला, sakāc-chakāt //

He putra (O Son)! yady-api (=even if), bahu na adh̄-e = tva, adhika, adhyayana, na karo-i (=you may not study muchmore), tath̄' api (=even then) vȳkara-a, pa-ha = vȳkara-asya adhyayana, tu ava-यम् eva kuru (=you do study the grammar) / kim k̄ra-aam = kena hetun' (=why? What for? For what reason?) / Yena = yena hetun' (=for this same reason that,

LESSON 28

(A-वि, लाा P-हाा)

Prakṝr̄aka: The remaining taddhita terminations, other than those used for expressing the senses listed above are classed as the prakṝr̄aka, i.e., miscellaneous ones. The are: a<sup>a</sup>, yat, nya, -hak, -hañ, ^a, vuñ, etc. Let us discuss their usages in detail:

a<sup>a</sup> - (1)=To express the sense that one thing is found in another, e.g., srughne bhavaā = srughna+a<sup>a</sup> = sraughnaā (=one who is in the city named Srughna) / (2) To denote the sense that one stays in a particular place, e.g., mathur̄y<sup>1</sup>, niv̄saā (=residence) or abhijanaā (=family, lineage) yasya=m<sup>1</sup>thuraā (=a resident of, or one born in, the city of Mathura) / 3) To show the country to which one belongs, e.g., लीबन<sup>1</sup>, वि-याा (=country) = लाइब्याा (=one belonging to the country named लीबन) / (4) To denote a thing that has come, or obtained, from a particular place or a person, e.g., sraughn̄t̄ gataā = sraughnaā (=one who has come from the city of Srughna) / To denote that a particular thing has been dyed in a particular color, e.g., ka-वि-ya-m<sup>1</sup>ñji-ham (=a saffron cloth dyed in मज्ज-हा, i.e., the Indian madder) / To denote a food being cooked in a particular thing, e.g., bhr̄-re sa, skāt̄-yav̄ā = bhr̄-r̄-r̄ā (=the barley baked in a kiln) / payasi sa, skāta, bhaktam (=rice) = p̄yasam (=rice cooked in milk) / payas<sup>1</sup> sa, skāta, = p̄yasam (=prepared from milk) / dadhn̄ sa, skāta, = d̄dhikam (= made from yogurt) /

When the termination a<sup>a</sup> is applied for denoting the following four senses, it is called c̄tur-arthika*: (1) To denote that a thing located in a particular place, e.g., udumbaraā santi asmin de = audumbaraā (=country having the fig tree called udumbara) / (2) To denote a thing made from, or by, a particular thing, or person, e.g., ku-वि-mbena nirvātt<sup>1</sup> = kau-लीmb (=a city made by कुंम्बा) / (3) To denote the domicile of a person, e.g., लीबन<sup>1</sup>, de-ळā = लाइबाा (=a native country of the people called लीबन) / (4) To denote that a particular thing or place is not far from another, e.g., vidi-वि-y<sup>1</sup>ा a-dōra-bhava, = vaidिलाम (=a city not far from the city of विदिली) / The termination matup is applied to the feminine nouns ending in the i, ा, u or Ø, to denote the above c̄turthika senses, e.g., ik-umat (=name of a river, abounding in sugarcane plants) / yat – This termination is applied to denote a limb of the body, and to the words dif, varga, pøga, etc., e.g., danta+yat > dant+ya = dantya (=pertaining to tooth) / mukha+yat = mukhya (=pertaining to the mouth, or face, i.e., chief, principle, foremost) / n<sup>1</sup>sikya (=pertaining to nose, nasal) / difyaå or vargyaå puru-a (=a person belonging to a particular direction or class / pøgyaå or pak-yaå r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> (= king belonging to a particular clan or side) / rahasyaå mantraå or s<sup>1</sup>k-yaå (=a confidential deliberation or a witness) / 1dyåå (=first, foremost), antyaå (=last), medhyaå (=adorable), yøthyaå (=of the group), ny<sup>1</sup>yyaå (=just, lawful), va, flyaå (=parental, hereditary), k<sup>1</sup>lyåå (=of the time), jaghnyaå (= mean, inferior) puru-aå / All these words are used as adjectives, and are put in the Case and Number in accordance with the subject which they qualify as an adjective. This termination denotes the sense of worthiness (yogyat<sup>1</sup>) also, e.g., da<sup>2</sup>yaå (=fit to be punished) / musalyaå (=fit to wield a crowbar, or a mace) / madhuparkyaå (=worthy to be honored with the offering of madhu-parka) / arghyaaå (=worthy to be honored with the offering of argha, respectable) / medhya (=adorable) / vadhyå (=fit to be killed) / guhya (=fit to be hidden, secret) / bh<sup>1</sup>gya (worthy of attainment, fortunate) / This termination denotes the sense of 'agreeable', e.g. va<sup>1</sup>ya, gataå = va<sup>1</sup>yaå (=controllable) / dharm<sup>1</sup>d anapetam (=removed from dutifulness) / pathyam (=agreeable to health) / athyam (=conductive to earning) / hÅdayaå = hÅdayasya priyaå (=dear to the heart) / karma<sup>a</sup>yaå = karma<sup>a</sup>i s<sup>1</sup>dhuå (=good at work, expert) /

nya – This termination is applied to some avyay»bh<sup>1</sup>va compounds, e.g., pari-mukhe bhavam = p<sup>1</sup>rimuhym (=having faces all around) /

-hak (ika) – This termination is applied to denote the following the senses: (1) Source of income, e.g., f<sup>1</sup>ulka-¶<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>å 1gataå = f<sup>1</sup>ulka-¶<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>-hak > f<sup>1</sup>ulka-¶<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>+ika = f<sup>1</sup>aulka-¶<sup>1</sup>likaå (= earning by rental houses)/ (2) Working by means of a particular thing, e.g., ak-aiå d<sup>1</sup>vyati or jayati = ak-a+-hak > 1k-+ika = 1k-ikaå (= one who stakes, or wins, by means of dice, a gambler) / abhray<sup>1</sup> khanati = abhri+-hak = 1bhr+ika = 1bhrikaå (=one who digs with a hoe) / u<sup>0</sup>upena tarati = u<sup>0</sup>upa+-hak > au<sup>0</sup>up+ika = au<sup>0</sup>upika (=one who floats, or crosses over, by means of a boat, a sailor, a boatman) / hastin<sup>1</sup> carati = hasti+-hak = h<sup>1</sup>st+ika = h<sup>1</sup>stikaå (= one moving on an elephant, an elephant-driver) / (3) Possessing a particular good man, gentleman) / The field of the u<sup>a</sup>di terminations is very extensive and complicated. Hence, we have given just a primary introduction to them, and illustrated only the first one out of the hundreds of them.

Now, recite aloud the following verses along with their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

Vaiy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>a-kir<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>d

apa-¶abda-mÅg<sup>1</sup>å kva y<sup>1</sup>nti santrast<sup>1</sup>å /

Jyotir-na-a-vi-a-g<sup>1</sup>yaka-

-bhi-ag-1nana-gahvar<sup>1</sup>a i yadi na syuå //

This verse contains a question in the first p<sup>1</sup>da, comprising the first two lines: Vaiy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>a-kir<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>t = vaiy<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>-rØp<sup>1</sup>t (=in the form of a grammarian), kir<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>t (=from the tribal hunts-man), santrast<sup>1</sup>å = sutar<sup>1</sup>, tr<sup>1</sup>sit<sup>1</sup>å (= extremely frightened), apa-¶abda-mÅg<sup>1</sup>å = apa a-s<sup>1</sup>dhuå ¶abdaå = apa-¶abdaå, sa eva mÅgaå hari<sup>a</sup>å iti (= the corrupted words in the form of antelopes), kva = kutra = kasmin prade (where, in which place), y<sup>1</sup>nti=gacchanti=pal<sup>1</sup>yante (=go, run away) / Thus, the question is: 'Where would the antelopes in the form of the corrupted words go when they are terrorized by the tribal huntsman in the form of a grammarian?'

The answer is given in the second p<sup>1</sup>da, comprising the third and the fourth lines in the form of the supplementary question: yadi (=if), na syuå (=if there were not, if there did not exist, i.e., if they could not avail of) / kim (=what)?/ Jyotir-na-a-vi-a-g<sup>1</sup>yaka-bhi-ag-1nana-gahvar<sup>1</sup>a i / gahvar<sup>1</sup>a i = gamb<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>a i andhak<sup>1</sup>ra-pØr<sup>a</sup>ni sth<sup>1</sup>nani (=deep dark places, i.e., the caves, deep ravines)/ Ki, -rØp<sup>1</sup>a i (=in which forms)? 1nana-rØp<sup>1</sup>a i = mukha-rØp<sup>1</sup>a i (=in the form of the mouths) / Ke-1m (=of whom)? Jyoti- = jyoti-» (= astrologist) ca, na-aå (=an actor, dancer, rope-dancer) ca, vi-aå (=a paramour, voluptuary, attendant of a harlot) ca, g<sup>1</sup>yakaå (=a singer) ca, bhi-ak (=a physician) ca, iti jyotir-na-a-vi-a-g<sup>1</sup>yaka-bhi-ajaå, te-1m 1nan<sup>1</sup>ni = mukh<sup>1</sup>ni (=mouths), ta eva gahvar<sup>1</sup>a i iti, tad-rØp<sup>1</sup>a igahvar<sup>1</sup>a i (=the caves in those forms) / Thus, the answer in the form of the supplementary counter question is: ' What, if there would not have existed the caves in the forms of the mouths of the astrologers, rope-dancers, paramours, singers, and physicians?'

as well as the yaj-lug-anta forms of the verbal root budh in both the Active and the Passive Voice. Thus, (in la-) bobudhyate (=knows repeatedly, or intensively), (in li-) bobudhyata (=knew repeatedly, or intensively), (in lu-) bobudhit<sup>1</sup> (=will know repeatedly, or intensely), (in vidhi-li) bobudheta (=may know repeatedly, or intensively), (in ^pr-li) bobudhi-»-a (=May he become one who has known repeatedly, or intensely), (in lu) abobudhi-a (=knew repeatedly, or intensely), (in l) abobudhi-ata (=if he would have known repeatedly, or intensely).

But, the forms of all these la-k<sup>1</sup>ras are rarely found to be used in the Classical Sanskrit. Generally, they are found in the Present Tense only, e.g., budh - bobudhyate / d<sup>1</sup>-ded<sup>1</sup>yate / jan - jañjanyate / d<sup>1</sup>p - ded<sup>1</sup>pyate / vĀt - varvĀtyate / nĀt - narĀnĀtyate / pracch - par<sup>1</sup>pācchayate / grah - jar<sup>1</sup>gĀhyate / pat - pan<sup>1</sup>patyate / p<sup>1</sup> - pep<sup>1</sup>yate / j<sup>1</sup> - je<sup>1</sup>yate / bh<sup>1</sup>θ - bobh<sup>1</sup>θyate / a- a-<sup>1</sup>-yate / kĀ - cekr<sup>1</sup>yate / stu - to-<sup>1</sup>θyate / pac - p<sup>1</sup>pac<sup>1</sup>yate / Among these, the yaj-anta forms of the following verbal roots denote the sense of crookedness or being censurable or despicable, e.g., vraj - v<sup>1</sup>vrajyate = ku-ila, vrajati (=walks crookedly) / lup - lolupyate = garhita, lumpati (=cuts despically) / sad - s<sup>1</sup>sadyate (=is drowned reprehensibly) / jap - jañjapyate (=performs the japa indifferently, prattles, gabbles, grumbles) / dah - dandahyate (=burns reprehensibly) / da, ¶ - danda¶yate (=stings in a very bad manner) /

U<sup>a</sup>1di-pratyaya: P<sup>1a</sup>ini has mentioned a class of some special terminations, in five or ten groups and listed them in the chapters, each one of them being called p<sup>1</sup>da. Since the first one of them begins with the termination u<sup>a</sup> (=u), the whole class is called U<sup>a</sup>1di, and the two such work comprising this whole list in five or ten p<sup>1</sup>das is known as the Pañca-p<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>, U<sup>1</sup>di-p<sup>1</sup>-ha or the Daf<sup>1</sup>a-p<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>, U<sup>1a</sup>1di-p<sup>1</sup>-ha, respectively. Through these terminations P<sup>1a</sup>ini has sought to offer the grammatical analysis of such Sanskrit words which could not be analyzed logically in by means of any other terminations prescribed by his rest of the grammatical rules (sōtras). For instance, karoti iti = kĀ+u<sup>a</sup> > k<sup>1</sup>r+u = k<sup>1</sup>ru (=sculpture) / v<sup>1</sup>ti iti = v<sup>1</sup>+u<sup>a</sup> > vai+u = v<sup>1</sup>yu (=wind) / svadate = rocate (=likes) = svad+u<sup>a</sup> > sv<sup>1</sup>d+u = sv<sup>1</sup>du (=tasty) / s<sup>1</sup>dhnoti para-k<sup>1</sup>ryan iti = s<sup>1</sup>dh+u<sup>a</sup> > s<sup>1</sup>dh+u = s<sup>1</sup>dhu (=a faculty, e.g., asti para-lokaā iti matiā yasya saā = asti+-hak = ^st+i<sup>a</sup>ika = ^stikaā (=theist) / na asti para-lokaā iti matiā yasya saā = na+ asti+-hak = n<sup>1</sup>st+i<sup>a</sup>ka = n<sup>1</sup>stikaā (=atheist) / di-<sup>1</sup>-am iti matiā yasya saā = dai-<sup>1</sup>-ikaā = di-<sup>1</sup>-a+-hak > dai-<sup>1</sup>-+ikd (=fatalist) / apØpa-bhak-<sup>a</sup>a, ¶<sup>1</sup>lam asya = apØpa+-hak > ^pØp+ika = ^pØpikaā (=fond of eating sweet cake) / niyuktaā = ^kara+-hak > ^kar+ika = ^k<sup>1</sup>rikaā (=treasurer) / (4) A thing embellished in a particular way, e.g., tailena sa,skĀtam = taila+-hak > tail+ika = tailikam (=a food fried in oil) / ghĀta+-hak > ghaĀt+ika = gh<sup>1</sup>rtikam (=a food cooked in ghee) / marica+-hak = m<sup>1</sup>ric+ika = m<sup>1</sup>ricikam (=a food with chili powder sprinkled in it) / (5) Having a particular color, e.g., l<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>1</sup>-+hak > l<sup>1</sup>k-<sup>1</sup>-ika = l<sup>1</sup>k-ikam (=having the color of sealing wax) / rocan<sup>1</sup>+-hak > raucan+ika = raucanikam (=having the color of bezoars stone), kardama+-hak . K<sup>1</sup>rdam+ika = k<sup>1</sup>rdamikam (=having the color of mud) /

-hañ (=ika) - This termination denotes the senses such as: (1) worthiness, e.g., prastham arhati = prastha+-hañ > pr<sup>1</sup>sth+ika = p<sup>1</sup>sthikaā y<sup>1</sup>cakaā (=a beggar worthy of grains measuring a prastha) / dro<sup>a</sup>a+-hañ = drau<sup>a</sup>+ika = drau<sup>a</sup>ikaā br<sup>1</sup>hma<sup>a</sup>ā (=a Brahmin worthy of grains measuring a dro<sup>a</sup>a) / ¶<sup>1</sup>veita-chatra + hañ > ¶<sup>1</sup>veita-chatra+ika = ¶<sup>1</sup>vaita-cchatrika r<sup>1</sup>j<sup>1</sup> (=a king worthy of while parasol) / (2) Purpose or intention, e.g., indra_maha+-hañ > aindra-mah_ika = aindrāmahikaā (=meant for the sacrifice to Indra) / (3) To the Ā-k<sup>1</sup>r<sup>1</sup>nta words, i.e., those ending in Ā, to indicate of relation, of study, or from birth, e.g., bhr<sup>1</sup>tĀ+-hañ > bhr<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>Ā+ika > bhr<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>Ā+ka = bhr<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>km (=relation of a brother) / pitĀ+-hañ > pit<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>Ā+ika > pit<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>Ā+ka = pait<sup>1</sup>āk<sup>1</sup> vidy<sup>1</sup> (=learning inherited from father) /

<sup>a</sup>a (=a) - To indicate the use of a particular weapon in a game, e.g., da<sup>a</sup>@āa prahara<sup>a</sup>am asy<sup>1</sup>, kr<sup>1</sup>¶<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, s<sup>1</sup> = da<sup>a</sup>@a+<sup>a</sup>a > d<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>-a > d<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>@a+<sup>1</sup> (F.) = d<sup>1</sup>a<sup>a</sup>@<sup>1</sup> (=a game of fighting with sticks) / mu-<sup>1</sup>iā prahara<sup>a</sup>am asy<sup>1</sup>, kr<sup>1</sup>¶<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>, s<sup>1</sup> = mu-<sup>1</sup>i+<sup>a</sup>a > mau-<sup>1</sup>-+a > mau-<sup>1</sup>a+<sup>1</sup> (F.) = mau-<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup> (=boxing).

vuñ (=aka) - To indicate of relation of study, or from birth, e.g., up<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>gat<sup>1</sup> = up<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>ya+vuñ > aup<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>y+aka > aup<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>yaka+<sup>1</sup> (F.) = aup<sup>1</sup>dhy<sup>1</sup>yak<sup>1</sup> vidy<sup>1</sup> (=branch learning inherited from the teacher) / pit<sup>1</sup>mah<sup>1</sup>d<sup>1</sup>gata, = pit<sup>1</sup>maha+vuñ > pait<sup>1</sup>mah+aka = pait<sup>1</sup>mahaka, dhanam (=wealth inherited from the grandfather) / Both the yat and the vuñ terminations are applied in this sense, e.g., pitā+yat > pitr+ya = pityam / Pitā+vuñ >paitā+aka > paitā+ka = paitāka, riktham (=property inherited from the father) /

Now, recite aloud the following verses and their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

*Keffava, patita, dĀ-v<sup>1</sup> dro<sup>a</sup>o har-am up<sup>1</sup>gataā /
Rudanti karav<sup>1</sup>ā sarve h<sup>1</sup> ke-ava katha, gataā //*

This verse presents a poetic puzzle. Its sense that we gather from it at first sight is like this: On seeing (dĀ-v<sup>1</sup>) that Krishna (keffavam) has fallen down (patitam), obviously, wounded on the battle field during the Mah<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>rata War), Dro<sup>a</sup>a (dro<sup>a</sup>aā = the guru of the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>avas and the Kauravas) was delighted (har<sup>1</sup>lam up<sup>1</sup>gataā). All (sarve) the Kauravas (kaurav<sup>1</sup>ā) are weeping (rudanti), saying 'O Keffava ( h<sup>1</sup> keffva ) ! How having you passed away (katha, gataā)! Now, as we know well, Krishna was never wounded, nor did he ever fall down, during the Mah<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>rata War. And, Dro<sup>a</sup>a who revered Krishna would never believe, nor hope, of finding Krishna wounded and falling down, hence no chance of his being delighted !! And, if ever Krishna were to be wounded and tumbled down, the Kauravas would be happy, rather than unhappy and hence weeping !!! And, as we know, such an incident is nowhere recorded in the Mah<sup>1</sup>bh<sup>1</sup>rata. Hence the puzzle. Then, what is the real meaning ? It is as follows:

Ke = jale (= in the water), fava, = mātaka, = māta-deha, (= a dead body), patita, dĀ-v<sup>1</sup> (=having seen fallen down), dro<sup>a</sup>aā = kā-a-k<sup>1</sup>kaā (= a black crow), har-am up<sup>1</sup>gataā (=was delighted) / Sarve (=all) kaurav<sup>1</sup>ā = fag<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ā (=the jackals), rudanti (= are weeping, i.e., barking in an extended way out of disappointment) / H<sup>1</sup>(= Oh! Alas!), ke (=in the water) fava = O dead body!), katha, gataā (=how have you gone away) ?'

*~a;kara, patita, p<sup>1</sup>rvat<sup>1</sup> har-a-nirbhar<sup>1</sup> /
Ruruduā pannag<sup>1</sup>ā sarve h<sup>1</sup> h<sup>1</sup> fai;kara fai;kara //
Ayam api (=this also is), kō-a-flokaā (=a puzzling verse)/ tasya*

*kary<sup>1</sup>suā, gey<sup>1</sup>t, smary<sup>1</sup>sta, d<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>ya, etc., are the verbal forms of Benedictive. Among them, the forms of the 3<sup>d</sup> and the 2<sup>d</sup> Persons denote the sense of blessing, while those in the 1<sup>t</sup> Person denote well wishing for one's own self, e.g., bhavat<sup>1</sup>, fubha, bhōy<sup>1</sup>t (=May you attain welfare) / drg<sup>1</sup>yu- bhōy<sup>1</sup>sta (=May you be a long-lived one, i.e., live long) / dhavan putrav<sup>1</sup>n yu-yav<sup>1</sup>n bhōy<sup>1</sup>sam (= May I become one endowed with wealth, son and long life) /*

Sometimes, when the Sanskrit verbal roots are derived from the pr<sup>1</sup>tipakas, i.e., nouns and adjectives, they are called the n<sup>1</sup>ma-dh<sup>1</sup>tu (=nominative roots, or verbal nominatives), and the verbal forms are conjugated from them by adding the adjuncts kyac or kyai (= <sup>1</sup>ya) or k<sup>1</sup>myac (= <sup>1</sup>paya) and then applying the terminations of the Parasmai-pada or the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada of the intended Tense or Mood, either in the Active, Passive or the Impersonal Voice. They denote the sense of 'behaving or acting like', 'to be like', 'to act like', or 'to wish for a particular' some one denoted by the noun or adjective from which the nominative roots are derived. For instance, from kavi – kavayati (=behaves like a poet) / from pitā – pitrayati (- acts like father) / m<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>yate (=acts like a garland) / from kā-a - kā-a<sup>1</sup>yate (=behaves like Krishna) / from un-manas – unhan<sup>1</sup>yate (=gets disaffected) / from fabda - fabd<sup>1</sup>yate (= makes noise, utters) / duākh<sup>1</sup>yate (= becomes unhappy) /

Sometimes, the sense that a particular action is performed repeatedly, or excellently, is sought to be denoted the forms of the Frequentative (paunaā-puny<sup>1</sup>rthaka) or Intensive (atiy<sup>1</sup>rthaka) Mood are used. In the P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>inian system they are called yaj-anta and yaj-lug-anta, respectively. The forms in which the termination yaj is applied are called yaj-anta, i.e., having the termination yaj at their end, and the forms in which the termination yaj is elided are called yaj-lug-anta, i.e., having the termination yaj elided at their end. The yaj-anta forms are conjugated only in the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada, and they are popular in the Classical Sanskrit, while the yaj-lug-anta forms are conjugated in the Parasmai-pada only and are found mostly in the Vedic Sanskrit only. Both types of forms may be in the Active, Passive or the Impersonal Voice. By way of a specimen we illustrate both the yaj-anta

3rd Per. Sing., in the Passive Voice (karma<sup>a</sup>i-prayoga) / We saw the usages like pr<sup>1</sup>la, s<sup>1</sup>t and aspardhi<sup>-a</sup> which are the Aorist verbal forms of 3rd Per. Sing., in the Active Voice (kartari-prayoga), of which we familiarized ourselves with the seven types. In this way, all the Sanskrit verbal roots can be conjugated in the Active (kartari), Passive (karmani) and Impersonal (bh<sup>1</sup>ve) Voices, and such forms are found used in Sanskrit literature. The grammatical analysis of the Passive Aorist 3rd Per. Sing. verbal forms is as follows:
apa+h<sup>1</sup>lu<sub>j</sub> > apa+a+h<sup>1</sup>i > apa+a+h<sup>1</sup>r (by vāddhi of Ā) + i = ap<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ri / chid+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+chid+i > a+ched+i + acchedi / bhid+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+bhid+i > a+bhed+i = abhedī / k-ip+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+k-ip+s+ata = ak-ipsata / Similarly, bh<sup>1</sup>θ or as+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+bh<sup>1</sup>θ+i > a+bh<sup>1</sup>v+i = abhavi / adhi+i+lu<sub>j</sub> > adhi+gam+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+gam+i = ag<sup>1</sup>mi / anu+i-+lu<sub>j</sub> > anu+a+i-+i > anv+a+i-+i = anvai-i / kath+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+kath+i > a+k<sup>1</sup>th+i = ak<sup>1</sup>thī / kam+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+kam+i > a+k<sup>1</sup>m+i = ak<sup>1</sup>mi / kamp+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+kamp+i = akampī / pra+k<sup>1</sup>-+lu<sub>j</sub> > pra+a+k<sup>1</sup>l+i = pr<sup>1</sup>l-i / k<sup>1</sup>l+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+k<sup>1</sup>l+i > a+k<sup>1</sup>r+i = ak<sup>1</sup>ri / kr<sup>1</sup>o+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+kr<sup>1</sup>o+i > akr<sup>1</sup>oī / k-ubh+lub+i > a+k-ubh+i > a+k-obh+i = ak-obhi / adhi+gam+lu<sub>j</sub> > adhi+a+g<sup>1</sup>m+i = adhy-ag<sup>1</sup>mi / car+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+car+i > a+c<sup>1</sup>r+i = ac<sup>1</sup>ri / chid+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+chid+i > a+cched+i = acchedī / jalp+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+jalp+i = ajalpī / ta<sup>1</sup>o+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+ta<sup>1</sup>o+i > a+t<sup>1</sup>o+i = at<sup>1</sup>oī / da<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>o+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+da<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>o+i = ada<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>oī / dai+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+d<sup>1</sup>y+i = ad<sup>1</sup>yī / dh<sup>1</sup>v+ku<sub>j</sub> > a+dh<sup>1</sup>v+i = adh<sup>1</sup>vi / n<sup>1</sup>+lu<sub>j</sub> > a+n<sup>1</sup>+i > a+n<sup>1</sup>y+i = an<sup>1</sup>yī /

Sometimes, when the verbal of the li<sub>j</sub>-lak<sup>1</sup>ra are used in the Benedictive Mood, i.e., for denoting the sense of blessing (<sup>1</sup>→r-v<sup>1</sup>da) also, they are known as the verbal forms <sup>1</sup>→r-liñ. Such forms are found to have the following terminations suffixed to them: In the Parasmai-pada, (3rd Per.) y<sup>1</sup>t, y<sup>1</sup>st<sup>1</sup>m, y<sup>1</sup>suā / (2nd Per.) y<sup>1</sup>ā, y<sup>1</sup>stam, y<sup>1</sup>sta / (1st Per.) y<sup>1</sup>sam, y<sup>1</sup>sva, y<sup>1</sup>sma / ; and in the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada (3rd Per.) s<sup>1</sup>ra-a, s<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>st<sup>1</sup>m, s<sup>1</sup>ran / (2nd Per.) s<sup>1</sup>ra-h<sup>1</sup>ā, s<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>sth<sup>1</sup>m, s<sup>1</sup>dhvam / (1st Per.) s<sup>1</sup>ya, s<sup>1</sup>vahi, s<sup>1</sup>mahi / For instance, of k<sup>1</sup>l, in Parasmai-pada, (3rd Per.) kriy<sup>1</sup>t, kriy<sup>1</sup>st<sup>1</sup>m, kriy<sup>1</sup>suā / (2nd Per.) kriy<sup>1</sup>ā, kriy<sup>1</sup>stam, kriy<sup>1</sup>sta / (1st Per.) kriy<sup>1</sup>sam, kriy<sup>1</sup>sva, kriy<sup>1</sup>sma/ and of k<sup>1</sup>l, in the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada (3rd Per.) k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ra-a, k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>st<sup>1</sup>m, k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ran / (2nd Per.) k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ra-h<sup>1</sup>ā, k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>sth<sup>1</sup>m, k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>dhvam / (1st Per.) k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>ya, k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>vahi, k<sup>1</sup>l<sup>1</sup>mahi / Similarly, bh<sup>1</sup>θ<sup>1</sup>sam,

prathama-d<sup>1</sup>-y<sup>1</sup> (=at first glnce, i.e., apparent), labhyaā (=that is to be obtained, i.e., gathered), arthaā (=meaning), a-sambaddhaā (=is incongruent) / Saā evam (=it is like this) / ~a<sub>j</sub> karam = ॥ivam (=Lord Shiva), patita, d<sup>1</sup>~-v<sup>1</sup> (=having seen fallen down), p<sup>1</sup>rvat (= Um<sup>1</sup>, the daughter of Mount Himalaya), har-a-nirbhar<sup>1</sup> = nitar<sup>1</sup>, ~nandena p<sup>1</sup>Or<sup>1</sup> (=was highly full of joy) / sarve pannag<sup>1</sup>ā (= all the snakes), ruruduā = rodana, k<sup>1</sup>lavantaā (=were weeping)/ ha ha ॥a<sub>j</sub> kara ॥a<sub>j</sub> kara (=Alas! alas! O Shankar! O Shankar!) / Now, this is impossible, because Lord Shankar, being invincible, can never fall down. So how can one see him having tumbled down? And, in case, suppose, this ever happened, how would Parvati, the beloved goddess wife of Lord Shankar, be ever delighted? She would rather weep and wail! And, why should the snakes, serving Lord Shiva as His the ornaments, would weep? On the contrary, they would be delighted to be liberated from their slavery, and free to bite anybody they liked, since it was impossible to bite the Lord! Hence the puzzle.

Now, the really intended sense of the poet is this: Sa, -kara, = ॥<sup>1</sup>nti-karara, (=rendering peaceful, cooling, i.e., a sandal tree), patita, d<sup>1</sup>~-v<sup>1</sup> (=having found), p<sup>1</sup>rvat = parvata-niv<sup>1</sup>sin bhilla-str (=a woman of the mountain tribe), har-a-nirbhar<sup>1</sup> (=was full of joy) / Because, she would be able to use the sandal wood, to make a paste from it and apply it to her body and get a soothing cool effect in the hot Summer season. But, sarve pannag<sup>1</sup>ā (=all the snakes, that were residing in and on the Sandal tree), ruruduā (=began to cry and wail), because their residential Sandal tree was rooted out, and hence destroyed. They were wailing thus: h<sup>1</sup> h<sup>1</sup> (=Alas! Alas!), ॥akara sa<sub>j</sub> kara (= O the peace-giver Sandal tree! O the peace-giver Sandal tree) !

Now, we continue with the rest of the types of the lu<sub>j</sub>-lak<sup>1</sup>ra, i.e., the Aorist Pass Tense:

Fifth Variety: In this variety of the Aorist, too, the same terminations, as in the First Variety, are applied, but in the 3rd and the 2nd Per. Sing. the adjunct i- is added and the adjunct sic is dropped, while in all other Person and Numbers both the i- and the sic survive, and the s of the sic becomes ~, consequently, the terminations in the Parasmai-pada look, like (3rd Per.) →t, -i-at<sup>1</sup>m, -i-uā / (2nd Per.) -iā, -i-~am, -i-~a / (1st Per.) →am, -i-va, -i-ma / and in the <sup>1</sup>tmane-pada like, (3rd Per.) / -ñ-a, -i-at<sup>1m</sup>, -i-ata (2nd Per.) -i-h<sup>1å</sup>, -i-<sup>1th<sup>1m</sup></sup> - idhvam / (1st Per.) -i-i, -i-vahi, -i-mahi / Thus, the conjugational forms would be: of the verbal root vid (2 P.) in (3rd Per.) avedit, avedi-at<sup>1m</sup>, avedi-uå / (2nd Per.) avediå, avedi-am, avedi-a / (1st Per.) avedi-am avel-va, avedi-ma /, and of the verbal root mud (1st Per.) in (3rd Per.) amod<sup>1</sup>-a, amodi-at<sup>1m</sup>, amodi-ata / (2nd Per.) amodi-h<sup>1å</sup>, amodi-<sup>1th<sup>1m</sup></sup> amodidhvam / (1st Per.) amodi-i, amodi-vahi, amodi-mahi /. Similarly, in 3rd Per. Sing.: of ¶vi (1 P.) – a¶vayit; of stu (2 U.) – ast<sup>1v</sup>t, as<sup>1v</sup>-a; of v (5 U.) – av<sup>1r</sup>t, avar<sup>1</sup>-a; of grah (9 U.) agrah<sup>1</sup>t, agrahi-<sup>1</sup>a; of pa-h (1 P.) apa-h<sup>1</sup>t, ap<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup>t; of ¶vas (2 P.) a¶vas<sup>1</sup>t; of vAt (1st Per.) avarti-<sup>1</sup>a of tan (8 U.) atan<sup>1</sup>t, at<sup>1n</sup>t and atani-<sup>1</sup>a, atata /

Sixth Variety: In this variety of the lu<sub>i</sub> lak<sup>1</sup>ra the forms are conjugated only in the Parasmai-pada, and the terminations applied are the same as in the Fifth Variety, but the adjunct sak and the i-
gama are added, so that the terminations look like: (3rd Per.) s»t, si-<sup>1</sup>m, si-uā / (2nd Per.) saā, si-<sup>1</sup>am, si-<sup>1</sup>a / (1st Per.) si-am, si-va,
si-ma / For instance: of the verbal root y<sup>1</sup> (2 P.) in (3rd Per.) ay<sup>1</sup>s»t,
ay<sup>1</sup>si-<sup>1</sup>m, ay<sup>1</sup>si-uā / (2nd Per.) ay<sup>1</sup>saā, ay<sup>1</sup>si-<sup>1</sup>am, ay<sup>1</sup>si-<sup>1</sup>a / (1st Per.) ay<sup>1</sup>si-am, ay<sup>1</sup>si-va, ay<sup>1</sup>si-ma / Similarly, the 3<sup>d</sup> Per. Sing. of
jñ<sup>1</sup>(9 U.) ajñ<sup>1</sup>s»t, of gai (1 P.) ag<sup>1</sup>s»t, of glai (1 P.) agl<sup>1</sup>s»t, of nam (1 P.) ana, s»t, of pra+nam (1 P.) pr<sup>1</sup>a<sub>a</sub>, s»t, of vi+ram(1 P.) vyara, s»t

Seventh Variety: Here, the adjunct ksa (=sa), instead of the cli, is added, and the gu<sup>a</sup>a or vāddhi modifications do not occur. And, the terminations of the Imperfect with the ksa added to them, are applied to the verbal roots. The terminations, thus, look like: (3rd Per.) -sat, -sat<sup>1m</sup>, -san; (2nd Per.) -saā, -satam, -sata; (1st Per.) -sam, -s<sup>1va</sup>, -s<sup>1ma</sup> in the Parasmai-pada, and (3rd Per.) -sata, -s<sup>1t<sup>1m</sup></sup>, -santa; (2nd Per.) -sath<sup>1å</sup>, -s<sup>1th<sup>1m</sup></sup>, -sadhvam; (1st Per.) si, s<sup>1vahi</sup>, s<sup>1mahi</sup> in the तमने-पदा. For instance: of the root dīf (6 U.) in (3rd Per.) adik-at, adik-at<sup>1m</sup>, adik-an; (2nd Per) adik-aā, adik-atam, adik-ata; (1st Per.) adik-am, adik-<sup>1va</sup>, adik-<sup>1ma</sup> in the Parasmai-pada, and (3rd Per.) -adik-ata, adik-<sup>1t<sup>1m</sup></sup>, adik-anta; (2nd Per.) adik-ath<sup>1å</sup>, adik-<sup>1th<sup>1m</sup></sup>, adik-adhvam; (1st Per.) adik-i, adik-<sup>1vahi</sup>, adik-<sup>1mahi</sup> in the तमने-पदा. Similarly, in 3rd Per. Sing. of the root duh (2 U.)

All these forms belong to the Active Voice (kartari prayoga). More than one types of the luj -lak<sup>1</sup>ra verbal forms derived from the verbal roots are found used in Sanskrit literature. The seven types of the Aorist verbal forms shown above are meant to demonstrate the richness of the language, and familiarize the reader to help him grasp the exact meaning of the usage by acquiring an insight into the their components, so as to provide him with a sure access to the unimaginably rich literary treasure. This analysis serves to also give the extraordinary grammatical genius of P<sup>1</sup>a<sup>ni</sup> who analyzed the language so minutely, before thousand of years in India.

Now, recite aloud the following verses, along with their explanations, trying to grasp their meanings:

*Santrast<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m ap<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ri sattva, ca vana-v<sup>1</sup>sin<sup>1</sup>m /
Acchedi lak-ma<sup>a</sup>en<sup>1</sup>sya kir»-a, kavaca, tath<sup>1</sup> //*

Tena = kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>ena, santrast<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = ati-bh<sup>1</sup>t<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m (= of those that were highly afraid), vana-v<sup>1</sup>s<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m = vane v<sup>1</sup>saå ye<sup>-1</sup>, te<sup>-1</sup>m v<sup>1</sup>ra<sup>a</sup>nam (= of the forest-dwellers, i.e. monkeys), sattva, = balam (= strength, power), ca ap<sup>1</sup>h<sup>1</sup>ri = apahåtam (=was taken away, removed, eliminated) / Lak-ma<sup>a</sup>ena = r<sup>1</sup>masya anujena (=by Lakshman, the younger brother of Rama), asya = kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>asya (=of Kumbhakarna, the huge demon brother of Ravana), k<sup>1</sup>ri-am = muku-am (= the diadem), tath<sup>1</sup> = tena prak<sup>1</sup>re<sup>a</sup>a (=similarly), kavacam = varma (=the armour), acchedi = chinnam (=pierced, split off) /

*Abhedi ḫarair dehaå pr<sup>1</sup>sa, s<sup>1</sup>t ta, ni<sup>1</sup>caraå /
Aspardh<sup>1</sup>-a ca r<sup>1</sup>me<sup>1</sup>a ten<sup>1</sup>sy<sup>1</sup>k-ipsate-avaå //*

(Lak-ma<sup>a</sup>ena) ñaraiå = b<sup>1</sup>aia (=by means of the arrows), (kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>asya) deham = k<sup>1</sup>yaå (=body), abhedi = bhinnåa (=shattered) / Ni<sup>1</sup>caraå = r<sup>1</sup>k-aå (=the demon, i.e., Kumbha-karna), ta, = lak-ma<sup>a</sup>am, pr<sup>1</sup>ña, s<sup>1</sup>t= stutav<sup>1</sup>n (=praised, appreciated) / Såå (=He), r<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup>a (=with Rama), aspardhi-a = yoddhu, spardh<sup>1</sup>, kåtav<sup>1</sup>n (=competed to fight) ca / R<sup>1</sup>me<sup>a</sup>a, asya = kumbhakar<sup>a</sup>asya (=of, or for, or towards, Kumbhakarna), i-avaåå = b<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>å, ak-ipsata = k<sup>1</sup>ipt<sup>1</sup>å (=directed, shot, threw away, scattered) /

learning Sanskrit. It answers to the urgent need in the present day tragic condition of educational environment, when Sanskrit is sought to be almost eliminated from the syllabi of the secondary school standards, and from the colleges. It would also serve as the source material for the content part of the students choosing Sanskrit as the special subject, or the Sanskrit method, for the Bachelor Degree in faculty of Arts, as well as in faculty of Education.

At this juncture I offer by salutations to the veterans like Pandit Satavalekar at Kila Pardi, the Brihad Gujarat Parishad in Ahmedabad, and B.A.P.S. Swaminarayan saints in SAragpur who have devised their own individual methods of Self-study booklets. I undertook the task of trying my own hand at the behest of the Late Dr. Ishwarbhai Patel, the former Vice Chancellor of the Sardar Patel University, the Gujarat University and the Gujarat Agricultural University. Initially, these lessons were intended to be but a Sanskrit Correspondence Course, and then were brought out as a Gujarati publication of the Maharshi Veda Vijnan Academy, Ahmedabad, in 1986.

I hope his book, adopting a novel arrangement quite different from the prevalent Sanskrit P<sup>1</sup>-ham<sup>1</sup>l's, P<sup>1</sup>-h<sup>1</sup>valis, as also the V<sup>1</sup>kara<sup>a</sup>, and seeking to offer an easy and practical compact course for mastering Sanskrit fully, easily, and enabling the serious student to get acquainted with the basics of the *P<sup>1</sup>a*nian system, too. would serve its objective, with the divine grace of my revered Gurudev and God.

Ahmedabad,
25th October, 2003.

Narayan Kansara

pa<sup>a</sup> (1 U. = to sell, play with dice, wager) - pa<sup>a</sup>¹yati, apa<sup>a</sup>¹yat, pa<sup>a</sup>¹yatu, pa<sup>a</sup>¹yet / pa<sup>a</sup>¹ate, apa<sup>a</sup>¹ata, pa<sup>a</sup>¹at¹m, pa<sup>a</sup>¹eta /

pan (6 U. = to praise, eulogize) - pan¹yati, apan¹yat, pan¹yatu, pan¹yet / panet, apanata, panat¹, paneta /

gṛh¹ (1 P. = to smell) jighrati, ajighrat, jighratu, jighret /

mn¹ (1 P. = to study, recite) - manati, amanat, manatu, manet /

sā (1 P. = to slip, slide, move) - sarati, asarat, saratu, saret /

dh¹v (1 P.= to run)- dh¹vati / adh¹vat / dh¹vatu / dh¹vet /

yam (1 P.= to control, restrain)- yacchati / ayacchat / yacchatu / yacchet /

॥ (1 .=.to disintegrate) - ॥ryate / a॥ryata / ॥ryat¹m / ॥ryeta /

g॥ (6 P.=to gulp, swallow) - girati / agirat / giratu / giret /

guh (6 P.=to hide, conceal) - gōhati / agōhat / gōhatu / gōhet / gōhet / agōhata / gōhat¹m / gōheta /

sñj (1 P.=to cling, stick) - sañjati / asañjat / sañjatu / sañjet /

div (4 P.=to wager, play dice) - d»vyati / ad»vyat / d»vyatu / d»vyet /

siv (4 P.= to stitch) - s»vyati / as»vyat / s»vyatu / s»vyet /

do (4 P.=to cut, reap, harvest) - dyati / adyat / dyatu / dyet /

cho (4 P.= to cut, reap, harvest) - chyati / achyat / chyatu / chyet /

॥o (4 P.=to sharpen) - ॥yati / a॥yat / ॥yatu / ॥yet /

so (4 P.=to end) - syati / asyat / syatu / syet /

vyadh (4 P.=to pierce, prick) - vidhyati / avidhyat / vidhyatu / vidhyet /

masj (6 P.=to drown, sink) - majjati / amajjat / majjatu / majjet /

sasj (1 U.=to get ready ) - sajjati / asajjat / sajjatu / sajjet / sajjate / asajjata / sajjat¹m / sajjeta /

lajsj (1 .=.to blush, feel ashamed) - lajjate / alajjata / lajjat¹m / lajjeta /

lup (6 U.=to disappear, to disintegrate) - lumpati / alumpat / lumpatu / lumpet / lumpate / alumpata / lumpat¹m / lumpeta / kam (1 and 10 .=.to wish, desire) - k¹mayate / ak¹mayata / k¹mayat¹m / k¹mayeta /

bhr¹॥ (1 .=.to shine, flash,) - bhl¹॥ate / abhl¹॥at / bhl¹॥at¹m / bhl¹॥eta /

(4 .=.to glitter) - bhl¹॥yete / abhl¹॥yata / bhl¹॥yat¹m / bhl¹॥yeta /

cam (1 P.=to seep) - *camati / c<sup>1</sup>mati / c<sup>1</sup>mat / c<sup>1</sup>matu / c<sup>1</sup>met / d<sup>1</sup>¶(1 p.= to see) - pafyati / apafyati / pafyat / pafyet / dhm<sup>1</sup> (1 P.=blow air into fire) - dhamati / adhamat / dhamatu / dhame / jahb (1 ..=to yawn, gape) - jambhate / ajambhata / jambhat<sup>1</sup>m / jambheta / vid (6 U.=to get, obtain, achieve) - vindati / avindat / vindatu / vindet / vindate / avindata / vindat<sup>1</sup>m / vindeta / bhrasj (6 U.= to bake) - bhrujjati / abhrujjat / bhrujjatu / bhrujjet / bhrujjate / abhrujjata / bhrujjat<sup>1</sup>m / bhrujjeta / muc (6 U.= to leave, release) - muñcati / amuñcat / muñcatu / muñcet / muñcate / amuñcata / muñcat<sup>1</sup>m / muñceta / sic (6 U.= to sprinkle, spray) - siñcati / asiñcat / siñcatu / siñcet / siñcet / asiñcata / siñcat<sup>1</sup>m / siñceta / lip (6 U.= to daub, plaster) - *limpati / alimpat / limpatu / limpet / limpete / alimpata / limpat<sup>1</sup>m / limpeta / k<sup>1</sup>kt (6 P.= to cut, sever) - *k<sup>1</sup>ntati / ak<sup>1</sup>ntat / k<sup>1</sup>ntatu / k<sup>1</sup>ntet / i<sup>1</sup> (6 P.=to wish, desire ) - *icchati / aicchat / icchatu / icchet / anu+i<sup>1</sup> (4 P.= to search) - anvi-yati / anvaii-yat / anvi-yatu / anvi-yat / bhram (1 P.=to wander, loiter) - bhramati / abhramat / bhramatu / bhramet / bhram (4 P.= to wander, loiter) - bhr<sup>1</sup>myati / abhr<sup>1</sup>myat / bhr<sup>1</sup>myatu / bhr<sup>1</sup>myet / k-am (1 ..= to forgive, tolerate) - k-amate / ak-amata / k-amat<sup>1</sup>m / k-ameta / k-am (4 P.= to forgive, tolerate) - k<sup>1</sup>myati / ak<sup>1</sup>myat / k<sup>1</sup>myatu / k<sup>1</sup>myet / svañj (1 ..=to embrace) - svajate / asvajata / svajat<sup>1</sup>m / svajeta / rañj (1 U.=to stick, to color) - rajati / arajat / rajatu / rajet / rajate / arajata / rajat<sup>1</sup>m / rajeta / rañj (4 U.= to stick, to color) - *rajyati / arajyat / rajyatu / rajyet / rajyate / arajyata / rajyat<sup>1</sup>m / rajyeta / k<sup>1</sup>k (6 P.=) - kirati / akirat / kiratu / kiret / khid (6 P.=to be sorry, unhappy) - khindati / akhindat / khindatu / khindet / sad (1 and 6 P.= to break or sink down, be disappointed,) - *s<sup>1</sup>dati / as<sup>1</sup>dat / s<sup>1</sup>datu / s<sup>1</sup>det /***

Epilogue (Upasa, h<sup>1</sup>raå)

By giving in book an introduction to the various units, though general but covering all the aspects, of the sentence in the Sanskrit language, we have composed, and planned the order of, these lessons in such a way that an individual wh o really wishes to know, the one who wants to study, may learn the Sanskrit language, and can inculcate a habit of speaking in Sanskrit, and understanding it in Sanskrit itself.

The method of studying Sanskrit, set in accordance with the grammatical structure of the Western languages, had begun during the British rule, and it was adopted, with a few additions and alterations, by Bhandarkar and others for preparing the school text-books, and the same routine has been continuing up to date. On the other hand, in the traditional Sanskrit schools, known as the 'P<sup>1</sup>-hañ<sup>1</sup>I<sup>1</sup>', we have come down from the Siddh<sup>1</sup>ta-kaumud to its abridged version Madhya-kaumud and still further abridged Laghu- kaumud. But, even these abridgements, too, are felt to be difficult to the prospective students and learners. As a result many students prefer to keep away, or drop down in the initial stages, from its study. This is a great national loss. In order to meet this crisis situation, we have chalked out a fresh sidewalk for the purpose, by avoiding the unnecessary aspects in these lessons.

The modern learners of Sanskrit remain quite ignorant of the tradition Indian method of learning Sanskrit, while it does not suit those who have learnt Sanskrit by the tradition Indian method to present the subject in the modern manner.

To get a strong grip, and profound grasp, on the linguistic structure Sanskrit, and to build up a firm foundation enabling the learner to make him a really learned Sanskrit scholar, have been the primary objectives of preparing this book. And, to that end, I have tried my best to providing the core material for the study, and teaching, of Sanskrit. It would be helpful to secondary school teachers, college students, and general readers interested in kA (9 U.=to kill, be wounded), jA (9 U.= to wear out, waste, weaken, get old), gA (9 P.=to break, split), vA (9 U.=to choose, select) are conjugated in the same manner as those of the verbal root kr, e.g., lin<sup>1</sup>ti, pun<sup>1</sup>ti, stA<sup>a</sup>ti, kA<sup>a</sup>ti, jA<sup>a</sup>ti, gA<sup>a</sup>ti, pA<sup>a</sup>ti, dA<sup>a</sup>ti, vA<sup>a</sup>ti, and others. In them, the final long vowel is replaced by its equivalent short one. With the prefixes sam and pra, the verbal root jñ becomes tmane-pada, e.g., sañj<sup>1</sup>n̄te, praj<sup>1</sup>n̄te /

The method of these lessons for learning Sanskrit language easily rather differs from the one adopted so far by the Western scholars, and following them, by the Indian scholars. In it we have kept the intention of offering a sort of a bridge between the old traditional technical method and the modern simplified one on the one hand, and of covering almost all the linguistic aspects of Sanskrit, on the other.

ni+sad (1 P.=to sit down) – ni»dati / nya»dat / ni»datu / ni»det /
jan (4 .=to be born, be produced, generated, to grow) – j<sup>1</sup>yate / aj<sup>1</sup>yata / j<sup>1</sup>yat<sup>1</sup>m / j<sup>1</sup>yeta /
nis+pad (4 .=) - ni»padyate / nirapadyata / ni»padyat<sup>1</sup>m / ni»padyeta /
jA (4 P.=to grow old, wear out) – j»ryati / aj»ryat / j»ryatu / j»ryet / kAt (10 U.= to praise, celebrate) – k»rtayati / ak»rtayat k»rtayatu / k»rtayet / k»rtayate / ak»rtayata / k»rtayat<sup>1</sup>m / k»rtayeta / pr» (10 U.= to entertain, please) – pr»<sup>a</sup>ayati / apr»<sup>a</sup>ayat / pr»<sup>a</sup>ayatu / pr»<sup>a</sup>aye pr»<sup>a</sup>ayati / apr»<sup>a</sup>ayata / pr»<sup>a</sup>ayat<sup>1</sup>m / pr»<sup>a</sup>ayeta /
dhØ (10 U.= to shake, quiver) – dhunayati / adhunayat / dhunayatu / dhunayet / dhunayate / adhunayata / dhunayat<sup>1</sup>m / dhunayeta / p<sup>1</sup> (1 P.= to drink) – pibati / apibat / pibatu / pibet /
d<sup>1</sup> (1 P.=to give ) – yacchati / ayacchat / yacchatu / yacchet /
mAj (1 P.=to wipe, rub) – m<sup>1</sup>rjati / am<sup>1</sup>rjat / m<sup>1</sup>rjatu / m<sup>1</sup>rjet /

When preceded by a prefix (upa-sarga), the pada of the following verbal roots is changed from the Parasmai-pada to the tmane-pada, or vice versa: e.g., kram (1 P.=to walk, to step) – kr<sup>1</sup>mati, akr<sup>1</sup>mat, kr<sup>1</sup>matu, kr<sup>1</sup>met /

But,
upa+kram (1 P.=to begin, commence, start)- upakr<sup>1</sup>mati up<sup>1</sup>kr<sup>1</sup>mat / upakr<sup>1</sup>matu / upakr<sup>1</sup>met /
upa+kram (1 .=to continue) – upakramate / up<sup>1</sup>kramata / upakramatu / upakrameta / par<sup>1</sup>+kram (1 .=to cross over, adventure)- par<sup>1</sup>kramate / par<sup>1</sup>kramata / par<sup>1</sup>kramat<sup>1</sup>m / par<sup>1</sup>krameta /
<sup>1</sup>+kram ( 1 P. = to arise in the sky) - <sup>1</sup>kramati / <sup>1</sup>kramat / <sup>1</sup>kramatu / <sup>1</sup>kramet /
<sup>1</sup>+kram (1 .=to attack, to arise) - <sup>1</sup>kramet / <sup>1</sup>kramata / <sup>1</sup>kramat<sup>1</sup>m / <sup>1</sup>krameta /
vi+kram (1 P.= to break, dissever) – vikramati / vyakramat / vikramatu / vikramet / vi+kram (1 .= to walk) – vikramate / vyakramta / vikramat<sup>1</sup>m / vikrameta / pra+kram (1 P. = to go) - prakr<sup>1</sup>mati / pr<sup>1</sup>kr<sup>1</sup>mat / prakr<sup>1</sup>matu / prakr<sup>1</sup>met /

pra+kram (1 . . = to begin, commence) prakramate / pr<sup>1</sup>kramata / prakramat<sup>1</sup>m / prakrameta /
kr<sup>1</sup>o (1 P.= to play, sport) - kr<sup>1</sup>oati, akr<sup>1</sup>oat, kr<sup>1</sup>oatu, kr<sup>1</sup>oet /
 But,
Anu+kr<sup>1</sup>o (1 . . to play after) - / anukr<sup>1</sup>oate / anvakr<sup>1</sup>oata / anukr<sup>1</sup>oat<sup>1</sup>m / anukr<sup>1</sup>oeta /
1+kr<sup>1</sup>o (1 . . to play fully) - 1kr<sup>1</sup>oate / 1kr<sup>1</sup>oata / 1kr<sup>1</sup>oat<sup>1</sup>m / 1kr<sup>1</sup>oeta /
pari+kr<sup>1</sup>o (1 . . to plat around) - parikr<sup>1</sup>oate / paryaikr<sup>1</sup>oata / parikr<sup>1</sup>oat<sup>1</sup>m / parikr<sup>1</sup>oeta /
sa, +kr<sup>1</sup>o (1 . . - to play together) / sa, kr<sup>1</sup>oate / samakr<sup>1</sup>oata / sa, kr<sup>1</sup>oat<sup>1</sup>m / sa, kr<sup>1</sup>oeta /
gam (1 P.= to go), but sam+gam (1 . . to unite, meet) - sa, gacchate / samagacchata / sa, gacchat<sup>1</sup>m / sa, gaccheta /
ji (1 P.= to win), but vi+ji (1 . . =to win) - vijayate / vyajayata / vijayat<sup>1</sup>m / vijayaeta / par<sup>1</sup>ji (=1 . . =to defeat)- par<sup>1</sup>jayate / par<sup>1</sup>jayayata / par<sup>1</sup>jayat<sup>1</sup>m / par<sup>1</sup>jayeta /
n<sup>1</sup> (1 P.=to take away, to lead) - ud+n<sup>1</sup> (1 . . = to raise up) - unnayate/ udanayata / unnayat<sup>1</sup>m/ unnayeta / upa+n<sup>1</sup>
 (1 . . =to initiate) upanayate/ up<sup>1</sup>nayata / upanayat<sup>1</sup>m / upanayeta /
vi+ni (=to educate, embellish) vinayate / vyanayata / vinayat<sup>1</sup>m / vinayeta /
yam (1 P.=to restrain), but upa-yam (1 . . = to marry) - upayacchate / up<sup>1</sup>ycchata / upayacchat<sup>1</sup>m / upayaccheta /
ram (1 . . =to enjoy, like), but, viram (1 P. = to stop) - viramati / vyaramat / viramatu / viramet / upa+ram (1 p.= to end, to renounce) - uparamati / up<sup>1</sup>ramat / uparamatu/ uparamet /
vad (1 P.=to speak), but vi+vad (1 . . = to dispute, quarrel) - vivadate / vyavadata / vivadat<sup>1</sup>m / vivadeta / anu+vad (1 P.=to repeat, translate) - anuvadati / anavavadat / auvadatu / anuvadet / apa+vad (=to censure, blame) apavadati / ap<sup>1</sup>vadat / apavadatu / apavadet /

kÅ (7 P.=to do) - kurmaâ, kurvanti / akaravam, akarot / kuru, kurvantu / kury<sup>1</sup>t /
kÅ (7 . . = to do) - kurmahe, kurvante / akurvi, akuruta / kuru-va kurvat<sup>1</sup>m / kurvta /

Kry<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a (Ninth Class): The verbal forms of the Present Tense (Ia-) 3rd Per. Sing., and Pl., Imperfect Past Tense (Iai) 2nd Per. Sing., and 3rd Per. Pl., Imperative (Io-) 1st Per. Sing., and 2nd Per. Sing., and Potential Mood (IIi) 3rd Per. Sing., of some of the verbal roots of this verbal root class are given below:

kr<sup>1</sup>o (9 P.=to buy, purchase) - kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>maâ, kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>ti, kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>anti / akr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m, akr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>an / kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>hi, kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>antu / kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t /
kr<sup>1</sup>o (9 . . = to buy, purchase) - kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>mahe, kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>te, kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>ate / akr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>1</sup>i, akr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>ata / kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>va, kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>at<sup>1</sup>m / kr<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>ta /
grah (9 P.=to take, hold) - gÅh<sup>2</sup>maâ, gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>1</sup>ti, gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>anti / agÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>1</sup>m, agÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>an / gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>1</sup>a, gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>antu / gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t /
grah (9 . . = to take, hold) - gÅh<sup>2</sup>mahe, gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>te, gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>ate / agÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>1</sup>i, agÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>ata / gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>va, gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>at<sup>1</sup>m / gÅh<sup>2</sup>a<sup>2</sup>ta /
jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 P.=to know, understand) - j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>maâ j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ti, j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>anti / aj<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>m, aj<sup>1</sup>nan / j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>hi, j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>antu / j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t /
jñ<sup>1</sup> (9 . . = to know, understand) - j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>mahe, j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>te, j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ate / aj<sup>1</sup>ni, aj<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ata / j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>va, j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>at<sup>1</sup>m / j<sup>1</sup>n<sup>1</sup>ta /

The forms of verbal roots manth (9 P. = to churn), bandh (9 P. = to bind, attract, fashion), granth (9 P.= to put together, to bind, to compose), stambh (9 P. = to stop, obstruct, hold, support), mu- (9 P. = to carry away, steal), k-ubh (9 P.=to agitate, be in commotion), and others, are conjugated in the same way as those of the verbal root grah. Among them, if r or - is found in them, the class adjunct n would be replaced by its retroflex equivalent <sup>a</sup>, as per the rules of coalescence, while the other sounds remain the same, except that the medial nasal is dropped, e.g., mathn<sup>1</sup>ti, badhn<sup>1</sup>ti, grathn<sup>1</sup>ti, stabhn<sup>1</sup>ti, k-ubhn<sup>1</sup>ti / The Imperative (Io-) forms of these verbal roots are conjugated in the 2nd Per. Sing. vt adding the termination <sup>1</sup>na, e.g. math<sup>1</sup>na, grath<sup>1</sup>na, badh<sup>1</sup>na, stabh<sup>1</sup>na, mu<sup>1</sup>a<sup>2</sup>a /

Moreover, the forms of the verbal roots b (9 P.=to stick, melt), pØ (9 U.= to purify, sanctify), stÅ (9 U.=to spread, cover),

Tense (la<sub>i</sub>) 2nd Per. Sing., and 3rd Per. Sing., Imperative (lo-) 2nd Per. Sing., and 1st Per. Pl., and Potential Mood (li<sub>i</sub>) 3rd Per. Sing., of some of the verbal roots of this verbal root class are given below:

rudh (7 P. = to arrest, hold, obstruct, press) – rundhmaā, ru<sup>a</sup>addhi / aru<sup>a</sup>aā, aru<sup>a</sup>at or aru<sup>a</sup>ad / runddhi, rundhatu / rundhy<sup>1t</sup> / rudh (7 . = to arrest, hold, obstruct, press) – rundhmae, rundhe /

arunddh<sup>1ā</sup>, arundha / runtsha, rundhat<sup>1m</sup> / rundhy<sup>1t</sup> /

añj (7 P.=to apply collyrium to the eyes) – añjmaā, anakti / nak or nag / naña / aj gdhi, añjatu / añjy<sup>1t</sup> /

bhuj (7 P.=to maintain, eat, enjoy) - bhuñjmaā, bhunakti / abhunak or abhunag / abhuñja / bhu gdhi, bhuñjatu / bhuñjy<sup>1t</sup> /

k-ud (7 P.=to dash, powder) – k-undmaā, k-u<sup>a</sup>atti / ak-u<sup>a</sup>at or ak-u<sup>a</sup>ad, ak-u<sup>a</sup>aā / k-unddhī, k-undantu / k-undy<sup>1t</sup> /

k-ud (7 . = to dash, powder) – k-undmae, k-u<sup>a</sup>atti / ak-untth<sup>1ā</sup>, ak-unta / k-untsva, k-undat<sup>1m</sup> / k-undita / pi- (7 P.=to grind, crush) – pi, -maā, pina-i / apina- or apina<sup>o</sup>, api, -a / pi, -y<sup>1t</sup> /

tÅ, h (7 P.=to wound, hurt) - tÅ, hmaā, tÅ<sup>a</sup>e<sup>o</sup>hi / atÅ<sup>a</sup>e- or atÅ<sup>a</sup>e<sup>o</sup>, atÅ, ha / tÅ<sup>a</sup>ht, tÅ, hantu / tÅ, hy<sup>1t</sup> /

hi, s (7 P.=to kill, destroy) – hi, smaā, hinasti / ahinaā, ahinat or ahinad, ahinaā / hindhi, hi, santu / hi, sy<sup>1t</sup> /

Similarly, the verbal forms of indh (7 . = to shine, burn) also are formed in the same manner as those of rudh, e.g., indhmaā, indhi, etc.

Tan<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a (Eighth Class): The verbal forms of the Present Tense (la<sub>i</sub>) 1st Per. Pl., 3rd Per. Sing., Imperfect Past Tense (la<sub>i</sub>) 1st Per. Sing., and 3rd Per. Pl., Imperative (lo-) 2nd Per. Sing., and 3rd Per. Pl., and Potential Mood (li<sub>i</sub>) 3rd Per. Sing., of some of the verbal roots of this verbal root class are given below:

tan (7 P.=to spread, extend) – tanumaā or tanmaā, tanvanti / atanavam, atanot / tanu, tanvantu / tanuy<sup>1t</sup> /

tan (7 . = to spread, extend) – tanumahe, tanvate / atanvi, atanuta / tanu-va, tanut<sup>1m</sup> / tanvta /

sth<sup>1</sup> (1 P.=to stand, stay), but sam+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 . = to stay together, united) – santi-hate/ samat-i-hata / santi-hat<sup>1m</sup> / santi-heta / ava+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 . = to be in a condition) – avati-hate/ av<sup>1</sup>ti-hata / avati-hat<sup>1m</sup> / avati-heta / pra+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 . = proceed, to start) – prati-hate/pr<sup>1</sup>ti-hata/ prati-hat<sup>1m</sup> / prati-haeta/ vi+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 . =to oppose) – viti-hate / vyati-hata / viti-hat<sup>1m</sup> / viti-heta / vi+ava+sth<sup>1</sup> (1 . =to systematize) vyavati-hate / vyav<sup>1</sup>ti-hata / vyavati-hat<sup>1m</sup> vyavati-heta / Similarly, samavati-hate / samprati-hate / sampraviti-hate / ud+sth<sup>1</sup> (=rise of power) - utti-hate / up+sth<sup>1</sup> (= to worship) – upati-hate / kÅ (6 P.=to scatter), but apa+<sup>1</sup>+kÅ (6 P.=to scatter away) – apas+ kÅ (6 . = to dig for food, scratch, dig) – apaskirate / ap<sup>1</sup>skirata / apaskirat<sup>1m</sup> / apaskireta / gÅ (6 P.=to speak), but ava+gÅ (=6 . =to eat) - avagirate / av<sup>1</sup>girata / avagirat<sup>1m</sup> / avagireta / sam+gÅ (6 . =to promise) sajgirate / samagirata / saj girat<sup>1m</sup> / saj gireta / prach (6 P.=to ask), but <sup>1</sup>+prach (6 . =to bid farewell) – <sup>1</sup>pÅchcate / <sup>1</sup>pÅchata / <sup>1</sup>pÅchat<sup>1m</sup> / <sup>1</sup>pÅcheta / hve (1 U.=to call, address), but <sup>1</sup>+hve (1 P.=to invite, send for) - <sup>1</sup>hvayati / <sup>1</sup>hvayat / <sup>1</sup>hvayatu / <sup>1</sup>hvayet / <sup>1</sup>+hve (1 . =to challenge) - <sup>1</sup>hvayate / <sup>1</sup>hvayata / <sup>1</sup>hvayat<sup>1m</sup> / <sup>1</sup>hvayeta / nah (4 P.=bind, tighten), but sam+nah (4 . = to girdle up loins) - sannahyate / sannahyate / samanahyata / sannahyat<sup>1m</sup> / sannahyeta / vi॥ (6 P.=to enter, stay), but abhi+ni+vi॥ (=to insist, to resort, to seek help) – abhinivislate / abhinyavisata / abhinivisat<sup>1m</sup> / abhiniviseta /

According to the general rule, the verbal roots of the Cur<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a (10th Class) are Ubhaya-padi, but the verbal roots tantr, mantr, cit, bharts, mÅg, dai, vid, pr<sup>1</sup>rth, etc., are used in the tmanepada only, e.g., tantrayate / mantrayate / cetayate / bhartsayate / mÅgayate / da, layate / vedayate / pr<sup>1</sup>rthayate / and others.

Now, note some of the most various forms of popular verbal roots of the Ad<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a (2nd Class), juhoty<sup>1</sup>di (3rd Class), Sv<sup>1</sup>di (5th Class), Rudh<sup>1</sup>di (7th Class), Tan<sup>1</sup>di (8th Class) and Kry<sup>1</sup>di (9th Class), so that by recognizing them, it would be very easy to enter into, and enjoy the meaning of their usage in the literary works.

For, surely recognizing the forms of these roots, write down the forms of these roots again from the list given below, in the form of new lists of the forms in similar Tense and Mood, and write down the meaning of the respective verbal form against each of them, e.g., y<sup>1</sup> (2 P.= to go) - y<sup>1</sup>ti (=he goes), y<sup>1</sup>nti (=they go), ay<sup>1</sup>t (=he went), ay<sup>1</sup>ā (=you went), ayuā (=you all went), y<sup>1</sup>ni (=I go), y<sup>1</sup>hi (=you go), y<sup>1</sup>y<sup>1</sup>t (=he may go). Prepare the lists, thus: y<sup>1</sup>ti, asti, <sup>1</sup>ste, ॥ete / y<sup>1</sup>nti, santi, <sup>1</sup>ste, ॥erate, etc.

Ad<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a (2nd Class): The verbal forms of the Present Tense (la-) 3rd Per. Sing., and Pl., Imperfect Past Tense (la<sub>i</sub>) 2nd Per. Sing., and 3rd Per. Pl., Imperative (lo-) 1st Per. Sing., and 2nd Per. Sing., and Potential Mood (li<sub>i</sub>) 3rd Per. Sing., of some of the verbal roots of this verbal root class are given below:

as (2 P.= to be) - asti, santi / <sup>1</sup>sā, <sup>1</sup>san / as<sup>1</sup>ni, adhi / sy<sup>1</sup>t / adhi+as (2 .= to attribute falsely) adhyaste, adhisate / adhyasth<sup>1</sup>ā, adyasta / adhyasai, adhyasva / adhyasita / <sup>1</sup>s (2 .=to sit) - <sup>1</sup>ste, <sup>1</sup>sate / <sup>1</sup>sth<sup>1</sup>ā, <sup>1</sup>sta / <sup>1</sup>ssai, <sup>1</sup>ssva / <sup>1</sup>sita / ॥ (2 .=to sleep) - ॥ete, ॥erate/ ॥eth<sup>1</sup>ā, ॥errata / ॥ayai, ॥e-va / ॥ayta / nu (2 P.=to bow down, salute) - nauti, nuvanti / anauā, anuvan / nav<sup>1</sup>ni, nuhi / nuy<sup>1</sup>t / stu (2 .=to praise, eulogize) - stauti or stav<sup>1</sup>ti, stuvanti / astau or astav<sup>1</sup>ā, astuvan / stav<sup>1</sup>ni, stuhī or stuv<sup>1</sup>hi / stuy<sup>1</sup>yat / brō (2 P.=to speak, tell) - brav<sup>1</sup>ti or <sup>1</sup>ha, burvanti or <sup>1</sup>huā / abrvā, abruvan / brava<sup>a</sup>i, brōhi / bruy<sup>1</sup>t / sō (2 .=to give birth, generate) - sōte, suvate / asōy<sup>1</sup>ā, asuvata / suvai, su-va / suvta / rud (2 P.=to weep, wail) - roditi, rudanti / arodaā or arod<sup>1</sup>ā, arudan / rod<sup>1</sup>ni, rudihi / rudy<sup>1</sup>t / d<sup>1</sup> (3 .= to give, offer, donate) - dade, dadata / adatth<sup>1</sup>ā, adadata / dada<sub>i</sub>, datva / dad<sup>1</sup>ta / dh<sup>1</sup> (3 P.= to bear, nourish, give) - dadh<sup>1</sup>mi, dadhate / adadh<sup>1</sup>ā, adadhuaā / dadh<sup>1</sup>ni, dhehi / dadhy<sup>1</sup>t / dh<sup>1</sup> (3 .= to bear, nourish, give) - dadhe, dadhate / adhatth<sup>1</sup>ā, adadhata / dadhai, dhatsva / dadh<sup>1</sup>ta / nij (3 P.=to wash, sanctify, nourish) - nenejmi, nenejati / anenek or aneneg, anenijuā / nenij<sup>1</sup>ni, nenegdhi / nenij<sup>1</sup>t / hu (3 P.=to offer in fire, sacrifice) - juhomī, juhvati / ajuhhoā, ajuhvuā / juhav<sup>1</sup>ni, juhudhi / juhuy<sup>1</sup>t / pā (3 P.= to maintain, cross, abide by) - piparmi, piratī / apiipaā, apiparuā / pirap<sup>1</sup>ai, pipl̄hi / pipl̄y<sup>1</sup>t / Ā (3 P.=to go, move) - iyarmi, iyrati / aiya, aiyaruā / iyar<sup>1</sup>ai, iyāhi / iyāy<sup>1</sup>t /

Sv<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a (Fifth Class): The verbal forms of the Present Tense (la-) 1st Per. Du., and 3rd Per. Pl., Imperfect Past Tense (la<sub>i</sub>) Sing., and 3rd Per. Sing., Imperative (lo-) 2nd Per. Sing., and 3rd Per. Sing., and Potential Mood (li<sub>i</sub>) 3rd Per. Sing., of some of the verbal roots of this verbal root class are given below:

ci (5 P.=to accumulate, gather) - cinuvaā or cinvaā, cinvanti / acinavam, acnotin / cinu, cinvantu / cinuy<sup>1</sup>t / ci (5 .= to accumulate, gather) - cinavahe or cinvahe, cinvate / acinvī, acinuta / cinu-va, cinvat<sup>1</sup>m / cinvta / a॥ (5 .=to gather, pervade, experience, enjoy) - a॥nuvahe, a॥nuvate / 1॥nuvi, 1॥nuta / a॥nu-va, a॥nuvat<sup>1</sup>m / a॥nuvta / 1p (5 P.=to get, obtain, pervade) - 1pnūva, 1pnūvanti / 1pnāvam, 1pnōt / 1pnūhi, 1pnūvantu / 1pnuy<sup>1</sup>t / ॥ru (5 P.= to hear, cut asunder) - ॥āuvaā or ॥āvaā, ॥āvanti / a॥āvam, a॥āot / ॥āu, ॥āvantu / ॥āuy<sup>1</sup>t / k॥ (5 P.= to kill, destroy) - k॥āuvaā or k॥āvaā, k॥āvanti / ak॥āvam, ak॥āot / k॥āu, k॥āvantu / k॥āuy<sup>1</sup>t / k॥ (5 .= to kill, destroy) - k॥āuvahe or kru<sup>a</sup>vahe, kru<sup>a</sup>vate / akru<sup>a</sup>vi, akru<sup>a</sup>uta / kru<sup>a</sup>u-va, kru<sup>a</sup>vat<sup>1</sup>m / kru<sup>a</sup>vta /

Rudh<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>a</sup>a (Seventh Class): The verbal forms of the Present Tense (la-) 1st Per. Pl., and 3rd Per. Sing., Imperfect Past

daridr<sup>1</sup> (2 P.=to become poor) – *daridr<sup>1</sup>ti, daridrati / adaridr<sup>1</sup>t, adaridruā / daridrihi, daridrata / daridriy<sup>1</sup>t / j<sup>1</sup>gĀ (2 P.=to wake up) – *j<sup>1</sup>garti, j<sup>1</sup>grati / aj<sup>1</sup>gaā, aj<sup>1</sup>garuā / j<sup>1</sup>gĀhi, j<sup>1</sup>gĀta / j<sup>1</sup>gĀy<sup>1</sup>t / vid (2 P.=to know) – *veti or veda, vidanti or viduā / avet or aved, aviduā / viddhi or vida, kuru, vitta or vid<sup>1</sup>, kuruta / vidy<sup>1</sup>t / sam+vid (2 .=to recognize) - sa, vide, sa, vivate / samavtta, samavedata / sa, vetsva, sa, vedadhvam / sa, vedvta / cak- (2 .=to speak, tell) – cak-e, cak-ate/aca-a, cak-ata / cak-va, cak<sup>2</sup>hvam / cak-vta / dvi- (2 P.=to hate, malign, spite) – dve-i, dvi-anti / adve- or adve<sup>2</sup>, advi-at or advi-uā / dvi<sup>2</sup>hi, dvi-a / dvi-y<sup>1</sup>t /

Juhoty<sup>1</sup>di-ga<sup>2</sup>a (3rd Class): The verbal forms of the Present Tense (la-) 1st, and 3rd Per. Sing., Imperfect Past Tense (la-i) 2nd Per. Sing., and 3rd Per. Pl., Imperative (lo-) 1st Per. Sing., and 2nd Per. Sing., and Potential Mood (li-i) 3rd Per. Sing., of some of the verbal roots of this verbal root class are given below:
bhĀ (3 P.=) – bibharmi, bibhrati / abibhaā, abibharuā / bibhar<sup>1</sup>a, bibruhi / bibhruy<sup>1</sup>t /
bhĀ (3 .= to bear, hold, nourish) – bibhre, bibhrate / abibhruth<sup>1</sup>ā, abibhrata / bibharai /, bibhru-va / bibhrta /
hr» (3 P.=to be bashful, ashamed) - jihremi, jihriyati / ajihriā, ajihreyuā / jihriy<sup>1</sup>a, jihrihi / jihry<sup>1</sup>t / m<sup>1</sup> (3 .=to measure) – mime, mimate / amim<sup>2</sup>th<sup>1</sup>ā, amimata / mimai, mim<sup>2</sup>va / mim<sup>2</sup>ta /
h<sup>1</sup> (3 P.= to leave off, desert, keep off, separate) - jah<sup>1</sup>mi / jahati / ajah<sup>1</sup>ā, ajahuā / jah<sup>1</sup>ni, jah<sup>1</sup>hi / jahy<sup>1</sup>t / h<sup>1</sup> (3 .= to leave off, desert, keep off, separate) - jihe, jihate / ajih<sup>2</sup>th<sup>1</sup>ā, ajihata / jihai, jih-va / jihita /
bh» (3 P.=to be afraid, fear from, take fright of) - bibhemi, bibhyati/ abibheā, abibhayuā / bibhay<sup>1</sup>ni, bibhehi or bibh»hi / bibhiy<sup>1</sup>t or bibh»y<sup>1</sup>t / d<sup>1</sup> (3 P.=to give, offer, donate) - dad<sup>1</sup>mi, dadate / adad<sup>1</sup>ā, adaduā / dad<sup>1</sup>ni, dehi / dady<sup>1</sup>t /

i (2 P.=to go, move) – *eti, yanti / aiā, iyan / ay<sup>1</sup>ni, ihi / iy<sup>1</sup>t / adh+i (2 .=to study, recite) – adh»te, adh»yate / adhyaith<sup>1</sup>ā, adhyaita / adhyayai, adh»va / adh»yta / jak- (2 P.=) – *jak-it, jak-ati / ajak-aā, ajak-»ā or ajak-uā / jak-<sup>1</sup>a, jak-ihī / jak-y<sup>1</sup>t / vas (2 .=to wear cloth, dress) – vaste, vasate / avasth<sup>1</sup>ā, avasata / vasai. vassva / vas»ta /
¶vas (2 P.=to breathe) - ¶vasiti, ¶vasanti / a¶vasāā or a¶vas»ā, a¶vasan / ¶vas<sup>1</sup>ni, ¶vasihi / ¶vasy<sup>1</sup>t /
an (2 P.=to breathe) – aniti, ananti / <sup>1</sup>naā or <sup>1</sup>n»ā, <sup>1</sup>nan / an<sup>1</sup>ni, anihī / any<sup>1</sup>t /
svap (2 P.=to sleep) – svapiti, svapanti / asvapaā or asvap»ā, asvapan / svap<sup>1</sup>ni, svapihi / svapy<sup>1</sup>t /
lih (2 P.=to lick, lap) – le<sup>2</sup>hi, lihanti / ale- or ale<sup>2</sup>, alihan / l<sup>2</sup>hi, l<sup>2</sup>ha / lihy<sup>1</sup>t / duh (2 P.=to milk) – dogdhi, duhanti / adhok or adhog, aduhan / dugdhi, dugdha / duhy<sup>1</sup>t / han (2 .=to kill, destroy) – hanti, ghnanti / ahan, aghnan / jahi, hata / hany<sup>1</sup>t /
¹+han (2 .=to harm, strike) - <sup>1</sup>hate, <sup>1</sup>ghnate / <sup>1</sup>hata, <sup>1</sup>ghnata / <sup>1</sup>hassva, <sup>1</sup>hadhvam / <sup>1</sup>gn»ta /
»¶ (2 .=to rule, master) - »-e, »-ate/ ai-<sup>1</sup>a, ai-ata / »-i-va, »-idhvam, »-»ta /
»<sup>2</sup> (2 .=to praise, adore, worship) - »--e, »<sup>2</sup>ate / ai-<sup>1</sup>a, ai<sup>2</sup>ata / »<sup>2</sup>i-va, »<sup>2</sup>idhvam / »<sup>2</sup>»ta /
mĀj (2 P.=to wipe, polish) – *m<sup>1</sup>r-<sup>1</sup>i, mĀjanti or m<sup>1</sup>rjanti / am<sup>1</sup>r-or am<sup>1</sup>r<sup>2</sup>, amĀjan or am<sup>1</sup>rjan / mĀ<sup>2</sup>hi, mĀ-<sup>1</sup>a / mĀjy<sup>1</sup>t /
¶¹s (2 P.=to rule) - ¶¹sti, ¶¹sati / a¶¹t or a¶¹d, a¶¹suā / ¶¹dhi, ¶¹-<sup>1</sup>a / ¶¹y<sup>1</sup>t /
¹+¶¹s (2 .=to bless, hope) - <sup>1</sup>¶¹ste, <sup>1</sup>¶¹sate / <sup>1</sup>¶¹sth<sup>1</sup>ā, <sup>1</sup>¶¹sata / <sup>1</sup>¶¹sai, <sup>1</sup>¶¹ssva / <sup>1</sup>¶¹sita /
pra+¶¹s (2 .=to pray, request) - pra¶¹ste, pra¶¹sate / pra¶¹sth<sup>1</sup>ā, pra¶¹sata / pra¶¹sai, pra¶¹ssva / pra¶¹sita /
cak<sup>1</sup>s (2 P.=to shine, dazzle) - cak<sup>1</sup>sti, cak<sup>1</sup>sati / acak<sup>1</sup>t or acak<sup>1</sup>d, acak<sup>1</sup>suā / cak<sup>1</sup>dhi or cak<sup>1</sup>ddhi, cak<sup>1</sup>sta / cak<sup>1</sup>sy<sup>1</sup>t /